Snow Storm Hits Eastern Ontario

High Winds Disrupt Wire Services In Many Districts

Up to Eight Inches Snow Reported in New York State

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—An early-morning fall of wet, sticky snow, accompanied by high winds, disrupted communications and toppled trees today in the Ottawa Valley and as far west as Brockville.

The Dominion meteorological office said the storm developed yesterday near the southern New England coast and centred early today in New Brunswick.

In Toronto wind "gusts" of up to 55 miles an hour were recorded.

Telegraph companies reported interruptions in direct circuits between Toronto and Montreal and Ottawa but dispatches said normal service likely would be resumed early this afternoon.

The storm was worst in northern New York State where power and communications disruptions were numerous and the snowfall in some sections was as much as [illegible]ches.

Canadian Press Toronto-Montreal circuits were disrupted temporarily and for brief periods normal news transmission to Brockville and Cornwall was stopped.

An estimated two inches of snow fell in Brockville between 1.30 a.m. and 9.30 a.m. and the heavy, wet fall was continuing.

Throughout the rest of Ontario the weather remained clear and cold with temperatures 40 in most southern parts of the province and as low as 20 north of Lake Superior.

At Chicoutimi, Que., Riviere-Aux-Rats overflowed from heavy rainfall and water flooded the cellars of many homes.

More than two inches of snow fell in Brockville. Heavy snow fell in Belleville; flurries were common throughout the Sudbury district and a hail storm struck Preston.

In Ottawa the branches of many trees toppled to the ground during a wind-driven rain and sleet storm preceding the snowfall. The snow generally melted as it hit the ground but in some spots an inch collected.

New York State was harder hit, with some communities reporting up to eight inches of snow and numerous power and communications failures.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)— Price recession cotinued and volume dropped off 168,000 shares for a turnover of 201,000 shares in the first hour of the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Minuses on the trading board were predominant.

Papers had four losses to one gain. The only gain in the papers was Donnacona 1-4. Brown Pfd sold off two points and International 1-4. Liquors showed three losses and no gains. Foods registered five gams to one loss but they were all fractional.

Secondary gold losses almost doubled gains ranging from fractions to 10 points either way. Gainers included Aquarius, Armistice, Aubelle, Harricana, Kirkland Lake, Laguerre, Lexindin, Mylamaque, Porcupine Peninsula, Quemont, Sullivan and Wasa Lake.

STEEL STRIKE WILL LIKELY END THURSDAY

Workers Are Now Voting but When Mills Will Open Remains Big Question

Hamilton, Oct. 1 (CP)—While steelworkers voted today on acceptance or rejection of settlement proposals embodying a 13-cents-an-hour pay rise in the basic steel industry it appeared the 11-weeks-old tie-up would end Thursday.

But when full production could be resumed in the giant steel mills of Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton, at Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation in Sydney, N.S., and the Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, was another matter.

The only certainty was that some time must elapse before the mills return to full output.

Algoma officials said normal production could be regained in approximately four weeks. At Hamilton H. G. Hilton, Stelco president, said repair work requiring several weeks for completion would delay attainment of capacity steel production.

In this city, which has had its tense moments during the strike, a special force of some 400 Royal Canadian Mounted and Ontario Provincial Police, remained but it was anticipated they would be ordered out of town on announcement of the strike's end. They saw little action during the weeks they have been here, since Aug. 26 and went to the picket line only once.

Their dispatch to the city followed a request from the Hamilton Police Commission after Chief Constable J. R. Crocker said city police could not handle the picket line situation.

In a broadcast last night Eamon Park, Publicity Director for the union, said here, "the full effect of the proposed settlement will not become totally apparent until the negotiations are completed following the strike, but the union is fully confident that a satisfac-

ONTARIO GOVT. ORDERS PROBE OF MILK PRODUCTION

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells Appointed Commissioner by Premier Drew

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—All phases of Ontario milk production and marketing—including prices —will be investigated by a Royal Commission, Premier George Drew announced last night as a swelling chorus of complaints arose over a three-cent a quart increase.

The increase authorized by the Ontario Milk Control Board, went into effect today, bringing the price to 16 cents a quart.

Premier Drew's announcement, made some hours after a special Ontario cabinet meeting was called to discuss the increase, said that Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court had been appointed as commissioner.

He will conduct an inquiry under the Public Inquiry Act, into the production, processing, distribution, transporting and marketing of milk as well as prices at which it should be sold.

Premier Drew's statement recalled that as a result of the Federal decision to discontinue the milk subsidy as of Oct. 1, the Milk Control Board of Ontario conducted an inquiry and decided upon new price levels but the authority of the Board to make an order was challenged.

The Ontario government reviewed the report of the board's

BOTTLE SHORTAGE RESPONSIBLE FOR CUT IN LIQUOR

Ration Cut From Eight Bottles a Month To One Effective Today; Statement Issued

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—An Ontario permit to buy hard liquor, value $1 and good for eight bottles a month only 24 hours ago, took on a new and greatly reduced importance today with a monthly potential of only one bottle.

The reason, as given by the Ontario Liquor Control Board: The bottle shortage.

How long the cut, announced lact night by Chief Liquor Commissioner William Griesinger, would last none could say. It depends on the shortage, how soon it ends.

Mr. Griesinger, in his brief statement made reference to the plant of Brunner Mond Canada, Ltd., at Amherstburg, Ont., being closed by strike since July 12 with a consequent shortage of soda ash so that Canadian bottle manufacturers could not continue operations.

"Bottles are, therefore, not available for the bottling of whisky and other spirits," said the statement. "Consequently, in order to distribute as equitably as possible the remaining supply of spirits in bottles, the ration per permit holder commencing Oct. 1, 1946, will be one 36 or 25-ounce bottle or two half-bottles per month, until bottles are again available."

Votes to Maintain Greek-Bulgarian Pre-war Frontier

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Oct. 1 (AP)—A peace conference commission voted today to maintain the pre-war Greek-Bulgarian frontier, refusing by an overwhelming majority to grant the border "rectifications" sought by Greece.

The Bulgarian political commission, in the wake of a military commission decision to demilitarize the Bulgarian side of the line, voted 10 to one to maintain the 1941 Bulgarian borders. Only Greece opposed the move, with Holland and South Africa abstaining.

The commission prefaced that step by rejecting, eight to two, with three abstentions, a Greek proposal to move the frontier slightly northward.

In deciding Bulgaria's frontiers, the Bulgarian political commission virtually concluded its work, with only the actual writing and approval of its final report remaining on the agenda.

The Balkan and Finland economic commission adopted an article requiring Bulgaria to return property lotted from Allied powers.

Controversy over how the Free State of Trieste should be governed still topped the conference's problems.

NINE OF FAMILY NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH BY FUMES

London, Ont., Oct. 1 — (CP) — Nine members of the family of Richard Gettner narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation today when overcome by fumes from a gas oven used for heating.

Annie Gettner, 22, awakened other members of the family when she rose from bed and, reling, fell on the stove. Her brothers and sisters were found unconscious in bed and on the floors but were revived without hospital treatment.

Seven Committed to Prison, Russia Protests Tribunal's Action in Acquitting Three

Members of High Command Styled as Willing Tools

Nuernberg, Oct. 1 —(AP)— The International War Crimes Tribunal today decreed death on the gallows for 12 leaders of the Adolf Hitler gang, sentenced seven to prison, and — with Russia dissenting — acquitted three defendants.

The court, after sentencing to death Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop and 10 other Nazi henchmen, announced that Russia had protested against the tribunal's acquittal of Franz von Papen, Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritsche. The Soviet judge, Maj.-Gen. I. T. Nikitchenko, also protested that Rudolf Hess should have been hanged instead of receiving the life imprisonment sentence the court handed him, and objected to yesterday's acquittal of the general staff and high command.

Judges of Britain, the United States and France joined in the majority opinion, which now will be carried out by the Allied Control Council, representing all four Allies.

Legal officials of the American military government said that if any of the three Nazi leaders acquitted were returned to the United States zone of occupation they probably would be tried by Germans under the zone's denazification law.

Might be Returned.

The officials said because Schacht and Von Papen owned property in more than one zone it was conjectural to which they might be returned. Legal experts in Berlin expressed belief the Russians might get custody of Fritsche, whom they arrested in Berlin and delivered to Nuernberg for trial.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, expressed regret that "the tribunal has felt constrained to acquit Schacht and Von Papen and to decline to declare the criminality of the general staff." He said in a formal statement that "the effect of these acquittals on the further prosecution of industrialists and militarists which have been planned will have to be studied from the text of the opinion."

Each defendant was sentenced individually.

Goering was first. He strode into the courtroom flanked by two military policemen. His gray suit hung limply about his once ample figure. Chief Justice Lawrence looked sternly down from the bench and sentenced the Number 2 Nazi to death by hanging. Under the glare of the lights, Goering's face was immobile.

Gray and sickly, Von Ribbentrop stood stunned as the death sentence was pronounced. He had to be helped out by military policemen.

Others sentenced to death were Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Alfred Rosenberg, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick, Julius Staeicher, Fritz Sauckel, Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, Arthur-Seyss-Inquart and Martin Bormann (in absentia).

Rudolf Hess, third ranking German until his strange wartime flight to Scotland, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Also sentenced to life were Walther Funk and Grand Admiral Erich Raeder.

Those acquitted were Franz Von Papen, the old gray diplomat who led intrigues in both world wars; Hjalmar Schacht, the German finance wizard; and Hans Fritsche, deputy propaganda minister for Paul Joseph Goebbels, a suicide.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who surrendered Germany and was Fuehrer in the last few days of the war, received a 10-year sentence.

GIRL FOUND IN COMA

Hespeler, Ont., Oct. 1 (CP)— The search for Mary Gingerich, 20, reported missing last Saturday, ended last night in the attic of her home, where she was found lying in a coma.

Miss Gingerich was taken to Kitchener, for treatment at Kitchener—Waterloo Hospital where she has trained as a nurse for two years. Cause of her illness was not revealed.

The young woman came home from Kitchener early Saturday, went to bed and was reported missing four hours later.

RIGHT TO SUE UPHELD

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—An Ontario Appeal Court ruling today gave Mrs. Violet Appelbaum right to sue Mrs. Mildred Gilchrist on the grounds of "enticing and procuring" her husband, Solly Appelbaum. The ruling upset a judgment of Mr. ustice W. F. Schroeder that women have no right to sue for alienation of affections. Mrs. Appelbaum had brought action for $500,000 damages against Mrs. Gilchrist, now Mrs Paul Newby. Mr. Justice Schroeder found there was no distinction between enticement and alienation. Under Ontario law a woman cannot bring alienation action.

Bomber Completes Record Flight Of 11,237 Miles

Columbus, O., Oct. 1 (AP)—The truculent turtle, navy patrol bomber, landed at Port Columbus at 1.28 p.m. E.S.T. today, completing a record-breaking non-stop flight of 11,237 miles from Perth, Australia. The unofficial elapsed time was 55 hours and 18 minutes.

The twin-engined Lockheed Neptune P2V, carrying a crew of four men and a baby kangaroo, thereby exceeded by 3.321 miles the non-stop mark of 7,916 miles set last November by the army's B29 "Dream Boat."

On hand to greet the long-distance flyers were delegations of navy officials who flew here from Washington and Chicago.

The fliers, headed by Cmdr. Thomas D. Davies of Cleveland, were to be given a physical examination for fatigue immediately.

Then they were to relate their experiences to newspapermen.

The "Truculent Turtle" is the United States navy's newest patrol plane, powered with two Wright Cyclone engines which deliver 2,300 horsepower. It carried about 25 tons of gasoline as part of a gross weight of 85,000 pounds, described by Lockheed officials as the heaviest load ever taken aloft by two engines.

The plane has a normal gross weight of 58,000 pounds and a range of something over 5,000 miles.

The navy has said that it is the only plane other than the B-29 capable of carrying an atomic bomb.

TROLLERS STEAL FISH

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 1 — (CP)— Representatives of Lake Superior fishermen charged yesterday that private trollers were stealing fish from their pound nets and added that the 1946 fishing season "has not been good" in view of extensive fish poaching by United States commercial fishing and the invasion of the trollers.

REGRET VOICED AT ACQUITTAL OF SCHACHT, PAPEN

Prosecution Staffs Also Believed That General Staff Was Guilty of Crimes

Nuernberg, Oct. 1 —(AP)— Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, said today he regretted the International Military Tribunal had acquitted Hjalmar Schacht and Franz von Papen, and expressed doubt how the acquittals would affect future trials of German militarists and industrialists.

He also expressed regret that the four-power tribunal had declined "to declare the criminality of the general staff." Mr. Justice Jackson praised, however, the general terms of the tribunal's history-making judgment.

ome other members of the prosecution staffs also made it plain unofficially that they were not too happy about some of the verdicts.

The acquittal of Franz von Papen, smooth diplomat who led German intrigue in two wars, rankled most of them. One prosecutor, who may not be named, said on behalf of his delegation:

"Frankly, we are a little pained about Von Papen."

everal prosecutors expressed no opinion and brushed questions aside brusquely.

Rudolf Dix, German lawyer for Hjalmar Schacht, said the acquittal of his client was what he expected all along and "it followed what I have been contending throughout the trial."

Franz von Papen, Jr., smiled broadly at the verdict.

The immediate reaction of the first dozen Germans interviewed as the verdicts were announced was surprise that any of the defendants had been wholly acquitted.

"That's really something," said four of the persons questioned when told that Hjalmar Schacht, Von Papen and Hans Fritsche had been found innocent.

Among the German staff of the Associated Press Bureau, the greatest surprise was expressed over the acquittal of Von Papen and Fritsche.

Middle-aged persons who were familiar with Von Papen's career said they thought he should have been judged at least partly guilty "because he's an old fox and a conniver who helped Hitler to power and played all sides of any fence."

Middle-aged Germans generally agreed with the acquittal of Fritsche, "because at least he never killed anyone," but some of the younger generation described Fritsche as "a loudmouthed Nazi propagandist" and expressed the opinion "it would have been more just to be lenient with the purely military leaders." This group especially mentioned Wilhelm Keitel.

Recommend $6 Day for Jurors

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 1—(CP) —A Grand Jury presentment at the Supreme Court of Ontario Fall Assizes today recommended increase of remuneration to jurors to $6 a day and Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson said that the matter might well be given consideration.

True bills were returned in criminal cases against David Deschenes on a charge of rape and against Maxwell Harry McDonald on a charge of attempted assault.

POLICE OFFICER GROWS BIG POTATOES

Despite a dry summer and other conditions which ordinarily might not appear conducive to good potato growing, Constable George Westlake, member of the Belleville police force has no difficulty in raising "spuds" that are definitely on the outsize.

Digging his Green Mountain potatoes from his South George Street garden last week the constable was amazed to find one weighing two - and - one - half pounds, while four of them weighed approximately eight pounds. Last Spring he planted only one pail and after using from them throughout the summer dug two bags for his winter use.

TOURIST EXPRESSES APPRECIATION FOR COMFORTS OF CAMP

Appreciation for facilities provided at the Belleville tourist camp on Dundas Street has been expressed by letter to members of the city council by a Berkley, Michigan resident who during the summer had the occasion to stop in this fair city overnight.

The Berkley resident, one John G. Klees, was apparently somewhat surprised to find a municipally owned tourist camp providing all the necessary conveniences and indicated that it was unfortunate that more communities do not follow the lead of Belleville.

"On a recent trip through your city I had the pleasure of camping one night at the tourist camp," wrote the Michigan tourist.

"It is not often that one finds along the highway a camp such as yours with running water, cook house, laundry, etc., and it is therefore more appreciated. It is too bad that more communities do not provide some comfort for the not too wealthy traveller."

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW BIG INCREASE

An increase of nearly one million dollars in customs and excise collection at Belleville for the first six months of the fiscal year as compared with the March 31st-Sept. 30th period last year, was reported by customs collector Lt. Col. E. A. Geen today.

Collections for the half year ending Sept. 30th totalled $3,450,045.35 as compared with $2,082,096.93 for the same period last year.

Collections for the month of September totalled $560,761.49 as compared with $443,281,94 for the same period last year.

City and District War Brides Will Be Entertained

War brides of the city and district and their children will be the guests of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross Society at a series of weekly teas this Autumn and Winter, officials of the society announced today.

The teas will be held in the Y.M.C.A. on the first Thursday of every month beginning on Thursday Oct. 3. The functions will be held from 3 to 6 in the afternoon and all war brides of the city and district will be made welcome.

Similar functions held some time ago met with such success that the Red Cross decided to hold them again this season.

There are approximately 93 war brides and 36 children of returned Canadian personnel in the city, and invitations have been forwarded to these. However, it was pointed out today, there are some in the city and district whose husbands are stationed elsewhere or who have not yet returned, and these will be made welcome at the monthly functions.

Obituary

MRS. LULA GRACE LEEMAN

The funeral of Mrs. Lula Grace (Amey) Leeman, wife of Mr. Bernard Roy Leeman, 46 Grove Street, took place Monday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel was conducted by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church and the committal prayers were said at the graveside in Riverside Eastern Cemetery, Napanee, by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling and the Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, Rector of St. John's Church, Madoc.

The bearers were James Lazenby, Cecil Davis, Wallace Bell, Goldwyn Denyes, Lee Gould and Robert Ferguson.

CLIFFORD JONES
(Marmora)

Marmora, Oct. 1 —(Special)— A well known resident of Marmora died at his home here on Saturday evening in the person of Clifford Jones, after a short illness. Deceased, who was in his fifty-third year, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Jones and all his life was spent in Marmora where for the past twenty-five years he conducted a barber shop and billiard room. He was a veteran of the First World War. He took a keen interest in sports and was always ready to help in any worthy cause for the good of the community. Of a friendly disposition, he made many friends who sincerely regret his passing.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Myrtle Rose, and three sons, Roy of Marmora township, Bill and Jack at home. He is also survived by two brothers, Roy of Toronto and Murvis of Ajax.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon from his late residence to St. Andrew's United Church where the service was conducted by Rev. E. M. Cadigan. Interment was in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

Collacutt Bus Terminal Moved To Pinnacle St. After Council Accepts Committee's Report

Location Only Temporary and Company Will be Asked to Provide Own Terminal

Following dissatisfaction arising out of the move to have highway busses stop on Bridge Street at the foot of Murney Hill to pick up and discharge passengers, these buses in the future will be permitted to park on Pinnacle Street between McAnnany and Bridge Streets.

This was the decision reached by members of city council Monday evening when the committee in charge brought out a recommendation to this effect.

In an effort to do away with traffic congestion on Front Street last year council had granted permission to the Collacutt bus company to stop on Bridge Street, but it was admitted that this did not turn out sastisfactorily.

Under the new arrangement signs marked "buses only" will be placed on Pinnacle Street south of Bridge where the bus companies will be allowed to pick up passengers until December 31st of this year.

"Buses will be more of a nuisance on Pinnacle Street than they were at the foot of Murney Hill" objected Alderman Follwell when discussion was opened on the matter. "It is time we in Belleville decided to tell the bus companies to provide their own facilities. There is no reason why they cannot build their own terminals."

Only Temporary Location

In reply Alderman Thompson admitted that the committee was only trying to get out of the hole they had placed themselves in last year when permission was granted for the buses to park on Bridge Street. He granted that the Pinnacle Street location was a temporary location only, but indicated that it had its advantages in that waiting passengers could use the post office for shelter.

"We have got to get tough with the bus companies," returned Alderman Follwell. "As long as we provide a place for them to park they will not build a terminal."

Alderman Armstrong interjected that a certain gasoline station proprietor had offered parking facilities to the bus company in return for their purchase of gasoline but the bus company had refused. "It is about time we woke up and told these people they must build," he said.

Alderman Thompson: "We cannot prevent them from parking on our streets to discharge and pick up passengers."

Maybe Get Complaints

Alderman Chamberlain: "The government says we cannot prevent them stopping on our highways, so I say let the government have the baby to nurse and let passengers use the post office. Then maybe we will get complaints."

"The Collacutt bus company is too cheap to spend a few cents for gasoline in Belleville," pointed out Alderman Follwell as he compared the transportation firm with the Canadian National Railways which he said had brought Belleville out of the "hick" town class. "Ten Collacutt companies would not be as good as the C. N. R. in providing work for Belleville men. It is time we told them to come across or keep out."

Power Break Causes Delay In Publication

Publication of the Ontario Intelligencer was delayed 1 1-2 to 2 hours today when sudden power interruption starting at 11.30 a.m. and lasting till 12.50 caused serious delay in operations in the news rooms and composing room of the paper.

News wires from outside points "went dead" as did linotype machines in the composing room.

The interruption is believed to have been caused by trouble developing in a hydro transformer.

Power was turned on in adjacent offices some time before it was in the newspaper building. This is believed to have been caused by a local condition.

The power cut-off came at the busiest time in the daily routine of the paper, when important outside news as well as local "copy" is sent to the composing room to be set up.

Further delay occurred in the composing room after the power has been cut in because of the cooling of metal pots in linotype machines. Some time must elapse before the metal reaches the degree of heat necessary to the successful operation of the machines.

Operators worked at top speed after the power came on in an effort to make up for time lost, but despite these efforts, the paper did not go to press until some lengthy time after the usual scheduled hour for its appearance.

Construction Company Authorized To Proceed with Seepage Wall Between Island and Mainland

Ends of Wall Will Abut on City Property and Garbage Used to Fill Marshland

Authorization for the Diamond Construction and Engineering Company of Belleville to proceed immediately with the contract for the proposed seepage wall to be built between Zwick's Island and the mainland was given by city council at their regular meeting Monday evening.

Although the contract had been let some months ago work on the project was held up pending decision as to where the wall would meet with the mainland.

The wall will be constructed between the two points to prevent seepage from the marsh to the east where the city intends at some date in the future to commence dumping garbage as a fill. Health authorities pointed out that the seepage wall would be necessary to prevent contamination of the city water supply when garbage dumping commenced.

Plans Accepted.

Plans for the proposed public lavatory to be built on the market square adjacent to the city hall were accepted by council and a committee of Aldermen Armstrong, Hyde, Thompson and Harvey given authorization to proceed with the construction and installation of equipment.

Plans for the lavatory have been prepared by City Engineer Charles Mott and construction and installation of equipment will be done under his supervision.

City Engineer Charles Mott was granted a salary increase to $250 per month, the increase being retroactive to June 1st of this year. Council also granted $25 for prizes to school children for essays to be written in connection with observance of the forthcoming fire prevention week.

Chief's Request Granted

Request of Police Chief Walter Probert that "no parking" signs for trucks be erected on Dundas between Albert St. and the city limits, was granted by councillors while the public utilities will be requested to provide lighting facilities for the building occupied by William Lane which is being moved to a new location from its present site.

Council concurred in a recent resolution passed by members of the Belleville Trades and Labor council asking that the government reconsider their action in discontinuing the 55 cent milk subsidy. The resolution will be passed on to Ottawa.

Four sandwich boards requesting motorists to drive slow and to be on the lookout for school children will be placed on the highway, two for King George School and two for Queen Alexandra School. These will be placed at certain hours with the sanction of the school board. Council also sanctioned a checkerboard traffic sign to be placed on West Dundas Street facing west at "Devil's Elbow". Several accidents have recently occurred at this point as result of motorists not realizing the sharpness of the curve at this point.

Failed to Take Action

Council failed to take any action on a request from a Western Ontario city that they grant concurrence to a resolution asking that restrictions be placed on materials going into industrial buildings.

"I am opposed to a resolution restricting industry," stated Alderman McDougall, chairman of industry. "We must keep in mind that workers must have jobs as well as homes." Alderman Armstrong and Mayor Follwell supported Alderman McDougall's feeling in the matter.

A signed petition from residents of the Wallbridge Road district asking that sanitary sewers be placed to service all residents in the area, was presented to council. There was no comment on the petition other than that necessary to refer it to the city clerk for checking of signatures.

A letter from the deputy minister of National Defence in answer to an inquiry from the city solicitor as to what action was being taken regarding the city's request that the Armouries laneway be re-opened, was read in council. The letter indicated the matter was being investigated by appropriate officers of the department and that when their report was received the city would be advised.

Continue to Use Dump

Under inquiries Alderman Harvey asked the chairman of public works regarding the condition of the city garbage dump and was told that it was the intention to continue to use the present dump for the time being.

People of Foster Ward should be given more consideration, asserted Alderman Harvey as he reported a complaint of the condition of an open ditch running to the bay from the gas plant. "The ditch is not safe for children," he said.

Alderman Allin inquired re Parks Board finances, while Alderman Follwell wanted to know if the scraper blade of the new city truck was being put to any use. Alderman Tice made a suggestion regarding a low spot on Gordon Street, while Alderman Armstrong asked if any action had been taken regarding the purchase of Ponton's field for development as a flying field. Aledrman Thompson asked that light standards on lower Front Street be looked after before installation of the new lighting system.

Disciplinary Action

Alderman Allin inquired regarding the stoppage of Fireman Jack Grills' pay for one week during the summer recess of council and was informed by Chairman of Fire Alderman Newton Wilbur that the pay stoppage had been a disciplinary measure.

Mayor Follwell informed council that Mr. A. Somberg had complained to him of what was apparently intended to be a practicad joke which had been played on him by Fireman Grills. Mr. Somberg's tie had been cut off by the firemen and the pay stoppage had been recommended as a disciplinary measure.

"Our ewish residents are some of our best citizens and no fireman or anyone else in the city employ will be permitted to start any anti-Semitism in this city," the mayor commented.

Mrs. David Newell Asphyxiated By Illuminating Gas

Brockville, Oct. 1 — (CP) — Returning home from work this morning David Newell, C. N. R. trainman found the body of his wife Merle, 26, dead from illuminating gas on the kitchen floor and their 1½-year-old son crying loudly in his bed upstairs.

Police who attributed her death to an accident learned that at 10.30 last night she told friends over the phone she was dampening clothes for ironing today and intended having a lunch before retiring.

Her husband said she frequently used the gas stove for heating the kitchen, one door of which was found closed and another door leading outside partially opened. It is believed a gust of wind extinguished flames of the two jets she had burning while seated at the kitchen table reading a newspaper. The couple came here a short time ago from Belleville.

Half Way Club Given Demonstration On Cold Wave Permanent

Monday evening, the auditorium in the Y.M.C.A., was the scene of considerable activity when Mr. Sergant, manager of the Royal Beauty Salon, Front St., assisted by Mrs. Gardiner, demonstrated a cold wave permanent at a meeting of the Half-Way Club. Miss Doris Lloyd, one of the club members was the young woman chosen for demonstration purposes.

During the pauses in actual exhibition of the process of the cold wave, Mrs. Gardiner answered any questions asked by the girls about make-up, allowing them to come to the front of the room while she explained the best methods of arranging the hair according to profile.

She also explained rinses for the hair, and during the setting of the wave in Miss Lloyd's hair, Mrs. Gardiner told the girls how to set their hair properly at home.

Later, during a draw for door prizes the names of four of the members were chosen to receive cash credits at the Royal Salon, the very fortunate young ladies being Misses Berna Miller, Ruth Roblin, Marie Hunt and Georgina Goodfellow.

Council Votes Against Cancelling Of Ice Plant Contract But Will Hear Agents for Other Firm

Inability of the Linde company to purchase the necessary piping will prevent the ice making plant being installed in the Hume Memorial Arena this winter according to contract terms made last spring, it was made known at city council meeting Monday evening.

According to information received from the Linde Company there is now no hope that the ice plant will be installed for use during the coming skating season and the arena management committee were asked to have a representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Company attend the next council meeting to see if they would be prepared to install an ice plant on same terms as offered last spring. At the time the decision was made to purchase an ice plant the Linde machine was chosen in preference to that of the Canadian Ice Machine Company.

Considerable discussion was heard in council over the advisability of cancelling the contract of the Linde company with councillors eventually defeating a motion to cancel the contract and ask for the return of the deposit given by the city.

Favors Cancelling

Alderman McDougall stated that he would be in favor of cancelling the Linde contract if the city could get an ice machine from some other source while Alderman Thompson declared himself as being definitely in favor of the Canadian Ice Machine plant which could be purchased for "eight to ten thousand" less than the Linde machine. Alderman Allin asked if the Linde company would be willing to have their contract cancelled.

In reply Alderman Follwell stated that the Linde company could not hold the city as they had failed to live up to the terms of their contract.

"Last spring when we bought the plant they said it would be installed this fall," continued the alderman. "Now they say they cannot get the necessary pipe. This is a direct violation of their contract and I for one am opposed to doing business with such a company.

Alderman Woodley maintained that neither the Linde company nor the Canadian Ice Machine company had installed any plants this year, claiming that the steel strike had made it impossible to secure the necessary piping. He claimed city councillors had misunderstood the pipe situation at the time the contract was signed with the Linde company.

Alderman McDougall wanted to hold the matter until the next council meeting to see if the Canadian Ice Machine company were prepared to do business and Alderman Armstrong supported the idea.

Mayor Follwell assured that the rink committee could quickly get in touch with the Canadian Ice Machine company to see if they could install a plant. He claimed that the Linde company had not been fair.

Alderman Allin maintained however that the Linde company had been sincere when they said they had the necessary pipe for installation of the plant and explained they had had the pipe on order and that under normal conditions it would have been shipped direct from the plant.

Did Not Have Contract

"It is all right to say that the Linde company had the pipe on order," interjected Alderman Clarke. "If they had the pipe on order it was not for us because at the time they did not have our contract."

Recommendation to have the rink committee ask a representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Company attend the next council meeting followed.

The recommendation to cancel the Linde contract had previously been defeated with Aldermen Chamberlain, Allin, Harvey, Hyde, McDougall, Tice and Woodley voting nay and Mayor Follwell and Aldermen Armstrong, Clarke, Follwell, Thompson and Wilbur being in favor.

First Flurry of Snow Whipped By Strong Wind Hits District

Old Man Winter, out of a blue sky so to speak, roughly brushed aside Old Man Time's forelock and in the van of a brisk wind sent the first snow of the season swirling down on unsuspecting city and district this morning.

The first flakes appeared shortly after nine o'clock and by nine-thirty the air was white misted with what was almost a miniature blizzard.

The snow, however was damp and melted rapidly when it met the comparative warmth of the earth, pavement and highway.

City workers were caught flatfooted and, many already at work or on their way were without raincoats and other suitable clothing.

Temperatures hovered a few points above freezing with the low for the night being 38 degrees. At nine o'clock when the first snow appeared the mercury was flirting with the 39 above mark.

By 11 A. M. the snow and wind had increased in intensity and pedestrians were forced to turn up coat collars and battle their way heads down along main city thoroughfares. The snow white-mantled the tops of parked automobiles, but gradually rising temperatures reduced it to a thin coating of slush on city pavements.

Seagulls driven from their natural air habitat by the force of the wind, huddled wings-down on small islands in the lower stretches of the Moira River.

By 11 A. M. the "storm" had abated to an occasional flurry Gulls took to the air, and people on the streets once more resumed a normal stance as they went about their business.

At 11.30 the wind and snow again combined to send a lacy mist over the city. The sky was definitely sullen and overcast and at the time of writing the weather man appeared to be in the mood to kick up further winter didoes despite the earliness of the season.

Cyclist Injured In Collision with Car

In collision with an auto as he was riding his bicycle west on Station Street shortly after six o'clock Monday evening, Lorne Bradford, 199 Lingham Street, suffered a fractured collarbone and a cut on the forehead and left eye and was admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

According to police Douglas Galpin, R. R. No. 5 Belleville, was driving an auto east on Station Street and as he turned left onto Cannifton Road was in collision with the bicycle ridden by Bradford. The bicycle crashed into the right side of the Galpin auto as it turned onto Cannifton Road, it was reported.

Belleville to Honor Veterans Of Second Great War July 14, 1946

Young men and young women from Belleville who served in the armed forces during the last war will be officially honored on July 14th., 1947, it was decided by Mayor Frank S. Follwell at council meeting on Monday evening.

The above date was set by the Mayor when he was asked to set aside a day to be observed as Veterans' Day when all service personnel from Belleville will be appropriately honored.

The matter of setting aside a day as Veterans' Day has been frequently discussed in council but Monday night was the first time that any definite action had been forthcoming regarding fixing of the date. At a previous council meeting council members were appointed a committee as a whole to look after the details necessary for holding such a day and the Mayor was asked to set a date.

"It is just possible that many of the veterans do not care whether we have a Veterans' Day or not," commented Alderman Follwell Monday evening when he pressed the Mayor to fix a date, "but I think it does matter to many citizens who feel that some measure of appreciation should be shown to those who served overseas."

"I think you are quite right," returned the Mayor, "and I am ready to fix July 14th as the date for Veterans' Day."

proceedings, agreed with the challenge and reached the conclusion the board was not empowered to make the order it did under section 4 of the Milk Control Act.

"The Board might seek the approval of the government to an order dealing with this matter under section 15, but the government is not prepared to act under that section, as it would be called upon to legislate in regard to an over-all price structure which has been built up over many years and in regard to which the government would not have adequate information as to what had taken place in the past."

The statement concluded:

"The government is not entirely satisfied with the situation. However, the prices at which milk will be sold will not in the meantime be out of line with those in other provinces and it is obvious that production of milk on the farms will only be maintained by the payment of prices which give them a fair return for their cost of production.

"It is the desire of the government to assure efficient production and distribution of milk at the lowest possible prices. When we have received the report of the Royal Commission we will take whatever action we deem advisable as a result of its recommendations."

STEEL STRIKE

tory settlement will be achieved."

He confirmed the terms of the settlement reported last Friday by The Canadian Press, as did William Mahoney, the strike committee's representative at Sault Ste. Marie when he spoke to more than 2,500 strikers at a meeting which agreed to start balloting on the settlement today.

Announcement on results of the steelworkers' vote will come from headquarters of the United Steel Workers Union (CIO) at Toronto Thursday and all indications pointed to acceptance of the proposed 13-cents-an-hour increase, of which 10 cents is retroactive to April 1 with three cents payable as of the date work resumes.

The retroactive clause in the proposed settlement means, if it is accepted, that every striker will receive a lump sum of about $70 when he returns to the job.

Wanted More Wages

The strike was called in demand for wage increases of 15 1-2 cents an hour. Other strike issues, including union security, will be the subject of mediation after the strike ends, the mediator for Seltco employees being T. H. Rahilly, former wartime advisor to the steel controller.

At Algoma the steel mills have been maintained by skeleton crews. Coal and ore shipments have been unloaded steadily for the last few weeks and stock piles are nearing normal.

Under terms of the proposed settlement the lowest pay in a steel mill for workers covered by the union bargaining rights will be $1,934.40 for a full year's work. Holidays will be increased to the extent of two weeks after five years and three weeks after 25 years service.

More Than 5,000 Men Needed

Timmins, Oct. 1 — (CP)—More than 5,000 men are needed in Timmins and district immediately, George E. Charron, manager of the local branch of the National Employment Service stated Monday.

He said this number alone were needed as bush workers in the lumber camps surrounding Timmins and that in addition the mines in the area are sorely pressed by the lack of men.

He also has work for 50 carpenters.

BOTTLE SHORTAGE

Of no comfort to Ontario's hard liquor drinkers was the word from other provinces to the effect that though bottles are none too plentiful any cut in the ration is hardly imminent. The drinking Manitoban can still get a bottle a day. In New Brunswick the purse is the limit and in British Columbia last week's increase from three to four bottles a month remains.

A Drastic Cut

The only possible catch to the New Brunswick situation was a suggestion that beer purchases might have to be made on a bottle-for-bottle basis.

In Ontario the new ruling meant a return from the five-year high of eight bottles a month — in effect since last July 2—to the ration of one year ago.

The order left the beer and wine ration undisturbed one reason being that these potions already are subject to fairly severe rationing — 24 bottles of beer per permit per month — and another reason being the beer bottles are returnable.

Beer interests foresaw no shortage of beer bottles in Ontario if the public continues to cooperate in returning empties.

Drinking folk, on all sides came up with various suggestions. But the ration cut remained.

Couldn't be Made Compulsory

One query to Mr. Griesinger, where a compulsory return of an empty liquor bottle in order to purchase a full one might help, brought the reply, "I don't think it could be made compulsory."

He pointed to a bottle return campaign now on in Ontario but said it was only a trickle compared to consumption.

Distillery representatives meantime held out the possibility that a substitute for soda ash in bottle manufacture may become available within the next three weeks. One spokesman said consideration had been given to paying three cents for empties — a system similar to that in use in Quebec — but this was turned down because it was felt it might lead to children going into the collecting business.

And, just in case anybody wonders about a reversion to the old "jug-and-bottle" system of an earlier drinking day in Ontario, it can be forgotten now.

"The government," said a distilleries spokesman, "wouldn't like to revert to the old - time custom of bringing your own jug."

NEWSPAPERMEN SUBPOENAED

Montreal, Sept. 30 (CP)—Gerald E. McCormick, Managing Editor and Frank Fuoco of Montreal Herald editorial staff have been served subpoenaes to appear as witnesses in the trial of Louis Bercovitch beginning Tuesday. Mercovitch, charged with the slaying of gambler Harry Davis last July, first "surrendered" to a member of the Herald staff and gave the newspaper a statement in which he asserted he had shot Davis in self-defence. After eight or 10 hours at the Herald offices, police were notified and Bercovitch arrested.

SEVEN COMMITTED

Baldur Von Schirach, Hitler youth leader, and Albert Speer, German Munitions Minister, both were sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Constantin Von Neurath, former German foreign minister and later "protector of Bohemia and Moravia," was given 15 years.

The Russians did not support the three acquittals, it was announced. Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding justice, announced that the Soviet member of the tribunal "desires to record his dissent" from the decisions in the cases of Schacht, Fritsche and Von Papen.

"He is of the opinion that they should have been declared criminnot acquitted," Lord Justice Lawrence said. "He also dissents from the decision in respect to the Reich's cabinet and general staff and the high command (acquitted yesterday).

"He is of the opinion they should have been declared riminal organizations. He also dissents in the case of the defendant Hess, and is of the opinion his sentence should have been death.

Lord Justice Lawrence announced the dissenting opinion of the Soviet member would be attached to the record and published as soon as possible. The Soviet judge is Maj.-Gen. I. T. Nikitchenko.

The defendants have four days in which to appeal to the Allied Control Council, their court of last resort. This council, representing the United States, Britain, Russia and France in the government of Germany, has authority over the executions, which are expected Oct. 16 unless an appeal for clemency is granted, and there seemed little chance of that. All defence lawyers had announced they would appeal in the event of death sentences against their clients.

Goering and Ribbentrop were convicted on all four counts in the indictment, the tribunal striking hard at Goering in its conclusions declaring the former Reichsmarshal's guilt "is unique in its enormity" and "the record discloses no excuse for this man."

Hess was convicted of two counts, conspiracy and crimes against the peace, and acquitted of the last two, war crimes and crimes against humanity.

The three who were freed by the court were Hjalmar Schacht, former German Economics Minister and Reichsbank President; Franz Von Papen, veteran German diplomat; and Hans Fritsche, one time Deputy Propaganda Minister.

There was a possibility, however, that all three might be arrested by German authorities upon their release to be tried before denazification courts.

Legal authorities here expressed the opinion that all three could be held and tried by these courts as top-ranking Nazis if the German courts operating under current denazification laws so desired.

High Command Indicted

In addition to Goering and Ribbentrop, four others—Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command; Alfred Rosenberg, official Nazi philosopher; Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, Chief of Staff of the German Army; and Constantin Von Neurath, former Foreign Minister—were convicted on all four counts in the indictment.

Goering's expression did not change as the tribunal judged him guilty. Hess did not even look up from his scribbling pad as the court read the verdict in his case.

As United States Justice Francis Biddle listed the charges against Ribbentrop, the former Nazi slumped in his seat, when told he was found guilty of all.

Eight defendants were convicted on count one of the indictment — conspiracy to commit the other three acts charged — the only one common to all 22 defendants. They were an addition to Goering, Hess, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Jodl, and Von Neurath, Alfred Rosenberg, official Nazi philosopher and Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, former German naval commander.

Of the 16 defendants charged under the second count — crimes against the peace — 12 were convicted. They were Goering, Hess, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Rosenberg, Raeder, Jodl, Neurath, Wilhelm Frick, former protector of Bohemia and Moravia; Walther Funk, former Commander-in-Chief of the German Navy; and Arthur Syss-Inquart, formerly gauleiter for The Netherlands. Those acquitted on this count in addition to Schacht and Von Papen were Fritz Sauckle, S. S. and S. A. general; and Albert Speer, former Nazi munitions minister.

18 Under Third Count

Sixteen of the 18 defendants charged under the third count—War Crimes—were convicted: Goering, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Rosenberg, Frick, Funk, Doenitz, Raeder, Sauckel, Jodl, Seyss-Inquart, Speer, Neurath Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy, tried in absentia; Ernst Kaltenbrunner, chief of the Secret Police; Hans Frank, Nazi governor general of Poland. Acquitted on this count were Hess and Hans Firtsche.

Sixteen of the 18 charged with crimes against humanity — the fourth count—also were convicted: Goering, Bormann, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Kaltenbrunner, Rosenberg, Frank, Frick, Funk, Sauckel Jodl, Seyss-Inquart, Speer, Neurath, Julius Streicher, Nazi Jew-baiter; and Baldur Von Schirach, Hitler's Youth chief. Acquitted of this count were Hess and Fritsche.

Of Hess, the tribunal had this to say:

"That Hess acts in an abnormal manner, suffers from loss of memory and has mentally deteriorated during this trial may be true. But there is nothing to show that he does not realize the nature of the charges against him or is incapable of defending himself. There is no suggestion that Hess was not completely sane when the acts charged against him were committed."

Styled Willing Tool

Ribbentrop was styled by the tribunal as the willing tool of Hitler, but the opinion convicting him of all four counts added: "It was because Hitler's policies and plans coincided with his own ideas that Ribbentrop served him so willingly to the end."

The court brushed aside as "untrue" Ribbentrop's defence that Hitler made all the important decisions.

The tribunal consumed almost 1,000 words in dooming Keitel, who gulped, lowered his sharp Prussian chin a moment as he listened and then stared blankly ahead.

The court said Keitel never denied his connection with various acts of Hitler's regime, and then added:

"His defence relies on the fact that he is a soldier and on the doctrine of 'superior orders,' prohibited by article eight (of the tribunal's charter) as a defence.

"There is nothing in mitigation, where crimes as shocking and extensive have been committed consciously, ruthlessly and without military excuse of justification."

Still Looked Toughest

Hangman Heydrich's Gestapo successor, Kaltenbrunner, kept nodding his head as Justice Lawrence read his conviction. He still looked the toughest man in the dock.

The tribunal, while acquitting Kaltenbrunner of conspiring to wage aggressive war, castigated him for crimes against humanity and war crimes.

"He had undoubtedly visited Mauthausen (concentration camp)" it said, "and witnesses testified that he had seen prisoners killed by various methods of execution—hanging, shooting in the back of the neck and gassing—as part of the demonstration."

Rosenberg wriggled nervously as the tribunal turned to him.

"Rosenberg is responsible for a system of organized plunder of both public and private property throughout the invaded countries of Europe," the tribunal said. "Rosenberg had knowledge of the brutal treatment and terror to which the eastern peoples were subjected."

While finding Hans Frank innocent of plotting aggressive war, Riddle in measured tones declared: "It is also true that Frank was a willing and knowing participant in the use of terrorism in Poland, in the economic exploitation of Poland and in a way which led to death by starvation of a large number of people; deportation to Germany as slave laborers of over a million poles, and in a program involving the number of at least 3,000,000 Jews."

Described as Avid Nazi

Wilhelm Frick, bullet-headed follower of Hitler since 1923, was described bluntly as "an avid Nazi, always rabidly anti-semitic" and drafter of the infamous Nuernberg decrees against the Jews. The court said he was responsible for policies in occupied Czechoslovakia and the "germanization" idea elsewhere.

"He had knowledge that insane, sick and aged people, 'useless eaters,' were being systematically put to death," the verdict asserted.

The tribunal frankly discounted Funk's contention that he was unaware that gold teeth of concentration camp victims were deposited in his Reichsbank vaults.

"He either knew what was being received or was deliberately closing his eyes to what was being done," the court said.

Funk Never Dominant

Nevertheless, the tribunal considered that Funk was "never a dominant figure in the various programs in which he participated," and this is reckoned "a mitigating fact."

As commander of U-boats, the tribunal said, Doenitz was more than an ordinary figure in war planning.

"Doenitz was consulted almost continuously by Hitler," the judgment said.

In two instances, the court listed mitigating circumstances for the Admiral, saying that in view of all the circumstances of naval warfare, he could not be held guilty for his conduct of submarine warfare and that British naval prisoners of war were treated according to the Geneva convention.

The judgment indicated that Admiral Raeder convicted himself by admitting breaches of the Versailles Treaty. He was blamed for rebuilding the German navy for war, for carrying out orders to shoot commandos, but was absolved, as was Doenitz, of guilt in unrestricted U-boat warfare.

Refused to Believe Story

The evidence also showed, the court went on, that Raeder instigated the Norwegian invasion and that the Justices refused to believe his story that he was only trying to forestall Britain.

Baldur Von Schirach was found innocent of conspiracy, but guilty of crimes against humanity as gauleiter of Vienna.

He was held guilty of carrying out deportation of Jews and of having knowledge of their deaths and urging the bombing of a British cultural town in retaliation for the assassination of Reinhardt Heydrich.

"There is no doubt that Saunkel had over-all responsibility for the slave-labor program," the verdict said.

But the court recalled Sauckel's own regulation that "all the men must be fed, sheltered and treated in such a way as to exploit them to the highest possible extent at the lowest conceivable degree of expenditure."

Not Required of Soldier

In Jodl's conviction on all counts the tribunal ruled as it had in that of Keitel, commenting:

"His defence is the doctrine of superior orders — there is nothing in mitigation. Participation in such crimes as these has never been required of any soldier and he cannot now shield himself behind a mythical requirement of soldierly obedience at all costs as his excuse."

The missing Martin Bormann was acquitted on the conspiracy count, since, the court said, he was comparatively low in the Nazi party but he was held guilty of participation in the slave labor and other crimes of war, and crimes against humanity.

Acquitted on One Charge

Seyss-Inquart was acquitted only on the conspiracy charge. He was described as "ruthless in applying terrorism to suppress all opposition to the German occupation" in The Netherlands, where he was gauleiter, and convicted of slave deportations and persecution of Jews.

Armaments producer Speer was convicted of knowingly using slave labor and impressing some concentration camp inmates into small out-of-the-way industries behind Himmler's back. But the court commented:

"He was one of the few men who had courage to tell Hitler that the war was lost...

"He carried out his opposition to Hitler's scorched earth program in some of the western counties and in Germany by deliberately sabotaging it at considerable personal risk."

Played Important Part

The aging Von Neurath "played an important part" in Germany's re-occupation of the Rhineland. The court declared documents showed that Von Neurath, as head of occupied Czechoslovakia, advocated elimination of Czech intelligentsia.

The tribunal said it considered him responsible for the degradation of that country because of his position but commented that Von Neurath intervened frequently in behalf of some Czechs and was replaced by hangman Heydrich because Hitler thought he was "too soft."

Sauve old Von Papen indulged, the tribunal declared, in "political immorality" in his conduct as Ambassador to Austria before Anschluss, but in no sense did the evidence justify his conviction as charged.

Fritsche, the tribunal said, was "not sufficiently important" to be linked with major crimes.

The court said, in freeing him, "he sometimes spread false news, but it was not proved he knew it to be so."

HENS LAYING AHEAD OF TIME THIS YEAR

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP)—Canadian hens are laying ahead of time this fall, the Special Products Board disclosed in announcing that it has bought 13 carloads of newly-laid eggs for shipment to the United Kingdom.

Normally, fall eggs for export do not come freely to the board until late November or December. As the board's paying price is below the wholesale price ceiling, it can buy eggs for export only when there is a surplus on domestic mrkets.

7,947 PERSONS EXAMINED

Timmins, Oct. 30 (CP)—Dr. Graham B. Lane, Director of the Porcupine Health Unit stated that 7,947 citizens over the age of 16 were given a free X-ray during the part two weeks as part of the current Lions Clubs sponsored drive to stamp out tuberculosis in Porcupine.

Stating that the survey, completed Saturday, was an unqualified success, Dr. Lane said 1,731 more people were X-rayed this time than were X-rayed during the last survey held in 1944.

Public Parks

The community with public parks for its citizens has one of the finest possessions and attractions it is possible to have. For in these places there is much that tends to develop the community spirit and there is that healthy atmosphere of rivalry and competition which is no necessary to draw out the best in the people. In ancient days the market place or forum was the most famous part of a city for there public affairs were discussed by the people and their leaders. Today the world has come to realize the necessity, of providing open spaces for the good of all classes.

There is no finer sight than to see a large crowd of people gathered at a ball game and entering with zest in the rivalry of the competing teams or to be spectators at an exhibition of games. For these not only develop the true sense of sportsmanship in the players or competitors but also in the spectators, who are a very necessary part of a competition. They have their influence on the players and the players have their reaction upon the crowds.

Everyone knows of exhibition parks and of the wise use to which these are put and of the wide range of competition which results for the betterment of the agricultural industry and of the whole national economy as we know it.

These places create interest, they develop sports which have no small part in the welfare of the physical health of the city or town or village and also in the growth of local loyalty which spells progress and happiness in a community.

This season of the year with the approach of the end of the season of summer sports has an attraction of its own for competitors and spectators.

The public parks deserve the attention they have won from the people in every community.

Aids to Fire Safety

It is an easy matter to prevent fires and save lives in our homes by simply being careful and using common sense The following suggestions are offered as a guide to every Canadian citizen:

Never leave young children alone

Keep chimneys and smokepipes clean and in good repair

Keep storage in attic or basement at a minimum and store neatly

Make sure there is an alternative means of escape

Keep electrical wiring and appliances in good repair

Do not overfuse circuits. Fuses of 15 ampere capacity are sufficient on house lighting circuits

Unless protection is given, smokepipes should be at least 18 inches distant from joists and woodwork

Install fire-detector units in cellar and at head of cellar steps, attached to gong in upstairs hall

Keep doors closed at night

Have an approved extinguisher handy

The door at the top of the cellar stairs should be one which will resist fire for at least an hour

Keep matches in metal container and out of reach of children

Do not leave irons or other electrical appliances turned on except when they are in actual use. Let them cool off before putting away

Keep oily dusting cloths in a covered metal container

Never use inflammable liquids for dry-cleaning in the home. There are safe types of cleaning fluids on the market

Don't hang electrical cords on radiators or over nails

Don't use matches or candles to hunt in closets. Use a flashlight

Don't empty ash trays in wastebaskets. There may be a live cigarette among the ashes

Don't use kerosene to start or quicken a fire

Don't smoke in bed

Don't hunt for gas leaks with a match. Put soap lather on suspected joints and watch for bubbles

Never leave a fire burning in an unscreened fireplace

Don't use inflammable insect sprays indoors and under no circumstances should gasoline be sprayed in closets, etc., as an insect spray.

Don't heat paraffin wax over a direct fire. Use a double boiler to melt the wax

Always use care, common sense and forethought and you will live longer.

Gen. Eisenhower's View

General Eisenhower who has just arrived in Berlin from America does not agree with the pessimism which he says is felt in the world about international affairs. He says there has been too much discounting of the progress which has been made and declares that international co-operation is not a dead issue. "The Allied Council is still meeting amicably and honestly trying to do a good job." He looks forward to the future with more optimism than is shown in the more pessimistic statements at home he says.

Among the reasons he gives for this view he holds is that "every intelligent person knows civilization cannot stand another war." So far does he believe that progress is being made that he states "we are progressing towards a point where men of my profession will be permanently out of a job."

This expression of opinion may seem possibly too optimistic to some but the General's view is worthy of note because he is in touch with the entire situation and with facts which he believes warrant the attitude he holds.

This expression adds a cheering note at this time when he feels it is necessary and warranted by the facts.

Planes for Abyssinia

Haile Selassie, Emperor of Abyssinia, was in the news about a decade ago when Italy's Mussolini began aggressive war, taking Haile Selassie's country as the first step towards the satisfaction of Fascist tyranny and greed. But a better day has come for the monarch, Abyssinia is free, and the enemy of that country is long since dead along with Fascist power which the ex-duce exerted.

Now the King of the Abyssinians is bringing to his country two Dove passenger aircraft for a royal flight which he has formed. The Dove is an entirely new aircraft, built by de Havilland and is an entirely new plane and every element of its formula, every item of its power plant, components and equipment, is the outcome of new research and embodies the latest advances in aerodynamic and technical efficiency.

So Abyssinia will see her monarch using the modern means of transportation. It has been her good fortune to have been wisely ruled and to have had the courage to resist tyranny. She is linked with progress and the forward march of the world in aviation. The step to form a royal flight was inevitable in a world so plane-minded as this globe is. The plane simply had to come to Abyssinia.

Cheering News

In the midst of so much that is depressing, it is cheering to read that the nations bound together by the North Atlantic airways are uniting to send a spray of weather ships across the ocean. The primary purpose of these ships will be to "provide full weather data every three hours, day and night" — and enormous boon to the trans-Atlantic planes. But eventually they may serve as a sort of floating station for air and surface craft, aiding in navigation and bringing assistance to those endangered by stress of weather or accident.

AUTUMN THOUGHT

With gold and red the autumn glows.
In splendor elm and maple fade;
And every thing in nature shows
The calm of being unafraid.

The garden wears the smile of peace.
Triumphantly the storms were met.
The budding and the flowering cease.
Soon, sleep will come with no regret

Both plant and vine are richly dressed—
The last bright bit of robe they'll wear.
The humblest twig has done its best,
And hidden is every sign of care.

Would man could some so bravely through
The storms and heartaches of the years,
And hide his every scar from view,
And fearless be when age appears.

Law of the Grocery Store

(With a nod to Robert Service from Cecil Perdue, Sports Editor of Peterborough Examiner)

This is the law of the grocery store, daily it's made more plain:
"Send not the elderly nor weak, send only the strong and sane;
Strong for the rush upon my shelves, sane for I harry them sore,
Send me those girt for the combat, who know every inch of the store;
Swift to grab for the soap chips, fierce when the catsup appears,
Ready to fight for the corn starch, regardless of blood, sweat or tears;
Strong when the jellies are put out, when salt shows ruthless and hard,
Ready to die for tinned salmon, ready to kill for some lard.
These brave ones will reap the riches, these will my treasures take,
But the old, the weak and the rundown, these are the ones I forsake.
Despairful, damned, heartbroken, injured and nearly slain"
This is the law of the grocery store, and daily it's made more plain.

DDT Effective Against Cockroaches

Cockroaches are frequently abundant in apartment houses, hotels, dwelling houses, restaurants, stores and, in short, in any buildings where there are warm moist conditions and a plentiful supply of food. They have been known to invade houses from local garbage dumps. They move quickly and take refuge in cracks and crevices in walls and floors. They remain hidden during the day and emerge at night to prowl about in search of food. They are practically omniverous and are particularly fond of foodstuffs favoured by man. On this account, they are usually most numerous about kitchens and pantries and other places where food is readily accessible.

As formulations of DDT are very effective in controlling many common species of household pests, the formulation of DDT for the control of cockroaches is a ten per cent powder. Preferably it should be applied by a dust gun to the corners and cracks around the floors and cupboards or wherever the insects are found running or hiding. The powder must be kept out of food. The dusting should be repeated three or four weeks later after the first application. The roaches will be eliminated rather slowly at first unless the powder also contains pyrethrum or thiocyanates. However, provided the powder is not removed, control is sure.

Roaches are also readily controlled by sodium fluoride, dusted in the places frequented by the roaches. The sodium flouride adheres to the legs of the roaches and in cleaning themselves they are poisoned. It retains its effectiveness and may be left undisturbed as long as convenient, or until the insects have completely disappeared. As this chemical is somewhat poisonous, precautions should be taken to prevent children or domestic pets from gaining access to it.

Two other materials which form the basis of many proprietory roach powders are pyrethrum and borax. Pyrethrum insect powder is less effective than sodium fluoride and loses its effectiveness when exposed to air. Borax is also less effective than sodium fluoride. In the event of superheating and fumigation with hydrocyanic gas, it must be done under expert supervision. In the experience of the Entomological Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, a concentration of gas produced by using 1 1-2 lb. of calcium cyanide per 1,000 cubic feet, although effective against the roaches, does not kill the eggs.

'All for Want Of A Horseshoe Nail'

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

A summer Cottager went into an Ontario village store and asked for a sausepan with a lid. The storekeeper said he was sorry, but he had no sausepans in stock and did not know when he would get any for sale. "What," said the cottager, "you haven't got any such a thing as a common sausepan?" "No replied the storekeeper, "nor have we even got any nails, and they're darned common enough!"

This incident tells, in brief, the story of the widespread shortage of common things in Canada, particularly the products that are derived from the steel industry. As the storekeeper remarked, "nails are darned common enough" —or they used to be. They were so common that the average workman never thought of picking up one if he happened to drop it. But not so in these days, for nails are not merely scarce, there are none to be had, and in many instances building projects are being held up for the lack of nails.

The situation reminds one of the story we used to read in our elementary school books which concluded: "For the want of a nail the shoe was lost; for the want of a shoe the horse was lost; for the want of a horse the rider was lost; for the want of a rider the battle was lost; for the want of a battle the kingdom was lost—and all for the want of a horseshoe nail!"

That was a story with a moral for juveniles in the old days, but it is needed for adult education in these modern times, for it contains all the elements and essentials of social and political economics. The all-wise economist of today reverses the story. He begins with the kingdom—the system. He tells us that if we only could establish a perfect economic system of governmen, then all our domestic, industrial, social and national problems would be solved. There would be no shortage of sausepans, or food to cook in them, and no lack of nails—they kicking about the floor, as they used to be in the old days of free enterprise!

In this "New Society" everybody would work for everybody else, without any thought of profit or wage rates, and there would be no strikes, because there would be no labor unions to start them. There would be no need for individual initiative and advancement, for everybody would be on the level of mediocrity, and industrial competition would be abolished by an all-inclusive State Monopoly.

Of course, we would have to change human nature a little by a system of eugenic, or by producing a stereotyped species of human beings in hatcheries, similar to those described by Aldous Huxley in his "Brave New World." For the time being, however, we had better accept the world as God made it, and make the best out of what the socialists seem to regard as a bad job of creation. Back in the early part of the nineteenth century Harriet Martineau declared: "I accept the Universe!" To which Carlyle replied: "She had better accept it!"

Disputes Cause Of Soap Shortage

Ottawa, Oct. 1. —"The current Canadian soap shortage is the direct result of industrial disputes at Canada's two major soda chemical plants and not due to poor supplies of oils and fats, which are considered satisfactory", F. H. Lehberg, Oils and Fats Administrator of the Prices Board said today.

Mr. Lehberg pointed out that if it were not for the acute shortage of caustic soda, so important to the soap, industry, Canadian soap manufacturers would have equalled if not exceeded the 1945 production of 255,000,000 pounds. Many manufacturers are now making soap on a 35 per cent production basis of last year and if they do not receive sufficient supplies of caustic soda in the near future, production will be practically at a standstill, Mr. Lehberg said.

Commencing on the recent statement that Canada has exported 15,870,713 pounds of soap so far this year, Mr. Lehberg said that the greater portion of these exports went to UNRRA under a contract made in 1944 whereby Canada was to supply 60,000,000 pounds for distribution throughout Europe. To assist Canada in the fulfillment of this contract she received an additional allotment of soap-making fats through the Combined Food Board, he said.

Canada supplied UNRRA with almost all of the 42,000,000 pounds exported in 1945, he declared, but as a result of industrial disputes, exports in 1946 have had to be cut drastically.

Asked about recent reports on exports to Newfoundland, Mr. Lehberg stated that only five or six million pounds of soap have been sent to Newfoundland, British West Indies and other British colonies under trade agreements which have existed for many years.

EXTENSION OF THE PRIME OF LIFE

As Prof. E. V. McCollum, whose book "The Newer Knowledge of Nutrition" stands alongside of Prof. Henry C. Sherman's "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition" in every doctor's library, characterized the longevity obtained by scientific feeding, the animals show "extension of the prime of life in both directions."

Now, just what does "the prime of life" mean? It means the period of greatest health, strength, vigor, vite, the spring time of life, youth. That is in the common sense of the term.

The prime of life has a more specific meaning to the physician. It means the man or woman has attained complete development, is right at the peak of acme of evolution, in full possession of all his or her powers or faculties and as capable as he or she can be to perform all the functions and fulfill the destiny of a civilized human being.

By extension of the prime of life "in both directions" Dr. McCollum meant not merely preservation of the characteristics of youth past the age when many begin to decline, but more vigorous and healthy growth of the young. Growth and development of children and youths in America is commonly retarded or faulty because of nutritional deficiency or, as it is often called, malnutrition. Not, mind you that such children and youths do not get enough to eat — generally they get entirely too much to eat—pap and cheat food, that is.

As nearly as I can explain in a paragraph our national nutritional deficiency is due to ultrarefinement of food, particularly food that supplies mast of the calories in the daily diet—flour and sugar; nearly all of the natural essential nutritional elements (vitamins and minerals) are removed from wheat and sugar cane in the process of refining, much of the vitamin and mineral content of the foods which supply the remainder of our daily calories is destroyed by preservation, cooking and long storage.

Now in order to combat these faults in the national diet it should be the rule for every child, youth or young adult to consume not less than a quart of fresh milk or its equivalent in milk products every day. And every household should keep on hand a supply of plain wheat and use it in the daily dietary, as a breakfast dish in place of pap or cracked or ground meal as incorporated in various recipes in place of all or part of the refined flour. On written request (a clipping is not a request) I'll mail any reader who provides stamped self-addressed envelope a pamphlet — "Wheat to Eat" which tells the intelligent housekeeper how to use plain wheat in the everyday family dietary.

Still another corrective suggestion which applies to grown-ups and elderly folk as well as to children and youths. A green salad or greens or green leafy vegetables which are good to eat raw should be the first course, the most essential course, of any dinner, supper or luncheon. The salad may include whatever raw vegetables and fruits you like or can obtain, and it must be eaten before, not after the meat, fowl or fish course.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

No "Clinic"

Kindly reprint the name and address of the clinic where you advised persons with epilepsy to go. (W. E.)

Answer— My advice to persons with anything from epilepsy to the pip is, give all "clinics" a wide berth. If you need medical advice consult a physician who practices under his own name. I suggested that people with questions about epilepsy may obtain authoritative information by writing American Epilepsy League 50 State Street, Boston 9, Mass.

Pyorrhea Not Contagious

If one member of the family has pyorrhea can the rest get it by eating from the same dishes etc.? (R.A.E.)

Answer—It is not communicable.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Where did Washington deliver his Farewell Address?

George Washington never delivered his Farewell Address to anybody but the printer. Its original publication was one of the greatest newspaper "scoops" in American history.

The first knowledge the American people had of this famous "address" was when it appeared in the Philadelphia "American Daily Advertiser" September 17, 1796, the ninth anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. After preparing the address with the advice and help of James Madison, Alexander Hamilton and probably others, President Washington gave the manuscript in his own handwriting to David C. Claypoole, publisher of the Philadelphia newspaper, and through the columns of that paper it reached the world.

Claypoole kept the original manuscript and it remained a possession of his family until 1850. Early in January of that year Henry Clay called the attention of the Senate to the fact that the original Farewell Address was to be sold at auction in Philadelphia on the following February 12 and introduced a joint resolution authorizing purchase of the priceless document by the Federal Government. This resolution, which was opposed by Senator Jefferson Davis, afterwards President of the Confederacy, passed the Senate January 24. It passed the House, where it was opposed by Representative Andrew Johnson, afterwards President of the United States, on February 8. The engrossed copy was signed by Vice President Millard Fillmore February 11 and a special committee appointed to rush it to the White House did not deliver it to President Zachary Taylor until February 13, the day of the auction in Philadelphia. The President signed the resolution immediately, but apparently no attempt was made to instruct a Government representative in Philadelphia to enter the bidding, although telegraph communications were available.

At the auction the manuscript was bought for $2,300 by James Lenox, of New York, who bequeathed it along with his private library and collection to the Public Library of New York City, where it remains to this day. That is why the original manuscript of one of the most famous state papers in history is not in the national archives at Washington.

In 1840 Mrs. Alexander Hamilton wrote that she knew from personal knowledge that the Farewell Address was largely the work of her husband. It is known that Hamilton played an important part in its preparation. He was Washington's secretary for several years through the Revolution and was trained in reducing the General's thoughts to literary form. Just how much of the contents and phraseology were Washington's and how much Hamilton's probably can never be determined.

Since the 1880's is has been a custom to have the Farewell Address read in the Senate and the House of Representatives on Washington's Birthday.

J. & J. Cash Company of Coventry, England, Observes 100th Anniversary

The Belleville branch of J. & J. Cash, Incorporated, under the general managership of Mr. Arthur Wesley, this year is joining with its parent company in Coventry, England, in the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the firm.

The Belleville plant was opened in August, 1923, and are primary producers of woven labels and weavers of Jacquard Narrow Fabrics. Approximately 50 persons are employed at the Belleville plant at the present time, despite the fact that yarns are still in exceptionally tight supply and looms are slow in coming through.

The parent firm in England, however, is definitely interested in considerable expansion in Belleville and other lines besides the ones presently under manufacture are being considered.

Suffered War Damage

Coventry factories of J. & J. Cash, Ltd. suffered greatly during German air raids over that city with the plant being one third destroyed. However, despite material shortages a tremendous comeback has been made by the firm and new buildings have risen from the shambles of the wrecked factories.

Following is an article which appeared in "The Coventry Standard" dated August, 31, describing the production of service ribbons and also giving a brief history of the company:

Coventry is always proud of its successful industries, and this year, which marks the centenary of Messrs. J. and J. Cash, Ltd., is one of reconstruction and expansion, for this famous British firm of woven label and ribbon manufacturers, which has branches in U. S. A., Canada, Australia and France.

Meeting up-to-date requirements in its own particular sphere, the firm is now busy turning out thousands of yards of war ribbons. Something like 200 miles of Service ribbons are being produced a year, and it is probable that every Serviceman who has been abroad, as well as those war workers at home who have earned the Defence Ribbon, may be wearing, or be entitled to wear a piece of Cash's ribbon.

War Damage

This week a "Coventry Standard" reporter paid a visit to the Kingfield works of Messrs J. and J. Cash, Ltd., and after having a talk with the firm's principal, Colonel R. J. Cash, C. B. E. M. C., the former Commanding Officer of the 7th Battalion, The Royal Warwickshire Regiment, watched the looms and weavers at work.

Colonel Cash mentioned that the firm was damaged in the air raids in 1940. During October of that year, two looms were lost as a result of incendiaries. Then on the night of November 14, when the Germans delivered their most devastating attack on the city, a dozen looms were put out of action.

In April, 1941, when Coventry had another great raid, several fires were started at the works the main offices and administrative block were engulfed in flames, and the damage was considerable. The factory lost as the results of the raids about a third of its premises, and of course there was considerable dislocation of business owing to the absence of electricity and water supplies, etc.

Reconstruction

In addition to this set-back the Government decided that this must take second place to the aircraft and engineering requirements of Coventry, and so the firm's activities were further curtailed, and instead of employing about 800 operatives, there were only about 300.

Now the time has come for reconstruction and expansion, and the foundations have been laid for the rebuilding of the damaged premises, for which the new steelwork is expected to arrive any day.

Colonel Cash said they were concentrating on the training of young girl weavers, realizing that in the skill of its operatives lay the chief and abiding asset of the firm. Girls were coming forward, as they liked working in the looms, and as the job was clean and congenial.

"When afterwards I was shown round the works," writes our reporter, "I was astonished by the skill shown by these Coventry weavers in directing the complicated machinery to turn out the colorful and artistic woven labels and ribbons.

"The making of even a simple label is a complicated exceptional process and requires accuracy. The design, many times magnified, is first worked out against a squared background.

Atlantic Star

"Then it is interpreted by means of a 'piano' machine into perforations on a narrow card. The cards are laced together, and then placed on the Jacquard machine on the top of the loom. The perforations affect the components guiding the silken threads and with a constant chatter the loom works at high speed to produce yards and yards of labels and ribbons of widely different colors and designs.

"One of the most difficult processes has been the manufacture of the Atlantic Star ribbon, the colors of which melt into each other with such delicacy that it is almost impossible to disern where one finishes and the other begins.

"The Government is most particular as to the qualities of these war ribbons, and any soldier who has seen the difference between these official British manufactured war ribbons, and those which were invariably on sale abroad, as soon as the general design was known, can immediately tell the difference."

Firm's History

The record of the firm during the last 100 years is interesting In 1846 Joseph Cash and his sons, John and Joseph carried on business in Hertford Street and West Orchard, Coventry. In 1857 the Kingfield works was built, and ten years later, a new warehouse was established in Hertford Street. The "warehouse" is actually the same building as the General Post Office.

In 1906 the first overseas factory of the firm was built at South Norwalk, Connecticut, U. S. A., and in 1913 a factory was established in Melbourne, Australia.

SHANGHAI — CHINA'S BOOM TOWN

Packed with more than 7,000,000 people, nearly twice its normal population, because of the influx of refugees from the civil war that rages in the north, Shanghai, China, today is the boom town of the Orient. While enjoying the greatest boom in its history, it is also in the throes of its greatest fear — that the bubble will burst at any moment. Although everyone in Shanghai looks well fed, an estimated 3,000,000 persons have no place to live. Every night the sidewalks become beds for the homeless thousands In TOP photo here you see a few of the sleepers, while in background a fortunate one is moving his bed to new-found quarters.

Normans Anxious To Adopt Graves Canadian War Dead

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP)—The people of Normandy, where many Canadian servicemen died in the invasion of Europe, are anxious to adopt the graves of the Canadian war-dead and tend them for Canadian relatives, the French Information Service said.

A press release urged Canadian families of fallen servicemen to communicate with "Association France-Grfade Bretagne" which would put them in touch with persons in the Department of Calvados, that part of Normandy which includes Caen, Bayeux, Tilly-Sur-Seulles, Lisieux, Falaise, Vire and Honfleur.

The release said relatives may write to the following addresses: M. Louis Meriel, 58, Rue De L'Eglise, Courseulles - Sur - Mer, Calvados, (Beny-Sur-Mer Cemetery), and M. Gaudu, 14 Rue Du 20E Siecle, Caen (Isolated Graves in the Department of Calvados).

Full particulars about the identity of the deceased and the location of the grave should be given.

INQUIRY IS OPENED

Brockville, Oct. 1 (CP)—Acting under a Provincial Order-in-Council, Cecil D. Wight, Assistant Commissioner of Works, Ottawa, opened an inquiry into conditions of a contract issued for the construction of a sewer here a year ago by J. H. Holdcroft and son of Kingston, Ont.

The inquiry was precipitated by charges laid before the Ontario Municipal Board by ex-Alderman George W. Warwick.

BLACKHEADS
Don't squeeze blackheads—dissolve them. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store and apply gently with wet, hot cloth over blackheads. They dissolve and disappear by this safe simple method.

HUNTED IN KIDNAP

Police of 11 states and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation are hunting for Chalmers H. Laubaugh, ABOVE, convicted white slaver, who forced his way at gunpoint into the bedroom of Sergeant and Mrs. Glynn F. Kimmey, Little Silver, N.J., ordered Mrs. Kimmey to dress and forced her to leave with him in an automobile. Mrs. Kimmey — then Miss Mary Pyle — testified at Laubaugh's trial last year for violation of the Mann Act. He was convicted. Mrs. Yimmey and another woman witness were later tried for perjury in connection with their testimony. Mrs. Kimmey is under bond while awaiting an appeal on her conviction.

Missing Prospector Returns to Camp

Sudbury, Sept. 30 (CP)—William Pipnuk, 54, who had been missing for several days on a prospecting trip southeast of Gowganda, has been found. His partner, M. Caswell, flew to Sudbury Sept. 27 to report the disappearance. When he returned Sunday his partner was in camp.

Sea Cadets
LEARN BY DOING!

Would You Like . . .
. . . to get your hands on the wheel of a boat and steer it yourself?
. . . to sit in the stern of a dinghy, with one hand on the tiller and the other holding the sail rope—and be actually sailing the dinghy, yourself?
. . . to know how to talk with a telegraph key, a signal lamp or a signal flag?
. . . to know how to read a compass?
Thousands of boys between 12 and 18 are doing these and many other interesting things as members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, and now the same opportunities are open to you. It you would like to learn by doing, go to the Sea Cadet Headquarters, located in the Belleville Armouries between 7 and 10 each Monday and Thursday evening. There is no obligation.

COLONELS WIN FROM MONTREAL BY 15-6 SCORE

Six Pitchers Used by Royals Trying to Stop Heavy-Hitting Winners

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 1 (AP)—Louisville Colonels and Montreal Royals were en route from Louisville to Montreal today to resume the Little World Series tomorrow with the Colonels leading, two games to one.

The Colonels of the American Association overwhelmed six pitchers of the International League's Royals last night to win, 15-6, and break a tie of one game apiece of the series.

The Royals took the opener of the best-of-seven series Saturday, 7-4, and the Colonels won Sunday's 3-0.

The pitcher victims last night included Steve Nagy, the leading hurler in the International League during the season just closed. The American Association amassed 19 hits.

The Colonels went to bat in the seventh, leading 8-6, and sewed up the third game when rightfielder Jim Gleeson poled a 350-foot home run over the rightfield fence for Louisville's first circuit clout of the season with the bases packed.

Al Widmar, Louisville's starting hurler, yielded nine hits before he was replaced by Harry Kimberlin. Kimberlin pitched for two and a third innings, holding the Royals to a single hit.

DAVIS-HENNING A "NATURAL" HERE FRI. NIGHT

Karl Davis "The Krippler" has been matched with Lee Henning, the Iowa Cornhusker for next Friday night at the Hume Arena, according to announcement of Manager Walt Gerow last night. The Davis-Henning brawl has been asked for repeatedly by the cash customers and Gerow finally got acceptance from both men after Davis had gone into the ring here last week and publicly challenged for the match.

Although Champion Wild Bill Longson edged Henning out of a win here last week when he beat the Iowan back into the ring under the ten count, the husky Lee was still full of fight and was the last to leave the ring. In fact he claimed in the dressing-room afterwards that he had been the victim of a fast count and wanted to settle it with Longson then and there. The Champion however is a smart business man and having gained the decision wanted no more of Henning.

Now, at last the Henning-Krippler bout is on and the fans can settle down next Friday night to the best old-fashioned slug-fest and bone-twister these parts ever expect to see. Leering Lee is full of bad tricks and Davis appears to be just about his equal in that department so what the outcome will be, no man can say. But one thing is certain, it will be a 'Pier Six Brawl" if ever there was one.

To continue the Arena's reputation for stand-out programs this season Manager Gerow has signed none other than the mighty Polish Giant Wladyslaw Talun for the semi-final spot. The "Blockbuster" will meet Bobby Nelson the Chicago Flash who will see what his drop-kicks can do against the six-foot eight- inch three hundred pounder from Poland.

In the third bout another newcomer and a marvellous wrestler, Terry McGuinness of Boston comes in to meet huge Olaf Olsen the Swedish Swivel king. Looks like the most actionful card of a great season.

Captain Durant Sentenced on Theft Of Hesse Jewels

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 1 — (AP)— Former United States Women's Army Corps Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant was convicted Monday by a military court of stealing $1,500,000 worth of Hesse family jewels, and was sentenced to five years imprisonment at hard labor, with dishonorable discharge.

Mrs. Durant's husband, Col. Jack Durant, and Maj. David Watson, are awaiting trial on complicity charges in the theft of the jewels from Kronberg Castle.

FOUR KILLED IN ASSAULTS

Bombay, Sept. 30 (Reuters) — Four persons were killed and 11 injured in stray assaults with knives and sticks here. An official statement said groups of youths made "minor attempts" at arson, but police put out fires before much damage could be done.

In Calcutta, one person was killed and two others injured during clashes before noon. Police opened fire in one locality, injuring one person, when they broke up an attempt to loot a shop. Four persons were hurt when an acid container was thrown at a bus.

ROCKEY GRAZIANO AND TONY ZALE TO MEET MAR. 21

Second Matching Will be Held in Madison Square Garden

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Mike Jacobs, one gent who never will be accused of letting a hot thing cool off, has signed middleweight champion Tony Zale and "Golden Boy" Rocky Graziano to do it all over again in Madison Square Garden March 21:

Thus the 20th Century Sporting Club promoter will have plenty of time to figure out a way to bulge the seams of the big indoor swat palace to accommodate the horde of customers who will be begging to get in on the prize.

Some 39,827 of the fistic faithful were on hand in the Yankee stadium last Friday for the first blood-letting and it's a safe bet that all of them, along with a couple of friends each, will try to jam their way into the Gardn comes March.

Since only 20,000 fans can squeeze their way into the indoor arena, Jacobs plans to make the customers pay plenty for the privilege of seeing this hot number.

Probably $50 Tops

At the moment, and it will take plenty to make him change his mind the canny promoter plans to charge a $5 to $50 tariff on the 15-round bout which could bring a gate of around $500,000 for a new all-time gross for an indoor show. The present record is about $200,000.

In the Friday fight the stolid, game champion from Gary, Ind., came off the floor and from the brink of defeat to knock Graziano kicking in the sixth round for the first KO defeat in the tough New Yorker's career.

Meanwhile Zale, his right thumb in a cast as a result of a chipped bone suffered in the fray, left last night for Indiana where the Gary citizens will honor him wth a civic celebration.

Zale, according to his co-managers Art Winch and Sam Pian, plans to come back here after Jan. 1 to get in a few overweight, non-title tuneups.

REPORT FILED WITH BRAMHAM

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 1. (AP)—The Little World Series Commission announced last night a report on a controversy involving Manager Harry (Nemo) Leobold of the American Association's Louisville Colonels had been filed with Minor League Baseball Commissioner William G. Bramham, of Durhman, N.C., with the recommendation that no action be taken until after the end of the series.

J. V. Jamison, Jr, president of the Interstate League and a member of the Commission governing the Little World Series said Bramham granted the Commission's request.

Leobold was suspended for about a half hour by the series commission before Sunday's game with the Royals, International League finalists.

The controversy arose when Leobold protested to Jamison for what he called Jamison's public reprimand of Louisville catcher Fred Walters. Walters had protested an umpire's decision against him in the series opener Saturday night.

TIE UP WITH MONARCHS

Brandon, Mann., Sept. 30 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, will tie-up with the Winnipeg Monarchs, 1946 Memorial Cup winners, during the coming season, it was announced by Gil Pauley, Leaf scout and Pat Lyon, Monarch manager, yesterday.

A similar arrangement between Chicago Black Hawks and Winnipeg Rangers was announced last week.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. J. T. Warren has returned from Montreal after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sansome.

Miss Mona Rozon, 177 Station Street, has returned to the city after having spent the past weekend in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sparkes, 12 Willard Street, have returned home after spending a week with relatives and friends in Rochester and Holley, N.Y., and while there attended the wedding of the latter's sister, Miss Reta Shannon to Mr. Edwin Reusch, on Saturday at Rochester, N.Y.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lennox in the Belle Villa Apts., Highland Ave., was the setting for an auspicious occasion Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when they were "at home" in honor of the christening of their young daughter, Margaret Perle. Rev. Chas. A. Perkins of Holloway Street United Church, performed the rite of baptism before a number of relatives and family friends, with the two grandmothers, Mrs. H. A. Lennox and Mrs. A. A. Sills standing as witnesses. The rooms were effectively decorated with baskets of baby 'mums and snapdragons, while the tea table was attractive with a beautiful linen cloth having insets of hand-made lace, which came from England. This was centred with a three-layer cake having tall white tapers in crystal holders and small crystal baskets of phlox in pastel shades on either side. Tea was served buffet style, with the hostess pouring, while a social hour was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Cyril Power, Albert St., left for Queen's University on Monday.

Mrs. S. D. Vincent of Parsons, Kansas, is spending a few weeks in Belleville, visiting her niece, Miss Ruth Vincent and her nephew, Mr. Jas. N. Hudgins.

Mr. Michael Power of Toronto, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Power, Albert Street, over the weekend.

Capt. (Rev.) J. W. Houston, of Tabernacle United Church was the guest speaker, Monday evening at a Second Victory dinner held in Marmora Town Hall and sponsored by Marmora Legion No. 257.

WEDDINGS

CARR—HANNA

Stirling.—Gladioli, 'mums and ferns effectively decorated St. Paul's Church, Stirling, on Saturday afternoon, for the wedding at two o'clock of Alta Esther Hanna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hanna, to Ernest Roy Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carr. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. M. Laverty with Mrs. Harry Morrow playing the wedding music, the soloist, Mrs. Don McIntosh, singing "O Promise Me" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a floor-length gown of white sheer, with long sleeves and a bouffant skirt appliqued with white satin. Her long veil fell from a headdress of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. Mrs. Wilbur Bateman, as the bride's matron-of-honor, chose a floor-length gown of blue taffeta fashioned with long waist and full skirt, her matching fingertip veil falling from a headdress of pink rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Miss Patsy Donohue, frocked in blue with matching veil, acted as flower girl and carried a nosegay of small pink flowers. She was assisted by Master Douglas Cain, who strewed flower petals in the pathway of the bride.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Harry Heaseman, and the ushers were Messrs. Don Donohue and Edward Heaseman.

After the ceremony refreshments were served buffet style to sixty guests at the home of the bride's parents, with Mrs. Hanna receiving in a gown of pale blue crepe with black accessories, wearing a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother assisted gowned in brown crepe with matching accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

For a trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a blue wool dress, gold colored top-coat and black accessories. On their return the young couple will reside in River Valley.

COOK—DAFOE

Stirling.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding the afternoon of Sept 28, when Jean Agnes, only daughter of Mr. Lloyd Dafoe and the late Mrs. Dafoe, became the bride of Robert David, son of Mrs. Henry Cook and the late Mr. Cook; the double ring ceremony being performed by Rev. H. Walker in a floral setting of many colored gladioli.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, made a charming picture in a gown of white satin, fashioned with a long bodice, buttoned in the back, sweetheart neckline and sleeves reaching to points over her hands, the skirt being in bouffant style. Her only ornament was a pendant, worn by her mother on her wedding day. The fingertip embroidered veil fell from a coronet of white daisies, and she carried American Beauty roses. The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Gilbert Finkle, a cousin of the bride, in a floor-length gown of turquoise shadow lace, made with long sleeves, sweetheart neckline and a skirt gathered on the long bodice. She wore a matching hat and carried pink roses. Little Miss Beverly Ray, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl, quaintly gowned in pink marquisette and carried a nosegay of sweetpeas and rosebuds.

Mr. Harry Cook assisted his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. Earl Dafoe, brother of the bride, and Carl Cook, brother of the groom.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's father, Mrs. Fitchett aunt of the bride, receiving in grey crepe dress with black accessories and wearing a corsage of mauve sweetpeas. She was assisted by Mrs. Cook, mother of the groom, gowned in black embroidered crepe with matching accessories and wearing a corsage of red roses. Mesdames G. Burrows, Thelma Tulloch, W. Stapley, Roy Holland and Wm. Pitcher, with Miss Helen Bailey served the guests.

Later the happy couple left for a trip to Toronto and Detroit, the bride travelling in a fuchsia crepe dress, light blue top coat and black accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Stirling.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of flat silver; to her attendant, a gold pin and ear-rings, to the flower girl, a silver bracelet. The groomsman and ushers received billfolds, the organist, a cup and saucer, and the serviteurs, bon-bon dishes.

Out-of-town guests were present from Trenton, Campbellford, Wooler, and Wellman's Corners.

WILEY—PALMER

The United Church parsonage, Newcastle, was the scene of a quiet wedding on the afternoon of Sept. 28, when Doris Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer, Madoc, and Gerald Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wiley, of Frankford, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. W. W. Patterson, the bride wearing a street-length dress of rose wool with brown velvet trimmings, and matching hat. They were unattended.

Following a motor trip to Niagara Falls and points in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley will take up residence on the groom's farm near Frankford.

COOK—PRATT

Gladioli and ferns decorated Bridge Street United Church for the marriage at two o'clock, Thursday afternoon, of Kathleen Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pratt, Picton, to Charles Wilmot Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, Stirling, with the Rev. D. C. Amos officiating.

The bride presented an attractive picture in an ensemble of royal blue with white accessories, wearing a corsage of red roses. She was attended by Miss Rose Marie Hood in a rose dress with white accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Cecil J. Pratt was groomsman.

In the evening a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Receiving with Mrs. Pratt, gowned in flowered rayon, was Mrs. Aubrey Brooks in a wine crepe gown. In the dining-room the table with its fine linen cloth was centred with a four-tier wedding cake, the floral decorations being gladioli and ferns. Those serving the guests were Mesdames A. Brooks, Douglas McConnell and Miss Dorothy Hood.

Out-of-town guests were from Stirling, Trenton and Hoard's.

For travelling to Toronto and Hamilton the bride wore a tailored brown suit, with brown accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Cook will reside on Charlotte Street, Belleville.

TWO ORIGINAL CHURCH MEMBERS AT DIAMOND JUBILEE

Listowel, Sept. 30 —CP)— The First Baptist Church Listowel celebrated its diamond jubilee with special services yesterday. Only two members of the original congregation survive and one of these, Mrs. Isabel Bonnet, selected the closing hymn.

Founded in 1886, the church has sent two members into the ministry. Rev. Russell Fields served in the Michigan State Convention. Rev. W. J. Cordwell went to Cobalt.

SOUND AND ECONOMIC POSITION IS NECESSARY

Lacolle, Que., Oct. 1 (CP) — Only a sound and strong economic position will save Canada from the disorders and miseries of a social revolution, sought by subversive elements, Hon. Paul Beaulieu, Provincial Minister of Trade and Commerce, said. He spoke at a public meeting which followed official opening of a bridge over the Lacolle River, about 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

Blithe Ostrich-Trimmed Bonnet

By ALICE ALDEN

OSTRICH FEATHER trimming can be fresh and appealingly youthful as can be seen from even a glance at this pert little hat which designer Peg Fischer has named her "Flip Flapper". A stove-pipe-crowned cloche of ginger felt, it is bound and banded with matching grosgrain and trimmed with fluffy pompons of clipped ostrich at the right side.

Flying-Fashion

By ALICE ALDEN

THE GRAY WOOL dress or suit is to the fore in the Fall fashion field, since gray is a wonderful background for colorful accessories and complements. Ideal for the woman on the wing or for the careerist is this handsome Joseph Halpert design, a one-piece dress in grey yarn-dyed wool. He has detailed it with long sleeves, a double peplum and an interesting question-mark collar, and belted it smartly in brown alligator.

Mr., Mrs. Walden Honored Before Leaving City

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Walden, 339 Foster Avenue, who are moving to Niagara Falls in the immediate future were honored by approximately forty friends, the other night on the eve of their departure for their new home.

Mr. Walden, a Canadian National Railways engineer, has been transferred to the new division in a similar capacity with the company, and has been associated with the Belleville Division of the railway for the past 38 years.

The function came in the nature of a surprise and the guests quickly took charge of the proceedings. During the course of the evening an address was read by Larry Amo, in which he expressed the regrets of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walden, railway and otherwise, at the severance of years of happy associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Walden were then presented with a number of useful gifts, tokens of the high regard and esteem in which they are held by their many friends here and in the district. The recipients made suitable replies of appreciation, expressing their own feelings of sadness at leaving the city, where they had made their home for nearly four decades.

Mr. Walden, a veteran of the First Great War, is a past president of the Army and Navy Veterans here, and was also a former head of the Canadian National Railways Veterans.

Mr. Walden left for Niagara Falls today and Mrs. Walden will follow him on Friday of this week.

Friends Honor Newlyweds At Springbrook Hall

Rawdon—On the evening of Friday, Sept. 27th, more than two hundred friends from Springbrook and Rawdon Township gathered in the Orange Hall to honor the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bateman.

Mr. Gordon Bailey as Master of Ceremonies welcomed the bride, formerly Miss Eileen Tanner of Marsh Hill. A vocal solo was pleasingly rendered by Miss Ruth Bain, and a humorous reading by Mrs. Percy MacMullen appreciated. Short addresses were given by Reeve John Morrison, Messrs George Williams, Alex Tanner and Burton Bateman, and Mr. J. Baker contributed a solo with Mrs. C. Sine as accompanist.

Mr. Clinton Lough read an address to the guests of honor, and they were presented with a six-piece breakfast suite. "Elwood" and "Eileen" thanked their friends, and extended a cordial invitation to visit them in their home.

Refreshments were served after which dancing was enjoyed to music by the Minto orchestra.

Rainy Day Assurance

By ALICE ALDEN

RAIN TOGS designed for the coming Autumn rains are of course more cosy, but they are just as smart and well handled as the variety destined to do service during April showers. For comforting blustery weather a coat of processed wool gabardine in white, brown, black or navy was designed by Aquatogs. It is made with a big-yoke and boasts an enveloping button-hood, to afford a maximum of coverage.

Children Thanked For Scrap Books Sent Hospital

During the months of July and August of this year the girls of the West Hill Playgrounds made two lovely picture scrap books under the supervision of Miss Margaret Kellar. These scrap books were sent to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. A few days ago the following letter was received by Miss Kellar:

The Hospital for Sick Children.
67 College Street
Toronto 2, Ont.
September 26, 1946.

"Dear Miss Kellar:

"On behalf of the little patients in this hospital, I wish to acknowledge with thanks the scrap books which you so kindly sent to them.

"Such kind thoughtfulness is very much appreciated.

"Yours sincerely
"V. I. Marten
"Superintendent of Nurses."

Up-to-Date Hair-Do Keeps Ma Stepping in Style Parade

A very feminine hairstyle with curl puffs at the back and a single curl at the nape of the neck.

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE OF THE happy signs of the times is the inclination of most women to follow coiffure trends which, at the present moment, seem to be going up and down, and sidewise. Now and then we come across a dame who has done her hair in pricisely and exactly the same way for years. She is a victim of cowardice and the fixed idea.

She may have worn a pompadour for thirty years and now she is in style again. But she was out of the picture when the shingle raged, when the windblown blew, when the pineapple bob was fashion's hue and cry.

Top-Notch Mothers

Young daughters and sons want mothers to be top-notch, to keep in step with the style parade. When they bring friends home they want Ma to look as if she had just some from the beauty ship with a hair-do that is up to the minute if not a little ahead of time.

Same way with Ma's clothes. They must not be duddy or frumpy. They must have flair. Ma should carry them graciously and gracefully. It is the duty of the lady parent to conform. She should do that for her own sake, as well as for the sake of her family.

No doubt you have, among your acquaintances, the penny-pinching wife of the dollar-spending husband. He wears smart clothes, she picks up ugly frocks at bargain counters. If he strays away it is not surprising. She should do a little money flinging, make herself beauteous and attractive.

Ancient Hair-do

Getting back to the woman who refuses to remodel the ancient hair-do. She wouldn't think of wearing high, buttoned shoes. She'd just about die laughing if you suggested such a thing.

Nor would she put her neck in a high, whale-boned collar or wear a flannel petticoat as did her great grandmother. Yet, she dates herself otherwise.

To keep up with the fashion changes of the moment is one way of keeping young, preserving what good looks have been given us. It helps a woman to hang onto her man.

Mrs. M. Moffatt, 58 Rideau St., Kingston, writes: "I've never used a soap that gets clothes cleaner and whiter than EXTRA-SUDSY Super Suds. Yet I find Super Suds so safe. I use it for my colored things and it makes my clothes last longer. Super Suds is a grand soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Moffatt, for your swell letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

THE NEW MAID
SELF GENERATING
VACUUM CLEANERS

The NEW MAID mechanism generates a strong suction to draw dirt and grit out of carpets and rugs. But there is no long cord to unravel each time the cleaner is used as the suction is caused by vacuum cups revolving at great speed simply by pushing back and forth like a carpet sweeper. A revolving brush takes up bits of fibre from the surface of the carpet. Come and see this demonstrated at Christian's Electric and Hardware.

Home Girls Have Beauty Hazards

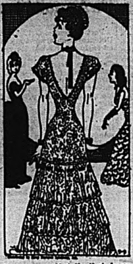
We're hearing now about housewife's droop, a term used by experts who do figure remodeling in reducing salons. It seems that, as the career girl is on parade all the time, she is more mindful of keeping her shape in form than is the boss of the domestic works who is not under observation, and treads the mill from morning until night.

The home-body gets plenty of exercise in the daily round of duty and, if she is in the habit of carrying herself properly, she will keep her musculature strong and avoid taking an adipose cushions. Good posture is productive of normal circulation, good skin coloring and normal functioning of the digestive organs. Poor posture is productive of fatigue, nervousness, grouches and a figure that is likely to lose vibrance and youthful lines.

Carry yourself tall; that is one secret of loveliness. Pull in your tummy muscles. Don't let your shoulders fall forward. When the spinal column is kept full length there is no muscle strain, hence, less fatigue.

Use a stool when washing dishes, preparing vegetables and ironing. Have it exactly the right height for sink and table. You'll be less tired when Daddy comes home. Don't bend and curve your back when using the dust pan; drop down on one knee and keep your back straight. Maintain as erect a pose as you can when using carpet sweeper or floor mop

Hands! There you have a real problem, for sure. It is depressing to have hand-me-down hands that look old and rusty. The only way to avoid this good-looks disaster is to use a high grade soap for dishwashing and laundry work, to apply a lotion freely and once a week at least to give the hands a creamy massage. Women who have been demon gardeners all summer are regarding their paws with dismay. But why didn't they wear gardening gloves? No answer.



Carry yourself tall; that is one secret of loveliness

Keep the hands out of very hot water as much as possible: it robs them of the natural oil that overcomes roughness. Use handled mops and scrapers for grimy cleaning jobs.

There is the important matter of relaxation. The hard-working boss of the kitchen is entitled to time off, the same as any other toiler. The best time for a nap is directly after the luncheon dishes are washed Flop down in darkened room. Close your eyes. Close the doors of your mind against all thoughts of tasks still to be done. Think of pleasant holidays you have had. Visualize delightful motor trips. No telling, you may soon drop off to sleep.

Several hours out of doors should be part of the daily program. It's good for the kids, and just as good for mama. She'll have a chance to ventilate her lungs and that'll give her new strength.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When a Woman Should Rise

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer a question for me, so that if I did the incorrect thing, I won't repeat the impropriety? Last Sunday I went with my sister to a tea where there were quite a few guests. During our stay a former Sunday School teacher of ours, a woman who is, I should say, in her late sixties, brought over to introduce to us a young man who has come to live in our neighborhood. My sister rose as Mrs. R—approached us and remained standing during the introduction. I didn't, because I have always understood (and I am sure that I have read this in your column several times) that a woman does not rise when a man is introduced to her. My sister and I have argued about this, and we now have decided to write to you to tell us which of us was right.

Emily

Your sister was right . . . . you should both have risen when this older woman approached with the young man she was going to introduce to you, and should have remained standing during the introduction and for as long as she was standing. You are right in maintaining that under usual circumstances a woman does not rise when a man is introduced to her. But in this circumstance you present, you should rise out of courtesy for the older woman.

The Fiance Not Present at Gift Presentation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a shower is given for bride-to-be, is it proper for her fiance to be present while she is unwrapping her gifts?

2. When is a bridal shower usually given? Would two months before the wedding be too soon?

3. Would earrings be a suitable gift for the bridesmaids? And maybe wallets for the ushers?

M.K.

1. A bridal shower is considered a "party for the girls", and men, not even the fiance, are not invited to attend this part of the party. Even when the shower is given in the evening and men are invited, they are asked to come in after the presentation and unwrapping of the gifts.

2. Two months before the wedding is somewhat "previous". . . although there is no rule about this, bridal showers are generally given during the month before the wedding date.

3. Yes . . . to both questions.

Wedding Invitation to Bridegroom's Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance's parents live in the South, and they have already been invited to stay at my home when they come for our wedding. Should they also be sent an engraved invitation to the church and to the reception?

L. W. M.

Yes; this invitation to your fiance's parents is the most important one, since they will be the guests of honor at your wedding. And doubtless this invitation will reach them two or three weeks before they leave to come to your wedding.

Maid of Honor and Matron of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our wedding party we are going to have two bridesmaids, two ushers, and the best man. Would it be proper for me to have my two best friends as maid of honor and matron of honor? And if so how would they walk in the processional?

J. P.

Yes, you may have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor. They may be dressed alike and walk together; or their costumes may contrast and they may walk alone, the one who is the actual witness walking after the one whose title is honorary.

Fashion Flashes

THE SMART NEW LOOK about the fur suit is all to the good. Absinthe-green woollen makes a handsome suit, the jacket softly bloused above a flaired, fishtail back and cutaway front. Silver-frost mink is used for folded petal revers that extend down the front to the one-button waist closing.

A big season ahead for fine theatre-going clothes. Champagne-white fine woollen is used for a full-length evening coat, its attached hood lined with gold lame. A wide gold kidskin belt and matching gold-beaded purse. Bells hang from the belt.

The long line is shared by dresses. A long, fitted line is the important detail of a smart black crepe frock, cut on coatdress lines. Tiny rhinestone-set buttons close the bodice from the tiny club collar to the lowered waist. A huge, billowing bow of moire is placed at the left hip.

Coming out of the rarified luxury class is chinchilla. One furrier, who has pioneered in American-bred chinchilla, uses it on handsome afternoon coats. A casually belted coat of black lightweight woollen has a shoulder-wide collar of American chinchilla.

A new regiment of gilets designed for Autumn suits is marching into the stores. Black pure silk chiffon is used for a handsome gilet detailed with a rippling jabot, one side of which is of very wide black French Chantilly lace, in contrast to the plain lace on the other side.

From five on, or for evening wear with formal clothes, the satin bag goes places. Black satin is used for an hexagonal box-bag. with a pyramid top. The top is covered with a floral design in sapphire-blue beads and rhinestones, outlined in heavy gold thread.

NO IMMEDIATE ACTION FORESEEN

Ottawa, Oct. 1 —(CP)— Indications today were that no immediate action will be taken by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to evict the 20 families who last week squatted in naval buildings at Dows Lake, Ottawa.

With the apparent hope that most of the families would succeed in finding more normal accommodation elsewhere it was expected police action would be withheld.

15½ CENTS FOR MILK

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 1 —(CP)— Fred M. Cairns of Bordens Niagara Dairies announced Monday that retail milk prices will be 15½ cents a quart here. Pints will sell at 9 cents, an advance of 1½ cents. Jersey and Guernsey milk will be two cents a quart higher.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Since You Know Your Faults, "Mike", Why Not Correct Them

The first part of any problem is to find out where we ourselves are wrong. Never mind about the other fellow. We can't do much about reforming him. And if we can set things straight as far as our own conduct is concerned, it may go far toward straightening out any tangled situation.

Then of course the second part of the problem is to make ourselves act on what we've found out about ourselves. That is, to correct the faults we have discovered.

Here's a young man who has gone through the first stage but apparently doesn't know how to go about the second.

He writes:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I'm 21 years of age and was discharged from the navy a few months ago.

"To get down to facts, and not to be conceited, I must say some girls say I'm a wolf. Also, I like a glass of beer. It seems that every time I go out with a girl to a party; I get feeling good and usually end up by taking her girl friends home. One night I did this and was told off good and proper by the girl I was with. This girl was the only one I respected, as she was the only one I couldn't pet with. This sounds rugged, I know, but it's the truth. She was the only girl I've ever asked to kiss good night.

"Now, any time we happen to meet, it seems I'm always with a girl, and she thinks that's all I do. I know this girl likes me, and I realize now I like her, too, —too much, in fact. I have a stubborn pride, and so does she. She's on my mind constantly, and today I called her up. It's been a month now since I last saw or called her, and today she said she didn't want me to call any more. She was crying when she said it, but I know she won't see me on account of her pride.

"Now my question: How can I regain her good graces?

"I know plenty of girls, but they all say I'm conceited, fickle and a half drunk. When they all say it, it sound like they may be right, but I think differently. I'm very frank, and sometimes I hurt people, but never behind their backs, always to their face.

"Mixed Mike"

Well, now, "Mike", it's just as I say. You're half way through the working out of your problem when you've got it figured out where you've been at fault. You realize that you have a tendency to drink too much, this showing in the fact that you lose your good sense after a few beers and run out on girls you take to parties. You realize you're fickle, since you say every time the girl you really like has seen you, you have had a different girl along. And you realize you're just too darn frank, since you hurt people with your bluntness.

So now for the second half of your problem: doing something about these things and getting back into the good graces of your girl. Here's your program.

1. Write your girl a note. Tell her how sorry you are for the things you've done to hurt her. Tell her you sincerely mean to be different and ask her to give you a chance to prove to her that you are. If you can't humble that "stubborn pride" of yours enough to do this, then you don't really care about getting the girl back. If you can, then I'll bet she's sport enough to give you that chance.

2. Lay off the beer if you can't handle yourself when you drink it. That's not weakness, only commonsense.

3. Quit running around with any old girl and concentrate on the one you want to win.

4. Keep your tongue in check and stop being so frank. Nobody wants to hear unpleasant things about himself. You wouldn't either.

SHOES, GLOVES and bags designed to complement clothes for fall, are rich in luxurious detail used on fine fabrics. Black satin makes this dress-up glove, its cuff fashioned in tiers punctuated by jet button trim. The handbag is of rich nut brown suede and is made with an adjustable shoulder strap. The construction is on postman's pouch lines, the flap trimmed with a brilliant gold metal and flower motif. Brown satin is the fabric of the dressy afternoon shoe, made with a trimming of gilt nailheads on ankle strap and platform.

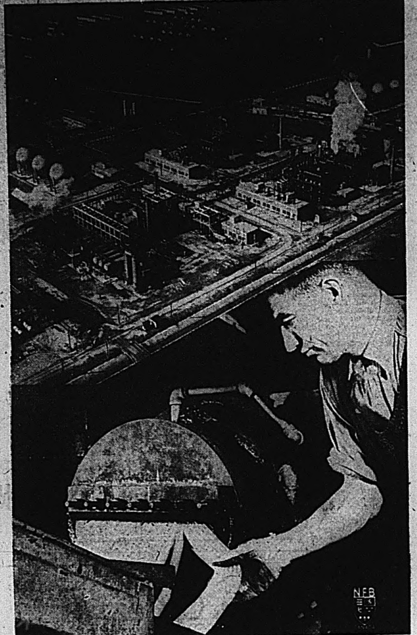
POLYMER CORPORATION CELEBRATES THIRD ANNIVERSARY



Polymer Corporation Limited, of Sarnia, Ontario, Canada's Crown Company for the making of synthetic rubber, enters its fourth year of operation this month with production sights set on 118,000,000 pounds — an increase of 11,000,000 pounds over the yield for the past twelve months.

The $50,000,000 plant, with its Horton spheres, towers and pipelines built on 185 acres of what was once an Indian reservation, will produce more and still better types of buna-S, the all-purpose rubber used for tire casings, and of butyl to meet increasing demands of processors at home and abroad and will keep Canada independent of far-away sources of a vital raw material.

Below, strands of butyl, used in making inner tubes of superior wearing quality, are examined by H. Beaton, a Polymer inspector, as they emerge through the extruder which serves as a strainer to remove foreign matter, and completes the drying process.

Four Committed, One Sentenced On Assault Charge

Port Colborne, Oct. 1. (CP)— Defence Counsel strongly objected early today when Harry Davis of Toronto, vice-president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, was committed for trial along with three other men on a charge of robbery with violence of Alex Morrison, Toronto private detective.

The charges, laid during the C.S.U. strike which tied up the Dominion's lake shipping last summer, followed a beating given Morrison after he was taken from the Colonial Hotel by a number of men in a car. Morrison testified earlier that pliers were used on his nose and other parts of his body.

Counsel protested because all four had elected summary trial. Davis, along with John Thompson and Ray Tessier of Toronto and Joe Graveck, of Montreal, had pleaded not guilty. Committal by Magistrate John B. Hopkins was a surprise move and came after another man similarly accused, Marcel Lavole of Montreal, pleaded guilty.

Lavole was sentenced to six months determinate and six months in jail indeterminate and then testified for the Crown. After hearing his testimony, the magistrate ordered committal.

C. P. Hope, prosecuting attorney, said $3,000 cash bail would be asked for each of the men. The four were taken to Welland County jail.

Objects to Committal

Irving Himel of Toronto, defence counsel, objected to the committal which required that bail be set by a County Judge. He asked that the Magistrate remand them for trial which would have given the Magistrate the privilege of continuing the small bail.

Another man, Mike Zanyk of Toronto, released with the others on bail of $1,000 shortly after their arrest early in July, has failed to appear since that time.

Lavole testified that Zanyk, Robert Sherbonneau (also sought by police) Thompson, Davis, Tessier and himself left Toronto on June 20 to go to Port Colborne.

He told the court: "We came to Port Colborne to beat up a couple of McMaster guys." (The reference was unexplained but was believed to refer to members of a rival union.)

All Aware

"We all knew in the car what we were going to do," continued Lavole. In Port Colborne they met Joe Grabeck, who pointed out Morrison as the latter entered his hotel as the "man they were to get."

Lavole described in detail the seizing of Morrison in the lobby of the hotel by Zanyk, Sherbonneau, Thompson and himself.

He testified they gave Morrison a beating on a ride to an isolated spot and then dumped him in a field where he was left practically nude and unconscious.

He admitted taking $28.75 from Morrison's pocket. He said papers taken from Morrison's pocket at the time of assault were delivered to the caretaker at the C.S.U. hall in Thorold and later were turned over to Harry Davis.

The party then returned to Toronto. On the way back Davis "congratulated" them, saying they "had done a good job."

He was arrested in Sarnia two weeks ago.

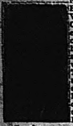
Thumb Nail Sketches Nazi Ringleaders

By TOM REEDY

Nuernberg, Oct. 1 —(AP)— Here are thumbnail sketches of the 21 defendants tried by the International Military Tribunal for conspiracy to lead Germany into war and high crimes against peace and humanity:

Herman Goering



Goering

Reichsmarshal of Hitler's Germany, Herman Goering wants everyone to know he was No. 2 Nazi boss. He took over Von Richtofen's Circus — toughest fighter pilot outfit the Kaiser had in 1918 — after the Baron was shot down. The pudgy, drug addicted Goering sided with Hitler in the early days, became chief of the new Luftwaffe, head of the police, keeper of many fancy castles, wearer of gaudy uniforms, displayer of fabulous jewels. He was the "front man" to show the Germans the Nazi party had a man they could understand, well-fed, jolly, hail-fellow-well-met Goering says it was a good fight; he never has apologized for having been on the losing side.

At 53, Goering has a tremendously high intelligence quotient—138 out of a possible 150. His prosecutors count it worthless without a conscience.

Rudolf Hess

Hess

Rudolf Hess, 47, went to jail with Hitler after the abortive Munich Putch of 1923. He helped Hitler write "Mein Kampf." He was the original "Deputy Fuehrer." He created a world-wide sensation when he took off from Germany in 1941, alone in Messerschmidt and landed in Scotland. His aim was a separate peace with Britain aimed at Russia. He wound up in a British jail. Hitler denounced him as insane. Whether he is or not still is a question. Prison psychiatrists said he was sane at times, illucid at times. At 47, he seemed only amused that he was being tried by anyone else except Germans. That's why he refused to defend himself before the International Tribunal.

Joachim von Ribbentrop

Von Ribbentrop

Hitler's foreign minister when Germany scooped up other nations with disdain for treaties was 53 - year - old Joachim von Ribbentrop, ex-champagne salesman. He borrowed the proud "von" for his his name; pretended all his life he was something he wasn't. Ribbentrop sold Hitler on the idea Britain never would fight the invasion of Poland. When his castle crashed down around him, Ribbentrop was found hiding in a bare room, a poison vial strapped to his leg Ribbentrop said he always was faithful to Hitler as an ideal; he swallowed his pride enough to plead he wasn't really foreign minister but only an errand boy.

Alfred Rosenberg

Rosenberg

Editor of Hitler's Voelkische Beobachter, Alfred Rosenberg was the high priest of Nazism. He preached racial hatred, the super-race idea. As boss of the occupied East—Poland and that part of Russia the Wehrmacht conquered — he is charged with the high crime of genocide, elimination of a race by deliberate means. Deadpanned, hollow-eyed at 53 Rosenberg was accused of devising the systematic plan for destroying the Slavs by mass epidemics, compulsory birth control, and abortions.

Wilhelm Frick

Frick

Almost 60, Wilhelm Frick is most gaily dressed of all the Nuernberg defendants. He wears college boy "blazers" and was a member Hitler's first-cabinet, in 1933. He says now he was a bureaucrat taking orders all that time. In 1933, Frick disbarred a Berlin lawyer named Robert Kempner, Now a U. S. citizen, Kempner prosecuted Frick at Nuernberg.

Ernst Kaltenbrunner

Kaltenbrunner

Toughest looking man in the dock at Nuernberg was Ernst Kaltenbrunner, 43-year-old Austrian. He was Himmler's pride and joy. On Kaltenbrunner, as Gestapo chief, fell all the sins of suicide Himmler. No one looked that part more. Kaltenbrunner defended himself by saying nothing was true. He even denied his own signature. Six - feet four and pock-marked Kaltenbrunner had a cranial hemorrhage during his trial, was absent much of the time, stared into space the remainder. His own underlings exploded his pleas of innocence by testifying how he watched executions in concentration camps. His lawyer pleaded him guilty, saying it was the system and environment under which he grew up.

Julius Streicher

Streicher

This 61-year-old, sharp-chinned arrogant No. 1 Jew-baiter of Hitler's Germany. In his Munich publication, Der Stuhrmer Streicher inveighed against the Jews from the early days. Copies of his newspaper introduced at his trial included editorials in which he even demanded extermination of the race. Streicher said he didn't have any influence, said that he was banned by the Fuehrer from making any public speeches after 1939, but his paper sold 35,000 copies in 1934 and 400,000 in 1940. Streicher had one of the world's greatest collections of pornographic material. One of his colleagues, Reichsbank President Walther Funk, said at the trial: "I have had my punishment, you are making me sit beside Streicher."

Walther Funk

Funk

President of the Reichsbank where gold teeth of Oswiecim victims were deposited, Walther Funk protested to the International Military Tribunal that he was only a tool of Hitler. He didn't know about the gold teeth. He didn't know about aggressive war plans, But Funk, at 56, was hard pressed to explain how he served as Hitler's press chief, then economic adviser, and finally pleni-potentiary for economy, without knowing these things. Funk wept constantly from the time he first was interrogated.

Hjalmar Schacht

Schacht

Now 67, Hjalmar Schacht presents one of the most intriguing spectacles of all Hitler's henchmen. He was the "wizard of finance" who engineered the dizzily climbing mark of the 1920's out of the red. He became Hitler's minister of finance. He says he tried to unseat the Fuehrer in 1938 and several times later. He definitely was mixed up in the July, 1944, plot to assassinate Hitler and thereupon was put in a concentration camp. Now he can't understand why he is in the same docket with Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Gestapo chief, who put him there. Schacht, who knows international bankers of Allied Nations by their first names, threatened a grand expose of world finance, failed to deliver.

Franz von Papen

Von Papen

At 67, Franz von Papen wound up a fantastic career as a melodramatic diplomat by being tried as engineer of the Austrian anschluss, superspy for Hitler in Turkey, willing helper of Nazi aims in sundry countries. Gray, thin and bespectacled, he knew all the world's leading diplomats intimately over years. He was thrown out of the United States during the First Great War, assumed an international reputation as paver-of-the-way. every time Hitler made a new move. He threw the prestige of Junkers noblemen and Catholic lay leaders behind the Nazis in 1933, never was without a job as long as Hitler was in power.

Erich Raeder

Raeder

Grand Admiral of the Navy Erich Raeder at 70 is the second oldest of the Nuernberg defendants. He is charged with building the German navy into a potent force in violation of the Versailles treaty. He designed the pocket battleship. Raeder introduced Quisling of Norway to Hitler. Prime charge against him is that he talked Hitler into invading Norway. He said he had to, to beat Britain to the punch. Raeder made much of his replacement by Doenitz in 1943, but he could not explain why he was kept on as inspector general.

Karl Doenitz

Doenitz

As his dream world disappeared, Hitler in his Berlin air raid shelter, chose Karl Doenitz, 55-year-old grand admiral of the navy, as his successor on April 29, 1945. He reigned eight days, surrendered the Reich to the Allies. Doenitz originated the "wolf pack" idea of convoy raiding by submarines. The prosecution brought out speeches in which he told his navy to follow the Fuehrer blindly. He was considered by the Allies the deepest-dyed Nazi of all the high ranking armed forces men. Hitler apparently thought so, too.

Alfred Jodl

Jodl

Beady-eyed Alfred Jodl was chief of the German General Staff. Jodl's initials were on all the military orders Hitler issued. He can't deny them, does not try, but says he had to carry out what the head of the state decreed. Jodl and Keitel signed the surrender. sat sullenly back and have been sullen ever since. Jodl lost his temper once during his trial, asserted that if the war had turned out differently, "other people would be on trial for the same things." Under cross-examination he exploded into a fiery defence of Hitler as a great man.

Arthur Seyss Inquart

Inquart

Intellectual of the Nazis on trial at Nuernberg was Arthur Seyss Inquart, Austrian-born, an intelligent quotient high enough to be a professor anywhere. He was accused of working Austrian Nationalists out of power in Vienna, taking over as Hitler's stooge. Then he became a power in occupied Poland, eventually the Nazi boss of Holland, where patriots were shot as hostages without trial. Peering through his thick glasses, Seyss Inquart admitted he was a "Trojan horse," denied he was ruthless, contended he followed Nazi ideology as best for everyone.

Albert Speer

Speer

Some of Hitler's finest displays of showmanship such as party rallies in the Nuernberg stadium, were made possible by Albert Speer. He was an architect. He knew how to build a Reichs-chancellory that would impress Germans, a stadium that would enhance exciting pagents When Todt, creator of the West Wall died, Speer was chosen by Hitler as armaments producer for the war embattled Reich. Speer, now 41, says he tried to soften Hitler's ideas, even thought of gassing him in the Berlin bunker he built, but the International Military Tribunal never received more than his word for that.

Baldur von Schirach

Von Schirach

The Hitler youth organization was built by Baldur von Schirach, at 39 the youngest of the Nuernberg defendants. When he first was introduced he was belligerent but changed his attitude when he made his defence. He declared on the witness stand Hitler was a "million - fold murderer" and wanted German youth to know he finally thought so. He wanted to erase what he had implanted so firmly —that German youth should die without question for the Fuehrer. Handsome "and fanatical, Von Schirach was the "boy protege" of the Hitler regime. He said during his trial that he had feared for his life, but he stuck with Hitler to the end.

Fritz Sauckel

Saukel

Father of 10, Fritz Sauckel pleaded that he never knew what his forced labor program for Hitler yielded or he would not have been able to face his family. As plenipotentiary for foreign labor, Sauckel drafted millions of Poles, French, Russians, Czechs. Many died. Little, squat, he now is 52 years old.

Hans Fritzsche

Fritzsche

Goebbels is dead. Nearest to him in the propaganda ministry under Hitler was Hans Fritzsche, 46. He was the radio voice dispensing the "line" the Fuehrer wanted dispensed. He was chief of the radio division. He said at his trial that Hitler and Goebbels "deceived" him and the German people. In low, moderate tones, he told the International Military Tribunal he was a follower of Hitler at first, later had doubts He never quit, though.

Konstantin von Neurath

Von Neurath

At 73, Konstantin von Neurath is the oldest of the Nuernberg defendants. He has been a diplomat all his life, was Hitler's foreign minister until the Austrian anschluss when Ribbentrop took over. Neurath, an old-line Prussian, attempted to show a break with the Nazis, was unable to account for his service as Reichs - Protector for swallowed - up Czechoslovakia. His heart is weak, he has missed some days for illness during the long trial in Nuernberg.

BEING PASSED IN WINDSOR

Windsor, Sept. 30 — (CP) — The bogus $5 bills which have flooded the Brantford and Kitchener areas during the past week are being passed off in Windsor, city detectives stated yesterday. The outstanding features of the faked money are that the borders are not even, the serial number is of a smaller and different type than the genuine bills, there is a noticeable highlight on the king's hair, the oval containing the picture of the king is narrower on the counterfeits and the blue ink is much brighter.

FRENCH PUBLIC WILL DECIDE ON NEW CONSTITUTION

De Gaulle Calls Proposed Plan "Road to Anarchy and Tyranny"

By ROBERT C. WILSON

Paris, Sept. 30 (AP)— France embarked today upon two weeks of heated campaigning over a proposed constitution condemned by Gen. Charles De Gaulle "as the road to anarchy and tyranny."

The constitutional assembly yesterday approved the constitution, 440 to 106. The public will pass judgment upon it in a referendum Oct. 13. Voters last May rejected the first constitution the assembly had framed.

The controlling coalition of President Georges Bidault's Mavement Republican Populaire (M.R.P.) Communist and Socialists overcame the Rightist and Radical Socialist opposition in reporting out the new document, providing for parliamentary rather than popular election of the President.

Gen. De Gaulle, war-time leader of the "Free French" and France's interim president until his resignation last January, sharply criticized the proposed constitution yesterday in a speech at Ephinal on the ground that it failed to provide for a president with sufficient strong executive powers.

He asked the voters to reject the constitution because he said it gave too much authority—executive, legislative and judicial—to the national assembly in a manner tending to "lead first to anarchy and then to tyranny."

'President Above Parties' Urged

Gen. De Gaulle said France, caught between a Slav bloc led by "a boundless power" and a "young America replete with resources," needed a president "above parties" and strong enough to safeguard the nation's independence.

Maurice Thorez, Communist leader, said at Nauberg the General had taken a direction "contrary to the interests of democracy." His co-chief, Jacques Duclos, told an audience at Houilles near Paris the country would vote "yes" and "partisans of presidential power will not have the constitution of which they dreamed."

Under the proposed constitution, the French parliament would be made up of a national assembly of deputies elected by the people and a council of the republic chosen by municipal and cantonal officials through an electoral college system.

PAST MIDWAY ISLANDS

Seattle, Oct. 1 —(AP)— Naval headquarters Monday reported the patrol plane Truculent Turtle had messaged passing Midway Island on its Australia-United States flight. The distance was estimated as past the midway point on its planned 9,000-mile course.

FOR THEM ... AN Ontario Holiday!

Roughing it in the wilds or basking in the luxury of a summer hotel . . . whatever their choice, lots of our friends from the States enjoy vacations in Ontario's northland. We can all give them a real welcome, when they come . . . make them want to return, year after year.

WHAT CAN I DO? The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up—follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS ... it's good business!

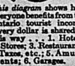
Worth his weight in gold! The province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.



This diagram shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every dollar is shared in this way . . . 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

SALMONBELLIES SHOW NO SIGN OF BEING DOWNCAST

Coach Complains Against Background of Gardens and Cement Floor

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—Emotionally, St. Catharines Athletics are cool winners.

You'd never know, to see them in their dressing room last night, that they'd just come off the Maple Leaf Garden floor after beating New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-10 in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Canadian Lacrosse Championship.

And by the same token it should be said New Westminster's men are confident winners. They took their loss in stride, gave no sign of being downcast.

The Westerners quickly changed into street clothes without holding any detailed post-mortems. Jack Wood, coach of the Western champs, offered no excuses:

"St. Catharines played a great game," he said. "We let too many loose men skip around the floor for easy goals. We should do a lot better in the next game Wednesday night as we now are accustomed to the cement floor and surroundings."

The Salmonbellies coach said the white boards were somewhat of a handicap to his team as he pointed out that on the coast the western titleholders were used to playing against a green background which shows up the white ball much better.

He wouldn't offer any opinion as to how many games he thought the best-of-five series would go but Coach George Cleverley of the Athletics ventured it would be decided in four games.

However, he wouldn't be pinned down as to what team would take the coveted silverware.

"I'm not going out on the limb", he said after Trainer Bill Demars hugged and kissed Jack (Wandy) McMahon for scoring the winning goal.

"Don't you think your club will win it," he was asked. "I'm not saying," he replied. "You saw us out there tonight. It's pretty tough going. The team that takes three of the first four games will be the winner."

Billy Herman New Manager Of the Pirates

Pittsburgh, Oct. 1 — (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates Monday announced appointment of Billy Herman, Boston Braves second baseman, as their new manager, succeeding Frank Frisch.

Frank E. McKinney, president of the club, said Herman was acquired in a regular player deal in which Pittsburgh is giving infielder Bob Elliott and catcher Hank Camilli to Boston. In return the Bucs receive Herman, infielder Bill Wietelmann, pitcher Elmer Singleton and outfielder Stanley Wentzel. No cash was involved.

The deal, McKinney said, was confirmed Sunday and "we negotiated a contract with Herman for two years at a figure substantially in excess of what the Pirate managers have received in the past."

McKinney did not disclose what Herman will be paid, but he said the figure was close to 50 per cent more than what was paid Frisch, who resigned Saturday as Pirate manager.

Hard-Punching Pete Zaduk Wins Over Jones

Toronto, Oct. 1. (CP)—Hard-punching Pete Zaduk of Guelph, found some of his punches going into the air at Massey Hall last night but he connected with enough later to win a five-round decision over Harold Jones of Peterborough before a crowd of 2,200. They fought at 147 pounds.

Jones weaved and bobbed for two rounds and then seemed to run out of wind.

Billy Goulding of Oshawa, came up with a split decision over Manny Sobarra of Guelph, in the semi-final also at 147 pounds. He made many misses before connecting.

The most comical bout was a three-round heavyweight bout between Wilf Sauve of Sudbury and Lanky, moustached Elgin Knapp of Oshawa. Knapp went down for an eight-count in the first round and finally out for keeps at 1:10 of the second.

Other results:

147 pounds—Ron Parker, Toronto, decisioned John Orchie, Oshawa, three rounds.

122 pounds—Wes Hodgins, Toronto, decisioned Grant McIntyre, Oshawa, three rounds.

140 pounds—Rolly Mignacca, Toronto, decisioned Sammy Sauve, Sudbury, three rounds.

115 pounds — Fred Harding, Oshawa, decisioned Bert Baxter, Toronto, three rounds.

GUARD FALLS IN FAINT

Nuernberg, Oct. 1 — (AP)— Shortly after noon Monday the United States army guard standing behind Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, former chief of staff of the German army, fell in a faint as the International Military Tribunal was reading its judgments against 22 Nazi defendants, including Jodl.

The trial proceeded without interruption while the guard lay on the floor for three or four minutes before regaining his feet and staggering from the room. The heat from the lights in the crowded room was stifling.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Bay of Quinte branch of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association sat in solemn conclave the other day and one of the outcomes was that Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, was named the new honorary president for 1946. Mr. George Perkin, principal of Picton Collegiate Institute was elected the new president and T. E. Moffat, Tweed, was re-appointed secretary treasurer.

• • •

Delegates to the general meeting of the COSSA confab to be held in Toronto are N. A. Beach, Albert College, immediate past-president and T. E. Moffat. Jack Doran, St. Michael's was named rugby convener.

• • •

Delegates took part in a long discussion on the eligibility clause as it affects academic standing. After lengthy talk and a number of suggestions were aired, the meeting decided to go on record as favoring a recommendation to the central meeting that eligibility clauses now in the constitution remain as is. Players who have attained 50 per cent of their marks in the immediate past set of examinations, will be eligible.

• • •

While there are only two official entries in senior and junior football, BCI and Albert, the Picton and St. Mikes squads announced their desirability of playing exhibition tilts with the senior squads. It was agreed that a four-game schedule be drawn up to embrace all squads with BCI and Albert only being eligible for the championship series.

• • •

The Ontario School for the Deaf asked for games and it was agreed that the schools with junior squads entered arrange either 6-man or 12-man games with them. The schedule is now being drawn up and the first games in the senior loop see St. Mike's drawn against Picton on the latter's gridiron and BCI at Albert, dates to be announced.

• • •

The 1945 edition of Albert's junior griddists proved they weren't a flash in the rugby pan when they defeated the seniors of the school last week by an 11-6 score. Jimmy Taugher junior ace and John Lill paced the kids attack with touchdowns, but the kids paid dearly for it, for Taugher suffered a dislocated thumb in the melee. The big brothers scored a touchdown by Carm Cook after they had blocked a kick, and Wiley kicked the extra point. A feature of the tussle was the tackling of George McKenzie whose brilliant tackling brought down the seniors time and again.

• • •

Jimmy Forester handled the game to the satisfaction of all concerned. Merkley converted the touchdown for the juniors but the try for extra points failed after Lill had raced across for major points.

• • •

The game between the Goodman Juniors softball squad and Toronto Lizzies will be played here tomorrow afternoon at three-thirty o'clock at the Alemite Field instead of the Fair Ground diamond as formerly announced. The Fair Grounds diamond is in no shape to play any sort of a game and today Goodman's officials sought and received permission of Mr. Arthur Young of the Stewart Warner Alemite Company to use the Alemite Field. Permission was readily granted.

• • •

Athletic Director "Pete" Beach, of Albert College announced today that the date set for the BCI-Albert senior game is Friday of this week at 4 p. m. on the Albert gridiron while on the same day, same time St. Mikes trek to Picton to take on the old Alma Mamma.

• • •

The northern branch of the COSSA opened last week with the Marmora C. I. squad pulling an upset when they defeated Tweed, the 1945 senior champs by a 14-0 score. On the same day Madoc lost to Stirling on the latter's grounds by an 18-1 count. Looks like there'll be plenty of action before the titles are decided here this Autumn.

• • •

Johnny Hayman, formerly of the Western University board of football mentors is coaching the Albert senior squad—and judging from past performances, Johnny should provide plenty of the old zip and zest to the big brothers efforts. John, so we're told is a basketball coach of no mean ability, and he will fill in aplenty for Pete Beach's hoop squads this winter.

• • •

Tonight the Goodman mushballers will go through a stiff practice at the Alemite Field in preparation for that payoff playoff tilt tomorrow with the Toronto squad. Art Young kindly gave the kids permission to use the field — and the players and management appreciate Mr. Young's co-operation in the matter. It's too bad there aren't more Arthur Youngs here. Don Boyle will go to the mound and he hopes to avenge that 11-1 shellacking the Toronto kids plastered on him last week. A good crowd is expected to be present to help the younkers pull this game out of the fire.

• • •

The YMCA announces its 1946-47 schedule in another column on this page. The swimming pool, so Ed. Shortt tells us is again open for use, painted, cleaned and filled with fresh, pure H20. The gym has its final coat of finish and glistens like a mirror. It will be open officially for classes on September 30 but it is hoped it will be open and ready for use by Thursday of this week.

• • •

Among the new activities planned for the coming season are a floor hockey league for boys under 18 broken into several divisions according to age. Efforts are being made to plan activities in an interest group basis in the senior men's division. Basketball will again take a large part in the games activity with periods provided for representative teams to practise. House leagues for men and girls will be arranged as soon as organized.

Among other activities are a proposed volleyball league for both veterans and beginners with special attention paid to business and professional men two mornings a week starting at 10:30. There will also be a regular morning and afternoon gymnasium class and a swimming period for ladies, now that they have more time.

Looks like the Y is in for a big year, now that the boys and girls are home again and members and potential members should study the schedule and fit themselves into the scheme of things.

• • •

the Henderson and Greenville clubs unable to agree on the site for their seventh game, after the two teams tied with three victories each, East Texas League President J. Walter Morris transferred the contest to Texarkana, where the winner continues in the final series with the Bears, who eliminated Tyler in five games. Morris ordered the game out of Henderson because of inadequate police protection there.

• • •

The league president witnessed the sixth game at Henderson and saw one player struck, a knife flashed and numerous brawls in the crowd of 4,000, with play stopped twice to quiet the spectators. Six umpires worked the contest and all put Morris on notice they would not appear for the deciding game unless it was played elsewhere. The contest was played under protest by Manager Alex Hooks of Greenville, because the Henderson manager wouldn't agree to decide the site of the next meeting by a flip of a coin.

• • •

The disturbance was the second of the playoffs, as Presidents Spears of Tyler and Dick Burnett of Texarkana engaged in a fight in full view of an audience of 4,500 at Texarkana in the opening game of the series. The Texarkana management refused to allow Infielder Gene Main of Paris to play with Tyler, although it had been agreed to permit his use because of a broken finger suffered by Third Baseman Rudy Jones. The club owners came to blows over the dispute, neither was hurt and quickly separated. Mains played the remainder of the game with Tyler.

Intervention Angered FDR

New York, Sept. 30 — (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt was angered by the British intervention in Greece in 1944 and planned a trip to Britain a little later for a direct appeal to the British people to put their faith in the United Nations rather than just in the British Empire and an anti-Russian bloc, Elliott Roosevelt says in his book about his father which will be published Tuesday

SWACO FLYERS BATTLE ELEVEN INNINGS TO TIE

Both Teams Score Two in 10th to Even Count and Game Called on Account of Darkness

Swacos and "Moose" Matthews Trenton RCAF Flyers failed to break their Belleville Senior Baseball League semi-finals deadlock the other night, the squads battling to an eleven-innings 4-all tie as the game was called by Umpires Thomas and Schrieder on account of darkness.

The veteran "Chuck" Barriage for Swacos and Curtis for the Flyers went the route for their respective teams, Barriage striking out five and Curtis four. The Swaco hurler walked three and his friendly enemy five.

Swacos barged into an early two run lead in the second innings on Walt Gerow's home run and successive clouts by Latchford and Booth. Flyers scored a single in the first when Gill raced home on White's single after clouting one himself and stealing second. Flyers tied the score in the sixth when White first man up doubled and scored on Remigios single after two had been retired.

The teams battled runless from that point on until the tenth when Swacos drew a two-run lead and it looked as if the game was in the bag. Walt Gerow poled out his second hit of the game scoring Genereaux and came home himself after two Flyer errors and a base on balls.

Flyers, however came right back in their half of the heat and tied the score on a triple by the "Moose", a double by Cox and Remogios second clout of the day The eleventh went scoreless and the game was called.

Gerow and Booth rapped out two hits for Swacos with White, Cox, Remigios and Garbas getting a pair each for the flyers.

Joe Krol Holds Commanding Lead In Scoring Race.

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—Big Joe Krol, Windsor-born halfback of Toronto Argonauts in the interprovincial Rugby Football Union, has a stranglehold on the individual scoring leadership in Eastern Canada football.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press and released last night show that Krol has tallied 45 points in five games for a starting nine-a-game average. He got 20 points last week in two starts, against Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Rough Riders. The figures demonstrate the versatility of the triple-threat half who formerly played with university of Western Ontario and Hamilton Wild-Cats. He has five touchdowns, two field goals, six singles and eight converts.

Krol's closest rival is young Jack Thomas of the Wildcats who heads the Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring list with 20 points .Thomas' record is somewhat unusual as he has scored a touchdown in each of his four games.

Annis Stukus, last year's scoring champion in the east, moved up among the leaders for the first time this season with 14 points, putting him right behind Thoms in the O.R.F.U.

Burly Ches McCance stands second to Krol in big four. The former Winnipeg star has scored 19 points for Montreal Alouettes—four field goals, a single and six converts.

Montreal, Oct. 1 — (CP) — If Montreal, which has proved itself a hockey and baseball hotbed, doesn't turn out to be one of the best football cities in Canada it won't be the fault of the backers of the Alouettes.

The crimson and white-sweatered Big Four team made its home debut Sunday against Hamilton Tigers amid fanfare rarely before seen here except at intercollegiate games. The crowd of 15,000 — 13,722 paid — loved every minute of it.

Formalities before the kickoff included a parade around the ball park by about 100 former air and ground crew members of the Alouette squadron, famous French Canadian bomber command formation.

Then, while a band played the fold song Alouette, members of the Montreal team were introduced to the fans.

Mayor Camillien Houde hoisted an end-over-end 25-yard kickoff and the football players took over from there. Alouettes were rather shaky at the start but they improved as the game progressed and their 21-6 victory sent the big crowd home happy.

Opening of the hockey season here Saturday night gave president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League his first chance to see the new blue-line system operating. The blue-line pass rule, designed to open up play, came into being while he was with the army overseas.

"I think it's great," Campbell said after the Canadiens-Buffalo exhibition tilt. "It adds to the speed. Hockey is a game of speed, basically, and fierce bodily contact. If these go out, hockey will vanish. The speed is accelerated by the blue-line at centre ice and I noticed it produced several spectacular scoring plays."

Canadiens, incidentally, showed plenty of power as they trounced the American League champions 12-3. They did so under difficult conditions, too, because the temperature in the Forum was about 80 degrees.

Old Confidence Game Tried on Trenton Man

Ottawa, Oct. 1 —(CP)— The old Spanish prisoner confidence game is back again. Royal Canadian Mounted Police disclosed Monday it had re-appeared in letters received by H. Kaye of Trenton, Ont.

They told a typical story and carried the signature of Armando C. Laborde who said he faced a $29,000 fine imposed by the Mexican Government. Unless he was able to pay the fine within 35 days he would lose a trunk which he had smuggled into the United States and which contained $285,000.

Mr. Kaye was offered $100,000 if he would pay the fine but the Trenton man gave the R.C.M.P. the imposing file of documents he received.

NUERNBERG PRISON ELEVATOR BREAKS DOWN

Nuernberg, Oct. 1 —(AP)— The heavily guarded elevator used to bring the Nazi defendants from their cells to the courtroom broke down Monday and Hermann Goering and some of his associates were nearly late for the reading of the summary.

Half the defendants were in court when the elevator machinery fouled. Workmen scurried frantically and finally repaired it. As a result the remaining half of the defendants reached the courtroom barely one minute before the eight judges filed in.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Since bridge began, they live in constant strife. Just like a man, he blames it on his wife.

Believe me, Midge, to you it should not happen. Learn Horse Sense bridge and cut out all the scrappin.

When your partner starts with an opening bid of one in a suit, he promises four groups of items. They are five tricks, four of which are high cards, two of which are sure tricks; and a biddable suit.

Your responding hand is expected to have two tricks. With not more than two tricks, you pass. With three (more than two) tricks inclusive of two high cards, you should bid something.

Among the 635,013,599,600 different hands, some have less than three tricks. These you will pass. But there is a responding bid for each one of the rest, of which there are billions and billions.

So, you will have an almost countless variety of responding hands to bid. Despite this, it is easy to select the correct bid with each one of them. Simply follow the Horse Sense T-A-N rule.

After all, there are only three types of bids for you to make. Either you bid your suit (takeout), or help partner in his suit (assist), or bid no suit (no-trump.)

If you takeout, you name a suit of yours that is biddable. If you assist partner's suit, you promise adequate support in it. If you say no-trump, you say you have no honest suit bid.

As these were mentioned is the order of preference; takeout as first choice; assist, second; no-trump, last. Merely remember the letters in the word T-A-N; T for takeout, A for assist, N for no-trump.

Your partner opens with one heart when you have this hand:

♠K 8 7
♥9 6 2
♦Q 6 5
♣A 7 4 3

You have three tricks. With neither a biddable suit nor heart support, bid one no-trump. It is the last in the order of choice of bids. It says you have no takeout or assist. Like yelling it.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 1 —AP)— Newly-arrived from Britain Ann Todd reports that she is amazed by California's climate, hospitality, and particularly, the bobby-soxers.

Ann is the girl who got her hands whacked by James Mason in "The Seventh Veil." One of Britain's top actresses, she is here to do "The Paradine Case." She and her husband, former R.A.F. Wing Cmdr. Nigel Tangye, now are living on a comfortable crag overlooking Laurel Canyon.

I found Ann looking for all the world like something Rembrandt might have dashed off.

"In England we wake up and wonder, 'will this be a good day on a bad day,'" she said. "Here you wake up and the sun is always shining."

Once inside, she raphsodized about the hospitality and the place offered ample evidence. Flowers and boxes of candy and cookies were in abundance. Ann also remarked how intrigued she was by her adolescent admirers, who she called "body-sockers."

"Isn't it amazing how intelligent they are about the movies?" she said. "I had long talks with them and they could comment on every little scene I played in 'Seventh Veil.'"

Mr. Tangye declared there is nothing approximating the bobby-soxer in England. "The fans stand very quietly and watch," he said. Occasionally one would emit a bold "that's our Annie!"

In the film palaces . . . "Home Sweet Homicide" is a new twist on the traditional whodunit . . . It sets three children up as detectives and writer to the task of capturing a murderer. The culprit is evident after the second reel to even the feeblest of amateur detectives, but it's fun waiting for him to get captured. The juvenile private eyes are what makes it enjoyable — Dean Stockwell, Connie Marshall and Peggy Ann Garner.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 1 (CP) — Flocks of meat-hungry New York State residents flooded restaurants along the Canadian border during the weekend and reports from across the border indicate that the entire American frontier is clutched in its worst meat famine in years with no signs of a let-up.

St. Catharines Athletics Win First Game Lacrosse Finals From New Westminster 11-10

Sweeping Pass Attack in Last Few Minutes Brings Saints Victory

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)— Maybe there were more exciting lacrosse pow-wows when Indians ran barefoot to found the sport as Canada's national game but since it acquired indoor trimmings it's doubtful if two Dominion title contestants ever raced to the wire closer than when St. Catharines Athletics edged New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-10 in the current Mann Cup series opener.

The St. Catharines section of the 7,000 fans which saw the Saints cut loose with a brilliant passing attack to snatch victory in the closing minutes last night will talk in barber shops for years about the way their hero Jack (Wandy) McMahon, moving backwards towards the western net to see his mates all covered, suddenly swervide to flip the winning goal from over his head.

Wandy's important counter — his second of the night—gave the Athletics a one-game lead in the best-of-five series which finds the teams facing each other again in Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night. Despite their spectacular win the Saints will enter the contest only slightly favorites, so impressive were the Salmonbellies who saw a two-goal advantage wiped out as the A's bagged three markers in less than 2 1-2 minutes in the final period.

May Reinstate Whitaker

St. Catharines stock may soar if the Canadian Lacrosse Association meeting Wednesday looks favorably on an application to reinstate the Saints' regular goalie, Bill Whitaker. He was suspended in Vancouver last year for striking a referee when the Athletics bowed to Vancouver Burrards. With sanction of the Ontario Lacrosse Association he played with the Saints till they reached the eastern finals.

But it's questionable if the rock-steady Whitaker could have served the Saints more ably than did Doug Favell who suffered a lacerated lip when he stopped a hard shot early in the game with his mouth. He made 21 saves compared to 31 shots blocked by Bill Scuby, masked netminder of the western champs.

Reputedly a smooth-passing aggregation the Saints looked like anything else for 53 of 60 minutes play. Then their combination attack suddenly caught fire and they scored three goals in as many sweeping pass plays while the Salmonbellies appeared helpless to block them.

The coast crew was behind only once until Wandy McMahon floundered in reverse towards their goal to give the Saints the nod. At one time in the third quarter the Salmonbellies held a four goal advantage and they were two counters in front with less than seven minutes to play when the A's ran wild.

Each team boasted a triple-goal scorer, Stu Scott pacing the A's and Bill Dickinson, 200-pound defenceman proving poison to the St. Catharines goalie with his bullet shots.

One big hope the westerners have to pull on even terms Wednesday is that they don't think the Athletics will be able to hold their ace scorer, little Ike Hilderbrand, in check two games in a row. Watched closely at every turn the Oshawa junior hockey star found the net only once in the opener.

Harness Horses To be Classified On Winnings

(By The Canadian Press)

The time-honored practice of classifying harness racers according to their time records was discarded yesterday by the United States Trotting Association at meeting at Lexington, Ky. The new system, which goes into effect Jan. 1, comprises a purse-winning basis for the grouping of harness entries, the decision being reached after a conference with the owners and drivers. Horses in class 30, under the new standard, will graduate to the next higher grade after winning $100 or more in competition. All computations are to be based on the gross winnings of a horse and time performances will not count.

All harness racing in the United States comes under the jurisdiction of the association. Therefore the new system will be followed throughout that country.

The Maryland Racing Commission reached a compromise with the horsemen yesterday at Baltimore on the segregation of horses before each race and as a result racing opens tomorrow at Laurel Park as scheduled. Under the final agreement, each horse will be given a saliva test and, if positive, the entry will be scratched.

Cincinnati Reds last night announced the purchase of outfielder Elmer (Red) Durrett, last season with Montreal Royals from the Brooklyn parent club of the National League.

Once noted as the catcher for the immortal Cy Young in the old Tri-State League, William J. Mackay, died yesterday at North Adams, Mass., after a brief illness.

President Sam Breadon of St. Louis Cardinals said yesterday the club's players will be paid during their National League playoff series this week with Brooklyn Dodgers at the rate they receive during the regular season.

Philadelphia — Nava Esparaza, 140, New York, outpointed Sammy Haskins, 139½, Philadelphia (10).

Newark, N.J. — Billy Grant, 171, Orange, N.J., outpointed Cyclone Roy Williams, 164, St. Petersburg, Fla. (8).

Lewiston, Me. — Fern Pelletier, 144, Lewiston, knocked out Red Cap Cooper, 150, Springfield, Mass. (2).

Holyoke, Mass. — St. Paul 173½, Springfield, Mass., outpointed Deacon Johnny Brown, 170, Baltimore, (10).

HOWIE POLLET LIKELY TO HURL FOR CARDINALS

Ralph Branca Selected by Durocher in All-Important Playoff for Title

St. Louis, Oct. 1. (AP) — Throw out 154 games and a 14-8 season edge for St. Louis over Brooklyn and start the real 1946 National League race today as Managers Eddie Dyer and Leo Durocher match wits and strategy in the opened of a three-game tie play-off—the first ever held in major league baseball.

Howie Pollet, the Cardinals' ailing No. 1 hurler, probably holds the key to the situation in the aching muscles of his left side. The slender southpaw has been poison to the Brooks.

Dyer won't know if Pollet, who has been knocked out of the box by Chicago in his last two starts, can take his turn until he lets him warm up in the Sportsman Park before game.

If he's "right" Pollet will pitch and Card supporters who have made their favorites a surprising 13 to 20 choice will breathe more easily. If not, Dyer will fall back on Murry Dickson, a wiry righthander who has beaten the Dodgers three times and lost once on relief.

There is no secret in the fact that Dyer has pointed his Cardinal Club for Durocher's Club all season long. He confided before the season that "Brooklyn is the team to beat".

There is no key figure holding the fate of the Dodgers' master plan. It is based on Durocher's hunches and uncanny ability to call on the right men at the ripe time. Brimming with confidence, as usual, the Dodger manager has picked Ralph Branca, a 20-year-old collegian from Mount Vernon, N.Y., to hurl the vital game. Branca has been extremely effective against the birds.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Oct. 1 — (AP) — Boston Red Sox will keep in trim for the World Series by playing an American League all-stars team . . . If you can judge by the inter-league all-star affair last summer, the Cards and Dodgers might do better by forgetting their playoff and combining their forces in hopes of assembling one team that would give the Red Sockers an argument . . . Wonder if Mahatma Rickey saw this play-off coming when he promised to buy new automobiles for all the Dodgers? The gate should pay for the cars with something left over to buy gas for Branch's new cruiser.

When the Dodgers took off Sunday night for St. Louis and the title play-off, Ed Stanky missed the train. He was just copying what both the bums and Cards had been doing all afternoon . . . Bill Herman, new Pirate manager, and owner Frank McKinney agree the Bucs need a thorough renovation. What? After the whole league took them to the cleaners?

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

From the way the boys are signing contracts without an (audible) kick, the N.H.L. bigwigs must be coming through with the promised wage boosts to go with the extended 60 - game schedule. So far the only player tagged a "holdout" was Alex Kaleta and the left winger's dispute with Chicago wound up in jig time last week.

Nine more players affixed their John Henry's to Detroit contracts yesterday and that means the Red Wings have 15 signed already with three to come—none of whom manager Jack Adams expects to be holdouts. Arrival of big Jack Stewart, given extra leave to gather in the sheaves at his Manitoba wheat farm, meanwhile means that the Wings have their entire 1946 season complement on hand at training camp.

With Maurice (The Rocket) Richard and three others signing Montreal Canadiens contracts yesterday, general manager Frank Selke says he expects the remainder of the 1946 team will join up today. The other three making it definite yesterday were Frankie Eddolls and Leo Lamoureux, both veteran defencemen, and centre Johnny Quilty.

Fleeting fame: Johnny Quilty, the Ottawa flash who veteran hockey observers predicted would be one of the all-time greats when he won the Calder Rookie Trophy in his first N.H.L. season six years ago, is essaying a comeback after four years in R.C.A.F. Reports from Montreal Canadiens training camp say he is showing flashes of his old-time form and may catch a secondary-line berth.

At Winnipeg, Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League made it two straight by whipping the United States League Minneapolis Millers, 6-5, last night in the second of their two-game exhibition series.

Situations vacant: Openings for two alert young hockey players were all Chicago Black Hawks had left today after signing 11 of their 1945-46 team and three newcomers yesterday. The new Hawks are defenceman Leo Reise of Brantford, Ont., and Wingy Johnston, both members of last year's Kansas City Pla-Mors, along with goalie Paul Bibeault, bought from Montreal Canadiens.

A little later than the others, Boston Bruins are due to open their training camp at Hershey, Pa., today. Practices will be open to the public and the railbirds are waiting to see such favorites as Bill Cox, Frank (Mr. Zero) Brimsek, Terry Reardon and the Kitchener line of Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart swing into action.

Toronto Maple Leafs showed a new acquisition at their St. Catharines, Ont., camp yesterday in Wally Wilson, 25-year-old centre who was one of the leading American Hockey League scorers last season. Working between Nick Metz and Joe Klukay, he got a goal in his first workout.

CHAPTER 17

"She didn't know he was coming."

"Suppose she'd take the kids for awhile"

"Avery, they're not in your way here."

"No, no, no, I didn't mean that they were! I was thinking if I got leave or anything this summer, we might go somewhere, up to the Rogue maybe."

"Dennis and his mother do want the girls," Isabel said, after a moment. She had gotten up to walk restlessly about the room, had stared out of a western window at the garden that was still damp and shady, was now standing now with her elbow on the low mantel, looking down at him.

"Want them?"

"Yes for June shrdlu aoi hrdl

"Yes. For June and July anyway. And I suppose as long as I'd leave them."

"Well, that ought to work out all right," Avery said. "You'll have a chance to visit people and get a good rest."

"A good rest! What do I do?"

He didn't like this, or the half-impatient voice in which she said it.

"You do pretty much what the other women do, don't you?"

Isabel was instantly warned. Nothing would be accomplished by antagonizing Avery. He was going away again in a few days; there must be no memory of this brief home visit that was not harmonious and happy.

"I am the laziest thing in the world," she said, smiling across at him. "And I love it!"

That was the mood he wanted; everything was serene again.

"I'm packing the girl's things now," Isabel added.

"How do they feel about it?"

"Oh, they're wild to go."

Avery did not ask why; he did not suspect that they hated the restraint that Yelta imposed upon them. He grinned.

"They go to the country?"

"To Sausalito. But it's real country. It's 'way up on the top of the hills, with eucalyptus and oaks all about."

"They'll have a swell time and you'll have a swell time," he said. "You take 'em too hard."

Isabel's eyes presently found an opportunity to steal a glance at the clock. Ten minutes past twelvve; Pussy and Catherine would be having their lunches now, downstairs in the pantry, at the small white table against the window. Meat cakes and baked potato and string beans, with chocolate cream puffs to follow. Or perhaps junket, or often ice cream. Yelta would sit between them scruptuously unloading Catherine's tork wnen Catherine attempted to get one third of the meal upon it,firmly tying the loosened ribbon on the small dark braids that met on the top of Pussy's head.

Their mother ought to be there, when they came in flushed and weary from the morning's play; their mother ought to be pouring their milk and listening to their gabbled tales of advventure. . . .

"Lovve it," she said, through the cloud of her hair. She was at her dressing table now, her head inverted, her brushes busy.

"Throw some things into a suitcase for me, too. Maybe we'll stay all night," said Avery.

Stay all night at Gordon's in the Carmel Valley. Well, why not? And be gone on Catherine's birthday; it would be just as much fun to ceebrate it two days later. If she was going to please Avery at all, as well do it wholeheartedly. Isabel put on immaculate white; the May morning morning was already warm and promised a warm day; she devoted to Avery every glance, every word every thought. He would only be at home for a few more days, and after all, as Millie had once reminded her, "Look what you got, Isabel!"

Wealth and devvotion and security and position, big things of which any woman would be glad to feel sure.

"How soon should we start, Avery?"

"Right away. We'll lunch there and I'll get some golf in."

Her dark soft flowery chiffon for tonight; a white woolly sweater; Isabel slipped a supple white camel's-hair coat over her white sport clothes, pulled on a rough small white hat, and was ready. Yeats came up for the bags; the children had gone upstairs some time ago, madam, he said.

They would be asleep now, or nearly asleep. This was the time of all times that Yelta didn't want them disturbed. Never mind; Avery would be gone in a few days and then she could spoil them to her hearts content. But only for a few days. May was running away and they were to go to their father in another week.

"You look beautiful in anything," Avery said, when she got into the car beside him.

"I have extravagant things to look beautiful in."

"We have a swell time, don't we?" He drove on into the warm noontide in great content. The first flush of spring was gone now, and the meadows and hillsides already burned to a golden brown. When they came out on the oceanside the sea was placid and blue; little settlements of summer cottages were crowded here and there on the beaches, in between them were long spaces of cliffs and dunes broken by wild tufts of grass. Fort Ord presently stretched its miles of mushroom growth along the cliffs; rifle range, trimly aligned barracks; small dwelling strewn over the low hills as a giant hand might fling corn.

"Titantic, Avery, isn't it?"

"You bet your life. Glad I'm in."

"I am, too." Then peaceful driving for some long miles and miles.

The little girls were eager to know how soon they would get to Gran's, and she answered them patiently, because her heart was breaking over the sweetness and smallness and dearness of them. She could not afford to be impatient on this drive; she would soon be driving back alone.

It was the last day of May, foggy and still. Pussy and Catherine were on their way to spend June and July with their father and their Hardisty grandmother.

"Mommy, will we be late for lunch?"

"I don't think so, Pussy. We have to go over the bridge now and turn around on that road by the high wire fence and go up the hill."

"We're going to have a camp, Daddy said so," Catherine said, in her deep voice.

"You had a camp when you were here those four days at Easter," Isabel reminded them.

"Not a real camp, Mommy. We had to wear sweaters and rubbers because it was so damp. It isn't a real camp if it's damp," Pussy explained.

"No, I suppose not." The early-summer day was sunless and still. Warm fog lay in a long low belt out on the ocean; the sharp hills of the city were swathed in mist. Isabel wore her loose soft mink coat: she felt her temples moist with the heat.

They drove up and up the steep winding road between the houses of the old village, with their elegant Victorian gables and ivy-draped porches, their sheltering bowed oaks and crowded sweet gardens. It had an atmosphere of its own, this little waterside town; Isabel had always found it strangely fascinating. Bay tides washed the one level street that wound along the shore, where sea-food grottoes and waterfront shops, garages, and storehouses were jumbled together, but almost immediately the rising tiers of embowered homesteads began; the old Avery gate, the Campbell house, the rambling gardens of the Sperrys and the Lowes.

Not many of the old families were left in the old town now, but Dennis's mother had belonged to this group as a girl, and when she and Isabel had occasionally come over to spend a few days in the Hardisty cottage, high up on the hills, she had made Isabel feel familiar with all of them. Many of them had an immediate English background, and Isabel had liked the atmosphere of the plain, comfortable firesides, surrounded with heterogeneous collections of armchairs, fire irons, head-embroidered hand screens, trophies from India and Brazil, faded photographs of boys in cricket flannels and mustached men in uniform. She and the older Mrs. Hardisty had chatted over teacups in many of these oak-shaded drawing rooms; it had been easy for Dennis's wife to strike roots of real friendship here, among these busy women who were all the while gardening, knitting, planning so busily. She saw old Mrs. Munro today, an apron pinned about her brief skirts, a flowerpot in one hand and the trowel with which she was busily tapping it in the other. Auntie Belle was transplanting the fuchsia slips that had flourished all winter in her sunny breakfast ingle.

The Hardisty place was at the very top of the hill, was indeed slightly over the ridge, in a group of oaks. It was a plain old farmhouse, whitewashed, smothered in honeysuckle and banksia-rose vines; surrounded by irregular sloping beds of vegetables and flowers, with wild flowers, huckleberry, and pale blue lilac encroaching from the nearby woods. Buttercups were everywhere, satin poppies languished in the drying grass, the tiny delicate transparent foliage of the wild roses was starred by pale pink blossoms.

Isabel had to steel herself against the memories that met her at the picket gate. Every inch of the place, mist-shrouded on this summer morning, had something to say to her. She and Dennis had spent their honeymoon here; laughing over the dishpan in the little kitchen, laughing all along the trails that led off into the oaks and woods, gathering eucalyptus leaves and cones for the evening fire, looking across a dazzle of hillside and shining bay waters to the steep rising tiers of San Francisco's roof line. Griddle cakes and a chicken pot roast had been their triumphs; they had made every meal a triumph, but driving home tired and happy after a ten-day holiday, her head lazily resting against his shoulder, her browned hands filled with flowers and ferns, they had agreed that there never had been such breakfast pancakes or such a succulent potted chicken.

They made the last turn: this was it.

"I brought them myself," she said to Dennis's mother, wh came out to the wide low sid porch to meet them.

"Oh, Isabel! That was good o you." Mrs. Hardisty stooped to embrace warmly affectionat little granddaughters, stood erect, with her welcoming smile.

HAD BAD RHEUMATIC PAIN
"LIMBS, JOINTS SO SORE COULDN'T DO MY WORK"

Hands and Feet Badly Swollen, Back Ached, "Suffered Great Pain," Says This Man. Tells How Few Bottles of Syntona Gave Him Grand Relief.

Mr. George Manning, Belmont, Ont., is glad to pass his experience along to others, because he knows what it means to get relief from long-standing rheumatic aches and pains that caused loss of time from work as well as months of suffering and discomfort.

"I suffered great pain," said Mr. Manning. "My limbs, feet and hands would swell up and the pain in my joints and muscles was so bad, I couldn't do my work. My back felt lame and sore and I had to be taking harsh laxatives all the time, or I suffered with constipation. This condition affected my entire system, as I became rundown and lost weight.

"When a friend told me about Syntona I wondered about it, as I had tried so many things without getting any benefit. But I finally decided to get some and I am certainly glad I did, because this medicine has given me my first real relief. I've been taking it for some weeks now, but in that time I am practically free of all pain and soreness. The swelling has gone out of my hanrs and feet and I am able to do my work again. Also, I am free of backache and my bowels are moving regularly. I am getting more sound, restful sleep at night so I don't feel tired as I did in the mornings and generally I feel better than for a long, long time."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

50 Youngsters Out for Parade Of Sea Cadets

Indicative of the mounting interest in the training of the sea cadet corps here, over fifty youngsters turned out at the regular parade of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps at its regular training period at the Armouries Monday night.

In connection with the regular training syllabus, the cadets were issued with their regular winter uniforms, "round rigs" sweaters, etc.

A fine recreational program has been mapped out for the youngsters for the fall and winter training period, and no effort is being spared by corps officers to make the unit as attractive as possible to not only its present membership but potential recruits as well.

Recruiting in the corps is progressing satisfactorily, officers stated today with a number of boys signing up each training night. It is hoped that in the near future the corps establishment will reach 100.

The corps will be aided in its seasonal efforts by the Optimist Club of Belleville which has undertaken to assist the boys in not only a financial way but through other media as well. It is hoped that some time in the not too distant future, the corps will be housed in a building of its own.

Training nights are each Monday and Thursday of the week. Lieut. E. Zeran, Royal Bank of Canada staff here is the commanding officer.

Housing Situation 'Drastic, Serious' 25 Families Face Eviction This Fall Committee Given Full Power to Act

As result of the present housing emergency in the city the recently appointed housing committee under the chairmanship of Alderman Harold Armstrong will have full power to act to put the city owned buildings in readiness for emergency occupation.

This was ratified in council Monday evening when Mayor Frank Follwell reminded council members that the housing situation in the city was both "drastic and serious" and that he personally had knowledge of at least 25 families who this autumn will be evicted from their present accommodations by court orders.

"Owners of the property occupied by these persons are entirely within their rights in obtaining eviction orders, but these unfortunate people are desperate and have no place to go," stated the mayor.

"Continuing the mayor stated he had wired the Department of National Defence at Ottawa requesting the use of the Armouries as emergency shelter for families while city owned buildings at the fair grounds would be surveyed with the view of determining what alterations would be necessary to ready them for occupancy.

Several of the councillors agreed that the Armouries would house all needy families and that heat, water and toilet facilities were already installed. Another councillor spoke of the 34th Battery building as being suitable if it could be made available.

Doyle Drug Store Established Forty Years Ago by Lt.-Col. Doyle, Brother

Lieut.-Col. J. Vincent Doyle stood in his modern Front Street drug store this morning and recalled the day a little over forty years ago when, as a young man, he and his brother, the late P. P. Doyle faced the business problems of life "on their own".

It was in late September, 1906, when the two men formed a partnership that lasted for nearly 3 and one-half decades and ended with the decease of Mr. P. P. Doyle in 1940.

Down through these years, the Doyle Drug Store has occupied an honorable place in the drug-dispensing business circles of the city.

Col. Doyle graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy in 1904 after serving his apprenticeship, and immediately went to work in Toronto and Montreal stores to get experience.

In 1906 he and his brother came back to their native Belleville and opened their own business in what now houses the Bill Cook Tobacco Store.

Served in First Great War

Remaining there for a number of years, the war interrupted the gradually expanding business and after serving with the 155th Battalion, C.E.F. Col. Doyle 44th Battalion C.E.F. Col. Doyle returned and immediately moved into his present spacious store which was then occupied by a millinery business. It was merely a matter of exchange of premises, the millinery shop being satisfied with the smaller quarters, and the expanding drug business requiring the roomier shop.

The business gradually grew until it reached its present high status in drug circles of the city.

In 1940, as was mentioned before, the late Mr. P. P. Doyle passed away and Col. Doyle has carried on the business since. A highly efficient staff has enabled him to carry on traditions laid down in early business days and which through the years has built up the success this modern store now enjoys.

STEPINAC IS HISSED

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Oct. 1.—(AP) Archbishop Alojzijc Stepinac yesterday told a Yugoslav People's Court trying him on charges of collaborating with German occupation authorities that he did not consider that he had betrayed his country

Archbishop Stepinac, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, made his declaration of innocence in response to a question as he testified in his own defence.

The crowd of spectators in the courtroom loudly cheered the judges when they entered and hissed Archbishop Stepinac and his 15 co-defendants.

THREE CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

Chicago, Oct. 1 — (AP)—Three children were dead last night and their mother and sister were in serious condition after a kerosene stove exploded and started a fire in their near west Side home. Marie Torres, 12, her sister Esperandi, 2, and her brother, Daniel, 6, all died. Their mother, Mrs. Sauld Torres, 38, and sister, Nellie, 17, were reported in serious condition in hospital.

LIBERAL LEADER'S WIFE WILL SETTLE FOR FAMILY LIFE

Mrs. Walter A. Tucker Has Nine Convincing Reasons for Finding Home Interesting

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa —(CP)— In a world where wives of men in the news are making more and more headlines themselves, blond motherly, Mrs Walter A. Tucker of Rosthern, Sask., wife of the new Saskatchewan Liberal leader, has nine good reasons for believing that women's place is in the home.

These reasons are her children: Shirley, 16, Marion, 14, Austen, 13 David, 12, John, 11, George, eight, Edward, seven, Hertha, five and Wilfred, two. Far from complaining that homemaking is boring, Mrs. Tucker says there is never a dull moment—for the same nine reasons.

Interviewed in her home here while packing to return to the permanent Tucker home at Rosthern, Mrs. Tucker explained her solution of Ottawa's notorious housing shortage which she was fortunate enough to sidestep.

"My husband came down and bought this house and we all came later last fall and moved in. I don't even know how he got it. I just thank my stars he did."

Visitors dropping in on Mrs. Tucker are sure to meet some of the children. This Canadian Press reporter met Shirley who is interested in journalism and came in quietly to listen to a real interview. Little blond Hertha rushed in to show her mother a new paper doll. became unaware of a stranger and disappeared again.

"Hertha is happy because I am letting her take all her paper dolls back with her but the boys are not because I made them throw out all their comic books to save space," Mrs. Tucker explained.

Wilfred, the baby, woke up from his afternoon nap upstairs and Shirley went upstairs to quiet him back to sleep. Co-operation is the key note in the smooth running of the Tucker household. The older children help care for the younger ones and all have their household tasks. Mrs. Tucker also has a maid.

Mrs. Tucker—Hertha Friesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Friesen of Rosthern—was a school teacher in several northern Saskatchewan towns before her marriage in 1929 to the young lawyer from her hometown. They were married in Rosetown on a weekend and Mrs. Tucker returned to her classroom the following Monday.

"The first time I met Walter was when I went to ask him to preside at some gathering for a church function and he did," Mrs. Tucker said with a reminiscent smile. "I haven't thought of that meeting for a long time. It certainly didn't seem romantic then."

The Tuckers belong to the United Church.

Although she loves having her large family around her Mrs. Tucker has come to Ottawa several times with only one or two of the children while her husband, Liberal M. P. for Rosthern and parliamentary assistant to Veterans' Minister Mackenzie has been attending sessions. While Mr. Tucker was in the army they also lived in Vancouver and Victoria.

"I just brought the older ones who took an interest in parliament and life in the Capital," Mrs. Tucker said. None of the children shows signs yet of following in her father's political footsteps. The boys incline toward careers as cowboys and the girls can't decide. When she has any spare time— the phrase amuses her—Mrs. Tucker knits and keeps up-to-date in magazines, and newspapers and "the heavy things my husband brings home."

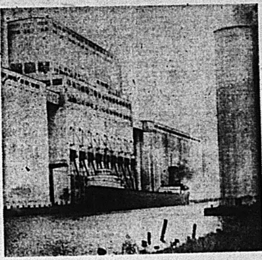
GANG ATTACKS FORT McKINLEY REPORTED

Manila, Sept. 30 — (AP)—The Manila Times today said one United States soldier was killed and another wounded early this morning when an unidentified gang with machine-guns attacked Fort McKinley, United States Army reservation in the southern suburbs of Manila. Army authorities said the incident was under investigation. They neither confirmed nor denied the reported casualties.

Labor Shortage Ties Up Grain Shipments— While grain elevator operators frantically scour the country for additional help, the huge Western grain crop is piling up at lakehead ports. Photo shows grain cars lined up in C.P.R. yards at Fort William, awaiting transfer of their cargoes to the elevators. At one period 5,400 cars jammed the sidings.



The grain carrier Mohawk Deer loads grain at Pool No 7 Grain shipments are arriving at the elevators at the rate of 1,250 cars a day. Short staffs on the elevators are delaying the transfer of the grain from cars to lake boats.

FATALLY INJURED IN CAVE-IN THREE MINUTES BEFORE QUITTING TIME

Burlington, Ont., Sept. 30 — ((CP)— Three minutes before he was to have stopped working at noon Saturday, Thomas James O'Brien, 48, of Toronto, was buried beneath a pile of earth and stone by a cave-in at the construction of sewers on Baldwin Street, just west of the Burlington high school. Doctors, firemen and first-aid experts worked for some time to revive his still-breathing body after it was extricated, but his injuries proved fatal.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty was telling the class about the 5 senses such as the sense of heering, saying, The sense of heering is one of the most usefill as well as one of the most poetic of all the senses. For instance just think of all the lovely sounds that have been written about by poets, ranging all the way from the majestic roar of Niagara Falls to the distant song of a lark in the sky. Could anyone imagine anything more bewtiful than the song of berd? she said.

Artie Bromfield waving his hand and saying, The song of 2 berds.

Well, perhaps, Miss Kitty said. Now an important thing about the bewty of sound is its timeliness, in other werds the correct sound at the proper time. For instance nothing is more bewtifull than the sound of Church bells on Sunday, and the human voice also is often very bewtiful, but at the other extreme nothing is more discordant than the sound of talking and wispering in class. Now who can give another example of the bewty of the correct sound at the right time? she said.

Which Raymin Levy waved his hand, saying, When you're watching the water run out of the bathtub after you've had a bath, and the very last of it that runs out goes Glug.

Making everybody laugh, and Miss Kitty said, Well, at least it's an expression of clenliniss, which is a very fine thing. Has anyone else an example? she said.

Which Shorty Judge had, saying, The bewtiful sound of the human voice at the correct time, just after you've been on a errand for your mother and she tells you you can keep the change.

Oh dear such a class, we'd better go on to arifmetic, Miss Kitty said.

Which we did feeling aginst it.

NURSING FEES RAISED

Brantford, Oct. 1 (CP)—Fees for registered nurses have been advanced $5 to $6 for an eight-hour day duty and to $7 for an 11-hour day duty, it was announced following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Brantford Community Nursing Registry. The rate of $7 for an eight hour day was set for alcoholic and mental patients. The tariff comes into immediate effect.

MEAT FOR FOOD-HUNGRY BERMUDA

Ottawa, Oct. 1 —(CP)— Responding swiftly to an appeal from food-short Bermuda, the Canadian Government Monday took action to send an additional 70,000 pounds of meat — 50,000 pounds of frozen beef and 20,000 of lamb and mutton — to the tiny Atlantic colony.

POWDER COMPACT FOOLED GERMANS

Hamilton, Ont., —(CP)— A powder compact served as hiding place for the important dispatches which Raymonde Rock of Peruweltz, Belgium, carried from one chief to another in the underground organization when the Germans invaded the country.

During the war she taught school and the Germans never suspected that in her spare time she was capable of packing guns and ammunition for the underground, by bundling them in saddle packs and hauling them on her bicycle.

In Hamilton she now is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nethery and their son Alex. Miss Rock saved Alex from the Nazis more than two years ago.

"Every day for 120 days Miss Rock and her mother ran the risk of being shot for hiding me," said Alex, a former R.C.A.F. pilot.

Miss Rock is in Canada on behalf of the Belgian government to study the educational systems in this country and also in the United States.

She had a good reason for joining the underground during the war—"In the First Great War the Germans killed my father and my brother," she said.

Quantity Cooking Master of Science

Regina —(CP)— Cook books are the biggest headache to Mrs. W. H. Horner, instructor in cooking at the Canadian Vocational Training scheme's chef school here.

Measurements in most cook books on the market today follow United States customs and that is where the trouble comes in.

Americans put 128 ounces into a gallon while Canadians generously make it 160 ounces.

"Small quantity cooking does not reveal the same problem lem," Mrs. Horner said, and she knows. She is a batchelor of household science and holds a certificate of education for Saskatchewan. Previously she did dietetic work in Montreal.

"Gone is the day when cooking was done haphazardly," she said. "Cooking for institutional purposes is coming into its own as a recognized science."

As a proof she cites the case of baking powders. In old-fashioned quick-acting powders carbon dioxide is given off before the batter is put in the oven.

Today there are both double action and slow powders which allow the batter to set for several hours without loss of action.

Cooking's becoming as tricky as the atomic bomb.

Roslin

Roslin — Anniversary services were held in the Roslin United Church on Sunday last at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. The church was nicely decorated for the occasion with potted plants and flowers. Special music was given by the joint choirs of the Presbyterian and United Churches with Mrs. B. Heywood and Mr. G. Bailey taking the solo parts.

The Rev. Geo. Patten of Queensboro was guest speaker at both services and for the evening service he chose as his text Mark 8. 27. "Whom do men say that I am?"

Rev. H. B. Heywood assisted at this service.

Large congregations were present both morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Copeland, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gray, Evelyn and Allan spent Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs. W. Rombough, and family, Kingston.

A goodly number of Roslin residents were in attendance at Belleville exhibition last week.

The Young People's Union held their opening meeting for the fall season Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Colden.

Mrs. E. McKee returned last week after a trip to Toronto and

BLACK HATS FOR WIVES OF NAZI CRIMINALS

As if in grim foreboding of the verdict that will be meted to their husbands, Frau Walther Funk, (FRONT), and Frau Joachim von Ribbentrop wear black hats as they arrive for what might be a last visit with their husbands. The girl, hiding behind her mother, is a daughter of the Von Ribbentrops.

Three Acquitted Nazi Leaders 'Guilty in Eyes of German People' Says Berlin Press

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP)— Berlin newspapers—American and British—licensed as well as Russian-controlled—maintained today that Hjalmar Schacht, Franz Von Papen and Hans Fritsche, though acquitted by the international military tribunal at Neurnberg, are "guilty in the eyes of the German people."

While all papers praised the tribunal for conducting an extremely fair trial, they differed with the court on the acquittals and the Soviet-licensed papers also criticized some of the prison entences as too lenient.

The American-licensed Tagesspiegel endorsed as "justified and logical the Soviet dissent against the three acquittals and the sparing of Hess' life."

"For the German nation, Schacht and Von Papen are guilty for supporting Hitler to gain power by illegal means. The German nation has to deal with them," Tagesspiegel added.

This paper also quoted leading Berlin politicians as demanding that the acquitted trio be handed over to German courts "for reckoning."

The British-licensed Telegraf, in an editorial signed by its editor, Arno Scholz, a leader of the Berlin Social Democrats, also opposed the tribunal's decision that the S.A. (brownshirts) and high command were not criminal organizations.

"The German people are entitled to raise many more charges against the (acquitted) men and organizations," the Telegraf said.

The Soviet-controlled Berliner Zeitung said the conduct of the trial had "disproved the contentions of those who predicted tnat it would be only a mock trial."

However, this paper added that the three acquittals were "incomprehensible."

The Socialist Unity Party's organ, "Neues Deutschland," observed that "the German people cannot understand the prison sentences and find the acquittals utterly incomprehensible."

FREIGHTER AGROUND

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 2 —(CP)— Two Kingston based tugs, the Salvage Prince and the Salvage Queen, are en route today to the foot of Wolfe Island where the Canada Steamship Lines freighter Acadian went aground during yesterday afternoon's heavy snowstorm. The Acadian was travelling light.

Lack of Sugar May Cause Heavy Loss in Tomatoes

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP) —Tons of this year's record tomato crop may rot in Ontario fields because of the government's refusal to grant canners extra sugar, officials of several large canning companies charged Monday night. They said sugar quotas for processing tomatoes were made on the basis of 1941 consumption figures but this year's crop is much greater than that of 1941.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Synopsis: The storm which on Tuesday moved across northern Maine into southeastern Quebec is rapidly diminishing in intensity. It gave strong winds and rain in the northeastern United States and lower St. Lawrence Valley, and both rain and snow along the upper St. Lawrence Valley and eastern part of Ontario. The strong northerly winds brought quite cold air into southern Ontario, with the temperature at Ottawa rising only to 36. However the strong winds have also saved many places from severe frost at night. Southerly winds are bringing warm weather with clear skies in to the states west of the Great Lakes, southern Manitoba and northwestern Ontario. Rain is occurring in parts of southern Saskatchewan and Alberta and the mountain states.

Irate Customers Browbeat Milkman

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP) — The first day of the higher milk prices — up three cents a quart yesterday to 16 cents — brought more grief to the milkman than to the consumer.

Reported one: "You'd think I was personally responsible for the raise in price. Why, several of the customers had the nerve to ask me why I didn't take a cut in salary instead of increasing the price of milk."

Reporter in London Impressions Sees Everything Almost as Usual

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 2 (CP Cable) — Reportorially London has "had it."

For a visiting fireman, one of many since London went to war seven years ago, looking for a new story depicting the post-war life of the city of the blitz is much like looking for a steak in a New York butcher shop.

The guard at Buckingham Palace continues to be changed every other morning at 10:30 on the dot. The east end's Petticoat Lane and its colorful street hawkers function as usual every Sunday. Orators at Marble Arch damn everything, also as usual. An unruffled Nelson is still atop his column in Trafalgar Square.

The wardens of the Tower of London continue to put in a six-day week stint of "10 to 6 with 'arf an hour off for dinner" now that the storied fortress on the Thames again is open to the public. The beef-eaters with roundly-told stories of history made in the tower easily outshine Manhattan's raucous tourist guides.

Like a weary old lady whose slip is showing, London seeks only half-heartedly to conceal the surface scars of war. She no longer displays her wounds proudly. She tries, just a little, to hide them. But a peek behind a boarded-up building, a glance down a narrow street are sufficient to disclose the hideous devastation of war.

Perhaps more serious are the internal wounds exemplified in shortages of everything — the sameness of the food, the scarcity of soap, cigarets and "mild and bitter," of almost all the things once accepted as necessities.

PLANS SPEEDED FOR HANGING OF 11 RINGLEADERS

Redouble the Guards Around Nuernberg Jail With Orders To Shoot to Kill

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Lawyers for the 11 condemned war criminals disclosed today they planned to appeal to the Allied control council to change the death sentences from hanging to shooting if all other pleas for clemency failed.

The last court of resort for Hermann Goering, Joachim Von Ribbentrop and the others from the ignominy of the hangman's rope was formed by the four Allied generals sitting in Berlin as occupation authorities for the four zones of Germany. A 12th German, Martin Bormann, was senteneed in absentia to be hanged.

As lawyers drew their petitions, the four-power commission representing the Allied council held an all-day session on arrangements and details for the execution Oct. 16 in Nuernberg, once the festival city of the Nazi party. They talked also of transporting seven of the war criminals to Berlin to start their prison terms.

Increased security measures were ordered by the United States constabulary and special military police guards for the next two weeks, or until the death sentences imposed yesterday by the international military tribunal are carried out on the gallows. Defence counsel were busy preparing appeals.

Here in the enclosure of the old courthouse of this city, which stood as a major symbol of Nazi power under Adolf Hitler, the Fuehrer's teammates of war-making days—Hermann Goering, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick, Alfred Rosenberg,

Canada is 'Land Of Great Promise' Says Lord Addison

Southampton, England, Oct. 2— (CP Cable) — The liner Aquitania arrived today from Halifax with a passenger list of notables including two British cabinet ministers, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Norman A. Robertson, the new Canadian High Commissioner to London.

In brief interviews the following opinions were expressed:

The Archbishop—Canada is a country "full of virility and variety." Canadians differ greatly and you learn something new about the country from each new place.

Labor Minister Isaacs—Canada and the United States are "miles behind" Britain in labor relations. The great drawback in the field of labor relations in Canada is the absence of essential control such as is afforded by the Trades Union Congress in Britain.

Viscount Addison, Dominion Secretary — Canada, although young and of immense size, is "a land of most prodigious promise."

The passenger list also included 25 Canadian hockey players who will play in English and Scottish leagues.

CRITICALLY ILL HULL COUNSELS FOR WORLD PEACE

Former U. S. Secretary of State Suffers Stroke at Naval Hospital

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Critically ill Cordell Hull counselled the big five powers on his 75th birthday today that they must replace "dangerous" differences with mutual confidence or face "incalculable disaster."

The frail former United States Secretary of State offered his advice even as he carried on a personal struggle for time and health to make a final contribution to world peace.

Mr. Hull suffered a stroke Monday at the United States Naval Hospital where he has been resting from the task of compiling his experiences in public life — a work he hopes will not only shed light on the past but furnish lessons for the future.

It was upon those experiences that he drew for his birthday statement citing the difficulties in the path of international unity, yet expressing confidence the objective can be attained if the big powers will only co-operate.

"Only if each nation is united within itself behind policies designed to these common interests, and only as the nations continuously co-operate with each other

'45 Tobacco Crop Yielded Tax Of $188,000,000

Aylmer, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP) — Speaking at the official opening of the Imperial Tobacco Company's new $2,000,000 processing plant Hon. T. ~~L. Kennedy, On~~tario Agriculture Minister today pictured a wonderful future for western Ontario tobacco growers and the industry in general.

Pointing out that the 21-year-old industry is this year marketing its greatest crop, making Canada self sufficient in flue-cured tobacco, Col. Kennedy praised the growers and processors for their co-operative marketing plan and cited it not only as a model for all other branches of agriculture but as "the spirit needed in international dealings between nations."

"Ontario tobacco," he said, "has won a definite place in the British market and so long as Ontario growers can keep on producing the quality of tobacco demanded by that market, Britain will be glad to take all she can of our product. And more markets can be developed to take all our surplus tobacco."

But for the recent frost, which did extensive damage to the crop, western Ontario growers would have realized their dream of a 100,000,000 pound crop," said Earl Spafford, President of the Imperial Company. He predicted a yield this year of 92,000,000 pounds against last year's 75,000,000 from which the Canadian treasury benefited about 188,000,000 dollars in taxes.

USE GRAIN BOATS TO GET COAL IN BEFORE WINTER

Grain Movement to Europe Tied Up in Wake of Coal Shipping Rush

By DON GILBERT

Montreal, Oct. 2 (CP)—A rush to get coal across the Great Lakes so Canadian bins will be full this winter, has resulted in a diversion of inland shipping from the grain-carrying trade and a virtual tieup in the movement of grain to hungry Europe.

Grain elevators at Montreal and other St. Lawrence ports are practically empty and thousands of tons of ocean-going ships are idle in the port of Montreal awaiting cargoes for Europe.

With only a fraction of the normal number of lake vessels available to move grain from lakehead ports, shipping men say continued shipments of grain to Europe now depend on how effectively the railroads can fill the gap and get the new harvest moving eastward.

But the railroads themselves are fighting serious equipment shortages. Thousands of boxcars are in shaky condition after prolonged war service, and the heavy demand for freight cars on the prairies to move the new crop to lakehead ports has resulted in a lack of sufficient equipment for grain movements further east.

Hopes Higher For Settling Brunner Mond Strike

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP) — Hope ran high today for early settlement of the Brunner Mond strike at nearby Amherstburg which cut off Canadian production of soda ash and brought in its wake a plague of shortages, including stricter liquor rationing in Ontario because of a bottle shortage.

R. G. Zimmer, general manager of the plant which was closed July 12 when some 400 workers belonging to the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) went on strike, held out hopes of an early end to the wages-hours-hours-union security dispute. Yesterday union officials said there was a possibility of early resumption of settlement negotiations.

The entire Windsor area labor picture brightened with negotiations already under way in an effort to solve three other U. A. W. strikes over virtually the same issues as at Brunner Mond —a 25-cent hourly increase, 40-hour week and union security. Talks started yesterday between Canadian Industries Limited and Local 195 of the union. The same Local—organized in some 30 plants in this area—started talks today with Chrysler Corporation and Truscon Steel. All three walkouts began last June 18.

HOUSEWIVES TAKE STEP IN PROTEST OVER MILK PRICE

Certain Groups Aim To Organize Public Opinion to Have Price Rolled Back

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP)— Housewives took a hand in the Canadian milk situation yesterday, the first day of 15 or 16-cents a quart milk, and took steps to rally widespread support to bolster their protest against increases of three cents a quart.

In Ottawa Mrs. Howard Smith sponsored the beginning of a "boycott" movement while elsewhere there were reports of partial strikes against milk purchasing and in Toronto plans were laid to get housewives together for protest meetings.

The Ontario government already has announced a Royal Commission will investigate milk distribution and prices in Ontario, meanwhile letting stand the increased prices to the consumer which resulted from withdrawal of a Federal government subsidy to producers.

The Ontario government's announcement received a welcome from the executives of producer groups meeting here yesterday but dissatisfaction was expressed at the Dominion government's action in respect to concentrated milk and cheese.

The increase granted by the Dominion in the price of concentrated milk—three quarters of a cent a can—barely covers the loss of the subsidy, it was claimed. At the same time the group took exception to the government's failure to make an announcement about future returns for cheese milk.

Across the land there were these reactions:

At Bathurst, N.B., the Mayor telegraphed a protest against the increase in milk prices to New Brunswick government authorities. He called the hike "unjustifiable."

At Moose Jaw 3,00 housewives urged on by the Housewives' Consumers' Association, had their signatures on a petition of protest to be forwarded to the Saskatchewan government.

Snow Plows Used To Clear Highways In Northern N.Y.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 2 — (AP)— Near-freezing cold gripped northern New York today in the wake of the season's first snowstorm which buried Canadian border sections under a foot of snow.

Schools remained closed at Malone, apparently hardest hit by the storm which abated last night after reaching blizzard-like fury, cutting off power and gas and disrupting communications facilities. Power and gas were only partly restored this morning.

Plows attempted to clear the main highway into Malone from Saranac Lake where six inches of snow was reported.

The Malone Evening Telegram published a four-page edition last night, several hours after its normal publication time when power was partially restored. Limbs falling from snow-laden trees disrupted traffic in the business section and ripped down power and telephone lines.

Malone recorded 35 degrees above zero this morning and Canton, in St. Lawrence county, 34.

Developed 'Living Suture' From Watching Darning Cross-Stitch

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP) — Dr. W. E. Gallie, whose revolutionary "living suture" in hernia, tendon and ligament operations was developed from observing the sock-darning "cross stitch," will retire next July as Dean of the University of Toronto Faculty of Medicine and Surgeon-in-Chief of the Toronto General Hospital.

He will continue to serve both institutions as a consultant.

"The Gallie operation," recognized the world over as a cure for severe recurrent hernie and serious injury to tendons and ligaments, is based on the use of living sutures instead of catgut or silk thread.

The living sutures are taken from the lateral fascia — the covering of the thigh muscles. They are as strong as catgut or thread and remain alive to hold the tissues together permanently.

In 1924 as the first Canadian invited to address the Royal College of Surgeons in London, Dr. Gallie introduced the suture. He said he had developed it after watching the "cross stitch" used in darning socks.

Dr. Gallie also has a reputation for success in treatment of fractures of the spine. In plastic surgery and orthopedia he won additional fame.

He was born in Barrie, Ont., and was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1903. In 1921 he became chief surgeon at the Hospital for Sick Children here, in 1929 chief surgeon at Toronto General Hospital and in 1936 Dean of Medicine at the University of Toronto.

He was elected president of the American College of Surgeons in 1940.

Yugoslavia Says U.S. and Britain Betray Agreement

Delegates Make Charge Before Peace Conference

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Oct. 2 —(AP)— Yugoslavia accused the United States and Great Britain before the peace conference today of betraying the Big Four agreement on the free state of Trieste in order to establish an Anglo-American military base on the Adriatic.

In an angry torrent of rapid-fire French before the Italian political and territorial commission, Yugoslav delegate Pijade declared the "Anglo-Saxon powers" had renounced the "most important" decisions of the foreign ministers' council pertaining to Trieste.

"Democratic principles, in the British, American and French proposals," Mr. Pijade declared, "have gone with the wind."

The Yugoslav delegate assailed the British proposals for a statute governing the new internationalized area of Trieste as putting the port on a par with a British colony. Recalling the foreign ministers' agreement that Trieste's legislative and executive authority should be organized along democratic lines, Pijade declared:

"We cannot see why the people of Trieste should be forced to accept a colonial-type regime in a military stronghold."

He said both the British and United States proposals for the Trieste statute — there are five different proposals altogether, one from each member of the Big Four and one from Yugoslavia — plus speeches yesterday by United States Senator Tom Connally and British delegate Gladwyn Jebb, "reveal that Trieste in their minds is not to become a truly free state, but a military base under an Anglo-American condominium."

"The American, British and French proposals in no way correspond with the foreign ministers' council decisions, he added.

Mr. Pijade spoke so rapidly to crowd his remarks into the commission's 10-minute speech limit that official stenographers were unable to keep up with him.

In a short tumultuous scene, Chairman Leif Egeland of South Africa rapped for order at the end of the 10 minutes when Mr. Pijade attempted to speak above the chairman's voice. Finally, the commission agreed to grant him two minutes more.

Condemns Proposal.

Mr. Pijade flayed the British proposal for a transcontinental regime which, he said, meant imposing foreign rule on the city, backed by Anglo-American military forces now occupying Trieste.

The provisional governor would run the city, maintain internal order, draft electroal lists, prepare for the Trieste elections, all with the backing of the United States and British troops and military government personnel now on the scene. Mr. Pijade asserted.

"Where is the Security Council in all this? The responsibility of the Security Council will be usurped by two powers," he said.

Mr. Pijade submitted a Yugoslav proposal for the treaty section on Trieste providing for economic and monetary union between the free state and Yugoslavia, then urged the commission to leave the drafting of the city's statute to the foreign ministers' council.

The United States and Britain, he said, in opposing this economic union, "are erecting a Chinese wall, if not an iron curtain between Trieste and Yugoslavia."

"This is not our last word," he warned. "If Trieste is not to be democratic, we can never accept it."

Mr. Pijade's accusations came as debate on the statute for governing the new free state of Trieste moved into its second day. Ten commissions, convened today and were hard at work toward meeting their weekend deadline.

JAP COMMANDANT PLEADS INNOCENT BEFORE TRIBUNAL

Headquarters, U. S. Eighth Army Yokohama, Oct. 2—(CP)— Accused of contributing to the deaths of numerous Canadian prisoners of war, Lt. Mesato Yoshida, former commandant of Tokyo prisoner of war camp number five-B and his three assistants pleaded innocent before the Eeight Army military tribunal here.

The other three accused are Katsuyasu Sato, civilian guard; Takeo Takahashi, medical orderly, and Hyiochi Okuda, civilian aide.

Yoshida allegedly contributed to many deaths by permitting unsanitary conditions in camp and failing to provide sufficient clothing, shelter, heat and bathing facilities and medical attention.

He is accused of causing, among others, the deaths of James Mortimer, Durward, Ont., by having him tied to the gatepost in freezing weather, beating and kicking him.

Yoshida is also charged with causing permanent injury to Cpl. John L. Campbell, Elmville, Ont., and with mistreating Harold A. Smith, 13 Edmond Street, St. Catharines, Ont.

He allegedly permitted his subordinates to contribute to the death of Harold Gibbons, Owen Sound, Ont., and B. C. Moore, St. Catharines, Ont.

He is accused of permitting the beating of William H. Gagne, Brighton, Ont.; Pte. Thos. Jarvie, Keewatin, Ont.; Sgt. Ernest R. J. Neal, Fort Frances, Ont., and a number of other prisoners.

Palestine Parleys Are Adjourned Indefinitely

London, Oct. 2 — (CP) — An official source said the Palestine conference today adjourned for an indefinite period and that the Arab delegations would probably return to their homes.

The date for reconvening the conference will be announced later, the source said.

He spoke after Foreign Secretary Bevin and Colonial Secretary George Hall, this morning attended the British meeting of the conference, begun 22 days ago.

Wage Increases Granted by WLB

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Wage increases ranging up to 25 cents an hour have been granted to more than 200 employees of the Skinner Company of Oshawa, by the Ontario War Labor Board, a union announcement said today.

Permission to grant the wage increases was given by the Board following a joint application by the company and local 222 of the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

The new rates cover 18 classifications and are retroactive to May 1, 1946.

CHILDREN REALIZE $24 FOR COMMUNITY CHEST

Officials of the Community Service Chest Campaign which commenced in Belleville and district this week, need have no fears of the success of their drive for $12,000 if the support of all citizens matches that of four enterprising kiddies on the East Hill.

Last week the four children ranging in age from six to ten years, Paul Yanover, Stephen Schwab, Billie Cook and Barbara Abramsky, set up an open-air stand at the corner of Foster and Bridge streets and from a sale of candy and home cooking realized the sum of $24 which will be turned over to the Community Service Chest for use by the V.O.N.; the Children's Aid, and the Y.M.C.A.

PAST MONTH WARMER THAN YEAR AGO

Despite the fact that the month of October arrived in a rather blustery fashion and with an early winter snowstorm, generally speaking September was all that could be desired from a weather standpoint. Rainfall was below that of one year ago and the mean temperature for the month was slightly above the average.

High temperature for the month just concluded was 84 degrees according to statistics at the Belleville Water Purification Plant, while the low reading was 36 degrees. Rural areas to the north of the Bay of Quinte felt slight touches of frost, however. One year ago the high temperature recorded was 86.7 degrees with a low of 32.

Rainfall last month totalled 3.15 inches while for the corresponding month in 1945 a total of 4.45 inches of rain fell.

22-POUND 'LUNGE CAUGHT BEFORE CLOSE OF SEASON

Moira Lake is still yielding some fine specimens of the fighting musky.

The other day John Sandford, 17 Patricia Avenue, Oshawa, landed a twenty-two pound beauty which was caught with a multi-hooked flatfish as bait.

The fish was forty-one inches long and graced the Sandford dining table the next day.

FINE SPECIMENS OF SPANISH ONIONS SEEN IN OFFICE

Charlie Coleman, 47 Geddes Street, who grows Spanish onions that are onions, produced samples of his 1946 garden yield to the Ontario Intelligencer today, that are a definite challenge to those grown by Ab. Newman who likewise produces some fine specimens of the steak trimmings annually.

Resembling miniature toy balloons with a distinct onion flavor, the vegetables were prize specimens of Mr. Coleman's garden. The largest weighed two pounds five ounces while two more tipped the scales at one pound fifteen ounces each.

Mr. Coleman will harvest at least five bushels of the tear-jerking vegetables this fall and the onions will average one-and-one-half pounds. Now he is looking for the steak to go with them.

Sheep Raisers Hard Hit By Prowling Dogs

Sheep raisers in Madoc township were hard hit during the past summer by prowling dogs it was revealed at the September meeting of the township council when authorization was given for the payment of a total of $630 to eleven farmers.

Farmers paid for sheep killed by dogs were: Stanley Rollins, $18; John Burnside, $40; Percy Reynolds, $38; R. N. Broad, $62; Alex Hamilton, $60; Durwood McCoy, $30; Earl McCoy, $154; Robt. McCaffrey, $68; Arthur Fleming, Sr., $60; Roscoe Keene, $40; John Laffin, $11; Ezra Carman, $69, and Fred Moorcroft, $50.

Township tax rates for 1946 were set at the meeting while according to an amendment of the assessment act the time for assessing was changed to June and the 1946 assessment taken for 1947.

The road superintendent's statement of expenditures of $6,085.73 for the month of July was approved, and also the August statement for an expenditure of $241.95.

Mrs. Geo. Ostrom Guest of Honor At Party on Her 98th Birthday

Feeling "very well, indeed" and delighted to be the guest of honor, Mrs. George Ostrom, highly esteemed resident of Sidney township, celebrated her 98th birthday on Saturday, September 28, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ed. Phillips, 4th Concession of the Township.

A number of the immediate family and community and district friends paid special tribute to the aged lady at a "birthday party" held in her honor. She received her guests with a charm reminiscent of the late 19th century, and "thoroughly enjoyed" the party.

Mrs. Ostrom, (nee Mary Jane Bird), was born in Thurlow township in September 1848, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bird, one of the oldest settler families of the district.

On December 26, 1870, she married the late George Ostrom and took up residence in the Holloway district, north of Foxboro. There were five daughters, Mrs. Francis Eggleton, 2nd of Sidney; Mrs. Edith Irvine, deceased; Mrs. Ernest Snider, West Huntingdon; Mrs. Ed. Phillips, 4th of Sidney and Mrs. Robert Wenthrop, Michigan, U.S.

Mrs. Ostrom received numerous cards, as well as personal felicitations on her attainment of her 98th birthday.

Rotarians Debate Daylight Saving Jndges Call it Tie, Fine Debaters

Members of the Rotary Club departed from the usual procedure of guest speaker at the weekly luncheon on Monday due to the 'fifth Monday in the month' relaxed and enjoyed themselves by listening to an impromptu debate between selected members on the advantages and disadvantages of Daylight Saving Time.

The debate, pulled out of the figurative hat by President Bert Howard caught most of the speakers flatfooted so to speak, and as a result an enjoyable half-hour of humor and witticism provided the remainder of the members with much merriment and plenty of laughter.

Ed. Bernstein was appointed leader of the affirmative side with Jamieson Bone taking up the cudgels for the negative. It was all good clean fun, and many useful arguments were forwarded albeit they were dressed in lighter vein oratory.

Rotarian Bernstein told the club that DST was no good for his lumbago. O. H. Scott worked the effects of the Public Utilities Commission into his argument stating that the highest peak of the year came last week before DST went off. Grant Sparling stated that Standard Time was God's time and people were merely dissipating it by changing it to DST. He deplored the fact that travellers left one point and arrived at another five minutes before they left their destination. Everything was mixed up, he said. Time was mixed up. So were meals.

Rotarian Magistrate Tom Wills declared himself in favor of Daylight time. There was a point of view of uniformity, he said. Many people enjoyed it and still want it. Farmers, he said, in large numbers were operating on it and garden truck producers and other producers of foodstuffs did a much better job when it was in vogue.

Jack Deacon stalled for time in his two-minute talk. Apparently not wanting to give an opinion, he addressed the club in formal words, asking at intermittent periods how much time he had left. "All pros and cons added up" he said, amid laughter, "we should come to a decision here. Nobody knows whether they want it or not." The bell saved him.

Rotarian Mack Macklem, acting as spokesman for the trio of judges, declined to award points in favor of either side and declared the result a tie with the recommendation that each contestant be fined. They were.

Rotarian Jack Deacon was song-leader for the affair with Tommy Tucker collecting the fines.

All-Time High in Value Building Permits Reached in the City

With three months still to go before the end of the year, an all-time high in the value of building permits has already been reached this year, it was stated today by City Engineer Charles Mott.

To the end of September building permits to the value of almost one million dollars, or $964,148 had been issued. Three hundred thousand dollars of this amount was represented in the permit for the construction of the addition at Corbin Lock.

Despite the current shortage of building materials, however, permits for the construction of no less than 92 dwellings and residences have been issued thus far this year.

Permits issued during the month of September totalled twenty with a value of $75,875. Permits issued included the following:

Truck and Farm Supply, warehouse at 128 Church St., $20,000; Mrs. Wm. Jenkins, insul brick for house, 48 Hillcrest, $250; Albert Colbeck, R.R. 6, residence at 93 N. Frank St., $1,600; A. Smith, sunporch, 122 Frank St., $200; Harry Clarke, garage, Lewis St., $150; Canada Packers Ltd., warehouse, Albion St., $20,000; J. Green, dwelling, Harriett St., $3,000; C. E. Bowler, dormer window, 27 Station, $200; Sam Pappas, change washroom at Vanity Fair, Front Street, $400; Montrose Dairy, wall repairs, Pinnacle St., $850; Wm. Evans, garage, Dufferin Ave., $200; H. P. Thompson, residence, Dufferin Ave., $4,500; Clarke and Miles, garage, Front St., $150; Ray and Bush, garage, 255 Sidney St., $400; M. D. Rorabeck, dwelling, 165 Charles, $5,800; Wm. Deline, dwelling, 230 Victoria Ave., $5,000; R. Irwin, garage, 82 Chatham, $350; Wm. Dougherty, move garage to Earl and Chatham, $25; Dr. Guthridge, garage, 151 George $800; Kiwanis Club of Belleville, two 1 1-2 storey dwellings, Dufferin Ave., $6,000 each.

Glen McAllister Given Five Years On Charge

Appearing for trial before Mr. Justice Treleaven and jury at the fall assizes of the Supreme Court on a charge of having explosives in his possession or under his control, Glen McAllister, formerly of this city, was found guilty and sentenced to five years in the Kingston penitentiary.

A true bill was returned against McAllister by the Grand Jury on Monday, the case being heard by the petit jury on Tuesday. Sentence was given Wednesday morning.

McAllister was arrested last July 2nd by Inspector Clair Hayes following his being suspected of theft of a carton of cigarettes from the warehouse at the Canadian National Railways. Following his arrest keys were discovered in his possession which fitted a locker at the railways station in Belleville. In the locker was found a quantity of dynamite and caps.

McAllister was found guilty in police court on the cigarette theft charge and was sentenced to three years in penitentiary. Three years of the five years' sentence given Wednesday will run concurrent with the penalty on the cigarette charge.

Robt. McCulloch, local barrister, acted as counsel for McAllister during the hearing of the charge of having dynamite in his possession.

INCREASED PENSIONS IN U.K.

London, Oct. 2 — (CP Cable)—Four million old people become eligible today for pensions of 26 shillings ($5.20) weekly for single persons and 42 shillings weekly for married couples, under increased benefits instituted by Britain's labor government.

The pensions are provided for under National Insurance legislation and tax levies correspondingly will rise to take care of this legislation.

Former old age pensions were 10 shillings weekly for single persons and £1 for married couples.

REFRIGERATOR BURNS WAY THROUGH FLOOR

Albany, Calif., Oct. 2 (AP) — While E. J. Degraw was away from home refrigerator heated up. The motor fell to the floor, burned its way to the basement. Then the floor slowly burned until the whole refrigerator fell through. But firemen saved the house.

PICTON

Recreation Centre Program Now Well Under Way

Picton, Oct. 2—The Recreation Centre program, under the direction of Reg. Fox, is now well under way with activities centred at the building on Benson Park. A lounge, game rooms and a snack bar have been fitted up and busy from 4 to 10 p.m. daily and all day Saturday. There are now nearly 600 members, 20 years or under.

At the centre, instruction is given in handicraft and tap dancing. The teen-age group has periods for dancing. Instruction in boxing has been arranged for boys, the first class being held last night at Picton armories. A juvenile hockey league is planned this winter and other sports will be promoted.

More than 100 senior members attended the organization of "Club 56". Officials elected were: General Council, Chairman Robert Clapp; vice chairman, George Hepburn; secretary, S. Brisbin; treasurer, Mac MacDonald; councillors, Mary Mason, Don Byers, Shirley Pickering, Ronald Cable.

Dr. S. Thomsen Sells Interest In Rickarton Castle

Picton, Oct. 2—It was announced last night that Dr. Svend Thomsen has sold his interest in Rickarton Castle Hotel to W. E. Body, Toronto and New York. Mr. Thomsen originally purchased this estate and converted it into a luxurious summer resort. Mr. Body secured an interest in the project and has been here several months, and now assumes full control. More than $300,000 has been expended on the property, and now under construction is a $50,000 boat house complete with marine railway installation capable of handling boats up to 50 tons in weight.

Chief Telephone Operator Moved

Picton, Oct. 2—Miss A. Mary Cavanagh, who has been chief operator at the Bell Telephone Co. here, is leaving Friday to accept a similar position at Napanee. She will be succeeded here by Miss Grace Houghton, a native of Kingston, who has been in charge of the Wellington office. Miss Cavanagh has been stationed here for the past eleven years and has made many friends who regret her departure. As a token of their good wishes, several organizations have made presentations of gifts.

Picton Hunters Shoot Moose At James Bay

Picton, Oct. 2—During a hunting trip in the James Bay district F. L. Ward, K.C., Clarence Jones and Dr. D. S. Lighthall shot a moose. Due to the warm weather, they were unble to bring the carcas home. They travelled to North Bay, Cochrane, Low Bush and thence 30 miles by canoe to the hunting camp. They returned to town Monday.

Kinsmen Ball Team Meets

Members of the Kinsmen Juvenile softball team at their meeting, Tuesday night an amusing skit was presented by several members. Each member of the team was presented with a photograph of the team, runners up for the title.

Named Caretaker

Ivan Johnson of Cherry Valley has been named caretaker of Picton post office. He was severely wounded while serving with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy, and was one of five brothers to serve overseas. Since Harry Fox left the position to enlist in 1939, the position has been filled by Arthur Clarke.

Mrs. James Hedges left yesterday for Windsor where she will attend the Ontario convention of Legion Ladies' Auxiliaries. Mrs. Hedges is zone representative. Later she will go to Detroit to visit friends she has not seen in 36 years.

Australian Visitor

Donald Youngman of Australia visited his brother J. R. Youngman here this week. It is thirteen years since they last met. He had flown from Canberra via London, England to attend the conference of the International Labor Organization, as a delegate of the Australian government.

Miss Violet Anglin, Children's Aid superintendent, will attend the regional conference Friday at Kingston of the Association of C. A. Societies of Ontario.

District Covered By Heavy Snow, Plants Undamaged

Picton, Oct. 2 — This district was among those experiencing a heavy snow storm nearly all day Tuesday. During the night, the temperature dropped to two degrees above freezing, but did not damage tomatoes still in the fields. Snow clinging to boughs of apple trees heavily laden with fruit caused many of them to break off, orchardists report. Citizens shivered as chill winds swept the streets. The snow covered roofs and cars in town but melted quickly on the ground. In rural areas, fields were white. Though there was a wind, gales, as in other areas, were absent here.

No local records reveal such a heavy snow fall for October 1st. Several residents state they cannot recall a similar experience in the past fifty years.

Missing Child Found in Field, Feet Frost-Bitten

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP)—Six-year-old Jean Vertolli, missing since Monday afternoon, was found yesterday about 2 p.m. lying in a field on the outskirts of the town.

She was uninjured and physicians said preliminary examination showed the child suffered only from frost-bitten feet.

The child was found by members of a search party of some 500 persons—one of the largest ever organized in this district — and taken immediately to hospital.

The search was started late Monday afternoon when the girl did not arrive home from school.

Joe Madronick of suburban Pigtown supplied the lead which led to discovery of the child. He told of seeing a child go past his garden about 5 p.m. Monday. Madronick passed on the information to other school children who told their teacher. She relayed the report to police and the search was concentrated in the Pigtown area.

It was not learned immediately how long the child was lying in the field before she was found. The temperature dropped well below freezing during the night and police had expressed the fear she would suffer painfully from exposure.

Newspapermen drove Jean's mother, Mrs. Oreste Vertolli, to the hospital where she was reunited with her daughter. The father arrived a few minutes later and was overcome by emotion.

Detective Inspector Ted Dyment and fireman Joe Tenant spotted the girl in the field.

The search party included 200 high school students, off-shift firemen, police, miners, township employees and other citizens. About 100 automobiles were used in the search.

Future of R.M.C. May Be Decided By End of Year

Ottawa, Oct. 2 (CP)—Future of Royal Military College at Kingston, now the location of the Army Staff College, may be determined by the year end, it was learned yesterday.

No decision has yet been reached, but it is known that Defence Minister Abbott is studying a report of a special committee under the chairmanship of Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver. The report has not been made public.

It is expected that the Staff College, first ever established by the Canadian army in peace time, will be transferred to Fort Frontenac near Kingston as soon as the necessary alterations are made. This work may take another three months.

At present 70 persons are taking the course. They are mostly Canadian army officers with war-time combat experience, but there also are representatives of the British, Indian and the United States armies.

Until now Fort Frontenac has been used mainly for the dispersal and discharge of repatriated servicemen. This job will be taken over by District No. 4 in Montreal and the personnel at Fort Frontenac will be moved to District No. 3 headquarters at Kingston where they will handle matters connected with the post-war army.

Discussing the future of R. M. C., Mr. Abbott told the Commons last August that the College would not be re-opened under the old basis and the report of the special committee would be of great assistance in determining its future.

However, it was understood that military planners hope that cadet training classes will be opened early in the year, possibly on a broad, free tuition basis.

The last class graduated in 1942 and since then the institution has been given over to the restricted activity of a general staff course.

TRENTON

Ten Cases Brought Before Court

Trenton, Oct 2 (Special) —In contrast to the usual lengthy docket in Trenton police court each Tuesday, yesterday was an exception as only ten cases were brought before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Acting Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson.

Beulah M. Bruce, of Trenton was charged with the theft of $175.00 from a member of the crew of a palatial American yacht which was docked at the government dock, Trenton. The complainant did not know the woman's name but gave police a good description which led to her apprehension. In police court today she was given suspended sentence for two years after signing bond and paying costs of court.

Driving Case

John Svoboda, Batawa, charged with careless driving had his case enlarged to October 15th. He was alleged to have struck a child walking on the highway in vicinity of Frankford. The case was enlarged in order to obtain report of the injuries which the child sustained. The accident was investigated by Chief Constable Ed. McGeachy of Frankford.

Charles H. Wainman of Toronto was charged with careless driving by Provincial Constable Harry Caldwell and was assessed for $7.50. The charge arose from an accident involving two cars in the vicinity of Trenton Airport.

Orloff Mountenay, Trenton was charged with speeding on West Street and paid $7.50.

Norman E. Woodcock, Ontario Street, appeared on a charge of non-support and his case was enlarged.

Allan McAulley, George E. Morrison and Thomas Breen were fined $13.00 each for being intoxicated.

Trenton L.O.B. No. 604 visited Brighton on Saturday evening last to reorganize Brighton L.O.B. No. 758.

Initiation of candidates took place, also the affiliation of nomination of Brighton officers.

Right Worshipful Sister Lindsay, Provincial Grand Officer of Eastern Ontario was present also Past Provincial Grand Sister Gillispie of Ottawa who was in charge of the installation of officers.

There was an excellent turnout and at the end of the evening refreshments were served by the Brighton Lodge.

Women Take Jobs Tending Furnaces

Ottawa, Oct. 2—(CP)—Women, who have been invading many professions against the wishes of the opposite sex, have finally taken on a job where they can "fire away" with little opposition — tending furnaces.

Alderman George Pingle, said yesterday at a meeting of the city's smoke nuisance committee that a survey of stokers showed "50 per cent of the furnaces in private homes were tended by women. Let's get busy and try to help them do a better job of firing."

350-POUND BEAR SHOT

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 2 —(CP) — A single shot from Elmer Becking's rifle yesterday felled a 350-pound black bear which had damaged several apple trees at the Becking home near here. Becking's children use the backyard as a playground and he had feared the bear might harm them.

"My dog's barking roused me this morning and I saw this big black bear up against one of my oak trees," Becking said. "I grabbed my rifle and from about 50 feet let one go. That did it."

IT'S FUN TO BE A Sea Cadet!

Yes, Sea Cadets have lots of fun, but, like everything else worth having, they have to work for it.

It's fun to shoot. It's fun to blow a bugle or "roll" a drum. It's fun to go on parade in a smart uniform. Yes, and it's fun to learn how to do things like tying the proper knot, splicing a piece of rope or talking by signals.

It's fun to go to camp, to "make" one of the crews for a rowing race, to swim, sail, go on exploration trips and study nature.

Yes, and when the bugle blows "Hands to Dinner" it's mighty good fun to race to the Mess Hall (dining room) and get your share of good, appetizing food!

If you are over 12 and under 18, and want to get in on all this, now is the time. It costs you nothing. There's room for you and perhaps one or two of your friends in the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets. Go to the Sea Cadet Headquarters between 7 and 10 each Monday and Thursday evening, get the details and then talk it over with your parents.

Legion Victory Dinner Attended By 200 Veterans Recently Returned

Marmora—The Second Victory Dinner put on by the Community Welcome Home Committee and sponsored by the Marmora Legion No. 237, was held in Marmora Town Hall on Monday evening when approximately 200 returned veterans and guests enjoyed a sumptuous turkey dinner, served by the ladies of the district.

Mr. Wilbert Mumby, president of the Marmora Branch of the Legion made an able chairman and toast master. Following a toast to the King, Frank Leal led in community singing with Mrs. J. Aicheson at the piano.

Rev. H. J. Farrell then gave an address of welcome to the returned boys and girls. Speaking of the pleasure of having them all home and wishing them success as they took up civil life again, he expressed the thanks and appreciation of the community for what they had done.

Advised to Join Legion

Major Percy Gray spoke briefly advising the boys to join the Legion as they can always look to the Legion for assistance in time of need and expressed thanks on behalf of the veterans to the Legion and the community for the welcome they had received.

After more community singing, Rev. E. M. Cadigan gave a short address and introduced the guest speaker, Capt. Rev. J. W. Houston, of Tabernacle Church, Belleville, who related some of his experiences as a chaplain overseas. He complimented the veterans on the large number, who had volunteered from this district, and said he doubted if any place of its size in Canada, had a greater record.

Helpers Thanked

President Mumby then asked the following to stand, and they were each given a round of applause for their assistance in preparing the banquet. J. O'Neill, C. R. Whittemore, Ralph Neal, John A. Bell, C. H. Buskard. Members of the Ladies' Guild, Women's Institute, Catholic Women's League, Women's Association of the United Church, Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., Ladies' Auxiliary, H. R. Pearce, W. M. Regan and Mrs, J. Aicheson.

Mr. Mumby also expressed thanks to Major Percy Gray, Messrs. Leslie Rundle, T. Cousins, W. Bedore, Colonel Yates and T. E. Pritchard, all past presidents of Marmora Legion and Major Percy Gray expressed appreciation to the present President, Wilbert Mumby.

Rev. J. M. Brownlie was the next speaker, and gave a comforting address to those whose boys had not returned. Two minutes silence was then observed for Fallen Comrades and Reveille and Last Post were sounded by Comrade George Brooks.

Welcomed by Reeve

C. H. Buskard, reeve of Deloro, welcomd the veterans back on behalf of the municipalities of Marmora, Marmora Township and Deloro, after which the presentation of the scrolls was made by Rev. E. M. Cadigan, to the following—J. H. Auger, D. E. Bailey, G. B. Bedore, Marion Bedore, Eldon Bonter, Mac Bonter, T. R. Brawley, A. S. Brown, C. R. Brown, Norman Burridge, Lois G.Buskard, M. T. 37 Men Injured And 13 Jailed In Movie Strike

Hollywood, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Strike-torn studios tensely awaited promised new outbreaks of violence today in the wake of the most bitter skirmishing of the current jurisdictional dispute between two A.F.L. unions.

In a bloody battle between peace officers and 400 movie pickets at the gates of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer yesterday — with nightsticks, bottles, rocks and clubs as weapons and at least one gun in evidence — 37 men were injured, 13 jailed.

Of the injuerd, 28 were pickets, nine were sheriff's deputies. The arrests brought to 56 the total since picketing began last Thursday morning, in a row between the conference of studio unions and International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees over which shall build movie sets.

Yesterday's ruckus at M-G-M, which has seen most of the violence of the current dispute — similar in many ways to the 34-week dispute between the same two union groups last year—started when officers moved against a parade spearheaded by war veterans carrying flags and signs reading:

"We fought for our country and the ideals of Roosevelt."

The officers contended the parade was blocking the entrance to the studio, in violation of a court order. The C.S.U. retorted it had obtained a permit for the parade.

Deputy Sheriff Dean W. Stafford was beaten to the ground by a group of pickets. His injuries were reported critical.

C.S.U. pickets told newspapermen, "This is only a sample," and predicted an even greater force would be on hand today.

MARMORA

Embury's Lunch Bar is Badly Damaged by Fire

Marmora.—A fire which broke out about 11 p.m. on Saturday in Embury's Lunch bar, caused considerable damage before it was brought under control by the Marmora Volunteer Fire Brigade. The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove in the kitchen of the restaurant.

Mr. Percy Embury, the proprietor, who was in the kitchen at the time suffered severe burns to his hands. He and his assistants had barely time to escape from the building before it was a mass of flames. Mr. George Aunger, proprietor of a grocery store, in the same building had his stock badly damaged by water and smoke.

The building, a one-story block is owned by Mr. John Jones. The chemical engines were soon on the scene and these with a stream of water which was soon in use kept the fire from spreading to adjacent buildings. The burned block is north of the stone building, which was formerly the St. James' Hotel, but which now houses the Glossy Cafe, a fruit store conducted by Mr. Charles Phillips and a shoe repair shop owned by Mr. G. Wilde, with occupied living quarters on the second floor.

This building was in danger for some time and most of the contents were removed from the Glossy Cafe. It is understood Mr. Embury and Mr. Aunger have both suffered considerable loss as their property was not covered by insurance.

POINT TRAVERSE

Gull Domesticated By Fishermen

Point Traverse, —By far too many people place the skunk in the same category as poison ivy. But ask Mary Lou Reynolds of Point Traverse, who will prove to you that her "wood pussy" is as gentle and as playful as a kitten.

Although the black and white "kitty" has not been deodorized it has proven to be very non offensive and has not shown its power of defence to those who fondle and care for it.

Friendly Pet

A brownish colored sea gull has been domesticated by local fishermen and has become a friendly pet.

This web-footed fowl has been be-friended by the women folk at the colony by tossing it tasty morsels of food to eat. It has a weakness for keat and cheese and will not consume fish, which is considered the main diet for these long-winged birds. The gull has become so tame that children may pick it up in their arms. It flies out into the lake and returns to the mainland for someone to feed it.

Burrs

Burr's — The seventy-fourth anniversary of Burr's Church was observed at the Sunday evening service Sept. 29, with the pastor, Rev. J. F. Lane speaking impressively from Matt. 13:58—"And He did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief". Wellington choir under the director of Mr. T. Fillingham furnished the musical portion of the service with Mrs. G. Watt as soloist. The thankoffering amounted to one hundred dollars.

On Friday, Gail, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Margetson, Melville, had the misfortune to swallow a copper one-cent piece and was taken to Prince Edward County hospital for X-ray.

Bowerman's opened their Sunday School with the Rally Day Service Sunday morning.

Mr. Goldie Carter is attending Belleville Collegiate this year.

Mrs. M. Taylor, Brampton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Caldwell, Toronto, were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall and family. On Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall and Sharon all were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vandewater, Moira, and of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Regensburg.

Mrs. Van Horn, Toronto, and Mrs. G. White, Picton, were recent guests of Mrs. J. E. Moran, Crofton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osterhout attended the Boots-Hubble wedding at Weston on Saturday, the bride, the former Miss Jean Hubble, being the latter's niece. In their absence Mr. and Mrs. Allen Osterhout have been caring for their home.

Mr. E. A. Kingston and Mrs. Irvin Levistein who visited relatives here during the last two weeks returned to Chicago on Tuesday.

Mrs. Donald Parks recently entertained at a birthday party for her daughter, Donna, when her teacher and schoolmates were her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs .R. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wood and Robert entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. Bird and family, and Mrs. Robert Wood on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harris were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman.

Miss Doris Blakely entertained Miss Caskey over the weekend

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kinnear on the birth of a son, Murray Grant, at Prince Edward County Hospital, Picton.

Mr. Robert Werden is attending school at Brockville, where he is taking a radio engineering course.

Mr. and Mrs. Omar Higgins entertained guests from Prince Eldward Island recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harns visited relatives north of Belleville over the weekend.

Mr. B. Beals, Wellington, has been wiring a house for electric lighting for Mr. R. Burr.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Munro, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Ainsworth were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burr.

Several from this way attended the Harvest Home Service at Crofton, Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated with vines, grains, fruits, flowers and vegetables, credit for artistry of arrangement going to Mr. Joe Cook, who each year faithfully contributes his service in this way. An excellent address was given by the pastor Rev. B. P. Squire. The choir of the church rendered suitable anthems with Mrs. G. Valleau as pianist.

Judgment at Nuernberg

World history has been made this week in the judgment of the military tribunal which for more than ten months has been trying the charges against the Nazi leaders at Nuernberg. On Monday the court ruled that to wage aggressive war and to conspire to wage such warfare "is a supreme crime." On this came the verdicts and sentences on Tuesday, which doom twelve of the Hitler leaders to death by hanging for their crimes, send seven others to prison and acquit three.

The affirmation that aggressive war is a supreme crime against mankind and the sentences set a pattern for the world of today and the future in the event of any nation and its leaders going on an aggressive and brutal course such as that to which Nazi Germany committed herself through Hitler and his lieutenants. Such a judgment will go far in solidifying thought and effort towards the establishment of an era of peace. Such a ruling and judgment has been in the mind and thought of many nations and their peoples and is a basis on which a structure of world society can be built which calls wars of aggression a "supreme crime."

"Hitler could not make aggressive war by himself; he had to have the co-operation of German military leaders, diplomats and business. With the knowledge of his aims, they gave their co-operation and made themselves a party to the plan he had initiated. That they were assigned to their tasks by a dictator does not absolve them from their responsibility for their acts," the tribunal of judges finds.

The tribunal found systematic rule of violence, brutality and terror had been set up and related the horrors of the treatment to which Jews were subjected by the Nazis. The inhumanity of the deeds done upon the poor victims of the Nazis is indicated by the judgment. It was further established that there existed many separate plans to wage aggressive war. Continued planning with aggressive war as the objective had been established beyond all doubt.

It was pointed out that Germany as a signer of the Kellogg Pact had renounced war and "a solemn renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy necessarily involves the proposition that such a war is illegal and that those who plan and wage such a war with its inevitable and terrible consequences are committing a crime."

The evidence is overwhelming in its volume and detail to show war crimes committed on a scale never before seen in the history of war, the court found.

The judges handed down a majority opinion, with Russia protesting the acquittal of Von Papen, Schacht and Fritsche, and the Soviet judge protesting the imprisonment of Hess, who, he said, should have been condemned to death and the acquittal of the German General Staff and the German High Command.

Amid the wreckage of Germany which the Allied aim is to make a law-abiding state, men high in the counsels of Adolf Hitler have been tried. To this pass came Hitlerite aggression, Germany torn with the results of war and twelve of Hitler's leaders doomed to die, and others sentenced to prison. To this has come the Nazi effort to rule the world by force and by every possible form of inhumanity and cruelty. At the same time the cancer of Nazism has left the world in a state of unsettlement.

Through the trials many of the defendants attempted to avoid responsibility by their statements and pleas. The crimes trials were long drawn out, they were thorough and fair. By their own mouths and by the inevitable records the Nazis left in existence the guilty were condemned and sentenced. The trials showed the inhumanity which is the natural consequence of such rule as Nazism.

History will record this trial and the placing of guilt upon the guilty as a world event which reveals the desire of the nations for full security and protection of humanity from the hands of guilty men. There have been opinions expressed against acquittal of three and the escape of others from the supreme penalty by imprisonment. Now the full facts have been shown, in the finding, on the four counts, charges of conspiracy to commit acts named in the other three indictments, charges of crimes against the peace by planning of war, charges of war crimes or violations of laws and customs of warfare and charges of crimes against humanity. On the vast evidence submitted the tribunal findings were founded.

In Nazi Germany is seen the greatest reign of crime and evil in history. Goering and his doomed associates built the gallows for themselves on which to die, while the seven receiving terms of imprisonment have locked the doors on themselves.

On the tribunal of judges has rested the most serious duty ever given a body of men. They gave their judgment in the name of mankind. What they have found is of the greatest importance to the world, they have brought before man the proofs of the iniquity of the Nazi leaders, they have found aggressive war "the supreme crime," they have given judgment and passed sentence.

Tuesday's Snow

Like the proverbial bolt from the blue on the first day of October came white couriers of winter, snowflakes whipped and lashed by a relentless wind to disturb the equanimity of the people who naturally look for the first traces of winter possibly in late October and on in November but not so early in the autumn. The blizzard has set a new record for many years in these parts of Ontario. In the thirties in late October about ten years ago a much heavier storm came with rain and sleet followed by severe cold which fastened on trees and wires and left its mark on orchards and harvests, exacting a heavy toll on trees and on fruit, much being frozen on the branches to the great loss of the growers. But Tuesday's storm though wild and blustery and with a chilling wind was naturally less severe because so much earlier in the season.

Snow is a foretaste of winter though officially autumn began only about ten days ago. Everything shows that the seasons interlock and vary from year to year. Though the storm is a herald of winter's blows it is probably a long-distance herald with the prospects of many fine days and weeks ahead. At the same time it is a reminder to one and all to do the late outside chores and to be prepared for the later autumn and for the inevitable winter days to come.

Wehrmacht Abolished

This is the first time in history that a great nation, whose territoryy has not been annexed and whose sovereignty, though at present in abeyance, has not been abolished, has been formally forbidden by her victorious opponents to possess any armed forces at all says the Glasgow Herald. So extreme a step is justified not only by the record disclosed over the past nine months at Nuernberg, but by the abuse by the German Government, long before it passed into Nazi control, of the permission granted at Versailles to maintain a token force of 100,000 men. That force was organized as a cadre capable of rapid expansion, for which the General Staff, which continued in being, had all plans prepared by the time Hitler's assumption of power made it possible to execute it. Not the oldest, but the most deeply rooted military tradition in Europe is thus condemned to death. The mere declaration, however, is not enough. Vigilance and strict supervision must execute it for a generation or more, until the German people have turned of their own will and inspiration to found their lives on other and nobler parts of their heritage.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PORT AUSTIN

Port Austin is a little town
Where gentle-folk walk up and down,
And greet each other passing by
With smiling lip and twinkling eye.
At easy pace the streets they walk;
They've time to spare to stop and talk.
The visitors who come to play,
And idle summer months away,
Wish often cities great could be
As pleasant and as neighborly.

Port Austin is a village small,
With just a central meeting hall,
A bank, and shops where things are sold;
A doctor, skilful, wise and old;
Two churches for divided creeds.
It can supply all human needs.
At night, the simple noises cease;
The people there can sleep in peace,
Which is, too oft, a blissful state
Denied when cities grow too great.

* * *

It may be that the little town
Holds such things better than renown.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 2ND., 1926.

Lord Willingdon, the new Governor General arrived at Quebec yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cornish accompanied by the former's father have left for Chicago, Ill. Mr. Cornish, Sr., will go on to Los Angeles to spend the winter with his daughter.

Mrs. H. A. Hoskings, Dundas Street West, is visiting friends in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McDonald of Valleyfield, Quebec, are the guests of the latter's cousin, Mrs. L. S. Wight, Hillside St.

Mr. William Pinkerton of the School of Practical Science, Toronto, spent the weekend at his home here.

Messrs. Charles Cochrane, Otto Eckel, Charles Frost and Stanley Vandervoort motored to Toronto to see "the little world series' 'game between Toronto and Louisville.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 2ND, 1916

Mrs. S. M. Gilbert left today for Winnipeg, Manitoba, and other places in Western Canada.

At a meeting of the city council a petition was presented for the paving of Bridge Street east from Pinnacle Street to McDonald Avenue. The petition was referred to the city clerk and assessor to ascertain if it is properly signed. It was recommended that the paving of Pinnacle Street be left over for a time. A grant of $400.00 was made to the 155th Battalion and the annual grant of $400.00 to the Children's Aid Society was also made.

Mr. Lucius E. Allen of this city has been awarded the contract to erect a concrete shop in this city for the F. C. Wilson Company. The building will be 150 feet by 50 feet and will be completed by the middle of November.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 2nd., 1906.

Mrs. L. B. Godwin, superintendent of The Boulevard Sanitarium, Detroit, Mich., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. DeMille, Grier St.

It is hoped that Mayor Sulman will make up his mind to run again this coming election. We want something to be thankful for.

Mr. R. Large, Murney Street, is visiting friends in Deseronto.

Mr. H. Marsh of Toronto spent yesterday here with Mr. E. B. Harris.

Mrs. (Captain) R. Matheson and son, Norman, have returned home from Hamilton where they spent several months.

The Rev. Father O'Gorman, of Gananoque, formerly parish priest at St. Michael's Church here, died yesterday. He was popular with all classes and was considered one of the best Irish orators in America.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 2nd., 1896.

The Central Football Club organized yesterday afternoon with the following officers: President, E. F. Milburn; Secretary-Treasurer, Harold Armstrong; Captain, William Lott; Committee, C. Greenleaf, W. Lott, H. Armstrong and H. McGuire.

Mr. E. Shorey has returned to the city after spending considerable time in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands.

Mrs. A. G. Vermilyea left yesterday for Chicago, Ill., where she will visit friends.

Messrs. Thomas Ritchie, C. M. Reid, J. J. B. Flint, Almon Reid and Joseph Stoneberg left yesterday to spend some time in the northern part of the county.

Mrs. Fred Greatrix and her sister, Miss Ella Hawthorne, left yesterday to visit their parents in Detroit, Mich.

London Letter

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct., 2 —(CP)—Londoners like to think their underground railway system one of the transportation world's wonders but in the stress of war and the early peace it became as dingy and unattractive as a utility work dress.

Now the trains that scuttle about the network of underground lines beneath the metropolis and take surprisingly long surface jaunts into the green countryside are flamboyantly red again, the stations have been repainted and the seat covers no longer look like old potato sacks but have bright designs.

The London Passenger Transport Board, with the task of moving nearly 10,000,000 passengers daily, thus demonstrates it is more alert than the firms who purchase space for their advertising cards on the walls of underground coaches; often these yellowed cards are in contrast to shiny walls and often they advertise products to be available "after the war."

The trains, which ran 161,965,000 miles in 1945 and will add about 7,000,000 miles to this figure in 1946, now are operated with 2,800 cars. In the next two years the board hopes for 143 new cars and the remodelling of 82, making it possible to maintain about 300 trains in operation at a peak pressure.

In spite of Alaborate organization, tubes and buses often are crowded and uncomfortable at rush hours. Construction of new high-speed underground railways is being considered, incorporating a tunnel constructed during the war for deep air raid shelters. Existing underground lines are being extended under a program prepared before the war

To meet expansion plans the board is seeking increases in fare which have been unchanged since 1940.

HOUSEWIVES

In Ottawa Mrs. Smith announced she had cut her daily purchase of milk from two quarts to one and a group of her friends promised to do likewise.

Mrs. Smith's group adopted the chain telephone system, each member agreeing to telephone five others outside the group to place the proposal before them. One woman said it was expected thousands would be included in the movement and before the week ends milk sales will show an appreciable drop.

Mrs. Anne Harland, President of the Housewives' Consumer Association in Toronto called on her women followers to meet next Monday night to organize public opinion against the milk price increases. But, she said, she does not favor boycott.

"Those who can afford to pay the new high price wouldn't join in," she declared. "Those who did boycott would be the very people who should be getting milk. We are going to try to organize mass public opinion to exert the greatest pressure . . . and have the price of milk rolled back."

Restaurant owners in Galt were said to have embarked upon a "strike" of their own to the extent of refusing to serve milk with meals or as a separate order. The proprietors at a meeting, asserted money was lost when half pints costing 3 3-4 cents, sold for only five cents.

One Sudbury couple announced the end of breakfast milk for their children. They will get toast and "pop" instead.

The Ontario Provincial Council of the C.C.F. meanwhile, issued a statement calling on the Dominion government to restore the two-cent consumers subsidy cancelled in the spring.

Quacco's Reign As 'General' Hectic and Brief

Moore Town, Jamaica, Oct. 1—(CP Cable) — This Eastern Jamaica town is once again back to normal after recovering from the short but hectic reign of Cornelium Martin — the man who calls himself General Quacco.

Police are still looking for the former policeman-soldier, an ordinary looking fellow in his middle fifties, and one of his henchmen. Both are charged with forcible entry of the property of a woman in the vicinity of this settlement.

When General Quacco arrived in Moore Town several weeks ago, he claimed he was a Maroon and set himself up as ruler of the Maroon community, he was taking advantage of the intense loyalty that is a strong characteristic of that Negro race.

For centuries the Maroon descendants of Spanish slaves who fled when the British invaded Jamaica in the 17th Century have been governed by their own "general."

Like tribal chieftains or royalty, the title passed from father to son.

However, in this town the custom became slightly twisted and when Martin arrived on the scene and set himself up as the "general" none of the 2,000 Maroons put up an argument. In fact they refused to listen to any evidence on whether Martin was the legitimate head or not.

In accepting the pretender, they pledged themselves to support him at all costs and despite anything he should do.

They seemingly did not mind when he ordered them to bring all their produce to him, and further did not object when he taxed them each one shilling per week.

By custom the Maroons do not pay taxes on lands granted to them when they came to terms with the government in 1739. A treaty was signed with a Capt. Cudjoe empowering the Maroon chieftain to try minor criminal cases.

As a result it wasn't until General Quacco overplayed his "good thing" by attempting to seize the adjacent lands by non-Maroons that the government took exception.

USE GRAIN BOATS

The late season spurt to get the coal in before winter was made necessary by the seamen's strike which tied up lake shipping for a sizable part of the summer and retarded the normal flow of coal. At Ottawa, Coal Controller Brunning said he did not think there had been any planned diversion of shipping to coal carrying, but added: "We are trying to get all the ships we can."

That some lake shipping is sticking to the grain trade is indicated in a Fort William dispatch saying four vessels carrying nearly 1,000,000 bushels of grain cleared the lakehead Tuesday. The ships were headed for Georgian Bay, Prescott, Port McNicoll, and Montreal.

However, a million bushels is but a fraction of the 100,000,000 bushels that optimistic grain men had anticipated moving before the close of navigation in the St. Lawrence.

Should grain movements continue light over the next two months, heavy shipments from Atlantic ports will develop through the winter.

Take on Apple Cargoes

Alex Ferguson, Montreal port manager, said the Maritime strike in the United States had been responsible for much of the influx of ocean shipping expecting grain cargoes. Rather than have their vessels inactive in American ports, owners had ordered the ships to Montreal for grain. Now, according to Halifax port authorities, some of these are being diverted to the Nova Scotia port to take on apple cargoes for Europe.

Winnipeg grain men said the shortage of grain in Montreal had been expected for some time, and expressed the opinion that the arrival of ocean ships at Montreal to pick up the first loads of the expected 100,000,000 bushels before the freeze-up was "premature."

Western Canada's grain normally moves by rail to the lakehead ports of Fort William and Port Arthur. There it is loaded into freighters and shipped either to "by ports" on the east shore of Lake Huron or to upper St. Lawrence ports such as Kingston and Prescott.

Consignments to the Georgian Bay are transported by rail to the lower St. Lawrence, where ocean freighters await to carry the grain to Europe. Grain taken to Kingston and Prescott is transferred to small canal boats to lower river.

WANTS ENGLISH WAR BRIDE

Downs, Ill., Oct. 2 (AP)—The United States army should revise its posters, about joining up to see the world and get an education with good pay, says Ralph Douglas. Asked by a recruiting officer why he enlisted, Douglas said: "I just want an English war bride like the girl my brother Jacob brought back with him from Europe."

ONLY DEFECTIVES DRINK

I have said or suggested many many times that only defectives drink. A defective is not necessarily a degenerate—a defective is a person who fails to reach the peak of growth or development—such as a saphomoron.

The clearest exposition of this was given by an addict who was hastening his degeneration vit the booze route. 'At times" he said, in explaining how he got that way, "I drank to excess because I felt the need of a stimulant or rather I just wanted to feel better." That was at least an honest attempt to answer the question "Why do you drink?"—too many defectives try to parry the question by asking why they shouldn't take "a glass of wine or beer"—somehow it is always just wine or beer, even though we all know they never take such mild stuff if liquor is available.

Certainly a defective feels the need of a stimulant or wants to feel equal to his or her friends or associates. The defective is intelligent enough to be conscious of his or her inferiority in one way or another, and the poor goof forgets his or her deficiencies under the effect of the narcotic, alcohol, and so, for a short time he or she "feels better"—that is, feels as good as anybody.

A stimulant (which of course alcohol is NOT) is anything that produces a temporary increase of vital activity in the body or in any of its parts. Coffee, for instance. The defective's vital activity of course is deficient in one or more respects and so the dimwit goes for liquor.

Lest sophomoron readers confront me with my own recommendation of a daily glass or two of wine or beer for elderly folk it may be well to mention that I recommend the narcotic, alcohol, in just sufficient dose to make them pleasant to live with. Frankly, I haven't started taking a daily glass of beer or wine myself, because I have not felt the need of a stimulant nor do I want to feel better. I feel just fine and dandy, thanks to somersaults, calcium, vitamin D, vitamin B complex, iodin, a well cared for masticating equipment and a fine bowling green. But you readers should do as I say and not as I do about this. I wish you could all have the vite I have—and most of you could if you would only do as I say in the booklet "The Seven Keys to Vite"—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope, asking for it in writing and not with a clipping, please—and so have as little use as I have for alcohol in any form.

Not only morons made the best of parents, friends, soldiers, workers, business people, servants, employers—characters who command everybody's respect and affection—but sophomorons too. Every word I have uttered here is inspired by the earnest desire to give every child or child-minded person who may read it a wholesome suggestion.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The World is Flat

I accept as fact everything you teach, except about drafts. Every time I get in a draft where body temperature is not the same on all sides I begin sneezing. . . . I believe I must have the germ at all times and it becomes active when conditions are favorable.

(J. S. G.)

Answer—Extraordinarily virulent germ, it must be to have such immediate effect. More likely you are subject to chronic sinusitis or other chronic trouble in upper respiratory tract, with which germs have little or nothing to do. Polyp may be your trouble. Why not have a nose and throat examination and find out?

Bed Wetting

I am 13 years old, big and strong for my age, but I wet the bed almost every night. Have been to two doctors, but they did not help me.

(K. M.)

Answer—Write again, inclose stamped self addressed envelope, ask for pamphlet on Bed-Wetting. A great many boys and girls of your age and older still wet the bed. The trouble required treatment in a considerable number of youth before they were ready for training in the Army and Navy.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

The original Aryans are supposed to have been a Sanskrit-speaking people who lived on the Iranian plateau in Persia about 6,000 years ago.

One branch of these original Aryans migrated into India and another branch into Europe. Hence the linguistic term, "Indo-European," the name of the languages spoken by the people of Aryan descent.

Nobody knows for certain how "Aryan" originated. The ancient Persians called themselves "Ariya," and "Arya" was a national name for the Sanskrit-speaking worshippers of the Brahman gods in India.

At an early date the equivalent of "Aryan" came to denote "noble" or "honorable." Some authorities trace it to the Sanskrit root "ar," meaning "to "plow," which occurs in Greek as "era," meaning "earth." One theory is that the original Aryans in Persia considered themselves of a noble and superior caste because they lived by tilling the soil instead of grazing and hunting like the neighboring nomads.

At any rate, the Aryans of India became a race of "bluebloods" in their own estimation. The "Code of Manu," dating back at least 2,000 years, says: "A man who is not an Aryan is betrayed by behavior unworthy of an Aryan; harshness, cruelty, and neglect of duty."

George Abraham Grierson, the philologist who directed the Linguistic Survey of India, wrote: "Indians and Iranians who are descended from an Indo-European stock have a perfect right to call themselves Aryans, but we English have not."

Linguistically, the Hindus, Persians, Armenians, Slavs, Greeks, Latins, Celts and Teutons are all Aryans or Indo-Europeans.

If there ever was a distinctive race of Aryans, their descendants are now hopelessly intermingled with other races. Friedrich Max Muller, German-born English philologist and Orientalist, wrote: "To me an ethnologist who speaks of Aryan race, Aryan blood, Aryan eyes and hair, is as great a sinner as a linguist who speaks of a dolichosepnalic dictionary or a brachycephalic grammar"

PLANS SPEEDED

Julius Strecher, Fritz Sauckel, Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, and Arthur Seyss-Inquart—will be hanged on Oct. 16, unless the Allied Control Council in Berlin over-rules the tribunal.

Cling to Hope on Appeal

There appeared to be little likelihood of such a reversal at the hands of the four-power group, but some of the condemned men apparently clung to a bare shred of hope—that they might be shot, and thus spared the disgrace of the rope.

A spokesman for the council said in Berlin that the condemned men would have until midnight Saturday to file their appeals and that such appeals would be "acted upon speedily."

The other seven convicts, who drew prison terms ranging from 10 years to life, will serve their time in a four-power jail in Berlin, the name of which was not disclosed "for security reasons." For the same reason, no announcement was made as to when those men—Rudolf Hess, Walther Funk, Erich Raeder (all life terms), Baldur Von Schirach, Albert Speer (20 years each), Constantin Von Neurath (15 years) and Karl Doenitz (10 years) — would be taken to Berlin.

Bormann Believed Dead

Martin Bormann, the 22nd defendant, was sentenced to hang, but he was tried in absentia and is believed dead.

The prison gates swung open for Hjalamar Schacht, Franz Von Papen and Hans Fritsche, who were acquitted yesterday amid a storm of controversy, including a pointed dissent by the Russians, a complaint by American prosecutors that the first two should have been convicted, and a private expression by British representatives against the acquittals.

All three men spent last night in the jail, but not in the tiny sequestered cells they had occupied during the long months of the trial. In more comfortable quarters they slept protected by guards but permitted to move about freely. Mrs. Schacht visited her husband, the former German Economics Minister and Reichsbank President, last evening.

Lawyers for the three men arranged for proper papers for them and for transportation. They said each man had been instructed to return to his proper domicile.

Stay in U. S. Zone

This meant that the truculent Schacht, who yesterday offered to trade his autograph for candy bars during a wild press conference, probably could stay in the American zone, with several homes available. Suave old Franz Von Papen has two Rhine estates in the British zone, or he could go to the French zone, where most of his relatives are living.

Fritsche, the radio propagandist, must return to the Russian zone, where he had been a prisoner of war. Soviet Judge J. T. Nikitchenko said in his sharp dissent yesterday that Fritsche should have been convicted as a war criminal.

The question of whether any, or all, of them would face action by German denazification boards still was unsettled. Fritsche defiantly told yesterday's press conference that he hoped to go before such a board and clear his name with the German people.

Von Papen said he couldn't see any reason why he should have to do such a thing, and Schacht said belligerently he would wait for someone to accuse him before he offered any defence.

And it appeared he might have the chance. Dr. Wilhelm Hoegner, minister - president of Bavaria, said that any of the three acquitted men remaining in the American zone would be placed before a denazification board promptly, which he said would "certainly" mean "several years at hard labor."

Called 'Astounding'

Dr. Hoegner called the acquittal of Von Papen "astounding," and said he thought of the greying diplomat as "the real instigator of the Third Reich."

Arrangements were proceeding for the execution of the tribunal's death sentences. A four-power commission made up of four military commanders, appointed by the council in Berlin to be responsible for the executions, was in Nuernberg today.

The council, with authority to reduce or alter the sentences but not to increase them, has always acted by unanimous vote in its decision and it was assumed that unanimous vote would be required for any clemency. It rules that the prison terms would begin as of Oct. 1, the day of sentencing.

Russians Dissented

In addition to the turmoil stirred up by the tribunal's acquittal of Schacht, Von Papen, and Fritsche, there was considerable questioning of the court's refusal to brand the German General Staff and High Command as criminal organizations. The Russian judge dissented from that refusal in strong language.

Legal officials in the American military government in Berlin said the Russian dissents from the acquittals, in the general staff issue and against the life sentence of Hess probably would mean there will be no more four-power war crimes trials in Germany.

The predicted future trials might be held on a zonal basis with each occupying power conducting its own trials of prisoners in their custody.

Astonished Papen Freed

It had been believed earlier that if a second international trial were held, the defendants likely would be German industrialists and financiers, but Justice Robert H. Jackson, head of the United States prosecution staff, said the Schacht acquittal put a new light on such prosecutions, and added that the tribunal's actions in the case of the general staff would raise similar problems in trying other militarists.

But to the German public, at least in Nuernberg, the most astounding thing about the trial was the acquittal of Von Papen.

Hess Acts to End Posturing Crackpot War Crimes Trial

Nuernberg, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Rudolf Hess, to the end the posturing crackpot of the war crimes trial, brushed aside earphones that would have told him whether he was to live or die, and stared blankly ahead of him as a stern judge sentenced him to life imprisonment.

One by one, 21 once haughty Nazi leaders were marched before the bar of the International Military Tribunal to hear their fate.

Goering retained his fierce reserve. Gone were his flamboyant trappings—his medals, his glittering uniform, his Field Marshal's baton—as he strode into the courtroom between two military policemen. His shabby grey suit hung limply about him.

Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, cold and impersonal, gazed sternly at the No. 2 Nazi chieftain and sentenced him to die on the gallows. Under the pitiless glare of the Kleig lights, not a muscle of Goering's face moved.

Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the dandy of the Nazi cabinet who as foreign minister once strutted proudly across Europe's diplomatic stage, was stunned when he heard his death sentence. Grey and sickly, he had to be helped from the room by military police.

Aging Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Hitler's Military yes-man heard his doom silently. When the court pronounced his death sentence, he turned silently and went back through the small door in the dock.

Tall, hulking Ernst Kaltenbrunner, once chief of the dread Gestapo, still looked easily the fiercest of the defendants. He bowed ironically when the court sentenced him to hang.

Stocky Hans Frank, killer of thousands of Jews, nodded curtly when the judge sentenced him to the gallows.

The most hated man in the dock—hated by the defendants themselves—was Jew baiter Julius Streicher, the screaming fanatic of the Nazi Press. He was immobile when he was condemned. Because he had been found guilty on only one count, it was thought for a time he might escape death.

Wilhelm Frick, one-time Nazi street fighter who became the "Protector of Bohemia and Moravia" under Hitler, looked haggard as sentence of death was pronounced. But like Kaltenbrunner, he bowed to the court.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, who planned the Nazi domination of the sea and the attacks on Norway and Denmark, remained as impassive as he had been throughout the trial as the court doomed him.

His successor, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who became Fuehrer of Germany in the last days of the war, without emotion heard himself sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

Shabby Walther Funk, one-time Economics Minister, shot a disgusted look at the court as he heard himself sentenced to life in prison.

Random interviews around the court house this morning showed that the trend of German thinking about the trial is about as follows:

1. They think forced labor for life would be better than death sentences for those condemned to die.

2. They are astonished that Von Papen was freed.

3. They are disappointed that Speer, the Munitions Minister who designed the great Nuernberg stadium where the Nazi party rallies were held in the days of Nuernberg's glory, should have received such a heavy sentence. He got 20 years.

Strike Averted As Packers Sign Wage Agreement

Winnipeg, Oct. (CP)— The threat of a strike by packinghouse workers across Canada was averted last night with the signing of a wage agreement between union employees and Canada Packers and Burns and Company.

The third large packing company involved in the wage differences—Swift Canadian Limited — is continuing negotiations with the union. It was reliably learned that these discussions are proceeding "satisfactorily," and an agreement may be reached shortly.

Announcement of the settlement with two of the companies was made by Mr. Justice S. E. Richards of Winnipeg, government-appointed conciliator in the dispute which began a year ago.

The agreement calls for a wage increase of 10 cents and hour for employees in the plants of the two companies. Union officials said they had "no doubt" this would be accepted by all locals.

The differences between the company and the union began last fall when employees were granted an increase of 6.8 per cent in pay. One union official estimated yesterday the present 10-cent increase would bring the employees' total gain to about 18 cents an hour.

Joint Applications

Mr. Justice Richards said joint applications would be made by representatives of both parties to the Regional War Labor Boards in the various provinces where plants are situated.

Fred Dowling, national director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.), said the union "for the first time has established master agreements in the plants of the big three."

CRITICALLY ILL

in support of those interests, can we assure—for ourselves and for those who come after us—enduring peace and free institutions," Mr. Hull declared.

"Only thus," he added, "can we have a world order ruled by enlightened reason and just law rather than by stark terror and brute force."

The white-thatched former cabinet officer, once acclaimed by President Roosevelt as "the father of the United Nations," grimly noted the "great strains" which have developed in the wartime unity among the Allies at "one of the most perilous junctures in history."

Dangerous Condition

"Points of difference among nations," Mr. Hull maintained, "have tended to loom far larger than the incomparably broader areas of their common interest.

"These are dangerous conditions and tendencies," he cautioned. "If unchecked, they would undermine the international unity and co-operation so essential to the restoration and maintenance of world peace and securiay and to the advancement of human welfare. Yet their existence is no reason for any one to have hesitation or doubt as to the true course to peace and security."

Mr. Hull laid down that course with these words:

"As I look ahead, it is perfectly clear to me that all nations must, with whole-hearted devotion, continue to base their relations upon the paramount fact that the primary interests of each of them alike lie in the assuring of its security in a world at peace, and the fostering, in such a world, of the economic and social well-being of its people.

Must Practise Justice

"They must never fail to act on the principle that these great common interests cannot be attained except by the practise of justice and fair-dealing toward each other, and through mutual confidence and respect. So long as the governments and the peoples keep their eyes fixed on their common interests and are resolved to act in accordance with this manifest principle, they will find ways to adjust their differences."

Mr. Hull held that a 'special responsibility' rested upon Britain, China, France, Soviet Russia and the United States to exercise jointly, "both inside and outs the United Nations," world lea ership toward "unity and co-o eration among all nations."

He termed that objective t "predominant duty" of stat manship.

A kitten up a tree on Main Street.

An atom bomb searing a Pacific atoll.

Which is news?

You know the answer. Both are news—if they interest you.

News is what you talk about at supper. The new baby in the house across the street. The latest move in the United Nations tug of war for peace.

Whatever interests you.

Your home town paper prints the same news as mine where your interests coincide with mine. It differs where our interests differ. For your paper is edited by a man who knows your interests, and mine by a man who knows mine.

Has it never surprised you how well they work—your home town paper and mine? Wide as the world, where your interests lie wide—yet as close as that house across the street.

No other vehicle of information is so sharply tailored for you—none other knows you so well. For your newspaper is you. It is the continued story of your todays.

Tucked under your arm, propped up against the toaster, or spread out over the living-room floor . . . there it is—symbol of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, daily and Sunday.

Barbara Ketcheson Wins Warden's Medal in Exams

Tweed.—Miss Barbara Ketcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, a pupil of Tweed Consolidated School, obtained the highest marks in Centre Hastings on the Entrance Examinations last June. Barbara is the eleventh medal winner from the school in the past 20 years.

During this period there have been only five failures in 361 candidates who wrote their entrance. This reflects credit on the teachers of the lower grades as well as on the principal.

Mr Abner Mouck returned home on Saturday evening, from Belleville Hospital, where he has been confined for the past three weeks with a fractured hip.

John Metcalfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Metcalfe sustained a fractured wrist while playing Rugby at the school grounds on Thursday.

Rev. George McQuade, of Millbrook, was in town on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E .J. Courneya formerly of Tamworth took possession of the Huyck-House on Saturday, Sept 28.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch WPTB, 490 Sussex St., Ottawa Ontario.

Q. I am a diabetic and require more butter. How shall I obtain an addition to my regular ration?

A. Obtain a statement from your doctor outlining the exact amount of butter and diabetic fruit you require, then forward this and your number six Ration Book to the nearest branch office of the Ration Administraion which in your case is in Ottawa.

Q. If I buy turkeys for a raffle do I pay the wholesale or retail ceiling price?

A. Any sales of more than two turkeys are considered wholesale transactions and wholesale prices would be the ceiling. However, we would remind you that under present provincial law, permission must be obtained to hold turkey raffles. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has no jurisdiction over these raffles and does not issue permits. You should consult your local police.

Q. When will sugar coupons S 26 to S 30 expire?

A. No expiry date has been announced as yet. Last year these coupons remained valid until the end of the year and we presume the same regulation will be in effect this year. Should any change be made there will be ample notice given both in the newspapers and over the radio.

Q. Will you please tell me when the blue coupons for butter in the No. 5 Ration Book run out? Are certain numbers not valid after a certain date? If so which ones?

A. There is some confusion among consumers over which butter coupons are valid in the old and new books. Coupon R21 is the last butter coupon to be used in the old ration book. Rationing authorities point out that coupons R22 to R25 will not be declared valid. First butter coupon to become due in the new ration book is B26 which came due Sept. 26—incidently coupons still good in ration book 5 are: S.1 to S. 25 for sugar-preserves: R.18 to R.21 for butter and Q.1 to Q.4 for meat. No additional coupons in the old book will be declared valid.

BRITISH LEAVE LEBANON

Lebanon, Beirut, Oct. 2—(Reuters) — The last British troops in the Lebanon left yesterday for Egypt by way of Palestine. Under an agreement for evacuation of British and French troops from the Lebanon, the main body of British troops left the country by last June 30. After that date 170 troops remained in Beirut to liquidate British interests.

New Lighting in Toronto To Reduce Accidents

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP) — Installation of some 6,000 new-type lights on 54 miles of streets in an effort to reduce traffic accidents was ordered yesterday by a special city council committee headed by Mayor Saunders. WEDDINGS

ACERRA—COURTENAY

The marriage of Marjorie Mae, daughter of Mrs. Edith Courtenay, Gananoque, and Mr. Anthony Acerra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Acerra, Belleville, took place at the chapel of The Good Shepherd, St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, on Saturday, September 21, at 7 o'clock p.m., Rev. Beauchamp Payne officiated. The young couple were attended by Miss Betty Acheson, Belleville, and Mr. John Courtenay, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, in Gananoque.

Mr. and Mrs. Acerra left on a motor trip through New York State and on their return will reside in Belleville.

(Gananoque paper please copy.)

MACHALA—GIST

Decorated with baskets of mixed gladioli and fern, the Church of All Nations in Toronto, was the setting, Saturday last, for the marriage of Mildred Evelyn, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gist of Belleville, to Anthony Machala, Frankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alois Machala, of Czechoslovakia, with Rev. H. C. Vaclavick officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a street-length dress of Delmonte-rose and black accessories, with a corsage of rose colored baby 'mums and orchids. She was attended by Miss Gwendolyn Irvine in a mist blue dress with black accessories and wearing a corsage of blue baby 'mums and orchids.

Mr. Stephen Sigmund of Frankford, was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Royal York Hotel, where the bride's mother received wearing a queen's blue ensemble with corsage of pink gladioli. In the absence of the groom's mother, Mrs. Gist was assisted by Mrs. Stephen Sigmund in a smart brown dressmaker suit, with a corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling to Detroit and Chicago, the bride donned a black dressmaker suit of imported melton cloth with matching accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Machala will reside in Belleville.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District.—Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson was hostess to the White's Woman's Association on Thursday evening, October 28, with the 1st Vice President conducting the meeting. Mrs. Walter Jones was named as President for the remainder of the year. It was decided to collect for funds in lieu of having a fowl supper and Mesdames Benson Bonisteel, Wm. Yateman, W. A. Jeffery, M. H. May, Glenn Meyers and L. Hunt were named in this capacity.

Mrs. L. Hunt assisted with the program, and a delicious lunch served by the hostess and her assistants, bringing an enjoyable evening to a close. Mrs. Wm. Yateman offered her home for the October meeting.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the Town Hall with an attendance of fifteen, the president conducting. During the business period it was decided that group leaders have charge of the study book for the coming season. Our Supply Sec., Mrs. G. Wood, suggested the making of a complete outfit for a three-year-old child. This met with the approval of all present.

An inspiring worship service was led by Miss Cora Prest, and the new study book, "India at the Threshold", introduced by Mrs. Geo. Wood, with the assistance of Mesdames J. Wickens, Murney Ray, F. Palmer and E. Woods. India is only 43 flying hours away from Canada in this modern day; India is at a great moment of decision in her history; the old India is passing, and a young and tremendously vital India is emerging among the nations of the world.

The quilting of two quilts completed the day's activities.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church held a social evening, Monday Sept. 30, at the home of Mrs. George Stanton, Donald Street.

Mrs. Wm. Harrison, the president, was in charge of the program.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. A. Wells, based on "Highways and Crossroads". A comparison was drawn between the modern method of highway construction where all dangerous places are clearly marked and proper destinations shown, and a similar charting of the Way of Life for the safety of all those who travel it.

Mrs. Coulter introduced Miss Dane, who is the exchange teacher from England on the staff of King George School. Miss Dane spoke informally of the problems of the English housewife and rationing and food shortages throughout the war. The system of clothes rationing was also explained and the ingenuity of the people in making the points cover all their needs. Mrs. Harrison expressed the appreciation of the Guild to Miss Dane for her interesting and informative talk.

It was decided to send a box to Miss Heasman, a Guild member, who is at present on the exchange staff in London, England. Each member was asked to bring something to the October meeting for this purpose.

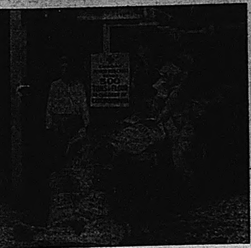
Refreshments were served by the executive.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The October meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. was held at the parsonage, Hillside Street, with the President, Mrs. L. Reid, in charge. Thirty-three members responded to the roll call and a new member was enrolled in the person of Mrs. Wagar, who was cordially welcomed by the president. Mrs. Downey was pianist for the meeting with Mrs. Anderson's group in charge of the devotional and educational part of the program. Mrs. Brower read the Scripture Lesson and the new study book, "India at the Threshold" was introduced by a playlet with Mrs. Johns representing India, Mrs. Anderson as Canada and Mrs. McMurray as the church. The little drama was very effective and was a splendid means of awakening interest in the study book, as well as in the great country to which we are so closely related as a part of the British Empire. Mrs. Perkins followed with a synopsis of the first two chapters of the book, and Mrs. Anderson closed this part of the program with prayer.

During the business meeting encouraging reports were received from various secretaries, and Mrs. Livesay proposed that a letter of appreciation be sent to the local broadcasting station for the fine quality of their Sunday afternoon programs. Mrs. Anderson was chosen as delegate to the Fall Rally to be held in Cannifton Church this month. At the close of the meeting the group in charge served delicious refreshments.

CANADIAN JUNIOR RED CROSS CELEBRATES ENROLMENT WEEK



Five hundred tons of flour was but part of a Canadian Junior Red Cross gift of foodstuffs, valued at $51,643.00, to war-victimized children of Czechoslovakia. The shipment included infants food, tinned orange juice, Pablum and cocoa.

In order to continue this good work in Czechoslovakia and other European countries, the Canadian Junior Red Cross is celebrating Junior Red Cross Week, Sept. 29th to Oct. 5th, during which time they hope to enrol or re-enrol 900,000 members throughout the schools of Canada.

Friends Welcome Dutch Bride To Community

Recently a large number of relatives and friends gathered in the Orange Hall, Eldorado, in honor of Douglas Morrison and his bride, lately arrived from Holland.

An address was read by "Bill" Nickle, welcoming the newlyweds and wishing them much happiness and success "on the sea of matrimony", and extending to "Alberdina" the hand of friendship from the community. In token of friendship and esteem a number of useful gifts were presented to help in the furnishing of their new home. "Douglas" suitably expressed his appreciation for both the gifts and the welcome accorded his wife.

Dainty refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed until the "wee sma' hours".

W.I. Convention To be Held Here

Steel Workers In Sydney Plant Start Voting

Hamilton, Oct. 2 (CP)—Striking steel workers in Sydney, N.S., voted today on proposals to end the 12-weeks-old wages-hours strike in Canada's basic steel industry. The die already was cast here and in Sault Ste. Marie, where members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) voted Monday and Tuesday.

Union officials will count the ballots in Toronto and it is generally believed they will announce the result Thursday. Their leaders have urged the strikers to accept the plan, which calls for a wage increase of 13 cents an hour.

Edward Corbett, Sydney District President of the union, yesterday told a mass meeting of 4,000 strikers in Sydney that they would receive the five-cent differential. In the past a gap of five cents an hour separated wages of Dominion Steel and Coal Company workers at Sydney and those of Steel Company of Canada in Hamilton and of Algoma Steel Corporation in Sault Ste. Marie.

As voting went forward last night, union and company spokesmen sparred in public statements.

Wants Bargaining in Good Faith

Murray Cotterill, union publicity director, said in a broadcast that if Stelco and the other companies try to avoid bargaining in good faith on issues still in dispute, "it will be just a matter of time before another and worse dispute rocks the industry."

The union would negotiate in good faith, said Mr. Cotterill, and he hoped both sides would be inspired by consideration not only of the interests of the steel industry but of the interests of Canada as a whole.

Stelco President H. G. Hilton said in a press release that as a result of the strike workers would gain $74.88 a year in actual earnings. That was the difference between annual wages under the settlement plan and the amount offered by the company before the strike started.

The company announced that during the strike period the Hamilton Works produced 108,26 net tons of finished steel—roughly 50 per cent of the normal output—as well as 93,085 net tons of coke and 52,946 net tons of pig iron.

Originally intended for the Alexanders, Muldoon I was stolen.

Hope to Settle Delivery Strike

Saskatoon, Oct. 2.—(CP)—Hope brightened Tuesday for an early settlement of the three-week-old delivery strike by an estimated 50,000 farmers in Saskatchewan and Alberta as leaders of the United Farmers of Canada and the Alberta Farmers' Union agreed to take their demands to the Federal Agricultural Prices and Support Board.

Following a meeting of the two organizations' executives yesterday, it was announced a delegation would leave today for Ottawa. In agreeing to deal with the Federal Board, the farm leaders accepted the invitation made last Wednesday by Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner. Mr. Gardiner at that time suggested the existing board could do "all or more" than the farmers requested.

Meanwhile growing tenseness continued on the Alberta strike front, where Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced yesterday there had been eight more convictions against farmer-pickets, four of them jail sentences.

The convictions followed attempts by strikers to prevent non-union farmers from putting cream aboard a train at St. Paul, 100 miles northeast of Edmonton. Four of the pickets were given 14 days in jail and the other fined a total of $260.

A week-end melee at Beaver Crossing, Alta, near the Saskatchewan border, ended in the arrest of 11 pickets and charges laid against an additional 20. A herd of more than 100 cattle stampeded and a stockbuyer was injured in the incident.

The strike started in Alberta Sept. 6 after A.F.U. President Carl J. Stimpfle and his executive won overwhelming support from the Union's 20,000 members on a referendum which demanded—

Establishment of a fact-finding board to determine parity prices for farm supplies and products, the Board to consist of representatives of organized farmers, business, labor and government;

A wheat price of $1.55 a bushel for farmers, basis No. 1 Northern Fort William;

"Satisfactory" floor prices for livestock, poultry and dairy products;

Abolition of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange;

Adjustment of freight rates;

Withdrawal of the three-cent federal tax on gasoline.

Sudden Upturn Of Optimism For Early Settlement

By MAX HALL

Washington, Oct. 2—(AP)—The Maritime Commission moved in on the United States shipping strike today and there was a sudden upturn of optimism for an early settlement.

The Commission had not yet made a public announcement of its attitude. But A.F.L. and C.I.O. union leaders said a statement of the commission's policy was circulated at a negotiating session late last night. Government officials who asked not to be identified said the same thing.

The union men told reporters that the commission gave assurance it would enforce on all government-owned vessels any changes in working conditions agreed upon by east coast shipowners and the two unions which represent captains, mates and engine-room officers.

The main stumbling block in the dispute has been the refusal of Pacific Coast shipowners to go as far as the eastern companies in meeting demands for more "union security."

More negotiations were set for today at the Labor Department between the shipowners and the C.I.O. marine engineers and the A.F.L. masters, mates and pilots—the two seafaring unions involved in the country-wide walkout which began yesterday.

Union leaders said that since the Maritime Commission owns a large segment of Pacific shipping, it has the power to set standards which would be followed—by force of economic necessity—not only in government vessels but in private operations as well.

Sharply Questioned

This has been sharply questioned by representatives of the Pacific shipowners.

C.I.O. longshoremen, striking on the west coast, were reported to be near agreement with their employers at San Francisco.

"Union security" has been the major issue in the dispute raging here. Other issues, such as wages, were gradually being cleared away in the day-and-night talks.

"Union security" means such provisions as the closed shop, maintenance of membership, or other arrangements enabling a union to stay in a strong position.

The two seafaring unions demanded the following three things on all coasts:

Preferential hiring — Union men would get priority.

Maintenance of membership — men who join the union must stay in it or lose their jobs.

Union hiring halls — the unions would furnish men for all vacancies in the order in which the men become available for work. (This usually amounts to a closed shop, where all workers must belong to the union.)

NO ADDITIONAL SUGAR

Ottawa, Oct. 2—(CP)—Prices Board officials said yesterday tomatoes could easily be canned without sugar and for that reason there was no intention of increasing the supplies of sweetening allotted to Ontario canning factories. They were commenting on a Toronto dispatch which quoted canning company officials as saying tons of this year's record tomato crop may rot in Ontario fields because of the government's refusal to grant canners extra sugar.

MISSING MAN NOT FOUND.

Toronto, Oct. 2—(CP)—Friends of Richard Mansell, 23-year-old former naval officer who fell from a sloop into Lake Ontario early Monday, said a three-hour aircraft search during the afternoon revealed no trace of the missing man. The aircraft conducted a 15-mile "square search" in excellent visibility. But choppy waves made it difficult to spot an object on the surface.

Howie Pollet's Heady Hurling In Playoff Opener Practically Assures Cardinals of Flag

St. Louis Wins 4-2 With Enos Slaughter's Peg the Fielding Gem of Game

By JACK HAND

En Route to Brooklyn, Oct. 2—(AP)—Howie Pollet's heady-pitching job against Brooklyn appears to have aroused the sluggish St. Louis Cardinals to a world series pitch that could send them flying past the Dodgers in two straight baseball games.

Nobody on the club is making predictions about what will happen at Ebbets Field when baseball's first three-game play-off series resumes tomorrow, but the Red Birds are a loose, confident ball club after their 4-2 opening victory at St. Louis ysetarday.

Enos Slaughter's great peg from right field that nipped Bruce Edwards trying to go from first to third on Howie Schultz' seventh-inning single probably saved the ball game. At least Manager Eddie Dyer of the Red Birds thinks it did.

Three hits by rookie catcher Joe Garagiola who drove in half the winners' runs was another highly-important factor in the all-important first game win.

Not since the Cards left Boston Sept. 19 had they cut loose with a hitting attack like they showed the Brooks' five pitchers. Only Stan Musial's seventh-inning triple was for extra bases but there were hits at time points.

Hurled Perfect Game

Pollet's perfect performance provided the big left in the Cards' success and must have been discouraging to the Brooks who had taken heart from the news that the Cubs had knocked out the ace southpaw in his last two previous starts.

The psychological effect of the lefthander's return to his mid-season form was even more important than the triumph itself. It showed the Red Birds that their No. 1 boy was himself again and assured them in their own minds they were the same club that had been able to take Brooklyn all season.

Manager Durocher's selection of Ralph Branca to hurl the vital opener backfired when the Birds combed him for six hits and three runs before he gave way to Kirby Higbe in the third.

Following Higbe with Hal Gregg, Vic Lombardi and finally Rube Melton.

FOOTBALL CALLED 20TH CENTURY SLAVE MARKET

University Officials Claim Players Knocked Down to Highest Bidder

By HAL COOPER

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Two officials of American University (enrollment 3,850) blew a loud whistle on United States College football today.

They said it's a 20th century slave mart.

They declared the players are knocked down to the highest bidder as human chattels who "surrender their complete freedom to the coaches, today's slave drivers."

President Paul F. Douglass estimated it would cost his school $50,000 to field a decent team at current prices. And he isn't going to do it.

"Instead," he said in a statement, "we intend to spend that money to enlarge our art and music schools."

Echoed Robert V. Fletcher, Chairman of the Board of Trustees:

"Post-war college football has no more relation to education than bull fighting to agriculture."

"A human slave market extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada especially to Alabama," Dr. Douglass said.

"Day by day young men come to the auction block for sale to the highest bidder. The bidding is bitter, determined, violent and unscrupulous.

"The country is ridden by agents and scouts directed by coaches who receive salaries higher than university presidents."

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct., 2 —(CP)—England's cricketers received good news from the board of trade shortly after the season ended. More equipment will be available—next year.

Big-time cricket returned to the country this year after a seven-year layoff in conditions described as "austere," but the various county clubs managed to get by. There were shortages of bats, balls and pads but allowances were made by both players and spectators.

The Board of Trade announcement capped off predictions that the game mark the return of many clubs forced to abandon operations due to shortage of equipment.

Arrangements have been made for imports from India of cricket balls and equipment, up to a value of £80,000 ($320,000), between September and next June. The supplies will include nearly 200,000 balls.

"Austerity" cricket was due to shortage of skilled labor and materials in Britain.

Douglas Marks, the jockey who once rode for the King and spent three years in a cast following an accident, is to become a steeplechase jockey. During the winter he will ride for Gordon Bowsher, Droxford, Hampshire, trainer.

In 1940, while an apprentice in the King's stable, he won the Thousand Guineas and the Oaks on Godive. Early in 1942, Marks was thrown while exercising a horse and broke his back.

There may be something to croquet after all. Mrs. Caroline Creyke of London who died recently at the age of 101, claimed she always kept fit by playing croquet. She took part in tournaments until she was 95.

An eagle—two strokes under par— is rare enough to be golf news in any country.

Two brothers, Walter and Arthur Lees, professionals at the Dore and Totley Club, near Sheffield, accomplished the feat at the same hole within 50 minutes of each other.

Glamorgan County Cricket Club had good news for its directors on completion of the season. Receipts at the club's home games reached a new high mark of £14,500 ($58,000). Attendance figures were 180,000.

CHARGE ADJOURNED

Oshawa, Oct. 1 (CP)— A charge of manslaughter against Steve Remego of Oshawa was adjourned today until Oct. 8 and bail of $2,000 renewed.

Remego was charged in connection with the death Sept. 6 of Steve Melnychuk who police said was injured four days earlier in an altercation on the street outside an Oshawa hotel.

KARL DAVIS

"VODY" TALUN

Well, well .. outside of a four and a three or a boxcar and a Phoebe on the galloping dominoes, we know of no better natural than what Manager Walt. Gerow is offering the wrestling faithful in his main bout at the Arena here Friday night. Yeah, you guessed it. The match that has been awaited for some time now, between none other than Lee "The Scowl" Henning and Karl "Krippler" Davis, both dyed villains of the ring of the deepest hue—according to the greater majority of the Friday night pewholders here. For some time now these two exponents of all that is unorthodox in wrestling methods have had the fans howling for their blood when they practised their mat witchcraft on the more gentlemanly graduates of the College of Applied Pachydermy. Now comes the inevitable payoff. It will be villain against villain and may the worst man win. And off the record, the two in question have been secretly studying each other's style of mat mayhemics and in all probability have devised new and more deadly ways and means of exterminating the other. There will be no quarter asked nor given come Friday when these two heavies in the wrestling drama meet. So come prepared for blood, thunder, and plenty of pyrotechnics. And look who's here besides. None other than our old friend "Vody" Talun, the Paralyzing Pole. The skyscraper who walks like a man, is matched with Bobby Nelson, while the Swedish Swivel expert, Olaf Olsen, will tangle with Terry McGuinness, a broth of a bhoy from the Old Sod. Nice evening, what?

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Thursday and Friday, as it did on Tuesday, the world will stand still for the baseball fans in Brooklyn. And "fans" means practically every living soul in that Gotham borough including ministers, industry, the schools and even the housewives. For the "Bums", the Brooklyn Dodgers are on the spot. The next day or so will mean heaven or the reverse to the gallant "Bums" and to their supporters.

• • •

Ministers in the baseball-torn borough are offering prayers for the success of the Lippy Durocher's crew. Industrialists are taking time out to listen to broadcasts. Rabid fans lifting guzzling schnozzles from foam-topped schupers in the corner taverns, have to order twice to get one bucket of suds. The barkeeps are even daydreaming. For its baseball drama time in Brooklyn and time only will tell if their favorite "Bums" will essay the here's or the villain's role.

Borough President (the equivalent of our mayor) John Cashmore, appealed to Brooklyn firms yesterday to permit their employees to listen to broadcasts of the National League playoffs between the Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

"It is apparent to any far-seeing citizen of this metropolis," said Cashmore, "that during the play-off between the Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals, the wheels of industry will lag in Brooklyn.

• • •

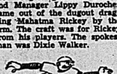
"Brooklyn firms," he said, "which on this occasion do not overlook temporary lapses on the part of their workers while the games are being broadcast . . . will be guilty of a cardinal sin . . ."

• • •

One thing must be said about the Dodgers. They're just about the most colorful crew to come down the baseball pike in many a diamond moon. Recently President Branch Rickey gave all his players automobiles (so that's where the new crates have been going.) The other day it was Carl Furillo day. Carl is one of the prize Dodger rookies and the wartime buddies of the kid gave him a wrist watch and a gold lapel emblem.

• • •

But the goofy Dodgers stole the show from the kid. The centre field gate was thrown open and in came a huge trailer with a $5,200 motor cruiser on its trellis. Grinnin widely, the Dodgers gathered around and Manager Lippy Durocher came out of the dugout dragging Mahatma Rickey by the arm. The craft was for Rickey from his players. The spokesman was Dixie Walker.



"There have been a lot of undeserved remarks passed about Mr. Rickey's relations with us," began Dixie, amid mingled cheers and boos. "We players have considered it a pleasure to play for him. He didn't know this boat was for him. He thought we were presenting it to Manager Durocher. He isn't a swearing man, but I just heard him mutter "This is a helluva note."

• • •

Rickey gathering his wits about him quickly went to the mike. This is the finest team to work with I've ever had anything to do with, he said, warming up. "I've never seen a bunch of boys play so hard to win."

• • •

It was gift day all right. The Dodgers, having subscribed $125 each for the gift to their president, took the field and promptly blew the ball game to the Phillies 11-9.

• • •

One minister in baseball-daffy Brooklyn in its frenzy to wrest the pennant from the Redbirds, invoked the aid of the Almighty for the Dodgers. He is the Rev. Benny S. Benson, minister of the Greenpoint Reformed Church who declared, "We have prayed for military victories and everything else so why not pray for the Dodgers."

• • •

This was interpreted by some as a plea to the New York Giant die-hards to pray, too, for Leo Durocher, their bitterest enemy. The minister conducted a prayer meeting every day on the steps of Borough Hall, Brooklyn.

In the meantime the Boston Red Sox are rusting, or resting awaiting the winner of this flaming first-in-history playoff series. Ted Williams et al have been scouting both the National loop squads inasmuch as the majority of the baseball faithful feel that the Scarlet Sox will walk away with the world series, regardless of who wins the National Loop title. Are yuh listening, Kennie m'lad.

• • •

Excelling their National League rivals in nearly every department, the Red Sox hold a big edge in hitting power, based on figures through September 26. The American Leaguers have an average of .272 compared to .268 for the Cards and .260 for the Dodgers, are far ahead in total hits, runs batted in, runs scored, home runs, and doubles, and are only surpassed in triples.

• • •

Only the Dodgers have showed exceptional speed on bases, their stolen sacks far exceeding those of the other teams. There is little to choose from in pitching except winning percentage for the Sox, both the Dodgers and the Cards hurlers, however, having a marked advantage over those of the Red Sox in strikeouts.

• • •

Reports from Boston state that one fan offered to swap eight pounds of beefsteak for a couple of world series tickets.. There'll likely be a flock of clippers around Fenway Park who will be satisfied with the gravy alone. .Ralph McCabe is home from the baseball wars..."Bunny" Dunlop, hated wrestler in these parts (yet they love him) wrestled who, in a charity show in Hamilton the other night...You guessed it. None other than Ernie Powers, well-known third man in the ring here...And who refereed the bout?.. .You guessed it again...Bert Maxwell...It was a battle of the paunches so we're told, and on one occasion the three looked like billiard balls rolling around the table...The winner? It was a draw, with all three holding each others hands aloft, via the Statue of Liberty symbol of victory...What other decision could three honest men come to?...Touch of irony...When Bob Feller, Cleveland ace broke the late Rube Waddell's record for strikeouts, 348 to be exact, the other day against Detroit, the fella who gave Feller the record, was none other than that sterling Tiger southpaw Hal Newhouser...When the Detroit star swung widely at the third strike—and missed, the Tribe catcher called time and took the ball to the dugout to be presented to Feller after the game...In any event any flinger who could win 26 games for the sixth place Tribe doesn't need to be a record wrecker to crash the door of the Hall of Fame...He should relax..John Shaw, well-known Front Street gents furnisher has visions of a chess club for the city and district...He'll put up a handsome trophy in the immediate future ... Players should contact John for further details...More about that, later. ...They tell me they're reversing the book of wrestling rules here Friday night when Krippler Davis tangles with "Scowl" Henning...The powers-that-be figure that's the best way to handle such a pair of villains.. Wotta shindig, that will be.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 2—(AP) — Princeton University, in the throes of a bicentennial celebration, starts its 77th intercollegiate football season Saturday and maybe those figures alone are evidence that the Tigers will be playing students . . . the squad on display yesterday bears the stamp of many years of academic leadership more than it shows the heritage of gridiron leadership that began when Princeton and Rutgers played the first intercollegiate game in 1869 . . . coach Charlie Caldwell doesn't get highly enthusiastic until he starts comparing this year's squad with his 1945 aggregation . . . Fifteen lettermen from last season are on the squad and only four are likely to be in Saturday's starting lineup.

Shorts and Shells

What's this story we hear about one of the All America Conference Football Clubs offering its players a salary slash? The tale, which we can't confirm, is that the management says it just has not the dough to keep paying those big wages . . . It isn't true that everybody in Brooklyn is rooting for the Dodgers. If them Bums win the play-off or even carry it to three games, Brooklyn College and New York U., will have to cancel their Saturday night game at Ebbets Field. Lou Oshins, B.C. coach admits: "The way things are in Brooklyn, I don't think anybody will miss one game." . . . N. Y. might.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

It looked like 1945-46 all over again for Toronto N.H.L. fans when general manager Conn Smythe assured a reporter: "The Maple Leafs will suffer plenty of defeats this season." Visions of the previous year, when Leafs won the Stanley Cup before sinking to the depths, arose when he added: "We'll win plenty too." Finally, Conn assessed his rebuilt squad as somewhere between the extremes and good enough to make this season's playoffs.

With almost a brand new Toronto team free-wheeling it at the St. Catharines training camp (the Maple Leafs have replaced 12 of last year's fifth-place roster), coach Hap Day got another lift yesterday from the showing of his "Flying Forts" line. The Fort William trio of Bud Poile, Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar nicked goalie Walter (Turk) Broda for eight tallies, Stewart bagging five himself.

Who's through? Not me, says Syd Howe, and the veteran NHL centre will attempt to prove it today to coach Frank Boucher of New York Rangers. Howe, whom Detroit Red Wings released unconditionally last year, thinks he can move back to the defence and play a lot more hockey and Boucher okayed his request for a trial.

Trade wind: Henry (Hank) Goldup, who finished up with New York Rangers last year after breaking in with Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1939-40 season, has been sold to Cleveland Barons of the American League. Purchase price was not announced.

The Cook Brothers, Bun and Bill, broke camp yesterday at Winnipeg and headed their respective hockey clubs en masse for Minneapolis. Bun took 20 Millers to their home stamping ground in the United States League while Bill went along with 24 Barons who will work out some more at Minneapolis before turning to their American League home grounds at Cleveland.

Art Chapman's Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League scraped out a 4-3 decision over Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League in an exhibition tilt at Ottawa last night.

Coach Dick Irvin thinks well enough of his Montreal Canadiens' chances to repeat last season's Stanley Cup triumph that he will make only one switch in that winning lineup. Dutch Hiller is the only boy to go, his spot being taken over by George Allen, left winger acquired from Chicago.

Take a look at some of the big ones Canadiens are throwing back: Roger Leger, voted the American Hockey League's most valuable player last season goes back to Buffalo Bisons on 24-hour recall; others sent to Buffalo include big Jack Portland, hefty Mike McMahon and centre Jack Adams and Moe White, all good enough at one time or another to catch regular N.H.L. berths with Canadiens teams.

Colonels, Royals Ready to Resume The Title Series

By STUART NEBBS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 2 —(CP)— Southern drawls will be quite the thing around Montreal for the next few days. The reason? Louisville Colonels, American Association baseball champions, with a strong following, are in town to resume their Little World Series with Montreal Internationals.

The Colonels, sporting a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series from the first three games played at Louisville, blew into town chuck full of confidence following two straight victories over the highly-touted Royals who took just about all the honors there were in the International League.

Three games are scheduled here with the first contest tonight weather permitting, followed by games Thursday and Friday, if necessary.

The Southerners, used to playing in sunny clime, found the 60-degree temperature of the last game at Louisville definitely on the chilly side. Matter of fact, the fans, to warm themselves, were burning their programs in the stands.

That being the case, unless the weather changes here, the Colonels will probably appear in the lineup garbed in parkas and mittens as yesterday's reading in Montreal was 33 degrees, one above the freezing point. On top of all that, about one inch of snow fell yesterday and blanketed the baseball diamond on east-end Delorimier Street.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By EDDIE WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Oct. 2 — (CP) — In their moments of relaxation—although they claim they haven't any — officials and veterans of New York Rangers and Minneapolis Millers now training here bide their time by telling stories about each other and hockey players generally.

For example, there's this one about Steve Buzinski, Swift Current, Sask., goalie who played for a time with the Rangers — a time, Lynn Patrick hastens to add, good goalies were hard to come by.

In one game against Toronto Maple Leafs, Buzinski decided something had to be done about the number of goals being scored against the New Yorkers. Accordingly when Bob Davidson, Leafs' winger, drifted nonchalantly in with the puck, Buzinski decided to outguess him and smother the puck before Davidson had a chance to shoot.

It worked — up to a point. At the precise moment Buzinski flopped to the ice, Davidson lifted the puck goalward. It caught the goalie just over the eye and opened a small cut. Buzinski stayed down as if he had been pole-axed.

Immediately the Rangers crowded around the referee claiming Davidson had high-sticked their goalie. The Leafs' player argued bitterly and just as he was about to win his point, Buzinski sat up, exclaimed "You're a liar" and fell back again.

Then, Frankie Boucher tells this one about Andy Aikenhead, another Rangers' goalie — and a Scotsman. At the end of his first season with New York, Andy wasted no time in getting home to Saskatoon. When he arrived, however, he found he had forgotten some of his belongings in his hotel room. He immediately wrote for them and Frankie swears it was on that hotel's stationery.

When Bill Tobin, manager of Chicago Black Hawks, was here he contributed his share of stories and one in particular left everyone grinning.

It seems that whenever referee King Clancy appeared on Chicago ice, the organist immediately would play the Three Blind Mice —a selection which brought nothing faintly resembling a beam to Clancy's countenance. Eventually Tobin, at Clancy's repeated demand, asked the organist to skip it.

But the fans liked it so much, Tobin says, he's going to permit the organist to play it this year.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When ever Sue invites you, this happy thought delights you: Now there's a gal who knows just what to cook. But playing bridge with Susie will surely drive you woozy She learned too many rules that never took.

A few good rules are all you really need to play an acceptable game of bridge. They should be simple. They should be understandable to you. They should be easy and natural to apply.

The best one rule you could ever learn for bridge is T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump; the order of preference of bids. That one rule will do more for you than gobs of expert complexities.

Your first choice is to takeout to your biddable suit. With no such suit, assist partner's suit if you have adequate support. With neither, bid no-trump. That is, if your hand is not a pass.

Suppose your partner opens with one heart when you have this hand:

♠A Q 7 5
♥J 6 3 2
♦K J 8
♣7 2

Your hand contains more than two tricks. They include at least two high cards. So, you will not pass. You will choose your bid from the order suggested in T-A-N.

Your spade suit is biddable. Consequently, you will takeout to spades. The takeout comes before an assist. The order of preference in T-A-N tells you so. You would be wrong to assist first.

When partner bids again, you will assist his heart suit. By this you will tell him you have no more biddable suits for takeouts. The moment you assist, you deny having a takeout.

As I look at you now, there is a puzzled frown on your face. It tells me you are worried. You are wondering what will happen if your partner does not bid a second time. What about your support.

That comes from not knowing one important thing about a takeout. A takeout forces your partner to bid once more. Now, I hope you feel better. Lay that pistol down, babe.

Hollywood, Oct. 2 — (AP) — How's this for a wonderful combination — Walt Disney, Barry Fitzgerald and Leprechauns? The deal has jelled for the cartoon wizard and the Irish actor to join forces in a folk tale of the little people of Ireland. Walt himself will go to Eire this fall to see that the elves and gremlins in his film are authentic.

Ingrid Bergman winds up "Arch of Triumph" today and will absent herself from these parts for at least seven months, provided her play is a success. She'll study her lines for Maxwell Anderson's 'Joan of Lorraine' en route to New York next week.

Peggy Cummins was so good in "The Late George Apley" that retakes have been ordered to fatten her part. But the poor gal is suffering a tooth infection.

Note of juvenile social consciousness: Margaret O'Brien said she was "ashamed" to go through the MGM picket line and may stay home if it continues.

Purely personal . . . Britain's Phyllis Calvert is so amazed at the abundance of food here she's doing her own cooking . . . Helen O'Connell, the former J. Dorsey singer but now just Mrs. Clifford Smith, expects another baby . . . Eddie Bracken tossed a huge party to celebrate his new radio shop, which got off to an auspicious start. A huge circus tent covered his tennis court where 150 guests ate dinner. Title Bout Will Be 12 Rounds Instead of Ten

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian lightweight boxing title bout to be held at Montreal Oct. 10 between Danny Webb and champion Dave Castilloux will be 12 rounds instead of 10. The Montreal Athletic Commission ruled yesterday. It was in keeping with a recent edict of the National Boxing Association, with which the Montreal commission is affiliated, that no title bout be less than 12 rounds. The fighters reacted differently. Webb said he was willing to fight any number of rounds but Castilloux said he could not see why he should defend his title at 12 rounds after winning it in 10. He said if his manager, Jack Allen, thought 10 rounds was enough "I'll stick with him and the commission can take the title."

X-ray films taken at Boston revealed that Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox homerun slugger, suffered a bruised right elbow when struck by one of Mickey Haefner's southpaw slants yesterday during an exhibition clash with an American League all-star team. Club officials said they were positive Ted would be ready for the opening game of the world's series but the team physician said it would be a few days before he would predict whether Williams would play. The Red Sox won the game 2-0.

Pittsburgh Pirates announced yesterday they had obtained some top-grade material for reconstruction by purchasing southpaw Steve Nagy of Montreal, leading pitcher of the International League. "A very substantial sum was paid," said General Manager Ray Kennedy, plus a player to be delivered in the spring.

A 10-round outdoor bout between Willie Pep, Hartford, Conn., world featherweight boxing champion, and Paulie Jackson, Reading, Pa., was cancelled yesterday because of cold weather and rain.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were getting ready to go out, ma putting on her dress with the green things and pop just changing his shert, and pop said, My dear, I've been pretty attentive to you through the years, there are very few women who have more thoughtfill husbinds than you have.

Well naturelly, I hope so, ma said. I mean not that I dont appriciate it for land sakes, she said, and pop said, How many times have I got up in the dead of night and closed the bedroom window in the teeth of a raging gale, with the rain driving in and soaking my pidjammers, allowing you to sleep in peacefill oblivion although everyone knows that a woman can stand more exposure than a man without catching cold.

I'm sure I'm very gratefill, ma said. But what's a matter? It hasn't rained for days and anyway, you're not catching a cold, are you? she said, and pop said, How many times have I submissively gone to the movies with you and dozed uncomfortably through a dubble feature when I could of slept in my ease at home at just half the expense?

We haven's seen any picture lately, as a matter of fact, ma said. Maybe tomorrow evening, she said, and pop said, I've come home for dinner regulerly every night and eaten what's set before me with a smile, even though my heart may of been bersting for liver and onions. I've done my duty as a loyal and devoted husband, so for Peet sake show a little reciprocation and dont ask me to hook that confounded green dress up the back. You can do it yourself, because I've seen you do it, he said.

I might of known, I felt it coming, only I didn't know just what, ma said.

The result being pop had to hook it up as usual.

VARSITY GRID SQUAD TAGGED AS PRE-WAR CALIBRE

Bobby Coulter, Coach of Team, Says Squad "Good and Well Balanced"

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 2 —(CP)— A heavy rugged line and a speedy forward-passing halfline that is backed with top-flight reserves pulls away this Saturday in the inter-collegiate football race for University of Toronto tagged by its coach as definitely of pre-war calibre.

On the point of quality little, sandy-haired Bobby Coulter, who moved up this year as head coach after a season as assistant to Warren Stevens, has no doubts But he is reserving judgment whether they can be labled as a championship outfit until he has seen them against one good intercollegiate squad.

"I think they're a good, well-balanced team," he says. "How good I've yet to find out. But that point should be cleared up next Saturday."

That day the Blues travel to London to tangle with the University of Western Mustangs.

In 1939 and again last year when the league resumed operations after five war-interrupted years, the Mustangs rode roughshod over the loop's three other clubs, emerging undefeated each season.

In their first warm-up game the Blues looked mighty impressive in whipping the undefeated and league-leading Toronto Indians of Ontario Rugby Football Union 8-7. Last Saturday they rolled over the usually-good intermediate team from the Guelph Ontario Agricultural College with little trouble, winning 48-11.

More Power Added

There's no doubt that more power has been added to the club since the Indian game by the appearance of quarterbacks, Fred Doty and Billy Myers, key players in this and last year's Toronto Argonaut team of the Big Four.

Although Coulter hasn't made up his mind yet who'll be the regular halves besides Myers, the best prospects are Ted Toogood, Colin Cranham and Johnny Manson, former Toronto Balmy Beach star.

Of that collection Doty and Myers will do the passing with Cranham, Toogood and Manson looking after the plunging. Toogood will also handle the kicking and when he's not out there either Don Bark, Jack McReynolds or Mel Lawson will substitute.

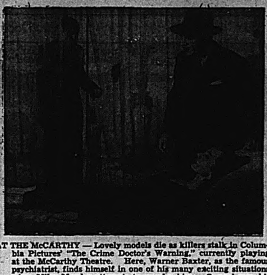
Besides these backs Coulter can call on Bill Lawrence, Bob Henry and Johnny Roe. Little Tommy Walden will relieve Doty as signal caller when necessary.

Protecting the payload boys will be a frontwall averaging about 200 pounds. At snap there'll be either Frank Williams or Archie Jones flanked by Captain Rudy Grass and Will Henry at insides.

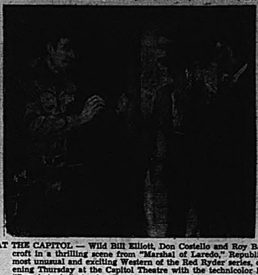
The first-string middles are Ian Clark and Rod Smith. For outsides are Frank Hickey, Jim Grierson, Gordon Lawson, Bill Daniel, Eric McMillan and Nick Volpe.

On hand as substitute insides are 285-pound Pete Downie and Al Scott and as spare middles Alex Brown and Don Fisher. Of the spare linemen and backs a number will be forced to sit out every game, for under intercollegiate rules, only eight halves, four ends, three insides and middles and two snaps can be dressed.

AT THE BELLE — Charles Boyer and Jennifer Jones are costars in Ernst Lubitsch's production of "Cluny Brown," the 20th. Century-Fox film version of Margery Sharp's uproarious best-seller, with Peter Lawford and Helen Walker as a romantic twosome.



AT THE McCARTHY — Lovely models die as killers stalk in Columbia Pictures' "The Crime Doctor's Warning," currently playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Here, Warner Baxter, as the famous psychiatrist, finds himself in one of his many exciting situations when Miles Mander attempts to murder him. Second new hit features Phil. Terry and Ann Savage in "Dark Horse."



AT THE CAPITOL — Wild Bill Elliott, Don Costello and Roy Barcroft in a thrilling scene from "Marshal of Laredo," Republic's most unusual and exciting Western of the Red Ryder series, opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre with the technicolor hit, "San Antonio," starring Errol Flynn and Alexis Smith.

TEAM OWNERS IN DAMAGE SUIT

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—John L. Keeshin, owner of Chicago Rockets football team, has filed suit in circuit court against George Halas, owner-coach of Chicago Bears, charging him with libel and asking $250,000 damages.

The suit was the outgrowth of comment said to be made by Halas concerning Keeshin's effort to sign Sid Luckman, Bear quarterback as Rocket coach.

Luckman(central figure in the controversy, said, "I certainly am going to stay with Halas." His assertion followed a conference with Keeshin yesterday in which Luckman was said to have received an offer of a three-to-five year coaching contract with the Rockets at $25,000 a year.

Keeshin's suit charged that Halas' statements to the press "contained false, malicious, defamatory and libelous matters of and concerning the plaintiffs."

WHITAKER MAY BE ALLOWED TO PLAY WITH ATHLETICS

Goalie for St. Catharines Suspended Last Year for Hitting Referee

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP)—The $64 Mann Cup question seems to be whether Bill Whitaker will be permitted to fill his regular post with St. Catharines Athletics tonight as they seek their second straight win over New Westminster Salmonbellies in a best-of-five game series for Canadian Lacrosse supremacy.

Bill cooled his heels on the sidelines while his mates rallied to down the western champions 11-10 Monday night, victim of a Canadian Lacrosse ssociation suspension a year ago after he socked a referee in Vancouver. A. C. L. A. committee considers basher Bill's reinstatement bid this afternoon.

Even if the committee rules against Whitaker's return the Saints have few goaltending worries, Doug Favell having turned in a smooth job in the opener. Approved by the Ontario Lacrosse Association Whitaker has been first-string goalie all season and ardent Athletics supporters will tell you his coolness steadies down the team.

Goaltending may prove the deciding issue in the struggle between these closely-matched clubs and in Bill Scuby the Salmonbellies presented one of the smartest boxla goalies to show here with western clubs in many years. At times in the series opener it appeared as though Scuby would beat the A's by himself and they seemed baffled as to just what they had to do to shoot a ball past him.

Fine Holding Exhibition

Few squads as desperately in need of goals as were the Salmonbellies Monday night have had to contend with such an exhibition of "holding possession" as the A's exhibited after Jack (Wandy) McMahon counted the winning goal.

Realizing they couldn't score without the ball the westerners chased and hacked away at elusive Saints throughout the last four minutes of play as the easterners played their famous circle defensive game. McMahon himself held possession for more than a minute after he potted the clincher.

The Salmonbellies figure poor ball handling, wild passing and loose checking in the final period cost them the first contest which saw them four goals in front in the third. But they claim they're used to the cement cushion of Maple Leaf Gardens and the east generally now and are confident the series will be evened tonight.

Official attendance figures show 6,640 fans paid to witness the opener and it's highly probable there will be close to twice that number on hand tonight. The third game is billed for Friday with the fourth and fifth contests if necessary Saturday and Monday.

NICK KNOTT RECALLED

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 4 — (CP)—Nick Knott, 26-year-old product of Oshawa's famed junior team, is to report today to the training camp of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Knott is a defenceman who has been in the camp of the Tulsa Oilers of the United States Hockey League at Kingston. His place in the Tulsa camp is to be taken by Vic Grigg, native of Victoria Harbor, who has been working out with the Leafs, and Eddie Cutts, standout defenceman with Oshawa juniors last season, who has been training here with the Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League.

CHAPTER 18

"Not good at all. Martin is away today and I've no driver. The place," Isabel said, as they turned indoors, "looks so lovely. It was cold in the city."

"Particularly lovely this summer."

"And your building?"

"Dennis and Jock are turning those three little back rooms into one. We won't know ourselves."

"Old Jock is still here?"

"Oh yes, still in his old room at the barn. We've kept the two cows, and Dennis is getting some baby chickens."

"Baby chickens! I can have one." said the little girls together.

"You can help," said their grandmother, with a moderate glance.

"Lord, how she understands children" Isabel thought. "She makes them feel grownup."

"The lumber has been here for years," Mrs. Hardisty explained, showing her the new raw beams that lay on the grass. "Dennis got a builder in here for one day—I think he came only once—and they worked together."

Idle talk, to cover any possible awkardness to avoid pauses.

"You'll have— what are these?" Isabel asked, as the children hopped like investigating robins over the cement foundation and the loosely laid flooring. The fog moved through and over everything, in and out of the oaks, around the windmill, on invisible feet.

"Those are store closets, we've always needed them. This will be a study for Dennis, with a little fireplace in the corner."

"You'll never want to go home."

"Oh, this is home now. We've rented the Laguna Street house for a long term of years. They may buy it."

"You've given up the Laguna Street house!"

"Yes, I've wanted to ever since—" The older woman's voice halted. "For some time," she substituted, "I've wanted to be in a smaller place. This seems just right, with Dennis working at Marinship."

"It's ideal for the children."

"They look so well, Isabel. They're happy children, and that means so much. Dennis has been counting the days until they got here. He's been brighter, just this last week."

"He had a terrible experience."

"They all did down there."

They went into the house, and Mrs. Hardisty said that Dennis meant to put up a little play tent and a small table, out under the oaks, for Catherine and Pussy to have as a playhouse. Her granddaughters exchanged rapturous glances at this, and clasped their small arms about the checked apron she wore over a sensible cotton kitchen dress.

"It all sounds wonderful," Isabel said, with a dry mouth. How definite and right and absorbing all their plans were, and how completely she was shut out from them!

They were all in the familiar shabby kitchen, against whose windows the fog was softly pressing; luncheon preparations were obviously all but complete. Isabel put aside the soft flexible mink coat and the smart little soft hat with its curling feather, carried them and the children's coats into the old "kitchen chamber." The little girls were quite at home here; they disappeared into the pantry in search of a certain blue box where small pots and pans, left from Easter holidays, had been stored.

"Then you'll stay here all the year round?" Isabel said, sitting down at the kitchen table.

"Oh yes. It'll be muddy in winter, but not for long. Water runs off this hill."

"Cold."

"Yes, it will be. But Dennis is making furnace arrangements—we think that with what he can do, and what he can get done at the factory, we'll have a furnace before winter."

"Oh, luxury!" Isabel said smiling, her heart heavier than ever.

"And my old Hing is coming over, he'll have the barn room. So that we ought to be very comfortable."

"Heaven for the children," Isabel observed, as Catherine and Pussy, carrying a blue cardboard box carefully between them, crossed the kitchen and vanished into the foggy warm dimness of the side yard.

"And there will be a very good school near us—right here, in the old Browning place," Mrs. Hardisty said. "If you decide to leave them with us for a while."

"A school? Up here on the hill?"

"Yes, just this last year."

"How does that happen?"

"It's a young Englishwoman—well, not so young, but young to me," Mrs. Hardisty said placidly.

"Pussy told me something of it. For sick babies?"

"Not that exactly, no. Refugee children, really. One or two rather delicate ones—one little war orphan. It's a Mrs. Somers-Cox, who bought the old Browning place."

"Husband, too?"

"She's widowed, poor girl. Girl—Madge must be close to forty," Mrs. Hardisty said musingly. "I should think about there. She has a small girl of her own, and she brought three with her. There are seventeen in the school now; she drives down to the village every day and picks them up."

"And it's a nice school?"

"Quite wonderful, I think. She's a fine woman. Our girls will find plenty of companions; they had great times at Easter."

"I've registered them for a fine little school down in Woodside."

Mrs. Hardisty made no comment upon this, and Isabel said:

"She must be company for you, too."

"She really is. You must meet her. She evidently comes from a family that is fine—books, and nice friends.... This is ready."

While the older woman poured cream gravy over fried crisp brown chicken Isabel put baked potatoes into a dish. There was fresh asparagus; there were frosted ginger cakes and blackberries. The small girls came in flushed and radiant, and Isabel washed their faces while their round red mouths were still busily talking.

"How ready they all are to think that I'm ready to part with the children!" she thought. Aloud she said, "Is Mrs. Somers-Cox here today? Could we walk over and meet her?"

"She said she'd come in for a minute after lunch," the older woman said, cutting up Catherine's meat.

"Esme'll come too," Pussy said in satisfaction.

"Pussy talks a lot of Esme." Isabel fell silent. This was an ideal situation for her children. But she couldn't—she wouldn't let them go! They must be happy—they must be made happy—in their mother's home. Dennis might have them summers, and she and Avery would plan trips for summers. But winters—no, the Woodside house would be a dreary place without the afternoon return of the rosy-cheeked little Hardisty girls, ready to have rubbers and berets and raincoats taken off, and join Mummy in her little upstairs sitting room for tea by the fire.

Not that they often had carried out the last part of this program, but Isabel was determined that they should, just as soon as school opened in the fall. Previously, Avery had often been there, lying on the couch, idly gossiping; the children, with their eager jabber of talk, had been an interruption. Or sometimes Isabel herself had been detained in the city by some late-afternoon engagement.

Now it would be different. She would make it a regular custom to have them come into her room to say good morning to her, and into her little upstairs sitting room for tea beside the fire. Avery would come to love it as much as she did; Yelta would have no part in it. And Saturdays should be given to them—circuses or Disney pictures.

But Saturdays were apt to be taken up with matinee lunches, or week-end visits. No matter, it could be worked out and it would be. Why have two endearing, eager little daughters at all, unless one were to know them, to share their confidences and their experiences?

"And I—believe—I'll get rid of Yelta," Isabel decided. "I'll get some nice young nurse who isn't so strict with them. Little bites, darling," she said aloud to Catherine.

Perhaps if she had been smarter they need not have been loaned to their father at all. This divided way was only going to break all their hearts—his and his mother's, hers and the little girls'. Everything had got so mixed up; she couldn't seem to get hold of her life anywhere and straighten it out. Of course they wouldn't want to come home after a summer up here on the hill, with a schoolful of small girls next door! Dennis seemed to hold all the cards at the moment.

His mother had written her, after that unexpected meeting with him, on the day of his return, that day that Isabel went over and over again in her memory, thinking of his thin serious face and the hoarse, quiet notes of his voice—the authority of his whole manner. Her thoughts wandered; that was what Dennis had—authority, character.

Avery was the playboy, undisciplined, joyous when a good plan was under consideration, delightful at polo, tennis, at clubs, races, theatres, delightful when he wasn't bored. But getting all the stimulus of his nature from the outside; never stopping to analyze himself or anyone else. Dennis had built himself from within.

"May we have the girls for June and July?" Mary Hardisty had written. This had fitted in well with Avery's plans; in June he was to receive his commission as a lieutenant, he wanted Isabel to be in New Jersey for the event. He would have two weeks' leave after that, and they would celebrate. They had "bids" to Lake Charles; they had "bids" to Long Island. "I'll buy you something in New York," he wrote, "and we'll clean out Schwarz's toyshop for the kids!"

The sensible thing, of course, was the thing she was doing today. She would take the children to their father, of course. But it felt so different from the way it sounded!

She would have been glad to keep these plans of Avery's from Dennis's mother, but that had been impossible, and the older woman had met them with a quiet telephone message: "Well, then, before you go, Isabel, you'll bring them to us? And when you get back from New Jersey, we'll talk of winter plans."

"Will you serve the berries, Isabel?" The same quiet voice brought her to herself with a start. Everything was slipping away from her. She would presently have to kiss these small faces good-by; they would probably jerk away from her in their eagerness to get back to Esme Somers-Cox and the delights of the school. Dennis would come home, glad to find them there.

The fog had rolled away, the sun was shining royally. Isabel wondered what excuse she could find to linger here. No matter how she prolonged her stay, she couldn't decently remain until five o'clock, to see Dennis. He wouldn't want her to. His mother wouldn't want her to. But how passionately she wanted to stay, to belong!

How had she gone so far off the track? What did other women do? Why was it that her affairs seemed always to be in the hands of other people for settlement, and she a helpless puppet in everyone's hands?

"It isn't such an extraordinary thing to divorce one man and self. "It's just my luck, I suppose."

But if it was a question of luck, why, everyone said that she was one of the lucky women of the whole world! Not driven, frightened, homeless, hungry; not poor marry another!" she said to herand hard-working and worrying; not old or sick or in grief....

It was nonsense to call this parting with her children "grief." Loaning two small girls to their father and grandmother!

Feen-a-mint

Not a particularly prize specimen the little woman has to look at.

Perhaps Feen-a-mint will help you. It's the modern chewing laxative—deliciously mint-flavored, with a gentle, yet really effective, laxative action. Won't upset the stoch or interfere with sleep taken at bedtime. Milurn to Feen-a-mint. any drug counter.

Merchants Fail to Register 75 P.C. Opinion on Questionnaire, Stores Remain Open Sat. Nights

Merchants of the city, through the medium of a questionnaire sent out by the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, failed to register a 75 per cent opinion for or against Saturday six o'clock closing of stores, and consequently no action will be taken on the matter.

This was revealed at a special meeting of the Division held in the Chamber of Commerce offices on Tuesday under the chairmanship of Harold Seldon.

Merchants failed to live up to the requirements of the questionnaire which requested that 75 per cent of merchants record their opinion, and that 75 per cent of this opinion be for or against closing.

Of the 176 merchnts contacted, 113 completed and returned the questionnaire. This number fell 19 short of the 132, or seventy-five per cent of the number sent out.

Sixty Voted For Closing

Sixty merchants voted for the Saturday night early closing while 53 recorded a negative opinion. This again was not the 75 per cent one way or the other, demanded by the Division before action would be taken.

The questionnaire was the second sent out by the Division during the past few weeks. The first was a distinct disappointment and did not, in the opinion of the Retail Merchants Division, constitute a correct opinion of the city merchants as a whole.

Last week a second questionnaire was drawn up and forwarded to merchants with the above mentioned results.

Plans for a general dinner meeting of the Retail Merchants Division members were discussed and the function will be held in the near future. Many important matters will be discussed at this meeting among which will be a Civic Rest Room for out-of-town shoppers, a resumption of the Santa Claus Parade held during Christmas Week and which was dropped during the war years, and a number of other suggestions which the committee received on completed questionnaires.

Egg Production Up 20 Per Cent

Poultry raisers in the Bay of Quinte district are forcing their laying flocks to take advantage of the prevailing high prices for eggs, it is intimated by the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Volume of eggs being marketed at the present time is approximately 20 per cent greater than that at the same period last year, it was stated. Receipts of poultry at the Peterborough killing plant are also up by about 30 per cent over last year.

In Prince Edward county two carloads of springer cattle have been shipped to Pennsylvania and Vermont within the past week. Silo filling is about 50 per cent completed, while canning corn is a light crop.

In Northumberland fall farm work is progressing and much temporary help could be used by farmers. Canning of tomatoes and corn is at peak, while apple picking is progressing favorably.

Silo filling in Hastings is nearing completion while the demand for springer cattle continues to be strong.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were down 15 cents cwt. at Stratford $19.75 to farmers, $19.90 to truckers, delivered and unchanged at Hull $20 delivered, in markets reporting early today.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—Heavier trading in a handful on secondary golds brought the turnover for the first three hours to 6.04,-000 shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Prices generally upward except for Industrials.

The noon index recorded a loss of .05 at 175.94 for Industrials, Golds 94.30 up .35, Base Metals 78.72 up .37 and Western Oils 21.68 up .09.

Armistice, Chesterville and Duquesne, the three big gainers in the first hour of trading dropped off slightly but still maintained gains of seven, 15 and 16 respectively. Other golds were trading on point to fraction gains and losses.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 2 —(AP)— Gains of fractions to around two points were registered by an assortment of leaders in the stock market today.

The upward movement failed to attract sustained demand and as bidding slackened a number of extreme gains were shaded near the fourth hour. Rails, steels, motors, utilities and merchandising shares reflected fair support.

Canadian issues were on the upswing at midday. Hiram Walker and McIntyre each advanced ½ and Distillers Seagram ¾. Canadian Pacific softened ¼.

REPORTER

But the well-fed visitor of 72 hours' "coasting" on his reserves feels only an occasional desire. He is assured within a week desire will become yearning—yearning for the little things, the amenities that make life worthwhile.

While no one is hungry, eating out in post-war London is more than a problem. At times it is almost impossible with block-long queues for luncheon, tea or dinner. Then it is that temptation with a capital "T" tugs tantalizingly at the visitor with a good supply of chocolate, cheese and other tidbits brought from food-rich North America for friends and relatives in a country where food is the number one topic of conversation.

Then there is the laundry. A Londoner asks at this point: "What laundry?" But the visitor with a well-filled bag soon learns that judicious presentation of a bar or two of soap to a hotel chambermaid produces in a reasonably short time a laundered shirt. Present-day laundries not only require three weeks for the same service but not infrequently come up with no shirt.

What Britain can do when she regains her stride is on display at a "Britain Can Make It" exhibition in South Kensington. Ironic thought to Britons are attendant tags on the products on display: 'available later,' 'available soon,' "available now."

More than a pin-prick to travellers is the almost complete lack of places to obtain a shoeshine. They are available only in the west end as a rule. Almost non existent is the pleasant old English custom of putting one's shoes outside the hotel room door at night and retrieving them gleaming in the morning. Too many were pinched.

Neckwear is scarce too. But so are drinking glasses. A half-hour of exhortation and expenditure of four shillings (80 cents) were necessary to borrow two glasses from a hotel lounge waiter.

Have you seen an egg—a real egg—lately?

Retired Justice, Supreme Court, Dies in B.C.

Vancouver, Oct. 2 — (CP) — Hon. W. A. Macdonald, 86, retired Justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, died at his home last night. He suffered a heart attack.

Born at St. Catharines, he came west in 1883, and before moving to the coast became one of western Canada's best-known frontier barristers and political warriors.

He was a former member of the Manitoba Legislature, heading the Conservative opposition in 1893 in the days of Sir Clifford Sifton. He lived at Brandon, Man., for some years.

Later, Mr. Justice Macdonald moved to Nelson, B.C., where he became a leading figure in the Kootenays, coming to Vancouver in 1909.

He was appointed to the bench in 1913, serving in the Supreme Court until his retirement 13 years ago.

The affable, white-bearded jurist was a keen sportsman, and a star in the hurly-burly days of lacrosse at St. Catharines. He was first president of the Vancouver Curling Club, honorary president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, and had held office in the British Columbia Canadian Rugby Football Union.

Three daughters survive. Funeral services will be held Saturday.

Family Appears On Various Charges

Timmins, Oct. 2 — (CP) — A father, mother and son appeared yesterday in Timmins court on a variety of charges and were remanded on bail for one week. Police charged the mother, Mrs. Katrine Zareky, with shoplifting; her miner-husband, John Zareky, with illegal possession of a still; and the couple's 22-year-old son, Frank with unlawful possession of a high-grade ore.

Arrest of the mother on a charge of stealing a pair of trousers from a downtown department store led to the other charges against the family, police said. Investigators raided the home and, they said, found about $1,200 worth of new clothing, a still and a parcel of gold ore.

There is scarcely an adult person in the world today who has not heard of the Kremlin, from which a handful of men rule the vast empire that is the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Yet, not a great many of those people have any idea of what the Kremlin looks like. Here is an unusually comprehensive photograph of the Kremlin, a city in itself within Moscow. The two towers in foreground are a pair of the 19 witch towers which punctuate the length of the wall that surrounds the Kremlin for two kilometers. Between these two towers is seen St. Andrew's Palace, which houses some government offices. The large building in centre is the Kremlin Palace. Built by Czar Nicholas in 1838-'49, it is used for holding meetings of the supreme Soviet and houses countless government agencies and offices. The multi-towered buildings at RIGHT is the former supreme church of Russia, now unused as a religious building. It houses the famed Ivan belfry. The Moscau River runs along this length of wall in RIGHT FOREGROUND. In immediate foreground in the picture is part of the battlement of the Kamenny bridge across the Moscau River from which the photograph was made.

We wanted an unbiased opinion about Dynafuel. And who could be more expert —more critical—in judging gasoline performance than car dealers?

Leading car dealers in 93 communities in Ontario and Quebec were offered a trial quantity of Dynafuel and were asked, in writing, to test this product in one of the cars they sell—to try it under all conditions.

After comparing Dynafuel with any other gasoline they had ever used, 171 reported their findings in writing—and here is how they voted:—

92.4% SAID DYNAFUEL PERFORMED "BETTER"

4.7% SAID "JUST AS GOOD"

ONLY 2.9% SAID "NOT AS GOOD"

12 to 1 that Dynafuel performs better than any other gasoline they ever used.

Steelworkers Vote to Return to Work

Settlement Terms Not Announced By Union Officers

Indicated, However, Workers Will Receive 13½ cts Raise

Toronto, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) voted 7,169 to 789 to end the basic steel strike and now await word from Steel Controller F. B. Kilbourn of Montreal as to when they return to work.

This was announced today by the union's national office reporting on ballotting Tuesday and yesterday in the three basic steel plants in which strikes were called July 15 to enforce demands for higher wages and shorter hours.

C. H. Millard, the union's national director, telegraphed the result of the vote to Mr. Kilbourn and asked him to designate the officials with whom the union would deal in ending the walkout. It said the union would withdraw its picket lines and send its men back to the plants on Mr. Kilbourn's instructions.

No Announcement

There still has been no official announcement as to the terms of settlement. The union first asked 19½-cent hourly increases at Algoma Steel at Sault Ste. Marie and Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton and a 24½-cent increase at Dominion Steel at Sydney. Later it agreed to accept a 15½ cent increase at the two Ontario plants but held out for removal of the five cent wage differential for the Nova Scotia workers.

Unofficial reports indicate the settlement plan called for a 13-cent increase, with other points indispute to be settled by an arbitrator, T. H. Rahilly of Toronto, a wartime official in the steel controller's office and former manager of Algoma Steel.

Union officials said any announcement as to details of the terms would have to come from Mr. Kilbourn, named controller of basic steel last July in a fruitless effort by the government to avert the walkout.

7,980 Votes Cast

Murray Cotterill, publicity director of the union, said 7,980 of an eligible 12,000 members voted on the settlement proposal. He said the vote was light because many strikers had taken temporary jobs elsewhere and were not able to cast their ballots.

Mr. Cotterill gave the following figures by plants:

Algoma — yes 2,139; no 173; spoiled ballots three.

Stelco (Hamilton works)—yes 2,173; no 112; spoiled three.

Stelco (Canada works) — yes 502; no 18; spoiled two.

Dosco — yes 2,355; no 486; spoiled 14.

Totals — yes 7,169; no 789; spoiled 22.

Large Vote in Favor

At an early hour today the word from Sydney, N.S., was that steelworkers in the three centres of Canadian steel production — Sydney, Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., had accepted proposals to end the strike which had its kick-off in Hamilton last July 14.

This was the unofficial report on strikers' acceptance of settlement proposals:

At the Steel Company of Canada plant in Hamilton: 20 to one in favor.

At Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, Sydney: Five to one in favor.

At Algoma Steel Corporation, the Sault: 12 to one in favor.

BARUCH DEMANDS WALLACE CORRECT HIS "MISTAKES"

Errors Made He Claims in Criticizing U. S. Atomic Control Plan

New York, Oct. 3 — (AP) — Bernard M. Baruch, United States delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, stood firmly today on a sharp demand that former commerce secretary Henry Wallace correct publicly the "mistakes" that Mr. Baruch said Mr. Wallace made in criticizing the United States atomic control plan.

Speaking at a press conference last night, the 76-year-old elder statesman declared Mr. Wallace had admitted personally to him last Friday in his office that he was in error and then had not signed a statement acknowledging the asserted errors which was prepared later by representatives of Messrs. Baruch and Wallace at their direction.

Mr. Baruch made it clear that the United States delegation could not consider any modification in the "fundamental principles" of its plan, which was attacked at length by Mr. Wallace in a letter on foreign policy written last July 23 while Mr. Wallace was in office.

The United States delegate released, with the direct authorization of President Truman, a long memorandum to the president answering Mr. Wallace's letter point by point. He also released the statement which he said Mr. Wallace did not sign; an alternate statement submitted to him by Mr. Wallace which he rejected, and a telegram dispatched by Mr. Baruch to Mr. Wallace late yesterday charging that the "errors" are "gravely dangerous to the delicate negotiations now under way" and that they "create confusion and division among our people."

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER OF WAR SAYS MR. BYRNES

Conflict of Viewpoints Among the Allies Is Serious, Secretary States at Luncheon

By RELMAN MORIN

Paris, Oct. 3 — (AP) — State Secretary James Byrnes of the United States, said today that "the conflict of viewpoints among the Allies" is serious, but he echoed a recent statement by Prime Minister Stalin that there is no immediate danger of war.

Mr. Byrnes spoke at a luncheon of the American Club in Paris.

"After every great war which has been won by the combined efforts of many nations, there has been a conflict among the Allies in the making of peace," Mr. Byrnes said in his prepared address. "It would be folly to deny the seriousness of the conflict in viewpoints among the Allies after this war.

"To ignore that conflict or minimize its seriousness will not solve the conflict nor help us along the road to peace.

"To exaggerate that conflict and its seriousness, on the other hand, only makes more difficult the resolution of the conflict.

"I concur most heartily in the view recently expressed by Generalissimo Stalin that there is no immediate danger of war. I hope that his statement will put an end to the unwarranted charges that any nation or group of nations is seeking to encircle the Soviet Union, or that the responsible leaders of the Soviet Union so believe."

Art Objects Bring Over $100,000 At Guelph Sale

Guelph, Oct. 3 (CP)— The art objects the Halls from Natinghamshire, England, collected over the years they resided in Guelph grew to a value far beyond the estimates of their late owners.

When Francis Hall, descendant of the original family, died in 1928 a value of $15,000 was placed on his household goods, including pictures. When his wife —the former Flora Caroline Hamilton of Hamilton, Ont.,—died in 1939 the estimated value had grown to $19,500.

But last week, when the family heirlooms were sold at public auction, collectors paid more than $100,000. Paintings commanded high prices. Gainsborough's "Fisherman, Horse and Cart" brought $6,000 and Sir Joshua Reynolds' "Girl and Dead Bird" $2,800.

The success of the sale swells the value of Mrs. Hall's estate far beyond its probate value of $174,953. Beneficiaries in Ontario include Walter Joseph Hamilton, Niagara Falls.

Move to Reduce Hungary Payment To Russia Defeated

U.S. Claims it an Attempt To Save Country From Fall

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Oct. 3 (AP)—The United States was rebuffed, 7 to 5 by a peace conference commission today in an attempt to slash $100,000,000 from Hungarian reparations to Russia and two other Slav countries, after a Soviet delegate assailed the proposal as an "unfriendly act."

United States State Department representative Willard Thorp, who said he presented the amendment in an attempt to save Hungary's economy from collapse, also sought to cut $100,000,000 from the reparations to be paid by Finland.

The American defeat quickly followed a western nation victory in the long and bitter fight over Trieste in the Italian political and territorial commission.

Only Australia, Canada, New Zealand and South Africa supported the United States move to reduce Hungary's payments to Russia, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia from $300,000,000 to $200,000,000. The commission adopted the Russian-backed provision under which Russia is to get two thirds of this total, Yugoslavia, $70,000,000 and Czechoslovakia, $30,000.

Britain and France, holding they were bound by big four commitments, voted with Russia and the Slav countries against the proposal. Greece and India abstained.

Delegates of Russia and the five Slavic states had fought doggedly all through the night against a French compromise proposal for establishment of a new free state of Trieste to be governed by the United Nations Security Council, but went down to defeat, 14 to 6.

Two Men Escape From Bancroft Jail After Vicious Attack on Guard

Provincial police throughout Eastern Ontario were alerted at mid-morning Thursday following the report of a jail break at Bancroft where two men picked the lock of their cell room, struck their guard over the head with a piece of hardwood and made good their escape after locking their guard in the cell room, and relieving him of $60.

The escaped men are Kenneth Jackson, alias Holland, age 26, of Brantford, and Royce Seymour, age 23 of Toronto. Both men have police records, with the former having served time at Kingston penitentiary.

Guard Locked in Cell

Provincial Constable Stan Palmateer of Bancroft discovered the jail break at 8:45 this morning when he reported for duty at the police station. As he opened the police door he was attracted by the feeble calling of his turnkey Frank Askey who was locked in one of the three cell blocks.

Later Askey stated that the two men had picked the lock of their cell block and coming up behind him struck him over the head with a piece of hardwood. The two men then carried the unconscious turnkey back into the cell and locked him in.

The two escaped men, with a third member of their party, were arrested about two weeks ago by P. C. Palmateer near Apsley following a three-day hunt by police. Police first got on their trail near Madoc where a township farmer had returned home at night to find his household furniture being loaded onto a car.

Arrested Near Apsley

Police were notified but the three men escaped into the woods before their arrival at the scene. The same night a car was reported stolen at Madoc and P. C. Palmateer continuing the search arrested the men two days later as they were asleep in the car near Apsley.

Remanded in custody the three men appeared in Bancroft on Tuesday on three charges of car theft and two charges of breaking and entering. They were to appear for sentence Wednesday morning before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd.

Airhart, the third man of the party, is still in custody at Bancroft, having been locked in a separate cell from Seymour and Jackson. When the latter two escaped they left Airhart locked in his cell.

Life-giving Grain Pouring Into Port of Vancouver

By GEORGE FINLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Life-giving grain for the millions of food-starved people in many world areas today is pouring into the port of Vancouver from the Prairies.

Some ships are on the high seas, bound for the United Kingdom and far off India, carrying large cargoes of wheat from the 1946 Saskatchewan and Alberta crops.

Grain men predict a record year for Pacific ports, with Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster, and possibly Prince Rupert, sharing in the golden cargoes for world markets.

Possibly a quarter of the 440,000,000 bushels wheat crop will be moved through Vancouver for the United Kingdom, and there may be a re-opening of the grain trade with the Orient and South America. India will be a big customer.

George McIvor, chairman of the Canadian wheat board, is here on a survey.

"The board will try to direct the maximum volume of grain through this port because it is cheaper for us," he said.

"We will co-operate with the railways. Every effort will be made to secure the greatest number of cars."

No shortage of ships is expected. Vancouver and the ports of Victoria and New Westminster report increased arrivals from world ports, many of the vessels seeking cargoes of lumber for the war-torn countries of Europe and food grains to feed the hungry millions.

Vancouver's biggest grain year was 13 years ago when 96,872,000 bushels of the 1932-33 crop went through this port. In that year, 63,000,000 bushels were shipped to Britain. Shipments to United Kingdom last year totalled 24,000,000.

Do Utmost to Keep Industrial Peace And Maintain Production—Truman

Washington, Oct. 3 — (AP) — President Truman today called on business, labor and consumers to do their "utmost to keep industrial peace" and to "maintain production."

He said in a press conference statement that the reconversion record thus far "adds up to a splendid achievement . . . but we must not pause to congratulate ourselves. A difficult struggle lies before us.

"We must do our utmost to keep industrial peace, to maintain production at present levels where it is high, and to spur it to higher levels where it is lagging."

Mr. Truman said he hopes every businessman, worker, farmer, and consumer will "take to heart" that "an all-out emphasis on production of finished goods and on preventing a further increase in prices is the task immediately before us."

He singled out the latter expression of opinion from the quarterly report of reconversion director John R. Steelman. The presidential statement was made in connection with the report.

Mr. Steelman cautioned that a further rapid price rise might lead to severe economic collapse with serious economic and social consequences.

THREE ACQUITTED PERMITTED TO LEAVE U.S. ZONE

Schacht, Von Papen, Fritsche Protected Against Arrest By German Courts

By G. K. HODENFIELD

Nuernberg, Oct. 3 (AP) — Franz Von Papen, Hans Fritsche and Hjalmar Schacht, the three Nazi leaders acquitted by the international military tribunal, will be escorted to the British zone tonight or tomorrow by American military personnel, defence counsel said tonight.

All three will be taken to Hamburg, from whence Schacht will proceed to his home in Schleswig-Holstein, counsel said.

Anton Pfeiffer, chief denazification officer for Bavaria, announced he had been instructed to give the three a guarantee of "safe conduct," protecting them from arrest by German denazification courts in the American zone.

Defence counsel said the trio would leave at an unannounced time and would follow a secret route.

Pfeiffer, chief denazification officer for Bavaria, said he had been instructed that the trio are to be guaranteed "safe conduct" but must leave the zone.

This protection from any prosecution by German courts is only temporary and covers their departure from Nuernberg jail and the zone, he asserted.

Pfeiffer said he got his instructions from Brig.-Gen. Walter Muller, United States military governor of Bavaria, who in turn got them from Lt.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy United States military governor in Berlin.

RUINS OF BREBEUF CHURCH DISCOVERED

Waubaushene, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Archaelogists yesterday discovered on the site of a former Huron Indian village three miles southwest of here the 300-year-old ruins of the church of the martyred Jesuit Father St. Jean de Brebeuf. W. W. Jury, curator of the Museum of Indian Archaeology of the University of Western Ontario and leader of the group which made the discovery, said the church was 60 feet wide and 90 feet long. It stood in the centre of the stockaded Indian village of St. Ignace II.

11 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

Woodstock, Oct. 3 (CP) — Sentences totalling 11 years were passed yesterday on 36-year-old Robert Dennis Whitney of Woodstock for the armed robbery of two banks on three occasions. The self-confessed holdup man twice robbed the sub-branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at Beachville, five miles west of here, and once the sub-branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Hickson, 14 miles north of here.

SUPPLY SHIP RETURNS

Halifax, Oct. 3 (CP)—The 530-to R.C.A.F. wooden supply ship, Eskimo, slipped into berth at Dartmouth last night after completing what the records describe as an "uneventful" six-weeks voyage through 5,300 miles of Arctic waters. With a 23-man crew, the Eskimo left Halifax Aug. 21, the day after her sister ship, Beaver, foundered and was lost on an unchartered reef at the entrance to James Bay.

PEN FIRM GIVES INCREASE

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—Wage increase up to 25 cents an hour for men and 15 cents for women have been granted 375 employees of the Parker Pen Co., here, following signing of a company-union agreement, Alex Reith, Grand Lodge Representative of the International Association of Machinists (AFL) said yesterday.

Liner Queen Elizabeth Ready For First Post-War Trip as Luxury Ship

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Southampton, England, Oct. 3 (CP Cable)—The Queen Elizabeth, queen of the world's oceans, tugged impatiently at her moorings today, eager to be off on the career for which she was built.

Before the great vessel lies a trial cruise to test her speed, expected to top 30 knots, and a visit from the Queen by and for whom she was named. Then she's off for New York on her first voyage as a luxurious floating hotel plying the North Atlantic.

With nearly 500,000 miles of war service behind her, the 83,673-ton Queen Elizabeth has undergone a transformation in the last seven months.

Refitted from stem to stern, she will sail for North America from Southampton Oct. 16. Possibly she will attempt to crack the speed record of three days, 20 hours, 42 minutes set by her sistership, the Queen Mary, in 1938 from Ambrose Light to Bishop Rock—a distance of 2,938 miles.

On her five-day trial, beginning Saturday, the liner will race over a measured mile somewhere in the Atlantic. The trip will be broken at Greenock, Scotland, Tuesday where she will play host at sea to Queen Elizabeth, who christened the ship Sept. 27, 1938, and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret. It will be the Queen's first voyage aboard her namesake.

Everything was ready today for the Queen Elizabeth's maiden voyage as a luxury liner when a party of North American newspapermen who will travel aboard her to New York toured the gleaming ship at her Southampton mooring.

The 1,031-foot vessel, the world's largest, is dressed for the first time in her company's colors—a paint job that required 30 tons of paint for the outside hull alone. For the first time in seven years luxuries such as swimming pools, bedside telephone service to any part of the world, gymnasiums, winter gardens and Turkish baths will be available to ocean travellers.

Aboard her Oct. 16 will be a full complement of passengers: 850 first-class, 729 cabin and 744 tourist.

Passenger Plane Hits Hillside, Plunges in Flames

Possibility of Survivors Very Remote Say Officials

New York, Oct. 3 —(AP)— An American Overseas Airlines plane with 39 persons aboard — three of them infants — plunged in flames into the wilderness of western Newfoundland early today in what may be the greatest tragedy in the history of American commercial aviation.

(Reuters News Agency, in a St. John's, Nfld., dispatch, said there were 38 passengers and eight crew members aboard.)

The United tates Coast Guard reported the possibility of survivors was very remote.

The United States Coast Guard reported the possibility of surcrashed 10 minutes after it left Stephenville, Nfld., at 3:24 a.m., E.S.T.

The Coast Guard, in a radio message sent at 9:48 a.m., E.S.T., said three persons, believed to be Newfoundland civilians, were at the scene and an army searching party was at the foot of the hill into which the plane crashed.

The message said the searching party had one-half mile to go. The plane crashed 100 feet from the top of the hill, which is covered with rocks and scrub trees.

The message sent from a coast guard plane at the scene, said the airliner appeared to have exploded after the crash and that only a tiny fragment of the ship was visible. There was a heavy rain at the time.

It was the second plane tragedy in the Newfoundland wilds in two weeks. On Sept. 18 a Belgian Sabina airliner crashed near Gander, killing 27 of the 44 aboard.

On West Coast

Stephenville is on the west coast of Newfoundland, approximately 225 miles west of Gander airport.

First reports from relatives of the passengers indicated some of the women and children were en route to Germany to join their husbands.

At Gander, officials of the airline said rescue planes which flew over the area reported the wreckage still was burning four hours after the crash and that it was unlikely anyone aboard was alive.

The big plane, a Skymaster, smashed into a hillside 10 miles from Harmon Field at Stephenville, where it had refuelled because the Gander airport was closed in with rain and fog. The ceiling at Harmon Field was 5,000 feet and visibility 10 miles.

Helicopter Sent to Scene

The coast guard dispatched a B-17 and a helicopter from Argentia, Nfld., the helicopter was expected to reach the scene at 2.30 p.m. E.S.T. today.

There have been three 27-victim plane crashes in American commercial aviation. In addition to the Sabina crash, other such crashes involved an America Airlines plane at San Diego, Calif., March 3, 1946, and a non-scheduled Viking Airline plunge near Richmond, Va., last May 16.

The special assistant to the commanding general for search and rescue of the Atlantic Division of the Air Transport Command reported at Fort Totten, N.Y., that paratroopers from the 18th Air Transport Command at Presque Isle, Me., and Goose Bay, Labrador, were speeding to Harmon Field, Stephenville, to take part in the search and necessary rescue work.

Low ceilings and rains are prevailing near the scene of the wreck, the coast guard said.

31 Passengers Aboard

Persons aboard the plane were eight crew members, including a stewardess, and 31 passengers.

In a message to the coast guard, the North Atlantic Ocean Patrol commander said:

"Army air searchers report that the possibility of survivors are doubtful. Rescue parties on foot may reach the scene in four to eight hours."

Nineteen of the passengers were booked for Frankfurt, Germany; nine from New York to Berlin, and three from New York to Amsterdam, Holland.

No Sign of Life

New York, Oct. 3 — (AP)—An air force transport captain said on his arrival at La Guardia Field today that he flew over the wreckage of the American Overseas Airline plane near Harmon Field, Newfoundland, and saw the plane had been burned completely and there was no sign of life nearby.

The captain, who did not immediately identify himself to reporters, said he had flown over the wreckage two hours after the crash.

$100,000 FIRE LOSS

Chatham, Oct. 3—(CP)—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused by a fire yesterday which demolished a three-storey building and its contents on the poultry farm of Albert McCulley, 10 miles east of here. In the building were 3,500 hens, a number of eggs, and tons of feed.

SURE OF 38 SEATS

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 3 — (CP)—Australia's Labor government — which early this week seemed certain to win at least 45 seats in last Saturday's general elections — today was sure of only 38. That number, however, was just sufficient to give the government an absolute majority in a house of 74 voting representatives. The 75th member, the speaker, has no vote.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)— Warm, dry air moving in from the west combined with bright sunshine to bring a marked change on Wednesday from the cold weather of the previous day, maximum temperatures in Southern Ontario ranged from 45 degrees at Ottawa to 71 at Windsor. Minimum temperatures Wednesday night in Southern Ontario were quite variable, from 46 at Windsor to 26 at Killaloe Airport, a low lying station in the Haliburton region. Southerly winds have been bringing warm air northward over the upper Great Lakes and the plains to the west, with temperatures in the eighties in South Dakota yesterday. However, colder air is flowing southward over southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, accompanied by snow and rain.

City and District News

PEDESTRIANS WARNED FROM DANGEROUS AREA

A workman standing on the pavement outside the Dominion Bank made strange motions as pedestrians passed by this morning.

He pointed to the curb and made sweeping motions with his arm. Puzzled people halted and looked at him. Then, unannounced, came the reason.

A piece of masonry crashed on the pavement alongside the workman followed by another, then another. Pedestrians hurriedly got out of the way, as pieces of rubble came down. Up above workmen were busy, tearing mortar and stone.

The first workman's motions indicated to pedestrians that they must step off the pavement well out into the roadway if they did not want to be hurt by the falling debris.

CHESS CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED IN CITY

Chess players of the city and district may find an organized outlet for their chief sport this winter, if present plans of John Shaw, Front Street business man materialize.

Mr. Shaw expects to organize a chess club for the city and surrounding areas and will personally donate a handsome trophy for annual competition. He feels there are a number of good players in the district who will welcome such a move.

AUTOMOBILE DAMAGED BY SHUNTED BOXCAR

Henry C. Mollison, 23 Murney Street, escaped without injury shortly after five-thirty Wednesday morning when the automobile he was driving was struck by a shunted freight car at the Bleecker Avenue crossing of the Canadian National Railways.

According to police Mollison was driving south on Bleecker Ave., and failed to stop at the railroad crossing despite the fact that two brakemen gave him the signal to stop. As the Mollison driven car crossed onto the track the left side of the vehicle was struck by the freight car proceeding westerly.

Brakemen guarding the crossing at the time were Harold Clarke, Foxboro Road, and J. McDonald, Cannifton Road. Damages to the car were in excess of $150, it was estimated.

FRACTURES PELVIS

Suffering a fractured pelvis when she fell to the sidewalk after being in collision with another pedestrian, Mrs. Lewis Walters, 77, of 29 Dunbar Street, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital Wednesday afternoon.

Fred Marner, 58 Burton Street, reported to police that he had been walking north on Front Street near Wray's Furniture Store when the aged woman walked into him and fell to the sidewalk. The woman got to her feet with difficulty and was accompanied to her home by Marner in a taxi. Later she was admitted to hospital. Mrs. Walters was on her way home from work at a local photographic studio when the accident occurred.

Normandie to Bring $161,680 as Junk

Washington, Oct. 3 — (AP) — The fire-ruined Normandie, once the world's fastest and largest liner, will bring $161,680 as junk.

The Maritime Commission announced yesterday it accepted the bid of Lipsett, Inc., of New York, equivalent to a return to the government of $3.80 a ton of scrap. It was the highest of five, the announcement said.

The $60,000,000 Normandie, acquired from the French, was being converted into a troopship when she caught fire at New York, Feb. 9, 1942, and capsized. The navy righted her. Restoration would not justify the cost, the commission said.

Greatest Tourist Year In County's History Revealed by Survey

Even at this lateness of the season, all signs point increasingly to the probability that 1946 will earn the title of Ontario's and Hastings County's greatest tourist year, according to the Chamber of Commerce officials here.

While definite figures for this county were not readily available, it was estimated through a rough survey that the most tourists in ten years either holidayed here or passed through on their way to vacation spots of the district.

During the past two weeks and up to yesterday the Chamber of Commerce tourist division has been besieged with requests for overnight accommodation. These came from vacationists on their way home from various parts of the district and surrounding areas who were benighted here.

A new angle in vacation requests is seen in a large number of inquiries from outside points especially the United States for accommodation for winter sportsmen with emphasis on snowshoeing and skiing.

These have been referred to the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce where a new skiing club has been formed. A representative from Cobourg, in the city the other day, stated that a new winter sports clubhouse will be erected as soon as building materials are available. An extensive advertising campaign will be carried on in Hastings and other surrounding counties this winter

July Biggest Month

July was the biggest tourist month in history here as well as in Ontario. According to official statistics released by the government, travellers' vehicle permits in Ontario were issued to 187,783 motorists. This eclipses all previously recorded monthly tallies. These permits were 77.4 per cent higher than for the same month in 1945. Permits issued for the first seven months of 1946 exceeded 1945 by 99.3 per cent.

A sharp upsweep in non-permit vehicles has also been noted this year. A total of 1,411,419 vehicles entered Ontario during the first seven months as compared to 1,095,550 for a comparative period in 1945.

A survey of statistics on vacations conducted by the United States Department of Commerce shows the following trend. That many men like to vacation by themselves, whereas women like to go where there are plenty of men; That many men like to spend their vacations fishing; that swimming is the most popular sport of vacationists; that school teachers are the world's best travellers and that if incomes keep up, Americans will spend ten billion dollars on vacations this year.

Jack Elder Heard At Kiwanis Club

An address on "Fellowship and Friendship" both witty and serious was given members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Hotel Quinte by Jack Elder, comedian and radio entertainer, past president of the Kingston Rotary Club and president for two years of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Jack has been a force in his community for many years and he has made many friends in Kingston and district.

President Mark Vanner announced during the meeting that a discussion on the recent resolution adopted by the directors would be discussed at open meeting of the club next Tuesday. It is proposed to increase the directorate to eleven owing to the largeness of the club membership and from this directorate choose those who wish to run for president and vice president with the whole club membership included in the voting. This is a radical departure from the constitution as now adopted and a large attendance is requested so that a free opinion may be expressed.

Take Selves Too Seriously

Mr. Elder who was introduced by Gordon Barclay, stated that a service club meeting was one place where a man could let his hair down and become young again. He believed there were too many serious addresses and discussions at luncheons and that luncheons should be a place where members can know each other better and then promote better friendships. "I think we take ourselves too seriously at times and that we keep our noses too close to the grindstone", said the speaker, and "what we need is fellowship. Some say there is no sentiment in business but I disagree most heartily, because there is a strong bond between myself and my customers and I am thankful I can call them all friends. If any man who served overseas is asked what he misses most he will instantly tell you the friendship of his pals. You can buy almost anything with money but friendship and fellowship takes just a little time." The speaker interspersed his remarks with many funny stories. Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Cliff Baragar.

James Donovan Killed in Fall Near Upper Bridge

Believed to have suffered a fractured skull when he fell from the steel railing to the rocks of the river bed just east of the Upper Bridge, Mr. James Donovan, age 40, Cannifton Road, died in Belleville General Hospital at mid-afternoon Wednesday.

According to police who investigated the accident, Mr. Donovan was sitting alone on the top of the steel railing when in some manner he lost his balance and fell about 20 feet to the rocks below. Critically injured Mr. Donovan was carried from the river bed by members of the Belleville Fire Department and rushed to hospital. He died a few minutes later.

A preliminary inquest was held at the hospital last evening before Coroner Dr. G. S. Cronk and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, the inquest being adjourned following identification until Tuesday evening, Oct. 15th at the city police station.

Born in Belleville, Mr. Donovan was the son of the late Michael Donovan and Catharine Magan and had lived in Belleville all his life where he was employed by the Canadian National Railways as shopman. He was a member of St. Michael's Church.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Kathleen Cochrane, are four sons, Gordon, Carl, Ronald and Jack, and two daughters, Barbara and Patricia, all at home. Three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Harris, Mary Donovan and Lena Donovan, and three brothers, John, Leo and Eugene Donovan, all of Belleville, also survive.

Resting at the Corrigan and O'Brien Funeral Home, 30 Moira St., W. The funeral announcement appears in this edition.

Bethlehem Shrine To Hold Tag Day

With proceeds earmarked for the purchase of comforts for patients in military hospitals at Christie Street, in Toronto and at Kingston, the Bethlehem Shrine, No. 11, White Shrine of Jerusalem, is holding a tag day in Belleville on Saturday. Citizens of the city and district are asked for their customary generous support.

Comforts supplied by the White Shrine of Jerusalem for convalescent veterans now working their way back to health are of lasting benefit and such that will be much appreciated by the patients. Last year wheel chairs were presented to Christie Street Hospital, while the proceeds of Saturday's tag day will be used for the purchase of radios and wheel chairs.

Douglas Harry, R. R. 5, Trenton, had the highest standing in the Hastings County Junior Farmers' home plowing competition which was judged on Sept. 30th. by Winfred Timber of Stouffville, York county.

The competition was conducted on the home farms of the contestants where at least three acres were plowed by each entrant. It was the first competition of its kind held in Hastings with nine contestants entering. Second place honors were won by Keith Sills, Belleville, R. R. 2. The two top contestants will represent the county at the International Plowing Match to be held at Port Albert, Huron county, on Oct. 18th.

Other winners in the Hastings competition were Gerald Eggleton, Belleville, R. R. 6; Francis Shannon, Plainfield; Joe Hulsman, Marmora, 2; Harley Hubble, Trenton 5; Mac Lazier, Corbyville and Duane Martin of Corbyville.

Fifty dollars in prizes will be divided among the group of contestants.

In preparation for their appearance at the International Plowing Match, the two top winners of the Hastings contest were coached on Oct. 1st. on the farm of Mr. G. Sills, Belleville, R. R. 2, by Mr. Timbers who gave them a worthwhile demonstration on match plowing.

Kinsmen Initiate Move To Erect $35,000 Arena

Picton, Oct. 3 — Steps to carry out the erection of a $35,000 arena here were taken yesterday by the Kinsmen Club, sponsors of the project. Members took off their coats, felled trees and cleared debris from the property, corner Downs Ave. and King St. Plans for the arena have already been secured. There would be seating capacity for 1,500, full-size ice surface, dressing rooms, showers, and other features.

Complete details of financing the project have not been released but one feature will give everyone interested an opportunity to help. All employees in town will be asked to contribute ten cents a week for one year, this in the total amounting to a substantial sum. Campaign committee includes Fred Stafford, Dayton Wark, Bill McLean, Jesse Mason, Harold Herrington, Vernon Lockwood, Jack Lelieup. The property purchased has been placed under trusteeship of Dr. K. E. McQueen, Dr. E. D. Fyffe and Fred Stafford.

The arena would be available for work in connection with the community centre, with all profits being used for community welfare work and sports.

SETTLEMENT

The strikers had asked a 15-cents-an-hour wage increase, union security and other things but when voting on the 13-cents-an-hour proposal—10 cents of it to be retroactive to last April 1 — started Monday that proposal already had been endorsed by the national negotiating committee of the union.

Other issues, including union security, were down for mediation, when ballotting was called for Monday in Hamilton, Tuesday in the Sault and yesterday in Sydney it appeared acceptance of the settlement plan was assured but it was anybody's guess when full production would be resumed.

May be Two Weeks

Guesses ranged up to two or three weeks, depending on what repairs and preparations are necessary in the plants of which only Stelco maintained operations during the 81-day strike. But even at Hamilton, where upwards of 2,500 men remained on plant property 24 hours a day, production was only on a partial basis. The company held it was 50 per cent of normal.

Immediately the strike was called to enforce demands for a 40-hour work week and a minimum weekly wage of $33.60 the union set up a picket line in Hamilton. It kept continuous vigil, had frequent brushes with authority, during the strike.

The strike, which came at a critical stage in Canada's reconstruction program, put a halt to many building projects by cutting off supplies of structural steel, nails, sheet metal and various types of fixtures. It also reduced the supply of coke available for winter.

Strike Cost $250,000

The union estimated yesterday that the strike cost it more than $250,000, including $50,000 spent for food in Hamilton. Men on the picket lines ate 300,000 sandwiches and drank 500,000 cups of coffee. The union spent another $33,461 on food vouchers for strikers' families.

The Steel Company of Canada announced that it had served more than 500,000 meals to the men at work in the plant. It used two planes and five ships to keep its supply lines to the beleaguered plant open and shipped 15,000 tons of finished steel by water. No steel moved out by rail during the strike but 300 railway cars loaded with steel awaited clearance at the end of the strike.

The strike was noteworthy for the operation of the plant by workers who stayed inside — a departure from the practice occasionally used by sending workers in and out through picket lines. Secondly, the union in Hamilton closed its picket line to all comers and defied city police efforts to re-open it for passage of men and materials.

Canadian Bacon Quality Well Maintained in Britain

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

South Harrow, Middlesex, England, Oct. 3 —(CP)— In this typical English community thousands of housewives each week buy the three ounces of bacon allowed for each member of their household without knowing or caring whether it comes from Canada, Denmark, England or Ireland.

But the grocers know that some 60 per cent of their bacon is from Canada and they say its quality is just like that of Denmark. The Danes used to ship bacon with a milder cure — that is, less salty — than the Canadian but now the Danish bacon too has to be prepared to keep for a considerable time. The British Food Ministry likes to have a product that can be stored, and the ministry does all the buying. Denmark is just re-entering the bacon market it dominated before the war.

Apart from commenting that bacon is saltier than pre-war, the average British consumer cannot tell the difference between bacon from different countries, although a tradition lingers that fat bacon is "American," and "American" is apt to include Canada. When British authorities permit sliced bacon to be sold in packages through which Canadian bacon quality can be advertised, the chances of retaining the United Kingdom bacon market will be improved.

The prices are the same for bacon from all countries, as supplies are pooled by the food ministry. Thus top quality sliced bacon from anywhere costs 2s 4d. (48 cents) a pound for back. The price runs down to 1s 5d, for hock.

Wholesalers said that Canadian bacon quality had been well-maintained in recent times but in pre-war years the record had not always been good. They said they always felt the Danes were outstanding in providing continuity of supplies of the exact grades required, the Danish marketing system even taking into account the bacon preferences of United Kingdom localities, fatter sides being popular in districts where men are engaged in heavy work, like coal miners and steel workers. They said they did not doubt Canada also would learn the best way of marketing her bacon when unrestricted trading again is allowed and the food ministry steps to one side.

Quality as much as price will be a factor when Canada begins selling her bacon to individual agencies rather than to the government, grocers said. They were confident the Canadian product, if maintained at present quality levels, would do well.

Under existing contracts Britain pays Denmark the following prices for bacon in hundredweights, comparable Canadian contract prices in brackets:

1946-47 $26.98 (25); 1947-48 $25.10 ($25); 1948-49 $21.59 ($22.50).

U.S. Press Hails Results Of Nuernberg Trials

New York, Oct. 3—(AP)—The United States press almost unanimously hailed the results of the Nuernberg trials as the prime example of the "kind of justice we had hoped would prevail in a world in which free men had triumphed" and as confirming "a verdict long since returned by the judgment of outraged humanity."

Many editors viewed the death penalties meted out to 12 of the Nazi leaders and the long jail sentences given seven others as establishing a possible deterent to future aggressors but others expressed misgivings regarding the acquittal of three of the defendants.

The New York Times said the tribunal "meted out what it was supposed to mete out — stern and exact justice, but justice, not vengeance."

The Memphis Commercia Appeal commented that "the ruling may well give other men pause when they are tempted to seize and misuse power."

The New York Herald Tribune observed: It is "as foolish as it is irrelevant to say that this process will set up a precedent which will entitle some future victor to punish his victims. The new precedent which has been established is the precedent of a fair and just assessment of 'war guilty.'"

Said the Chicago Tribune: "Russia, Britain, France and the United States, which sat in judgment on Germany, were all guilty of crimes against the peace. Some of them were accomplices in aggression, some were guilty of outright aggression and others —notably the United States under Roosevelt — plotted, planned, prepared and initiated aggressive war, even if the administration conceals the fact from the people."

THREE ACQUITTED

The Bavarian indicated that the instructions are being handed down to the Nuernberg German police, who already had been armed with orders to arrest all three as soon as they left jail and bring them before the denazification court.

German Chief of Police Wilhelm Stahl, waiting in the military police office, had not yet been informed of the new development. Counsel for the three men heard word unofficially, however, and promptly went into joint conference with United States security officers on the subject of transportation.

The acquitted men want to go to the British zone.

To Inform Truman

Brig.-Gen. Telford Taylor said today that the acquittal of Schacht has had such an adverse effect on Allied plans to try Nazi industrialists on warmaking charges that Justice Robert H. Jackson intends to outline the problem to President Truman.

Gen. Taylor, who is in charge of any new proceedings, said any announcement of the future course to be followed would be made from the White House after Justice Jackson confers with the president.

At any rate, American lawyers said, the international military tribunal's refusal to convict Schacht, the former German economics minister and Reichsbank president, means that an Allied trial of German industrialists originally scheduled to begin this month now will be postponed, perhaps until early next year.

File Briefs Until Dec. 15

Lawyers have been given until Dec. 15 to file briefs in the cases of such industrialists as the Krupp and Farben interests, charged with providing Hitler with the tools of war.

Decision to set back the timetable was made as soon as the Schacht acquittal was announced, American sources said, adding that there now was considerable doubt as to whether any industrialist could be convicted of conspiracy to wage aggressive war if Schacht was able to establish his innocence.

Acquittal of the German general staff and high command as units also was said to have an important bearing on future trials of individuals as "militarists." One lawyer said it was the opinion now that such individuals could be convicted only on a showing that they were responsible or linked directly to some war crime or atrocity.

Defence counsel prepared appeals they hoped might save some of the condemned Hitler lieutenants from the ignominy of the gallows.

Counsel for Martin Bormann, who was convicted in absentia, were the first to file an appeal asking for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

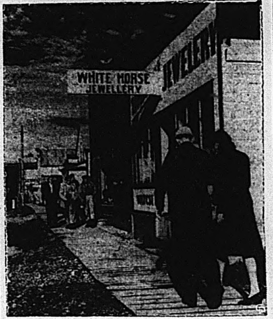
GREAT ALASKA HIGHWAY — WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS — PREPARING FOR MOTORISTS

Maintained by the Royal Canadian Air Force, one of the finest telephone systems in the world parallels the Alaskan highway. You can phone from intermediate points to any place in the world. New poles replace old ones — there are 18 telephone maintenance camps along the route completely equipped for every type of service.



Dozens of shops of every description have sprung up on Whitehorse's "Broadway." The town boasted a population of 40,000 during the war. Now it's 3,000. Rationing in any manner, shape or form is unknown here.

Here are the first pictures of the world's most famous highway in peacetime dress. The great Alaskan highway, most sensational road building job in all history, is now being readied for all-out traffic. At present it is opened only to restricted civilian traffic. Costing $125,000,000, the 1,600-mile long Alaskan highway was started in 1942, finished in October, 1943 — actual construction time 7 months. This is America's last frontier. The road opens up one of the richest mineral areas in the world. Motoring along the gravel surfaced highway is excellent from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska — 1,600 miles. Some of the thrills that await the anxious visitor to the north country are virgin trout fishing, hunting for grizzly bear, caribou, moose, elk, deer and wolves in a country that doesn't know what a "keep off" sign looks like. Go north, young man, go north. Above photo shows the Alaskan highway as it looks today. A gravel surfaced road traversing a country comparatively few white men have ever set foot on.

MOVE TO REDUCE

Split Consistently

In a series of 25 votes taken on the French compromise, the 20-power Italian political and territorial commission split consistently, 14 to 6, as delegates — goaded by commission chairman Lief Egeland of South Africa — hacked away steadily at the task before them in a session lasting from 9:30 last night until almost dawn.

The approved statute for the government of the new internationalized area around the vital Adriatic port, the boundaries of which were approved earlier by the commission, provided in general:

1. The United Nations Security Council would guarantee basic human rights and the maintenance of order in assuring the integrity of the new free state.

2. The zone would be demilitarized, with no armed forces present except at the direction and command of the Security Council.

3. The Governor of the Free State would be appointed by the Security Council after consultation with Yugoslavia and Italy, and, as the council's representative, he would supervise the administration of the area, with power to propose legislation and veto it.

4. The Governor would be responsible for maintaining order, would conduct foreign relations, appoint the judiciary after consultation with the zone council, would have power to remove judges and would have authority to declare a state of siege.

Free Transit Guaranteed

5. Free transit for all countries would be guaranteed through the port.

6. Residents of the area on June 10, 1940, would be given original citizenship.

7. The Security Council would fix the date for withdrawal of military forces and would organize a provisional government to rule until the election of an assembly.

The hotly-argued question now goes before the plenary session of the peace conference, probably some time next week, and then to the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Council.

Even then, the question may not be settled with any degree of finality, because Yugoslavia has served notice in strong words that she will not sign a treaty containing provisions opposite to Yugoslav desires.

Could Not Be Bound

When the long night session ended, Jose Vilfan, Secretary-General of the Yugoslav delegation, bobbed up with a declaration that his government could not be bound by decisions taken at 5 a.m.

But Mrs. Egeland declared "that completes our work," referring to the Italian Commission. Other commissions, including his, however, had plenty of details to iron out in the mechanical matter of preparing their reports to the plenary session. Deadline for the commissions is Friday.

On the Trieste problem the commission first defeated, 14 to 6—more than the two-thirds majority—a Polish proposal which would have declared solution of the entire situation impossible and referred the question back to the Big Four for final decision.

Plunge Into French Proposal

Then the delegates plunged into the French proposal, a compromise of five suggested statutes submitted by a hopelessly deadlocked five-member sub-commission.

Just before the voting began, Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, looked at the weary delegates and moved for adjournment. Mr. Egeland pointed out that the commission had a Friday deadline, with much work to be done, and the delegates upheld him.

One other knotty problem was settled with an agreement that Czechoslovakia and Hungary would be given six months to settle between themselves the question of whether Czechoslovakia should be permitted to expel 200,000 Hungarians from Slovakia. If the question is not settled by then, it will go to the Big Four for decision.

State Secretary Byrnes of the United States conferred for two hours with Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia. Reasons for the meeting and subject of the talks were not disclosed.

METEOR SHOWER WEDNESDAY

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 3 — (AP) — Chances are "excellent" that a spectacular shower of meteors will be visible Wednesday night, Dr. Fred Whipple, Harvard University astronomer, says. The "shooting star" display in the northern sky would be in connection with the appearance of the Giacobini-Zinner Comet, he said last night. The meteor shower should reach its peak about 10:30 p.m. (E.S.T.).

Swimmer Grabs Lunge Which is Swallowing Carp

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 3—(AP)—Leo Widelski, swimming in the Niagara River, came face to face with a 24-pound, 57½-inch muskellunge. Taking advantage of the muskie's preoccupation with a large carp it was having difficulty in swallowing, Widelski hauled the fish ashore barehanded.

Political Attack To Pressure Union Is Charge Made

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 3 —(CP) — Gerard Foley, international representative of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), charged Wednesday that the decrease in the Ontario liquor ration from eight 26 or 25 ounce bottles a month has been used as a "political attack to pressure this union."

The reduction was announced Monday night by the liquor commissioner, William Griesinger, who said the action was taken because of the present bottle shortage. The scarcity has been caused by a strike of some 400 employers at Brunner Mond Canada, Ltd., sole Canadian plant producing soda ash necessary for the manufacture of glass products.

The workers are members of the U.A.W. and Mr. Foley said the union "can't help but wonder if the Ontario Liquor Commission isn't using the shortage as a political attack to pressure this union by exaggerating the shortage of bottles and drastically curtailing the monthly supply."

O.P.A. OFFICE RENTS RAISED FROM $50 TO $100

Mount Vernon, Ill., Oct. 3 — (AP) — On the first day the new rent control for the Mount Vernon area went into effect the Office of Price Administration office in charge of supervising the ceilings was notified that rent for its office would be increased 100 per cent. The city advised O.P.A. its rent for office space in city hall will be hiked from $50 to $100. The O.P.A. has no appeal as new ceilings cover only housing facilities.

To Honor Veterans

Belleville formally will do honor to the young men and young women from this city who served during the econd World War. The date has been fixed by Mayor Follwell for July 14th., 1947.

This will provide the opportunity so much desired by the people of this community to pay tribute to those who played their part as members of His Majesty's services. The city is proud of the record of her sons and daughters in that great struggle in which they served in theatres of war in all parts of the earth and in every service.

The occasion of honoring these young veterans will make a red letter day for the city. It will indicate in some measure the high regard in which the community holds those who risked all to help maintain freedom. These young people have come back and have taken their place in civilian life.

Citizens will keep in mind the date of this event, which is something to look forward to with a great deal of pleasure.

Achievement

11,237 miles of a non-stop flight is the new world record. It was achieved this week by the Truculent Turtle, U.S. Navy patrol bomber, which made the trip in 55 hours and 18 minutes over the route from Perth, Australia, to Columbus, Ohio. The previous record, 3,321 miles less, was set up last November.

Man is building his inventions of this day with power and efficiency that hardly startle the world today, so used to so many new accomplishments and records have the people become. They leave it to the men of science and to them they owe a debt for the works they have been able to perform and the new achievements which are changing greatly the conditions of living today. The world is being made more and more compact by such events and repercussions in one part of the world are known and felt by every other part in this complicated modern existence.

This is not merely setting a mark that is new. For it means that the effort which has achieved success will have its reaction upon man. Like other inventions which man finds of value, he makes the most of it and applies it to his own needs.

This endless quest to go farther than the last record is one of the driving principles of life. It spells progress and adds to the interest of living.

At Nuernberg

To the man doomed to die for crimes time moves at awful speed. To the eleven men in the prison at Nuernberg, Germany, sentenced on Tuesday to be hanged for their crimes in connection with the Second World War, time is now flying more swiftly than possibly to any other criminals ever sentenced to death. For the Nazi leaders disregarded divine and human law and in their hands the power which they controlled was used with the inhuman purpose of aggrandizement and in utter scorn and defiance of rights of those who were destined to fall under their unholy power.

The prospect which dangled before their eyes seemed to promise them anything but this — that they should die on the scaffold. No such goal to their lives and deeds in the cause of Nazism could have crossed their minds but now this penalty which has been passed upon them is the last and the only great reality in their minds. It overshadows the world that Hitler suggested in a rule which he planned to be Nazi-dominated. That world of loot and self-aggrandizement they conjured up before their gloating eyes has dissolved in ashes and with their sins red upon them they can look forward only to doom.

Nuernberg and October 16 — that is the place and that is the date when world justice will be dealt these men. Nuernberg was a famous German city in the Middle Ages. Hitler linked Nazism with it, made it the site of Nazi pageantry and stained its name with the vile cause which the Nazis brought into being. But here in this same city the war crimes trials have been held and here justice will take the full penalty. The men who would rule the earth and defied justice and mankind have been circumscribed in their freedom. Those who aimed to sway world power have already been forced to the limitations of a small prison, they have been tried and here the spirit of mankind will close their books. What life is left to the members of the Hitler gang who have been condemned is a matter of days — a very brief time.

These are men have wasted time more vilely than any others for they have used their power and authority to dominate and crush. In the cause they espoused many suffered. Now they pay. A brief space of time remains and then the Nazi gangsters will be no more. Their end will be ignominy and dishonor as enemies of their fellow human beings for no good thing came from them. But little is left of the interval between birth and death. Of them it can be said that it would be better had they never been born.

Now the sands of time for them are fast running out.

The condemned men as expected have appealed.

Royal Observatory Moves

The British Admiralty recently announced that the world-famous Royal Observatory at Greenwich (through which the zero meridian passes) is shortly to be moved from London to Hurstmonceux Castle in Sussex. Sir H. Spencer-Jones, the Astronomer Royal, speaking over the BBC short-waves recently, explained that when the Royal Observatory was founded in 1675 Greenwich was a pleasant village in open country several miles from London. The site for the observatory, given by King Charles II, on the highest ground in the Royal Park at Greenwich, overlooking the River Thames, was an excellent one. But London has grown so large that it has extended out to Greenwich and far beyond it. Even so recently as the close of the 1914-1918 war Greenwich was still within an easy walk of green fields and country lanes, but for many years now conditions for astronomical observation at Greenwich have been far from good. In its near vicinity today are docks, power houses, factories and works of every type, and densely crowded dwelling houses add their quota of smoke. A new trouble has arisen in recent years from the increasing use of powerful mercury-vapour lamps for street lighting which has made the sky so bright that long-exposure photography with the large telescopes has become impossible.

A long tradition is being broken with the removal of the Observatory from Greenwich to Hurstmonceux Castle. The castle, however, will provide a worthy and dignified future home for the Royal Observatory. Built in 1441, it is the finest early brick building in England.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has recently promised to ask Parliament for funds for the construction of a great 100-inch telescope which it is proposed to install at the new site at Hurstmonceux, where it will be available for the use not only of the astronomers of the Royal Observatory but also of those of other British observatories.

Jet Air Liners by 1948

British European Airways, operating from Northholt airport, plans to be the first company in the world to put jet air liners on its routes. By 1948, Vickers VC-2's —Vikings with two gas turbines — should be entering service. It is hoped that eventually a London-Paris service with jet air liners will run from Northholt every half hour.

REGRETS

These I think I most regret:
Hasty words in anger said,
Being easily upset,
When a smile had served instead.
Looking back, at set of sun—
Always just a bit too late—
Seeing more I could have done
Had I walked at slower rate.

Friendly calls I could have made.
Such a lot they would have meant,
If such visits I had paid!
On my selfish way I went,
Thinking I'd no time to spend,
But I passed the moment by;
Now the day is at an end,
And no better off am I.

"Could have done it!" oft I say,
And too late: "I wish I had!"
Finding reasons for delay—
And the best of them is bad.
Deeds I'm always going to do
When more time for them I get.
When the long day I review,
They are what I most regret.

New U.S. Policy Calls for Strong Aleutian Base

By DON WHITEHEAD

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 3 (AP) — A new United States navy policy in the Pacific calling for a strong Aleutian base near Siberia and extension of its outpost 3,000 miles to Guam was announced today.

The policy was made public at a press conference by Admiral John H. Towers, commander of the Pacific fleet, who conferred only Monday with President Truman and high navy officials in Washington.

Admiral Towers declared that Guam, 3,318 miles west of Pearl Harbor, would be turned into an outpost as strategically important as this Hawaii naval base.

He said the new Pacific policy would be to concentrate permanent naval installations in Alaska, the Aleutians, Hawaii and in the Marianas, which includes Guam.

This would include permanent facilities for surface warships as well as navy air bases.

"It is obvious," Admiral Towers said, "that we need a base further in the Pacific. Because of the mobility and range of surface and air fleets it is necessary that we extend our Pacific outpost beyond Pearl Harbor.

"Guam fills this need and it will be equally as important, but not so large, as Pearl Harbor.

The navy, the admiral added, already has begun its program of building up Guam's permanent installations.

He declined to say where the new Aleutian base would be built but predicted it probably would be somewhere near the centre of the Aleutian Peninsula jutting westward from the Alaskan mainland. He said the navy wants anchorages where fuel stations can be located for dispersal in this age of atomic bombs.

Meat Shortages In United States Still Critical

By WILLIAM FERRIS

Chicago, Oct. 3. (AP)—The great disappearing hog and cattle act, a colossal presentation now featured at all United States livestock markets, rolled into its second breath-taking month today before a country-wide audience watching with baffled eyes and meatless digestive tracts.

It was on Sept. 3, the day after Labor Day, that the curtain went up on this unparalleled spectacle on the magician's art —to show livestock pens, jammed the week before, empty except for a few dried-up cows and emaciated pigs.

Since then the act has been repeated daily to an utterly unappreciative clientele, and agriculture department statistics for September showed receipts at record lows.

A minor feature of the performance, somewhat overlooked in the concentration on the all-star shortage, is the fact that beef cows today, in a market controlled by price ceilings, are selling at higher prices than they were in the free markets of July and August.

L. M. Wyatt, head of the local Livestock branch of the Agriculture Department, said good cows brought $14.00-$15.50 late last August and $15.25-$17.25 now, while medium grades had advanced from $11.75-$14.00 to 312.50-$15.25. Beef cows are a major part of the present small arrivals.

How anyone could buy livestock at higher prices, and sell meat at lower prices, and still make a profit, was an incidental item of bewilderment to traders.

Legalism Betrays Laws at Trial

(Montreal Gazette Editorial)

For nearly a year a bench of some of the finest legal talent in the world has devoted its specialized aptitudes, its forensic skills and its careful legalism to the trial of 22 (one in absentia) leading Nazis at Nuernberg. Documents, exhibits and witnesses numbering thousands have been presented since November 21 last when the trial opened.

The verdicts, delivered recently by the presiding justice, will dismay the civilized world. Neither on the primary basis of human justice, nor on the formal one of law will the sentences allocated the principal Nazis prove satisfactory to the world.

Of the 21 defendants present at Nuernberg 19 were found guilty, and of these only 12 were sentenced to death. Three of the defendants were freed of the charges outright. It is said that one of the freed men was stunned and puzzled at his acquittal. The sentiment will be general, in Germany as well as in those nations which suffered the direct bestiality of German occupation.

The court, constituted by the Governments of the U. K., the U. S., France and the Soviet Union, indicted the 21 principal Nazi leaders under four specific charges. First of these, and most strikingly unsuccessful (only eight were convicted of it) was that of conspiracy to commit crimes described in the other three counts: crimes against the peace, war crimes, and crimes against humanity.

The entire concept of international legal action against the principals of a major war of aggression was a novel one. It was also a conception that, from the first, gave rise to natural doubts as to the legal competence of the victorious powers to create law and try defendants after the event. Legal minds everywhere questioned if the due process of law thus exercised might not in fact bring law into disrepute. Stern advocates of retribution on the other hand were more concerned that they might be cheated of their justice by legalistic tricks.

No one supposed that it was possible to indict a whole people. But it was accepted that these 21 lives might serve as a token to expiate German war guilt. The two score Nazis and one who stood in mortal peril before the bar of the International Tribunal understood their position more clearly. Without exception they entered a plea of not guilty. The world will be astounded to learn from the verdicts that all but 12 principal Nazis that is indeed the case legally.

This is not justice but legalism. That any one of the token twenty escaped the death penalty is not due to any uncertainty as to their several and collective guilt for monstrous crimes against humanity during the recent war; but to the failure of the prosecution to produce convincing evidence under the legal interpretation of evidence in a strict court of law.

That any one of the Nazi defendants should be permitted to escape punishment in some degree is inconceivable. Yet no less than three of this token group have been freed of all four charges. Among these three is the wretched Von Papen, jackal of the Nazi party, who as chancellor of the Reich betrayed his country into Hitler's hands; who never lacked distinguished employment under the Nazi regime, whose theoretic disgrace in 1934 sent him to Austria as ambassador and forerunner of the Anschluss. Fritsche, the second of the freed Nazis, is not himself important. But exonerating Schacht, the financial pillar of Nazism, is another gross and obvious miscarriage of justice.

It has been urged in favor of the Nuernberg verdicts that it is now demonstrated that waging aggressive war "is the supreme crime." The sentences prove the exact contrary. A Nazi-led Germany of 65 millions of people prepared for conquest deliberately, went to war to achieve world supremacy. Everyone of these 21 men made some vital personal contribution to that herculean and nearly successful effort. Everyone of these 21 men was privy to the barbarous methods adopted to achieve Nazi victory; everyone of these 21 men made his own special contribution to the miseries and death that were the fate of millions; to the near-deaths of European civilization that has resulted from the recent war. Everyone of these 21 men has exempted himself from the rule of law.

But only twelve lives pay the Nazi forfeit. The cost of failure is ridiculously modest for the "supreme crime" they all committed.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Of course good dentistry costs money—so do good clothes, good automobiles, good shoes and even luxuries which millions of people buy as a matter of course although they elect to do without good dentistry because it costs money! Physicians are notoriously poor businessmen, and I'm no exception, but of this I am dead certain—there is no better way to invest money than for saving a tooth that is beginning to decay or for a restoration which will function in place of a tooth that has been lost.

Finally, odontochirurgiophobia, which is a reflection on the victim's intelligence, prevents too many people from seeking regular care of their teeth or prompt treatment of dental troubles. The dreadful word means simply morbid or unreasonable fear of dental treatment or dental surgery. Such fear may have been normal or reasonable in the past, but today the dentist can give whatever treatment the condition requires while the patient dozes or chats away—thanks to novocain and other analgesics or anesthetics—and in cases which otherwise would be ample justification for dreading dental treatment. Moreover, for patients who become frightened and unduly anxious in anticipation of a visit to the dentist's, there are sedatives which we need not name, which may be taken under medical direction, in advance of the ordeal, to relieve all anxiety and enable the patient to approach the chair as calmly as anyone can. So, you see, to fear the dentist or dental treatment, in any circumstance, is to betray ignorance. On the other hand an intelligent patient leaves it to the dentist's judgment whether to use analgesic or anesthetic — knowing that of course the dentist can work more comfortably and carefully if he or she knows the patient is not suffering any pain.

Neglect of the teeth is shamefully widespread in America and impairment of the function of the teeth and digestion from this preventable cause undoubtedly accounts for much of the nutritional deficiency which the physicians of the country neither diagnose nor treat adequately ,even when victims stop fooling with nostrums, trick diets and freak healers and seek medical advice. Readers who are interested in this subject will find it well worth while to read "Nutrition and Physical Degeneration" by Weston A. Price, M.S., D.D.S., F.A.C.D. As a depraved murder mystery addict I can testify that Dr. Price, formerly of Cleveland, now of Redlands, California, entertains you and teaches you on every page. And when it comes to learning how to save the teeth, no race or nation and no tribe in the world is in greater need of it than we are.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Insanity in Family

Engaged to a fine, intelligent, healthy young man. After our engagement he revealed that his father has been in the insane asylum for many years, with dementia precox. His father's sister is in another institution with the same thing.

(P. H.)

Answer—I can't give a worthwhile opinion without personal knowledge of the family and the young man himself. I advise you to accompany the young man on a visit to a doctor who knows the family or the father and be guided by the doctor's advice as to the wisdom of marriage.

Black Widow

Is the bite of the black widow spider deadly? What should be done if a person is bitten by one?

(Mrs. E. L. St. H.)

Answer—Rarely if ever fatal, but dangerous and exceedingly painful. Chapter on the subject, in booklet "Unbidden Guests" for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed nevelope. Nothing you can do but bring the patient under medical care. Intravenous injections of calcium chloride have proved highly effective in relieving the colic and pain.

Huh?

Your copy of Rheumatism helped my artritis more than my doctor. The swelling left my feet entirely after using the fruit juices and taking vitamin D, and now my hands are normal at the finger tips.

(L. G. D.)

Answer—It might be helpful if you would let me in on the secret —what do you mean by my copy of Rheumatism, what fruit juices do you use, how much vitamin D etc. I have a pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz" I am glad to send any one who asks for it in writing and incloses a stamped self addressed envelope. If you want also the booklet "The Ils Called Rheumatism" inclose ten cents with stamped self addressed envelope and ask for it in writing. A clipping will not suffice.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said: "I am monarch of all I survey"?

Apparently the English poet William Cowper (1731-1800) was author of the familiar saying "I am monarch of all I survey," in that particular verbal garb.

In 1782 Cowper published his first volume of verse. It contains a poem entitled "Verses Supposed to be Written by Alexander Selkirk," the first stanza of which is:

> I am monarch of all I survey,
> My right there is none to dispute;
> From the centre of all round to the sea
> I am lord of the fowl and the brute.

Selkirk was the Scotch seaman who lived alone for more than four years on one of the Juan Ferandez islands in the Pacific and whose experiences supplied much of the raw material for the first part of DeFoe's "Robinson Crusoe.".

The idea expressed by "I am monarch of all I survey" is ancient. Lucius Seneca, who lived in the days of the first Caesars, expressed it in his "Letters to Lucilius," a collection of maxims and moral observations, one sentence in which may be roughly translated: "It is superior to all, the lord of all it surveys."

Cowper was author of another famous quotation. In his "Light Shining Out of Darkness" occurs:

> God moves in a mysterious way
> His wonders to perform;
> He plants his footsteps in the sea
> And rides upon the storm.

Other oft-quoted lines of Cowper's are from "The Task" (1785):

> I would not enter on my list of friends,
> (Though graced with polish'd manners and fine sense,
> Yet wanting sensibility), the man
> Who needlessly sets foot upon a worm.

Seven Thousand People And Brilliant Weather Feature Madoc's Traditional Fair

Practically All Exhibits Show Marked Increase Over Former Years; Midway, Stage Contests and Racing Thrill Typical Mid-Hastings Crowd

Madoc, Ont (Staff)—Revelling in warm October sunshine that shone down from cloudless skies in direct contrast to the wind-driven snow that blanketed the district the day before, over 7,000 Hastings and district fair-goers paid patronage tribute to the "best county fair in the district" here on Wednesday.

The weatherman smiled benignly down on the officials of the Madoc Agricultural Society. In a direct reversal of form he sent a warm sunny day reminiscent of early September, that scattered the snow-mantle of the day previous and gave the Fair one of its typical "second days."

Across the race-track, the infield of the natural amphitheatre that is the fair grounds here, was black with clustered parked automobiles at an early hour in the afternoon. By three o'clock, thousands milled around the grandstand where the Stirling band dispensed sprightly melodies and later under the well-known direction of that inimitable master-of-ceremonies Captain Tommy Mason recently discharged from the army, a varied program of contests and entertainment was staged.

The Midway by far the best in years was the mecca for old and young while the racetrack along which sped at intermittent periods some of the crack trotters and pacers of the district, was lined three and four deep with enthusiasts of harness racing.

More Exhibits

Exhibits on the whole, according to fair officials noted a distinct upsweep with the exception of horses, over those of previous years. Dairy and beef cattle, sheep and swine, dairy products including the cheese exhibit, and the display of fruits, vegetables, ladies and school exhibits, noted a substantial increase over those of the past six years.

Dairy and beef cattle epitomized the improvement in quality, the breeding and the high standard of exhibits that characterize the herds of breeders of the immediate and surrounding districts.

Proud Holsteins, Ayrshires, Jerseys, Shorthorns, Herefords and Durhams, were well represented in herds that won the admiration of lovers of cattle. Many well-known district breeders were present, as well as those from long distances.

Swine and sheep exhibits were well in excess of those of other years and many splendid specimens went on parade before the critical eyes of the judges. Horses, while numerically equal to those of other years maintained the same high standard of quality and many handsome equines, both draft and roadster delighted the eyes of horse lovers. Attracting a lot of attention were the carriage horses and heavy draught teams which went on colorful parade around the track.

Small Exhibits Numerous

One of the outstanding features of the fair was the Exhibition Building where Milady's handicraft, school work, fruits, vegetables, preserves, cooking and numerous other exhibits that are part and parcel of the country fair were on view.

Home cooking was particularly attractive while homemade bread, pastry, pies and other achievements of the culinary ability of the farm housewife caught the city patron's eye. The handicraft work was excellent as was that of the school sections of the district. A feature of the building was the fine honey exhibits offered by A. R. Holland of Eldorado. Clear as a crystal and amber in color, the honey was attractively arranged in pyramid style. Present, under glass was a swarm of bees, while beeswax in smart designs lay in and about the exhibit. Under a magnifying glass, patrons saw bees at work, and at different stages of their growth.

The Department of Lands and Forests had an attractive exhibit while vegetable displays tastefully arranged brought out the fine qualities of the exhibits.

Plenty of Entertainment

The Midway was a bedlam of sound, and typical of the Madoc Fair. Here was the ubiquitous merry-go-round to delight the kiddies and also aerial rides. One could guess his weight; shoot at clay rabbits; toss for pennies; hear cowboys sing, indulge in various games of chance, buy grapes and melons, or gorge himself with succulent hamburgers or hot dogs. A Madoc ladies institution served regular meals on the grounds.

The traditional Madoc contests held on the raised dais, attracted thousands. Here the hardy men of the north country vied for log-sawing honors, nail-driving prizes, or to the tune of the old-time fiddles step-danced their way to cash prizes. There were cowboy song contests, biggest foot contests and many others, and each test of skill was competed for by no less than from nine to twelve entries. Tommy Mason, Belleville master of ceremonies was in charge and with his running line of humorous patter kept the large crowd in a jovial humor. The Stirling Band was in attandance and its smooth melodies were much enjoyed.

The fair closed at night with a well-attended dance held in the village where a large crowd enjoyed modern and old-time dancing.

Contests Results

Most Attractive House Dog—R. Christopher, J. McCreary, F. Forrestell.

Conservative Party Of Great Britain To Hold Convention

By DAVID CONDON

Blackpool, Lancs., England, Oct. 3 (Reuters)—The first Conservative Party conference since the 1945 landslide election of the Labor party opens today and observers consider it significant that there is no motion on British foreign policy among the numerous resolutions tabled for consideration.

It is pointed out that one element of the Labor Party has frequently attacked its own leadership on foreign policy issues, complaining that by maintaining continuity of foreign policy, the Labor Party is, in effect, operating a Conservative foreign policy.

Many critics among the younger generation regard Winston Churchill, present leader of the party and wartime Prime Minister as an out-of-date imperialist but there is plenty of fight in the old leader and it is felt that none of the young blood has either the courage or the ability yet to challenge him, or are they agreed to who should replace him if and when he decides to give up the party leadership.

Mr. Churchill will wind up the conference Saturday and it will be interesting to hear his views on Conservative foreign policy.

In home affairs, the Conservative Party is in a dilemma since the basis of its domestic policy has been negative for the last 20 years. It has been anti-Socialist and anti-nationalization.

Today, it is faced by a Socialist government carrying out at a speed unheard of before in British politics the nationalization of the country's basic industries. The Labor government is able to do so by means of a large majority elected on a platform of which these measures form a basis.

The Labor government, barring a first class political crisis, will be in power for long enough to carry out its plans. Nationalization, once accomplished, can hardly be undone and thus arises the Conservatives' crying need for a new policy and a complete reorientation of outlook.

Mrs. Jane Bailey, 95, Interested Observer of Step-Dancing at Fair

The quiet little old lady sat on a chair on the raised dais at the Madoc Fair yesterday, watching with keen interest the various contests as they passed in interesting parade before her eyes.

She was Mrs. Jane Bailey, of Cooper, later judged the oldest lady at the fair. She is in her 95th year.

Came the step-dancing contests, and young and old dancers to the old-time jigs played by an old-time fiddler went through their different routines while thousands of people looked on in approval.

Mrs. Bailey's eyes lighted up. She leaned forward in her chair as first one dancer and then another performed before the judges.

Then it was all over. Mrs. Bailey smiled first and then shook her head. And in answer to a query from a friend who stood nearby she said, sincerely, "Shucks, 25 years ago, I could beat the whole lot of 'em."

Mother of Mr. Gibson Bailey, Cooper contractor, and Mr. Herbert Bailey, former well-known dairy instructor of Madoc, Mrs. Bailey has enjoyed the Madoc Fair for a number of years. She still takes a keen interest in its activities, and hopes to see many more of them, although her step-dancing days are over.

Holloway St. Y.P.U. Meets

The Holloway Street young people congregated in the Sunday School rooms on Monday evening. The sing song which opened the program was directed by Rosslyn Robertson. Having several new people in attendance, Maude Burke suitably welcomed them and invited them to become members of the group.

The effective and inspiring worship service presented by the Fellowship group under the leadership of Margaret Hillis and Douglas Ptolemy had as its theme "Prayer." Speaking of prayer, Miss Hillis referred to this great need in people's lives. "Sooner or later," she said, "everyone comes to some crisis or emergency where he desperately needs to know how to pray—but why do we wait till then, my friends? Why don't we start now?"

Explaining that "prayer was not words spoken in a thoughtless manner but rather an opening of our hearts to God in thankfulness, re-dedication and supplication". Miss Hillis established the attention of the entire group for a period of meditation.

Recreation led by Betty Keeble and Max Maguire engaged the young people for a half hour after which the friendship circle was formed. The enjoyable evening closed with prayer by Rev. C. Perkins.

LADY RIDDELL DIES

London, Oct. 3 — (CP) — The death of Lady Riddell, widow of Baron Riddell, wealthy publisher, was announced today. Lady Riddell, who died Tuesday, was a nurse before her marriage. In recent years she spent £100,000 ($400,000) building a nurse's training home for St. Thomas' Hospital. Her husband, who died in 1934, was chairman of the News of the World.

Butterscotch Mouton

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WHEN MOUTON, which is a fleecy lambskin sheared and colored to resemble beaver, first came along, we loved it just for its budget price and durability alone. It still is the dream of the penny-wise and pound-wise, too, and still lovely in beaver effect: but now it comes along in other fur colors, is softer and lighter in actual weight (though not in warmth) and has stepped into highstyle silhouettes.

Too, as in the case of this butterscotch colored Laskin mouton coat, a special treatment sees to it that rain or snow will not spot, curl or mat the plushy, soft surface pile. Notice the big sleeve the wide shoulders, the generous flare . . . stylish, no? . . . and this means that your inexpensive mouton fur coat will do you proud with evening clothes, as well as over stadium or workaday outfits.

BROTHERS STEAL GIRDER

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP) — The Wheller brothers, Sterling and Bruce, apparently don't believe in stealing anything small.

They stole a 18-foot, 600-pound steel girder and yesterday they appeared in court to face a charge of theft.

They pleaded guilty and admitted they had taken the girder from a partially-finished store to use it in building one of their own.

Magistrate J. E. Pritchard suspended sentence for one year. He said the brothers were "not the type of persons who usually come before me charged with theft."

British Biographer Dies

Women's Activities

W.C.A.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association was held in the Board room at the Belleville General Hospital, October 1st., with the President, Mrs. J. Imlah, conducting.

Mrs. R. Abrams was appointed as lady-on-duty for the Home for the Aged, during October. The following donations are gratefully acknowledged:

From Mrs. L. Ketcheson 9 half-gallon sealers; Christ Church flowers; Mr. Jack Holley, bread knife; Mrs. Springer, sandwiches and celery; Mr H. R. Phillips, men's clothing; St. Andrew's Church, bread and rolls.

The Home Board of Management desire to express gratitude to all donors for their gifts. If any citizen has useful clothing for men, kindly 'phone Mrs. Harrison, matron of the Belleville Home for the Aged No. 224 and parcels will be sincerely appreciated.

On Sept. 15, the Salvation Army Band held a sacred concert on the lawn of the Home, which was greatly enjoyed by the residents. For this "good deed of the day" the ladies in charge extend their thanks.

LITTLE HELPERS' PARTY

Yesterday afternoon in Christ Church the annual service for "Little Helpers" was held under the auspices of the W. A. with Rev. J. Grant Sparling conducting a short service in the church, when the children presented their mite boxes while singing the hymn "Jesus Bids Us Shine". Later the tiny tots were taken to the parish hall where they were treated to a party with cookies and milk as refreshments, under the direction of their leader, Mrs. J. Cooke, with the assistance of Mesdames H. Ingram, J. Spencer and L. Watson, while their mothers enjoyed a social hour over "the cup that cheers".

PINE GROVE W. I.

The Women's Institute of Pine Grove held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Rodgers, Sept. 26th, with Mrs. Coulter, the president in the chair. During the business period Mrs. F. Finkle and Mrs. F. Heasman were appointed delegates to the Area Convention to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium in the near future. It was decided to invite Mrs. Marshall, Welfare Worker for the C.A.S. to be guest speaker at the October meeting.

The following program, which had been prepared under the able leadership of the conveners Mrs. Coulter and Mrs. Rodgers, was presented:

Mrs. E. Horton, convener for Health Education and Child Welfare, gave a splendid address on "The Need for Health Education and Nutrition for Children". A reading Healthful School Living", by Mrs. Tanner, and a bulletin "A Public Health Unit and Health Insurance" read by Mrs. Coulter. Mrs. W. Rodgers read a paper on "Rural Health in Canada" and gave some "Up-to-the-minute Current Events".

After the singing of the National Anthem dainty refreshments were served by the social committee.

WOMEN'S PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE ASSOC.

On Wednesday evening, the Women's Progressive Conservative Association held its October meeting in the club rooms, when a pot-luck supper was served at six-thirty o'clock. Later Mrs. Chas. Hyde, president, conducted the business meeting. The Secretary, Miss N. Armstrong, and the Treasurer, Miss E. Martin, presented reports which were adopted as read. Miss Gertrude Lazier reported for the Peter Pan Club and Miss Lottie Wareham presented a financial statement. At the conclusion of the business period a short program, in charge of Bleecker Ward, consisting of a sing-song and contests, was much enjoyed.

ST. THOMAS' W.A.

The W.A. of St. Thomas' Church held its first meeting of the Fall season 1946-47 Wednesday afternoon in the parish house, with Mrs. Morton presiding. The rector, Rev. F. A. Smith, opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Morton read a letter from the board, voicing an appeal for much needed bandages from Miss S. Kelcey, of China. The Treasurer, Mrs. Dillnutt reported a total balance of more than $7 after all necessary expenses have been paid. Mrs. Wilkinson, "Cent-a-Day" convener, has received the sum of $29.50 to date. The secretary for "Living Message" requested that all subscriptions be paid by the end of November. After some discussion as to the work to be undertaken in the near future, it was decided to do quilting as a means to obtain extra funds. Members who knit may continue to obtain wool from the Red Cross. A Hallowe'en Tea has been planned, to be held in the parish house.

Mr. Smith suggested the formation of a Visiting Committee, and several members volunteered for this most important service.

Mrs. Morton announced that the Prince Edward Deanery meeting will be held at Wellington in the near future, and urged all members to attend. The meeting adjourned, and tea was served under the direction of Mesdames Mutton and Wilkinson as hostesses.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How Do You Smile—Or Do You Smile?

There is no charm in the world so endearing as a warm, radiant, ready smile. There is no charm in the world easier to acquire. And there is no charm that brings such rich rewards.

Some people are born with this fascinating gift of smiling spontaneously and amiably. Other people, realizing the potent value of a brilliant smile, capture this grace by training themselves to think pleasant thoughts and to let these pleasant thoughts shine out in their smile.

The quality of your smile is an index to the quality of your thinking. If you are a good-natured person who likes people and who wants people to like you, if you appreciate friendliness, your smile, like sunshine, will warm the hearts of people.

But if you think acid thoughts, about the world and people and even about yourself, your smile will have an acid quality—as though sucked through a lemon.

Look at you. Analyze your smile. . . honestly. Walk up to the long mirror in your room, and hold out your hand, as if you were greeting a friend. Say "How do you do" as nearly as possible in the habitual way you say it. Does your expression—especially your eyes and mouth—instantly "come alive"? Is the thought behind your smile "How glad I am to see you", and does your smile warm-heartedly reflect that thought? If it does, you will bring joy to yourself and to all your contacts in life.

Or is your expression dead—"dead-pan"—and your words of greeting lifeless too? This will be, if behind your eyes you're not, consciously or unconsciously, doing some amiable thinking.

If you even surmise that your smile isn't as quick and gay and alluring as it should be, doesn't make the impression it should make, try—let's say for this week—to see what you can do about it. Cultivate this valuable possession. When you meet friends or acquaintances register enthusiasm in your greeting, as if to say, "It's so nice to see you!" Smile graciously as you say your "Thank you" and "Please", your "Do you mind if I—", and your "I beg your pardon." Smile appreciatively to show your interested participation when a person is talking to you.

Smile— and watch what happens.

Announcements of a Widow's Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine who is a widow is to be married soon to a man who is divorced. The wedding is to take place at the home of her parents. She would like to know if it would be proper to have her parents announce the marriage, or must she do this herself? And should a card be enclosed stating 'Open House" instead of a reception?

W. P.

It isn't necessary, but it is entirely proper, for her parents to send formal announcements of the marriage.

I don't know what you mean by your second question—no invitation is enclosed with the announcements. The invitations to the house wedding would appropriately be notes, and all the guests would probably be invited to the ceremony as well as to the reception afterward.

We're glad that utilitarian rayon jersey lingerie, so easily laundered, is all decked out with new glamor touches. Black rayon jersey is used for a nice slip and pantie set, both adorned with appliqued bows and embroidered flower motifs in pale pink, and both piped to match.

Rules for Home Manicurist

Two light applications of polish will endure longer than one heavy coating

By HELEN FOLLETT

GATHER round teacher now, members of the beauty class, and she will give you a lesson in manicuring. The way some girls gouge at their pink claws is terrible and something should be done about it. The gardening girls, especially, have problems.

If you are lucky enough to have time for a weekly manicure, your finger sheaths are probably in good condition, though a little home attention, oiling and friction, won't do a bit of harm.

Rule Number One

Rule number one for manicuring: do not start with a hand washing; if you do, your nails will be too soft for speedy shaping. Remove the polish. Use the flexible steel file, working from sides to centre, then round the point. Don't work down far at the sides; that is a grave mistake; nature will build up thick cuticle there.

Pass the orange wood stick under the nail eaves, then use the beveling file of emery board. You will have a nice, smooth finished edge. Use the nail white pencil under the eaves, forming a clear cut line. Now scrub your hands, using a brush on the nails, prolonging the washing so the cuticle around the nails will be soft.

Mineral Oil

Apply mineral oil or a cream Run the orange wood stick under the flesh gently, lifting it away from the nail fabric. If you flush up hangnails, snip them away carefully with the curved, needle point scissors.

Now, you must wash your hands again with soap to remove oil or cream. If the slightest film remains on your talons, the polish won't stick for sour apples. Rinse, dry, push back the cuticle gently with a soft towel.

Two light applications of polish will endure longer than one generous application. If the veneer flows down into the flesh, remove it with cotton. Popular shades of polish now are fairly dark but some of the ahead-of-the-parade girls are usin gcoral or opal. Just for fun, you know.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Shows His Affection in a Strange Fashion

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 19 and very much in love with a fellow 23. When we are together, he tells me that he loves me very much, but he doesn't act as though he cared even a little about me. When we are not together, he goes down to the restaurant and bar where the fellows and girls around his way hang out. We can't see each other every night because we live in different towns.

He has often told me that I should find another fellow more worthy of me, but I still love him, even though he does drink and fool around with the girls. He told me that when he starts drinking, he starts fooling around girls and even goes as far as kissing them. But he said that he really doesn't care for any of them as much as he cares for me. He loves me, but he doesn't think he is good enough for me.

My question is, do you really think this fellow cars for me as much as he claims he does? If so, will I ever know. Also, do you think he is the type of fellow for me?

"Heart-Broken"

You ask me if this young man cares for you as much as he says he does. My answer is very brief and very definite—"No".

If he really cared about you, he would lose all interest in "fooling around" other girls and would not want to think about kissing anybody but you.

If I were you, I would take his advice and start looking for another fellow more worthy of you. Frankly, I don't think that this young man is anyone with whom you want to waste your time.

Her Parents Don't Want Her to Smoke

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old and soon will be 17. I have smoked, but only because all the girls do it. When I spoke to my parents about this, they objected strenuously, althought they smoke themselves.

My friends who smoke tease me and tell me to live my own life when I refuse to smoke. What should I do—disobey my parents, or lose my best friends? Do you think I am too young to smoke?

"J. F."

If your friends want you to live your own life, "J. F.", then I would suggest that there is no reason in the world for smoking if you don't want to do so. If you smoke just because your friends do, and because they tease you if you don't, you certainly are not living your own life, but the sort of life they think you ought to live. Why not have courage enough to be independent and have a mind of your own and do what you think is right?

If you want my opinion, I feel that your parents are quite right and that 16 is pretty young to start smoking. I realize that a great many girls of this age do smoke, but I think it is rather a pity.

Any friends who are going to be lost because you don't smoke, are not worth keeping. Real friends will love you for yourself and not be concerned whether or not you do anything as trivial as smoking. They will also respect you for having the good sense to be yourself.

He Wants His Girl Back

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been in love with a girl for almost a year. We had a few arguments which didn't really amount to a row of pins, but I got mad and broke off with her. Now I'm blue without her.

I think things could be ironed out again. Please tell me how I can get her back.

"Blue Red"

The quickest and surest way to "iron out" a quarrel—and the way that seems to be hardest for almost everybody—is for the one at fault simply to say, "It was all my fault, and I'm sorry."

I would suggest that you send your girl some nice gift, like flowers or something else you know she would like, and with it a note telling her how bad you feel over the misunderstanding and how happy you would be if she would agree to forget it and start all over again.

If she consents to do this, don't, for goodness sakes, ever discuss your quarrel again, or you might find yourselves having another fight over the same thing. It is much better for you both to let bygones be bygones.

ELEPHANT'S TEETH

The tusks on an elephant are really elongated incisor teeth in the upper jaw.

Fashion Flashes

BIG FAVORITE with the younger crowd is the off-the-face, bonnet-type hat. Off-white felt makes a neat bonnet, scooped and soaring over the forehead. The hat is trimmed with massed bows of emerald green and seal-brown satin ribbon and has a cob-webbed veil in palest pinky-beige.

A newcomer to the budget fur group just making its northern debut is Brazilian ocelot cat, a light golden tan fur with marking similar to the ocelot, and with a texture that approximates the semi-stiff fur of regular ocelot.

No more is a belt just a belt. It has become gadget-conscious, as witness belts with purses, belts with grips to hold gloves, and belts with cases to hold spectacles, pencils or hankies. Good college stuff!

A big dash of Scotch enlivens the new college clothes. A nice campus suit, done in woollen in the authentic Black Watch or Menzies tartan ,has a jacket trigged out with six flap pockets, three on either side. High, notched collar; kickpleated skirt.

Pasha Resumes Duties as Head Egypt's Cabinet

Alexandria, Oct. 3 — (AP) — Prime Minister Ismail Sidky Pasha, who resigned last week, resumed his duties as head of the cabinet Wednesday at the request of King Farouk and ordered six newspapers questioned for publishing articles criticizing him during the government crisis.

Sidky Pasha, who offered his resignation as the result of a dispute among Egyptian members of the delegation negotiating for revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of Alliance, conferred yesterday with Lord Stansgate, acting head of the British Treaty delegation.

A few minutes later Lord Stansgate left by plane for London for new instructions on the deadlocked negotiations.

Meanwhile, the Wafdist party issued a manifesto calling a meeting to begin a struggle against what it termed "the evil intentions of imperialistic Britain."

The manifesto declared:

"We true representatives of the nation will not approve any treaty with Britain: 1. Containing a military alliance of joint defence committee; 2. Rejecting immediate evacuation of British troops from Egypt and the Sudan or restricting such evacuation; or 3. failing to achieve unity of the Sudan with Egypt under one king."

Hanging of Nazi Big Shots May Be Job for U.S. Army

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP) — Hanging Goering and the other top Nazis for war crimes won't set any record, in numbers.

They're just a round dozen of Nazis, even if the Allies catch Martin Bormann. He was sentenced in absentia and may be dead already.

The job should be easy for the United States army, which has had plenty of experience in this line.

Since the United States army occupied the American zone of Germany in the spring of 1945, this is what it has done about bringing death to Nazis for war crimes:

Not including the 12 big shots sentenced yesterday by the international court, 231 Nazis have been sentenced to death by military courts.

Of the 231 sentenced, at least 55 already have been finished off.

Of that 55, the army sent 28 to the gallows last May for the death of more than 300,000 persons in the Dachau concentration camp.

Another 43—of the 231 sentenced to death—have been condemned for the slaughter of 900 United States war prisoners and Belgian civilians in the battle of the Bulge.

(If those 43 died, that will be a new record in mass execution for the army. The 28 hanged for the Dachau crime did not set a record.

(Up to date, the United States army's record for executions was established in 1862 at Mankoto, Minn. There the army hanged 39 Indians for a massacre at a white settlement.)

Carrying out the execution of Goering and his teammates will be up to the four-power control council, made up of Britain, the United States, Russia and France.

So all four countries may have a hand in executing the war criminals although, since the trial was held at Nuernberg which is in the American zone, the United States army may get the job.

The United States army, trying to be thorough about everything, didn't overlook hanging, even during the war.

For the benefit of commanding officers whenever the need arose, the army's Provost Marshal General's office put together a little booklet called "Procedure For Military Executions."

It has a list of instructions and a set of diagrams on how to erect a gallows, even down to the number of hinges on the trapdoor and the kind of trapdoor.

SAY MAN CARRIED FIVE KNIVES

Brockville, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Austin Sparks, Kemptville, Wednesday was remanded one week for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of assaulting James Shipman, 79, Oxford. When arrested police said Sparks carried five knives, three attached to a chain around his waist and two in a bag on his belt. In the bag and sewn in his trousers were found $650 in cash and bonds.

Rawdon

Triple Shower Honors Newlyweds.

Rawdon — On Friday evening September 27th. about two hundred people gathered at Mount Pleasant church hall for a triple shower in honor of three Mount Pleasant girls and their husbands.

Three tables were set on the platform and these were laden with an array of lovely gifts.

Rev. N. Cole was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly before the program proper began.

A round of community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Carleton Potts and Mrs. Wm. Jeffs in charge. Miss Betty McConnell and Mrs. C. Potts contributed piano solos. Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Arthur Phillips each read selections of interest to the newlyweds. Mr. James Seeney recited "The Handsomest Man in the World" and Mrs. Percy MacMullen "Caleb's Courtship."

The addresses were read to the newlyweds in the order of their marriage.

To Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pollock (nee Lois McAdam) by Miss Joan Hoard; to Mr. and Mrs. George Curry (nee Helen Hay) by Miss Edna Hubble; to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Williams (nee Joyce Johnson) by Miss Grace Dunham.

All six spoke briefly thanking their friends for their gifts and for an enjoyable evining, inviting one and all to visit them in their new homes at Burnbrae, 21 Stone Street, Belleville, and Hoards, respectively.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Guests were present from Stockdale, Belleville, Hoards, Burnbrae, Oak Hills, Sine, Campbellford and nearby points.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rivers Honored.

On Friday evening September 27th. the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, 4th. concession, Rawdon, was filled to capacity with neighbors and friends to honor their daughter, Helen, and her husband, Mr. Martin Rivers of Bogart near Tweed.

Reeve John Morrison was master of ceremonies and community singing was enjoyed under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Ken. Broadworth and Mr. Gordon Green.

Misses Bernice and Barbara Ryan and Frances Morrison sang several trios with guitar accompaniment.

Misses Ruth and Vivian Welbourn with their mother as accompanist sang two duets.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen contributed two readings, "A Thanksgiving Courtship," and "The Story of a Young Man."

Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Kenneth Broadworth, James S. Barron, Melville Grills and John Ryan.

Mrs. Thomas Sarles read an address to the newlyweds as they were escorted to a decorated table filled with parcels. The happy couple opened their gifts and expressed gratitude and appreciation to their friends, extending a cordial invitation to come to visit them at Bogart where the groom is a popular storekeeper. Delicious refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

Charivari Parties.

Mount Pleasant young folk held two noisy parties on Friday evening at a late hour when the charivari gang serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pollock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam, and after midnight gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hay to charivari Mr. and Mrs. George Curry. Those attending the various functions report a hearty welcome and an enjoyable time at both homes.

Miss R. Archer and Miss B. Graham, Elmville, are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. John Rainie.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred King spent a day recently with relatives at Havelock.

Mr. Robert Elliott has resumed his studies at Toronto University.

A large number of Rawdonians attended Campbellford and Marmora fairs.

Mountain View

Mountain View — Miss Mary Huff accompanied Miss Mary Smith to Belleville on Friday evening where they attended a banquet held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church sponsored by the Belleville Teachers' Association. The guest speaker of the evening was Miss R. McIlroy, teacher of music at Hamilton Normal School. Her address was greatly enjoyed by all the teachers present.

Anniversary services were held in Mountain View United Church on Sunday evening. The altar was beautifully decorated with white chrysanthemums and ferns. These were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barber. The guest minister for the evening was Rev. Mr. Todd of Victoria Circuit whose sermon was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Harry Driscoll rendered a solo and Misses Barbara and Shirley Wilson a duet. The girls junior choir assisted with an anthem. These were all sincerely appreciated.

Mr. Allen Bowness of Detroit has been visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowness.

Mrs. Robert Stanton of Picton spent a couple of days recently with Mr. and Mrs. William Stanton.

Miss Elizabeth Jordon, Mr. Grant Sprague and Nellie and George Sprague spent the tea hour on Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. Webster Wilson and Richard of Belleville.

Mr. Walter Moy spent a recent day the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Wanamaker.

The Misses Faye, Joan and Carol York spent Sunday with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mowers.

Mrs. William Slater of Belleville is spending a week with her sister, Mrs. William Stanton, and Mr. Stanton.

Mrs. Val. Squire and children of Burr's called on Mrs. Alfred Poste on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson had supper on Sunday with Miss Lillian Sprague.

Miss Mary Huff spent Friday night as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Hall of Huffs Island.

Rev. Mr. Graham had charge of the anniversary services held at Victoria United Church on Sunday.

October 1st was ushered in with the first snow storm of the season. After having such extremely warm weather previously there were a great many chilly fingers. Enough snow fell here to allow the children to make a snowman.

Mr. and Mrs. David Rowe and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Way of Bowerman's.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH
QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote quiet sleep. Walking floors at night is unknown in our house."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and that upset her almost to the point of convulsions. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—went to sleep."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever and diarrhoea. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

Drunk Charge Against Shales To be Withdrawn

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP)—Police Commission investigation of Harold Shales' complaint he was beaten up by several constables was concluded yesterday and Magistrate R. J. Brown, a member of the Commission, said a drunk charge against Shales will be withdrawn. The Commission's findings will be made public in a few days.

The Magistrate said the Commission was unanimous in the opinion that Shales was not intoxicated the night of his arrest. Witnesses testified the man's actions were those of a drunken man but others said there was no liquor on his breath.

Shales, a retired salesman who has not been in good health for some time, collapsed during the afternoon hearing. As his son Robert pleaded for his father, another son, John, stood up and said his father was feeling ill.

He was given a drink of water and led to a couch in an adjoining room but sagged to the floor as two constables led him from the room. He was taken to hospital where attendants said his condition is not serious.

Denies Using Bad Language

Before his collapse, Shales denied using abusive language at the officers who arrested him.

"I have never sworn in my life. I don't use violent language—I'm too educated for that."

Fred Shaw, a youth who was in the cells at the North Toronto station when Shales was arrested, testified today no one answered Shales' repeated requests for a doctor.

Senator Arthur Roebuck, counsel for the constables alleged to have beaten up Shales and for the Toronto Police Association, said there was no evidence that batons or other instruments were used on the man. He said there was evidence that Shales was "intoxicated — or some such word—from taking a very dangerous drug" for his illness. Sometimes the drug made the patient violent.

"I don't know how a man can expect to exchange punches with a policeman without running the risk of a black eye," said Senator Roebuck.

PATCH OF RED

The colony of British Guiana is the only British colony on the South American Continent.

Racing against threat of frost, farmers in Ontario and Durham counties are rushing a bumper corn crop to the canning factories. Corn by the truckload (left) is pouring into the Stokely Van Camp factory at Whitby, for what is expected to be the biggest pack in years. Corn is husked by women working in pairs who chuck it into mechanical huskers. Dorothy Hockley, an English war bride living in Oshawa and Helen Lenehan, Whitby (right), take time out from household duties to work in the plant.

Accused Claims Dog Led to Dispute

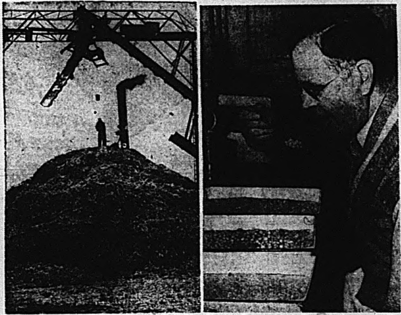
Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—Charged with attempted rape of a 31-year-old mother of six children, Thos. Wegg, 54, claimed in evidence yesterday that he would not have been charged had not the woman's dog got among his chickens, leading to a dispute between them.

The woman had testified that on March 21 she accepted a motor car ride from Wegg, who had attacked her on a lonely road. Wegg said the charge had not been laid until April 22 and would not have been laid at all had not the dog-chicken incident occurred. He claimed that anything that happened on March 21 was with the woman's consent.

83 German Policemen Murdered While Tracking Criminals

Berlin, Oct. 3 — (Reuters) — Preservation of law and order in the British zone of Germany since the occupation has cost the lives of 85 German policemen who were murdered while tracking down criminals, the public safety branch announced today.

Feeding the cans into the canning machine is pretty Ruby Kerfoot of Ajax, who recently came east from Manitoba to "see what Ontario was like."



Husks and cobs are piled in a huge stack (left) at rear of the plant to be sold back to farmers for ensilage. About to test a spoonful of corn, is R. E. Riegner, the company's director of research. Corn is tested for general appearance, tenderness and taste before being approved for sale.

Grain Transport Puzzles Railway, Shipping Men

Fort William, Oct. 3 (CP)—The problem of how to move the 35,000,000 bushels of grain in lakehead elevators to St. Lawrence River ports today puzzled grain, railway and shipping men here as much as elsewhere.

Elevators at Montreal are reported almost empty and thousands of tons of ocean-going shipping were said to be awaiting cargoes for Europe. Diversion to the coal-carrying trade of Great Lakes ships normally in the grain business and shortage of rolling stock on Canadian railways were blamed.

While there has been some congestion in railway yards here and at Port Arthur—as many as 5,400 grain-laden cars were awaiting unloading about 10 days ago — railway men said this was not an unusual situation. It had occurred in other years to an even greater extent and without interfering with the eastward movement of grain.

Stepinac is Hissed By Spectators At Zagreb Trial

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Oct. 3 — (AP) — Examination of Archbishop Stepinac ended today after the prosecutor spent two hours reading document after document stating charge after charge that the defendant acted with Ustashi Crusaders and the enemy.

Archbishop Stepinac maintained his stand of "no comment" on the incriminating questions and spoke but few words during the four days of the trial, which can either result in a death sentence, a 20-year maximum prison term or acquittal.

The prosecutor spent considerable time defending the government's attitude toward the Roman Catholic church and charged in a climactic statement that Archbishop Stepinac was "trying to make out you are a martyr like Jesus before Pilate."

The prosecutor said that the Archbishop's work was on the line that Russia would get into the war with her Allies—Britain and the United States—and that "Stepinac was hoping for armed intervention which would save the cause."

The prosecutor said he was holding some documents and would not show all of them "just to see how much truth and how many lies you are telling."

People who had waited for hours in line this morning to get official passes from the police to attend the trial cheered and applauded when the prosecutor made accusations and praised the people's government for putting a stop to activities of the Ustashi.

Q.P.P. SEARCH FOR LAMA

Fort Coulonge, Que., Oct. 3 — (CP)— Quebec Provincial Police today were searching this area for William Lama, charged with the murder of his wife and nine-year-old daughter at Harrison's Corners, Ont., on Aug. 16. Acting on reports of two bus drivers that they had seen Lama there several times in recent days, police rushed to a deserted farm seven miles east of here, but found only foot prints in the snow.

Fuel Situation in City Reported Slightly Better Than Year Ago

Unless unforeseen events such as strikes, tie-ups, etc., occur, the fuel situation in the city this winter will be slightly better than that of last year, a survey of city dealers revealed today.

Nut coal at the present time is scarce, although other varieties of hard coal are sufficient to meet needs of dealers. Merchants who specialize in industrial fuel state there is plenty on hand to meet immediate needs, and deliveries are such that no immediate shortage is anticipated.

Dealers foresee the use of substitute coal this winter inasmuch as wholesalers require that a quantity of substitute fuel be ordered with popular varieties of hard coal.

Fewer Using Coke.

The coke situation here may develop into something of an acute nature due to steel strikes, but the percentage of private householders using this fuel is lower than last year.

One dealer stated that in his opinion the situation at present is on a more or less "even keel." There are sufficient deliveries coming in to meet all needs, but no surplus stock is or will be available. If something unforeseen occurs to affect the coal situation, then a shortage is bound to occur.

Insofar as summer deliveries by retailers are concerned, dealers stated that many customers had the foresight to order their fuel in the warm months, but at the time there was no coal available.

Many Bins Empty.

The fact that many bins which would ordinarily be filled in the summer months were empty this year, due to no available fuel, had its effect the other day when wintry weather descended suddenly on an unsuspecting populace.

Houses and apartments were suddenly chilled. And in a lot of cases no fuel was in the cellar bins. Coal offices in the city were swamped with rush orders and many people were forced to go without. One Front Street merchant was seen dashing towards home, axe in hand, to chop up old boxes with which to light his furnace.

But, in the general opinion of dealers, there is not much cause for worry this winter, unless as was stated before something of an unforeseen nature occurs.

STEER IS MISSING

Alvinston, Oct. 3 — (CP) — A hole cut in the fence, and some corn stalks in the corner of his field were all that Stanley McLachlan, a local farmer found when he went to look for his 600 pound steer one morning last week. Signs indicated the animal was loaded into a truck after a struggle.

Damage to Poultry Claimed

St. Thomas, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Claims amounting to $500 for damage to poultry flocks have been received by township council at nearby Dunwich. Foxes are blamed by local farmers for most of the killings.

Drew Replies To King Letter

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)— Premier Drew of Ontario has replied to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's letter about reconvening the Dominion-Provincial conference, it was learned at Queen's Park yesterday.

However, the Premier's reply has not been made public and one Queen's Park official said: "Having regard to the importance of reaching a satisfactory understanding on this all-important matter, Premier Drew prefers to make no further comment until Mr. King has had an opportunity to consider the contents of this latest letter."

This was the latest development in an exchange between Premier and Prime Minister which began Sept. 7 when the Ontario Progressive Conservative Premier wrote to the Prime Minister suggesting that the conference be resumed and that Mr. King fix a date for the meeting.

Premier Drew made his Sept. 7 letter public Sept. 26 but the two succeeding letters—one from each—have not been issued for publication.

The conference was adjourned last May 3 when Dominion and provinces failed to reach general agreement on taxation matters.

The Ontario council of the C. C. F. issued a statement last night saying that Premier Drew's request for reconvening the conference is "hypocritical" and until he "changes his attitude a further conference would be useless."

"Premier Drew has been asking for Dominion-Provincial conferences since 1943 and by his own efforts has succeeded in sabotaging every meeting which has been held and blocking any chance for over-all settlement of tax and other major problems."

MARTIAL LAW IN KOREAN CITY

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 3 — (AP)— Army authorities said today that martial law had been declared in Taiku, a city in Southeastern Korea, and that they were checking a report that 12 Koreans had been killed there Tuesday after a crowd led by Communists demonstrated against resumption of railway service after a six-day strike.

SEIZE 280 VIALS COCAINE IN TRIESTE

Trieste, Oct. 3 — (Reuters) — Police investigating a drug smuggling ring today seized 280 vials of cocaine — "enough to kill half Trieste." The drugs, believed of German wartime manufacture, are said to have come to Trieste from South Tyrol and were being passed to north Italian towns.

STUDENT LISTS IN SOCIAL WORK SHOW EXPANSION

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto —(CP)— The number of students entering Canada's schools of social work this year is almost double the 1945 figure, it was revealed as registration opened for the fall terms. It is expected enrolment will total more than 400.

Realizing the profession is expanding in Canada, many former servicemen and women have registered for the courses at the Maritime School of Social Work, Halifax, and at the schools in the Universities of Montreal, Laval, McGill, Toronto, Manitoba and British Columbia.

In Toronto 115 persons have signed up, compared with 83 last year. Forty per cent of the new students are men, among them several former high-ranking officers in the armed serices.

Older than the average university student, the war veteran looking for a career, will find this maturity to his advantage in social work where persons in their middle twenties are preferred to younger students. Again the experience the veteran has in handling and getting along with people is an added advantage.

Once known as "women's work," the field of social service now urgently needs men. "Social work should become known as a profession which is operated jointly by both men and women," said Dr. H. M. Cassidy, director of the University of Toronto School of Social Work. "At present probably not more than one-fifth of the qualified social workers in Canada are men."

At present there are not more than 1,000 qualified workers in Canada, most of them members of the Canadian Association of Social Workers. Five or six times that number could be engaged said Mr. Cassidy.

Rapid Expansion

The sudden expansion of social work in Canada is partially responsible for the shortage of workers as the schools have not been able to supply enough graduates to meet increased needs The introduction of family allowances, development of wartime housing, the community centre movement, improved penal services and the work done by the department of Veterans affairs all have contributed to the shortage.

Two months ago the federal government announced the setting aside of $100,000 to provide scholarships and to assist in expanding the Canadian Schools of Social Work.

"Adequately trained social workers are one of our best means of protecting Canada's investment in family allowances," Health Minister Claxton said at the time.

In 1945 three-month summer courses were opened at the University of Toronto and the University of British Columbia in an effort to alleviate the shortage through training group work aides and case aides.

"Salaries have markedly improved," said Mr. Cassidy. "At the present time a qualified social worker may earn anywhere from $2,000 to $3,000 a year. Executive and administrative posts offer salaries up to $5,000, and sometimes above that."

At present the department of veterans affairs has listed openings for a director of social services at $4,500, and two administrative assistants and two social service field consultants at $3,600.

And for the person interested in travelling the Canadian Red Cross and the U. N. R. R. A. are looking for social service personnel.

BULGARIA'S BOY-KING IN EXILE

Feel Decision to Stop Work Was Not Strike

London, Ont., Oct. 3 — (CP)— Military officials said Wednesday they felt that 11 civilian crane operators at the Central Mechanization Depot who stopped work Tuesday had resigned and that the decision to stop work was not a strike. The men complained of a reduction in take-home pay because their working hours were cut and there was no corresponding increase in the hourly rate. Col. E. D. Elwood, commanding officer at the depot, said if the men wanted to reconsider their decision there was nothing to prevent them getting their jobs back again.

Separate Trials Ruled in Five Espionage Cases

Ottawa, Oct. 2 (CP)—Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland today rejected crown efforts to try five of Canada's espionage accused jointly and ruled the interests of justice would be served only by giving the accused separate trials.

He said he did so "for reasons I shall probably make known later in a written judgment."

On the basis of this ruling, separate trials will be held for K. S. Gerson and J. S. Benning, ex-Munitions Department officials, Sqdn. Ldr. F. W. Poland and M. S. Nightingale, R.C.A.F. veterans, and K. G. Adams, former official in several government financial bodies.

It has been reported that a decision to uphold a joint trial on charges of conspiring to communicate confidential information for Russia and of so communicating it would lead possibly two of the five to elect trial by a County Court judge alone.

Crown lawyers have said they would not object to any of the five taking such a course.

Defence arguments against a joint trial include the contention that the "multiplicity" of evidence affecting a group would prejudice the jury against individuals.

Mr. Justice McFarland already has refused to transfer the trial or trials to Toronto and has agreed to separate hearings for the accused on each of the charges against them.

The five are charged jointly with conspiring to break the official secrets act and, in addition, the indictment lists one or two charges of breaking the act itself against each accused. The judge's ruling meant they would face one charge at a time.

Crown counsel J. R. Cartwright estimated yesterday that joint trial would take not less than four weeks, that individual trials would probably last a couple of weeks.

In another phase of the prosecution of suspects Dr. David Shugar, ex-naval anti-submarine expert will be formally committed today for trial in a higher court by Magistrate Glenn Strike. He is charged with conspiracy.

NAMED MEDIATOR

T. H. Rahilly, ABOVE, who will act as mediator of union security and other issues in negotiations between the union and Steel Co. of Canada after settlement of the strike. During the war he served as adviser to the steel controller's office in the department of munitions and supply.

CHILD CHOKES TO DEATH ON PIECE OF CABBAGE

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Nineteen-months-old Kenneth Russell choked to death last night on a piece of cabbage his mother gave him as she prepared a meal.

As four other children watched, Mrs. Russell and Mrs. W. Mercer tried unsuccessfully to dislodge the cabbage. Mrs. Russell then ran to a nearby home for aid but the child died in Mrs. Mercer's arms.

"As I held him he turned black and died," she said.

Dr. Stephen Evelyn, coroner, said no inquest will be held.

Disturb Robbers Attempting To Crack Safe

Winona, Ont., Oct. 3 — (CP)— A stick of dynamite, two fuses, drills, bars and a flashlight were left behind by robbers Tuesday night after they were discovered attempting to crack the safe in the office of E. D. Smith and Sons Ltd. in this Wentworth county community.

The combination and handle had been knocked off the safe door and holes had been drilled for the dynamite when the thieves were interrupted by night superintendent Allasair Smith. They made a getaway in an automobile while the superintendent ran to get help.

The robbers tore a hole through a solid brick wall of the vault to get at the safe. The holes drilled in the safe were made besides a number of others drilled 20 years ago by safecrackers who broke in then and murdered the night watchman.

BREAK WORLD'S NON-STOP FLIGHT RECORD

The four navy men who flew the "Truculent Turtle," a Lockheed P2V Neptune, to a world's record on an 11,822-mile non-stop flight from an airport outside Perth, Australia, to Port Columbus, O., congratulate each other on the successful completion of the trip upon alighting from the plane. Left to right: Lieut.-Comdr. Roy H. Tabeling, Jacksonville, Fla.; Comdr. Walter S. Reid, Washington; Comdr. Eugene P. Rankin, Sapula, Okla., and Comdr. Thomas D. Davies, Cleveland, O., flight commander. The plane took 55 hours and 18 minutes for the trip.

Dispel Unwarranted Charges

He added the hope that Gen. Stalin's words would dispel "the unwarranted charges that the United States is seeking to use its possession of the atomic bomb as a threat of force against the Soviet Union."

However, Mr. Byrnes said, American foreign policy will continue to follow a strong line.

"Just because war is not now imminent, we must take the greatest care not to plant the seeds of a future war. We must seek less to defend our actions in the eyes of those who agree with us, and more to defend our actions in the eyes of those who do not agree with us."

The State Secretary declared his belief that nobody wants war today, but he said decrying it is not enough.

"The difficulty is that while no nation wants war, nations may pursue policies or courses of action which lead to war. Nations may seek political and economic advantages which they cannot obtain without war," Mr. Byrnes declared.

The major portion of his speech was devoted to his views on the future control of Germany. He amplified in some respects his recent speech at Stuttgart and the 40-year treaty that he proposed last spring for keeping Germany disarmed and demilitarized.

The United States, he said, "is firmly opposed to a struggle for the control of Germany which would again give Germany the power to divide and conquer."

Don't Want Germany Pawn

"It does not want to see Germany become a pawn or a partner in a struggle for power between the east and west."

For that reason, he continued, he proposed the 40-year treaty among the four major powers, a pact which could be renewed according to the necessities of peace and security at the time when it expired.

"This plan, he said, would insure that "the Ruhr could never become the arsenal of Germany or the arsenal of Europe."

With this remark, Mr. Byrnes was answering French fears about the Ruhr and advancing a program different from the French one for internationalizing the area.

The occupation of Germany should be continued, he said, until disarmament and demilitarization is accepted by whatever German government emerges. And, he reiterated, "so long as there is an occupation army in Germany, the armed forces of the United States will be in the army of occupation."

Infantrymen, however, are not enough to safeguard the situation as Germany restores her industries, Mr. Byrnes declared.

"To keep watch over war potential in this industrial age, engineers are more important than infantry. Engineers can detect at an early stake any effort upon the part of a manufacturer of motorcars to convert his machinery to the manufacture of tanks or other weapons of war. Engineers can probe the mysteries of a chemical plant. Infantry soldiers cannot."

Report Should be Made

Should any such situation arise, he said, a report would be made immediately to the Control Commission. The commission, in turn, would demand of the German government that the plants be closed.

"If the government does not comply, the Allied representatives in 24 hours should order the necessary forces to enforce compliance."

He said the Allied representatives should have available, in such an instance, bombers from any of the Big Four nations.

Mr. Byrnes recalled that Georges Clemenceau, after the last war, attempted to obtain guarantees from the other Allies for help to France if Germany should invade again, but said Woodrow Wilson was unable to get the American people to join in the guarantee.

"This time, the American people propose not to wait until France is again invaded. They offer now to join with France, Britain and the Soviet Union to see to it that Germany does not and cannot invade France," Mr. Byrnes said.

Britain, France Agree

Britain and France have agreed to the principle of the proposed treaty, Mr. Byrnes said, adding:

"I hope very much that the Soviet Union, which thus far has regarded the treaty as unacceptable, will on further examination and study find it possible to join with us to prevent Germany from becoming a menace to the peace of Europe."

Turning to the question of the form of the next German government, Mr. Byrnes said: "We want to give enouragement to the peaceful democratic forces of Germany. We cannot do this unless we give them a chance to government themselves, democratically.

"We want to see the federal government of Germany created by the states and not the states created by the central government. If we so proceed we do not think we will find that the responsible representatives of the states will want to give excessive powers to the federal government."

Mr. Byrnes reiterated a statement he made last week — that American foreign policy has not changed under President Truman.

"The president has recently made known to the world in the most convincing manner possible that the foreign policy which was started by President Roosevelt, and which has been consistently followed by President Truman, will continue to be the policy of the American government," he said.

FINDS WALLET AFTER CALF IS KILLED

Russellville, Ark., Oct. 3—(AP)—The value of farmer Elmer Henderson's calf took a sudden $80 rise — too sudden for its own good. Henderson put his wallet containing $80 on a bush when he started to mow a meadow. When he returned, the wallet was gone. Henderson killed the calf and found his $80, only slightly chewed.

BARUCH DEMANDS

Not Available

Mr. Wallace was not available for comment in Washington last night. However, an associate said Mr. Wallace had not broken off his exchange on the matter with Mr. Baruch but had telephoned a suggested statement yesterday afternoon to a Baruch assistant.

Mr. Wallace resigned recently as Commerce Secretary at the request of President Truman as the result of Mr. Wallace's differences with State Secretary Byrnes' on American foreign policy. He disagreed with Mr. Byrnes' policy in a speech in New York on Sept. 12. His letter of July 23, setting forth his views on foreign policy, was released Sept. 17. His resignation came shortly afterwards.

In the telegram Mr. Baruch told the former cabinet member:

"Yours is a responsibility for impairing the support of the American proposals (atomic) which you frankly approved once your misunderstandings had been corrected.

Tends to Confusion

"You have disappointed me sorely. Your reluctance publicly to correct your mistakes tends to confusion and distrust. Certainly confidence and faith cannot be achieved by mis-statements of fact. That method only adds to dissension."

The Baruch memorandum to Mr. Truman said it was intended to point out "the major errors of fact with a view to setting the record straight." It added that the "mis-statements" in the Wallace letter may be summarized under these headings:

"1. The method of determining the stages of transition to the ultimate control plan,

"2. The content and sequence of these transition stages,

"3. The proposed limitation on the great power veto,

"4. The nature of the Soviet proposal,

"5. The refusal by the United States to depart from the principles of its plan."

After giving detailed answers, the memorandum said that the United States could not consider modifications in the fundamental principles of its plan.

SENATOR GREEN ILL

Victoria, Oct. 2 —(CP)— Senator R. F. Green, 84, was reported last night in critical condition in hospital here. He suffered a stroke here earlier in the day. Conservative, he was appointed to the Senate in 1921 as a representative of the Kootenay district.

More Than Luck in Record For 375,000 Miles Safe Driving

Chicago, Oct. 3 — (AP)—Julius Wolf, a taxicab driver who won a safety award for driving 375,000 miles in city traffic without an accident in 15 years, says there is more than luck in his record. Wolf, 37, gave a tip on how to outguess the other motorist: "Figure out what he's up to. Then figure he'll do it wrong. You've got to be ready for everything."

Jack Brayley Atlantic Supt. Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Appointment of Jack Braley of Saint John, N. B., as Atlantic superintendent was announced yesterday by Gillis Purcell, general manager of the Canadian Press. Brayley succeeds A. D. Merkel, superintendent for more than 20 years, who retired in May.

For the last three years Brayley has been a member of CP's Ottawa Parliamentary Staff, where his reporting of defence matters and news from the Prime Minister's office has been a feature of the service. He joined CP in 1937 in London, England, and worked in Montreal bureau from 1940 to 1943.

The new Atlantic superintendent was born in Saint John in 1913, worked as a carrier boy and later reporter for the Telegraph-Journal and Times-Globe. He was sports editor of the Times-Globe in 1936. He is married and has two children.

Jack Tracey of Halifax, who has had charge of CP's Halifax staff since May, is appointed news editor.

WOMEN PAY BIG PRICE FOR POOR "BLOOD MAKE UP"

You women who feel and look "washed out"—limp and droopy—may be paying the price of hemoglobin shortage in the blood.

The demands of monthly "periods" pregnancy, etc. all conspire to bring about this shortage of the vital red coloring matter in the red blood cells. Try Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

They help increase hemoglobin where there is a shortage of it due to iron deficiency and help chase away that "leaden" feeling of tiredness so often due to this condition. Start your course of Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. Ask your druggist.

WHERE SEVEN DIED IN TRAIN WRECK

Here is an aerial photo showing the snake-like position of the trans-continental sleeper Union Pacific train after it left the tracks three miles east of Victorville, Calif., killing seven persons, and sending 70 to the hospital. The "Transcon" was derailed on a curve only 50 yards before it was to have crossed the Mojave River. Its locomotive was overturned and thrown far ahead of the other cars. Injured were removed from the wreckage and taken to a Victorville army air base on the freight car shown in LOWER RIGHT, from where army tarnsport planes flew them to Lockheed air terminal for removal to hospitals.

Scenes like this are repeated daily across Alberta and Saskatchewan as the strike on the farm "parity price" issue continues.

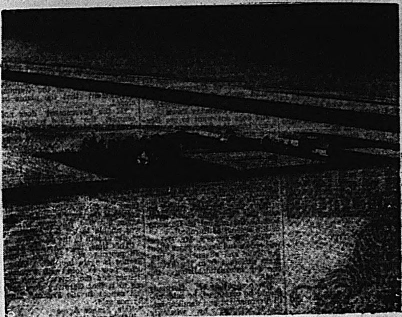
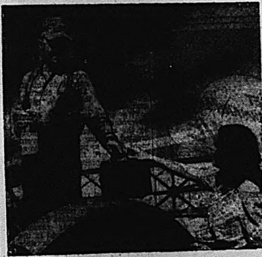
"WORLD'S GREATEST GAMBLERS" FOUND IN CANADIAN WEST



Canada's western wheat farmers hit the 1946 jackpot with a harvest of 440,000,000 bushels — just 100,000,000 bigger than last year's crop. Fear of sawfly, rain, drought, dust storms and pests make the 100 days from seeding to harvest on the fertile plains days of worry for the farmers who cultivate 25,000,000,000 acres.



At harvest, wives bring lunches to their men in the fields.

C. O. Wagoner, typical farmer, checks a sample of his quality wheat harvest.

Like prehistoric monsters gobbling the rich earth's bounty — seven combines on Saskatchewan's plains work in tandem to harvest one of Canada's all-time yields of wheat.

Newspaper Editors Say Jane Ardens Here to Stay

By KAY REK

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Just a little confident information while the boss has his back turned:

If you're a would-be Jane Arden looking for a job, now is the time to beard the editor of your hometown newspaper in his den— while he's still reminiscing on the excellent work of the Canadian newspaperwoman during the war.

When woman first parked her hat and gloves on a copy-desk, the managing editor reasoned that she couldn't stand the strain of long hours and weird assignments. But the labor shortage forced him to hire her and have this theory disproved. A Canadian Press survey reveals Canada's progressive newspapermen are retaining the skirted personnel they employed during the war.

In British Columbia, the Trail Times and Nelson News, with circulations of 3,800 and 6,000 respectively, have women holding down nearly 50 per cent of the editorial jobs. During the war they employed more women than men.

In Ontario, the Timmins Press, with circulation of 9,000, and the North Bay Nugget, with 7,000, have tripled the number of women they employed in the pre-war era.

It's true a few women have dropped out of the game, but chiefly because they either married or found higher-paying jobs in advertising or publicity work.

It's Copy That Counts

As for hiring a married woman, most editors say they don't give a hoot just as long as she turns out good copy.

On a large number of Canadian papers women make from 15 to 20 per cent less than men doing similar jobs. On small papers a girl reporter starting out has had to be content often with less than 15 a week. If she's lucky she may climb to $35.

However, on the bigger papers, in such cities as Toronto and Montreal a good woman reporter may earn as much as $1,800 to $4,000 a year.

In accordance with their growth in importance the social and women's departments are claiming an increasing number of women writers.

The average paper with a circulation of 30,000 and more has anywhere up to seven society and women's page reporters, covering not only women's clubs, but doing features on both men and women.

During the war the woman reporter on general duty did everything from pound a police beat and cover murders to "file" a news wire and write sports.

In Ottawa people still talk about Lois Stevens, formerly of the Citizen, who covered a troop-train between Montreal and Ottawa. The Military Police found her as the train was going through corn-fields. They put her off, but she hitch-hiked to Ottawa, and banged out a front-page story.

In Press Gallery

Ottawa too has seen women invade the Parliamentary Press Gallery where Helen Bannerman of the Canadian Press and Evelyn Tufts of the Halifax Herald are members. The former covered the War Expenditures Committee during the last session.

In Niagara Falls, Ont., when the Second Great War broke out, Winnifred Stokes, who has been with The Review for the last 27 years, edited the first Sunday edition published by The Review. Miss Stokes, president of the Canadian Women's Press Club is acting editor of The Review during the editor's absence.

And during the war Margaret Ecker Francis, Canadian war correspondent, formerly of the Vancouver Province and The Canadian Press, was the only woman present at the signing of the Treaty at Reims, which officials marked the surrender of the German armies on the Western Front.

Halifax is believed the only city in Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island where women even get near a news-room. The Halifax Mail now has a total of five.

In Montreal The Gazette tops that city's papers with seven, compared with three before the war.

The Toronto Globe and Mail has 12 compared with eight in 1939. The Evening Telegram with 14 before the war, now is well above that figure.

But Winnipeg is the oasis with 32 women on The Free Press, approximately 36 per cent of the news-room staff.

And from this you might say women are being accepted into newspaperdom. As T. J. Lowery, managing editor of the Ottawa Journal puts it: "We approve of women on the staff and so we have them. We like the ones who aren't afraid of hard work and they were a God-send to us during the war. There should be a good future for women on newspapers."

Late Fall Fruits For Winter Pleasure

The big fall fruit crop this season has taxed the canning sugar supply in the average household to the limit. With plums, grapes, pears and quinces among the late fruits still on the market, many a homemaker wants to add them to her stock, but has not enough sugar to do the quantity she wants. Granted she has learned the art of canning the maximum of fruit with the minimum of sugar, but still in many cases is a little afraid to can without any sugar. Home economists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture's Consumers Section, point out that it isn't the sugar which is the factor in keeping canned fruit, but the processing, or sterilizing which is the important thing.

Below are the Consumer Section's directions for canning grape juice, grapes and plums without sugar. The grape juice, being a very useful addition to any fruit shelf, will pay big dividends in the variety it will add to many a winter meal. With the addition of a little sugar it makes a satisfying appetizer served plain or spiced, hot or cold. It may be made into sparkling jelly to serve with the dinner meat, or the breakfast toast. It lends flavor to puddings, gelatine desserts and pudding sauces.

Grape Juice

1 six quart basket blue or white grapes. .. ..
1 pint of water.

Wash stem and crush grapes. Add water. Simmer 15 minutes. Strain through moist jelly bag. Reheat juice to boiling point, and pour into clean hot containers. Seal and process 10 minutes in the boiling water bath.

To make jelly from this grape juice heat later, test for pectin. Place a tablespoon of unsweetened grape juice in a saucer, add 1 tablespoon alcohol (rubbing alcohol may be used). Blend quickly together and let stand 30 seconds. Do not taste. If a jelly-like mass is formed, the juice contains sufficient pectin. Bring juice to boiling point add sugar and proceed with the jelly making. If just a few flakes of jelly are formed the juice should be brought to the boil a few minutes longer and the test repeated.

Solid Pack Grapes

For roly poly desserts, pies and steamed puddings grapes will prove popular and add a slightly different note to winter meals.

Wash grapes and separate skins and pulp. Heat pulp to boiling point and boil gently 5 minutes. Rub through a sieve to remove seeds. Combine pulp and skins, bring to the boiling point and pack hot into clean hot sealers. Adjust rubber rings and tops, and process in the boiling water bath for 15 minutes for pints and quarts.

To use solid black grapes for pie filling, roly poly etc., thicken with cornstarch or flour, add sugar to taste and a dash of salt.

Solid Black Plums

Like the grapes, solid black plums make delicious pies, and puddings, and if a little sugar can be saved from the weekly ration and set aside, plum jam can be made from them later.

Wash and pit juicy plums, heat slightly in a kettle crushing them down slightly until the juice starts to flow. Pack at once into clean hot sealers, pressing them down until covered with their own juice. Adjust rubber rings and tops, and process in the boiling water bath 20 minutes for pints and 25 minutes for quarts.

QUEEN'S NEW BONNET

Dowager Queen Mary set a pace for staid, old-fashioned hats that present Queen Elizabeth refuses to follow. At the recent "Britain Can Make It" exhibition in London, she wore this smart flower-decorated chapeau that is somewhat more chic than even she was accustomed to wearing.

St. Catharines Forges Ahead In Canadian Lacrosse Final By Winning Second Game 18-9

Athletics Not the Best Team That Has Represented City but One of Spunkiest

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP)—That old jinx which has followed western lacrosse clubs for 36 years seems to be struggling to maintain its record — a western team has never won the Mann Cup in the east and after two straight setbacks at the hands of St. Catharines Athletics, chances don't look bright for New Westminster Salmonbellies to win it this campaign.

The Saints were a superior club last night as they swamped the westerners 18-9 after edging them 11-10 Monday in the first game of a best-of-five Dominion championship series. But outstanding in their lopsided win was their feat in holding the reputedly goal-greedy Salmonbellies scoreless for 32 minutes and 30 seconds as they came from behind.

There was plenty of wagering on Salmonbellies among the 7,698 paying customers last night but the Athletics will be odds-on favorites to take the series three straight Friday night. If they succeed it will be the fifth time the A's have been crowned champions since first winning the Mann Cup in 1938.

Mecca for Lacrosse

A city of only 30,000 persons but bubbling with dozens of lacrosse teams from pee-wees upward, St. Catharines has become Canada's lacrosse mecca in recent years. The 1946 edition of the A's is not the strongest squad the Garden city has produced but it's one of the spunkiest.

When the series opened some ardent St. Catharines' supporters thought their favorites might crack without their regualr goalie, Bill Whitaker, in the nets. But they can put their worries with the mothballs because a 24-year-old Royal Canadian Navy "lookout" — Doug Favell — is really looking out for their interests.

In the nets again last night after a Canadian Lacrosse Association declined to lift a suspension of Whitaker for this series but reinstating him for the next year, Favell blocked 26 shots, including one penalty shot effort by Reo Jerome. The young sailor's work in the first game was good but last night it was sensational.

The Salmonbellies played fair enough lacrosse in the early stages and led after the first period 5-4. Then they went into their worst scoring slump in memory of some of the players and failed to find the net throughout the second and third quarters. Meanwhile the Saints ran wild, adding one in the second and six in the third.

Played Defensive Game

Once they moved a few goals in front the A's played defensive lacrosse, breaking away time after time as the Westerners vainly tried to organize an attack. So successful was their checking the Saints held Ike Hilderbrand, New Westminster ace, off the score sheet after permitting him only one goal in the opener.

While they floundered to regain their scoring touch the Salmonbellies folded hopelessly on defence to give their masked goalie, Bill Scuba, scant protection. St. Catharines' shooting was razor sharp and Scuba fanned on 18 shots while blocking only 15.

Roy Morton led the A's scoring parade with four goals while Tom Madsen, Joe Cheevers, Pat Smith, Jack (Wandy) McMahon and George Urquhart bagged a pair each. One of Cheevers' goals came on a penalty shot. Bert Bryant and Jerome scored three each for the Westerners.

There was little rejoicing in the St. Catharines ranks and while trainer Bill Demars predicted a straight - game triumph and thought it difficult "to understand how they (Salmonbellies) won the western title from what they showed," the balding Cheevers figured the westerners just "got a bad game out of their systems."

Karl "Krippler" Davis, the gent pictured above got so incensed at what Lee "The Scowl" Henning said about him that he shoved him right off the sport page — and inserted himself. The Henning, who takes back nothing he says or does, has been scouting the "Krip" and figures he can knock him clean back to his native state when they meet Friday night in the main go at the arena here. What the "Krip" said about Henning must be whispered — printing is out. On the same card is the Paralyzing Pole, "Vody" Talun, who meets Bobby Nelson, while in the curtain raiser, Olaf Olsen, by yiminy, tangles with Terry (Be Japers) McGuiness. Nuff said.

DODGERS START HATTEN IN EFFORT TO EVEN SERIES

Eddie Dyer of St. Louis Cardinals Will Rely on Murry Dickson

Brooklyn, Oct. 3 (AP) —Leo Durocher's ability to rally his sagging Dodgers from the brink of disaster meets its big test today when Brooklyn resumes its post-season play-off series with St. Louis knowing full well that the National League pennant and world series crash will vanish in defeat.

Back at Ebbets Field where they have compiled an amazing record of 56 victories and 21 defeats for a .727 percentage, the Brooks are inclined to overlook the 4-2 defeat hung around their necks by Howie Pollet in St. Louis Tuesday.

Durocher has been able to pick his "bums" off the floor after a defeat that would take the heart out of an ordinary ball club. The flatbush faithful are confident Leo will bring them back bouncing from the shadows of elimination.

Durocher will start Joe Hatten the rookie lefthander who came out of service to win 14 and lose 10 in his freshman year.

Arriving in New York last night a few minutes behind the Dodgers after a 22-hour train trip, Eddie Dyer's Redbirds were a loose, confident ball club, sure of themselves and not conceding a thing.

Dyer, on the hot spot all season when his star-loaded Cards failed to play up to their prewar form, was in the enviable position of having a second guess on his pitching selection.

Murry Dickson, a wiry little righthander, was the choice over Harry (The Cat) Brecheen.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Providence — Jack (Spider) Armstrong, 130, Toronto, knocked out Johnny Juliano, 125 3-4, Newark, N.J. (1).

New Orleans — Chester Rico, 141, New York, outpointed Juste Fontaine, 137, Pittsburgh (10).

Chicago — Buddy Knox, Dayton, outpointed Johnny Denson, Indianapolis, 10. (Heavyweights).

Oakland, Calif.—Paul Lewis, 157, Oakland, outpointed Chester Slider, 150 1-2, Fresno (10).

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Training camps, where N.H.L. hopefuls get a chance to show their wares, are old stuff these days but league president Clarence Campbell has come up with something new in his plan of awarding pre-season tryouts to aspirant "whistle-tooters." Campbell, a onetime N.H.L. referee himself, knows how the quality of the officiating makes or breaks the game and intends to scout candidates for the jobs in exhibition games of both Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

Off to a late start, Boston Bruins face a heavy practice schedule of six hours a day at their Hershey camp. Manager Art Ross, eyeing the 15 veterans and 15 hopefuls in yesterdays grind, opined he wasn't worried about catching up. Said Art: "Let the other clubs not worry about us. We'll know in the middle of the season whether we started practice too late or not."

In an exhibition match at Detroit last night, the Red Wings backed up a 13-4 win over their Indianapolis farm club before a 7,500 crowd. Sid Abel, Ted Lindsay and Roy Conacher each netted two for the N.H.L. club.

Ever the diplomat off the ice—that's towering Leo Reise of Chicago Black Hawks. On the ice, it's a different matter with the 190-pound defenceman from Brantford, Ont., who hopes to finish an economics course started at McMaster University last spring and get a job in Canada's diplomatic corps. He's been hitting them with everything but diplomacy at Chicago's Regina camp, where he seems assured of graduating from Kansas City Pla-Mors of the United States Hockey League to the parent Hawks.

A typical day at Toronto Maple Leafs St. Catharines, Ont., training camp: Up at 7:15 with physical training and a hockey practice in the morning; golf in the afternoon, evening free and light's out at 11 p.m. Oh, to be born to the skates.

Pittsburgh Hornets, Toronto's American Hockey League affiliate, stay at Niagara Falls but move over to St. Catharines for afternoon practices when the Leafs are out golfing.

To hear them tell it, those last two positions in the N.H.L. standings will be vacant come 1947 playoff time. Manager Frank Boucher served notice in a radio interview at Winnipeg last night that his New York Rangers won't be there. Said Frank, "I don't like to go out on a limb, but I definitely intend to get the Rangers out of the cellar this year. . . ."

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Well, that's that. We've had it for the last time this season. Goodman's Juniors bowed out of the OASA junior softball picture yesterday afternoon at the Alemite Field by the narrowest of margins. It was a heartbreaking game to lose and a grand game to win for the Toronto Lizzies. It was a Merriwell finish with Tepperman in the hero's role when he homered in the ninth after his team had trailed 1-0 from the fourth.

• • •

Then came the big break of the game. Greenberg singled and unlike his famous Tiger namesake did not linger on third, but scored the winning run on a walk, an error and a fielder's choice. The game was a fine hurling duel between Don Boyle and Greenberg, with the latter allowing our kids only two hits and Boyle scattering six for eight innings and clustering two in the fateful ninth.

Defeated but not disgraced, the Goodman kids held high the softball name of this city in the playdowns and they went down fighting before a team that shaded them. There was no luck to the play — just the breaks. Belleville should be proud of its softball representatives as well as its junior baseball squad. They deserve plenty of credit. More power to them next year.

• • •

And speaking of heartbreak, it was out there on the Alemite diamond yesterday. A game youngster, his heart broken within him, eyes tear-misted, and a lump in his throat, staved off the dark shadow of grief, and like the grand sportsman he is, played the game in more ways than one.

• • •

For stark tragedy struck swiftly and deeply at young Gordie Donovan, left fielder of the Goodmans, and his family. The news of his father's sudden death reached him and cut deeply through his boyish heart. He went home, but his mother, grand lady that she is, heart-broken herself, advised the boy to "play the game" literally and figuratively. And back to his mates went the gallant kid. He stood out there alone, except for the shadow of terrible tragedy. Bravely he smiled through his tears and gave his best for the team in their struggle for victory.

• • •

And he was alone in his grief. His mates did not speak to him. Words are futile at a time like this. Deeply they felt for him and pride swelled their chests at the sight of a grand team-mate, a kid they had known and played with all their lives, going out there and giving best for the "gang."

• • •

At the end of the game Gordie walked quietly from the field, tears rolling down his cheeks, and wended his way slowly to a grief-torn home. Many eyes followed the head-bowed youngster as he left the playing field. Tears misted those eyes and perhaps hearts swelled a bit at the sight of a grand little guy who took one of the worst blows Life can hand out —and refused to acknowledge defeat. Of such stuff, true sportsmen are made.

• • •

Where Credit is Due.

The story of the 1946 edition of the Belleville Kiwanis junior baseball squad is now more or less water under the bridge. The youngsters gave a grand account of themselves in organized playdowns and are a distinct credit to themselves, the city and their sponsors. Individual stars blossomed forth from time to time and and many lines have been written of their prowess on the diamond at home and away.

• • •

The fans, the Joes who pay to see their fun, have offered criticism constructive and otherwise. Some have been a bit sarcastic at various times while the majority got behind the squad and rooted it through to the Ontario semi-finals. The team was beaten by one of the smoothest junior baseball aggregations to come out of any part of Ontario, and they went down with their colors flying and facing the enemy.

• • •

By this time, the post mortems have died a natural death, although a few die-hard armchair coaches still rant about what might have happened if . . . True, but it didn't and that's that.

• • •

And now that the shouting and the tumult have ceased and playdown baseball, as far as the junors are concerned, has passed into history, let's make a spot of mention about the unsung heroes behind the scenes to whom the greater part of the credit for a smart team, must go.

In our opinion, one of the men who was mainly responsible for the fine success of the squad this year — and last year, too, for that matter, is the veteran hockey and baseball star, Speedy St. Louis. The grey-thatched, balding vet of many a hockey - baseball battle was one of the few who stuck by the kids when days were darkest; when they were wandering around in the baseball wilderness aimlessly looking for a sponsor; who stuck by them through thick and thin; fought for 'em at home and "abroad;" held them together and by dint of effort, hard work, time and his own expense, finally welded them into a fighting whole that later took baseball fandom here by storm, and nearly reached the coveted junior championship goal.

• • •

To Speedy St. Louis, goes this column's accolade for a job well and truly done. He had troubles aplenty. He had worries, and plenty of headaches. Many times he was on the verge of throwing up the sponge, the fighting spirit that carried him through many a tough sports battle stood him in good stead He hurled a mental defiance at things as they were and finally emerged a victor.

St. Louis

• • •

"Speedy" St. Louis' "civilian" job is no sinecure. Neither for that matter is that of any of his colleagues on the mail route. No sedentary position is this job of carrying the mail, through good weather and fair; through snow and hail, rain and slush. No office cinch have these men of the mail routes. There is no eleven o'clock coffee for them, or the chance to "snitch" the odd forty winks when the old man isn't around. It's a steady plodding up hill and down dale, for the mail must go through.

But St. Louis had little rest. He gave his spare time, and his Sundays, to whipping the boys into shape. He was a stern disciplinarian, had a quick temper, which flared at times. But the first man to give his squad credit was its coach. Speedy made mistakes. Who doesn't? . . . And it doesn't take much of a mistake, especially in the realm of athletics or news-paper work, to bring down a storm of criticism, from alleged wise guys.

• • •

Personally, with a lot of other people, including the team, we think St. Louis did a grand job. To his severest critics we say, "Go thou and do likewise." If they have the guts to try, that is.

• • •

And another columnar orchid to Manager Jack McVeigh who took over his duties after the Kiwanis Club assumed sponsorship. Working hand in hand with St. Louis, Jack went all-out in his efforts to produce a game-winning organization. His administration work for the team was little short of perfect, and Jack, too, gave plenty of time and effort to the cause. To the Kiwanis Club goes the credit for doing something more than taking a financial interest in the squad. They have set a worthy example to other city organizations in taking an interest in the youth of the city. They can well hold high their collective heads when they once again seek funds from the public for the many worthy humanitarian social causes they espouse over the period of a year.

Bill Whitaker Stands Suspended Until Next Year

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP) — Bill Whitaker of St. Catharines, will be eligible to return to lacrosse competition next year but his suspension remains in effect for the present season, the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association decided yesterday at a special meeting.

Goalie for St. Catharines Athletics last year, Whitaker was suspended for striking referee Jimmy Dunn during a Mann Cup finals match with Vancouver Burrards in Vancouver.

The association also suspended Dunn over the incident. It decided the referee's suspension must remain in effect throughout 1947.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Princeton, N.J., Oct. 3—(AP)—It isn't too surprising this football season to read blasts like that one about the "human slave market." . . . Seems here the phrase "Coaches who receive higher salaries than university presidents" may explain some of its vehemence . . . but it does seem strange in this Ivy League stronghold to read the suggestion that colleges which don't go all out in subsidizing might as well give up hope of drawing big gates because the competition from professional football will become too great . . . that theme is developed in this week's Princeton alumni weekly by football reporter Lee A. Gould. He says that the "Ivy group" agreement will "bring to an end the long and brilliant records of the eight colleges concerned as teams of national consequence . . ." Then he goes on to add that the same thing would take place eventually because the pros play more and better football and will soon attract the general public away from college games . . . He's right on one count: anybody who wants to give up doesn't belong in football.

Jersey Jones, the former New York Rangers hockey publicist, who once held the distinction of managing Bingo Joe Banivic, has teamed up with Lew Burston to pilot "the world's best middleweight," Charley Burley . . . . Jones says that when Burley saw the recent Zale-Graziano fracas he merely asked: "How long do you think it will take us to get him?" — meaning Zale, of course.

POULTRY RUSTLERS ACTIVE

Edmonton, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Poultry rustling, said to be of a magnitude rivalling the large-scale cattle rustling of the old West, brought a warning from the Alberta government yesterday. Farmers were advised to take every possible precaution against the night raiders. Government officials said the poultry stealing business, since meat rationing was introduced, and more recently the farm products delivery strike, has become a large-scale affair involving night attacks on farmyards by prowlers with speeding trucks.

Edmonton, Oct. 3 —(CP)—Coach Riley Mullen and his Edmonton Flyer's—this city's entry in the western Canada senior hockey league—are presently whipping into shape, and are expected to be one of the best clubs ever assembled in the Alberta capital.

Mullen, who recently returned from a tour of training camps in the Winnipeg area, has acquired a few young hopefuls to replace the loss of last year's stars—Bob Carse and Doug Lane —who have signed contracts with the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Although the loss of Carse and Lane who carried the torch for Flyers' last season have left a big gap for Mullen to fill, he nevertheless is confident of a "better club this year."

Hitting the ice recently for the first practice of the season—in a more or less limbering up session—the Edmonton club had upwards of 20 candidates.

Heading the list of newcomers to the Flyer cammp was Elmer "The Shadow" Kreller who recently returned from the East where he spurned a contract with Toronto Maple Leaf's farm club, Tulsa.

Other new faces included Alex Pringle, former Edmonton junior who performed in a Vancouver uniform last year and recently was a try-out with the Chicago Black Hawks in Regina and Freddie Smitten, with New Westminister Royals last season.

It's understood around these parts that an announcement will be made shortly by the Alberta Swimming Association that William Wrigley, Jr., the gum tycoon, will withdraw all support of the mile and other swimming chamionships which carried his name in provincial competition.

Maybe I can get a raise out of you. This should be easy if you know when. And you should know when after today. This lesson is one that you can teach to your friends, too. It will do them good.

Know how many tricks your hand contains. Do this by adding up your high cards and short cards at one apiece. A high card is an ace or a king or a queen. A short card is each card short of three.

An opening one bidder promises five tricks. He expects to find two tricks in the hand of his partner. This is the basis in tricks for each player of a partnership.

For each trick in excess of five, the opener can raise once. That is, over the last partnership bid, he can increase one in the number for each trick he has above the five he has shown.

The partner of the opener, you must recall, is expected to have two tricks. For each trick in excess of two, he can increase one in the number of the last partnership contract.

Each bid is not necessarily a raise. The fact that a player has made a bid does not mean that he has used up his extra trick. Only when he increases the number is the extra trick consumed.

With that in mind, take this pair of partnership hands;

SOUTH	NORTH
♠J 2	♠A Q 8 6
♥10 8 4	♥9 7 5
♦A Q 8 4	♦J 7 6 5
♣A K 6 3	♣7 4

South opens with one diamond, showing and consuming his five tricks. He has no future raises. North responds with one spade. It is not a raise, he has a later raise with his third trick.

South would have to say two clubs to show his other suit. It would be a raise. He has no sixth trick for it. He must bid one in no-trump; a non-raise.

With diamond support, north then assists to two diamonds. This is a raise over one no-trump. It uses up the third trick in north. Five and three are eight. A bid of two must take that many.

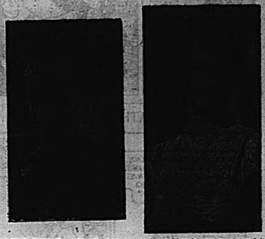
AT THE CAPITOL — Errol Flynn and Alexis Smith as they appear in Warner Bros.' newest outdoor Technicolor drama, "San Antonio," now playing at the Capitol Theatre. Also featured in the film are John Litel, S. Z. "Cuddles" Sakall, Victor Francen and Paul Kelly. The added western "Marshal of Laredo," stars Wild Bill Elliott.



AT THE BELLE — Rex Harrison and Anna Neagle are co-starred in the new 20th. Century-Fox hit, "A Yank in London." "Double Exposure," Paramount's action-packed fun film, starring Chester Morris and Nancy Kelly, is the companion feature attraction.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 3 —(AP)— Charles Bickford would have us melt the Oscars into doorknobs. In other words, he wants to do away with the Academy Awards.

This statement came forth during a quiet lunch with Bickford, a man whose opinions rank high in violence with those of Harold L. Ickes, former United States interior secretary. With one sweep of the hand he dismissed the annual awards of the Motion Picture Academy as untruthful and unfair.

"If the public knew how much politics went into selecting awards, they would be done away with," he declared. "It is strictly a matter of a studio getting behind a picture or player and pushing it through by any means possible. Very few of the voters have any knowledge of artistic value."

Then how better could the awards be made — by a public vote?

"No. Then the awards could be made on an emotional basis. The bobbysoxers would vote for their favorite, the senior leaguers would vote for me, and so forth. It would be a popularity contest."

Perhaps the critics should select the winners?

"No. On the whole they know less about judging dramatic ability than the public."

As a matter of fact, he continued, "how can you pick the 'best' actor of the year? I've always admired Sinclair Lewis for turning down his Pulitzer Prize. If, by any chance, I won an Academy Award, I would refuse it, because accepting it would be an insult to my fellow actors."

Wallace Beery, who has aided more kid stars to fame than any other actor, herewith takes a flyer on naming the seven top juveniles of all time:

Margaret O'Brien for her dramatic ability; Judy Garland for her voice; Mickey Rooney for his comedy; Jackie Cooper for his boyishness; Jackie Coogan for his wistful charm; Shirley Temple for her comliness; Dean Stockwell for his all-round appeal. Needless to say, young Stockwell is now appearing with Wally in "The Mighty McGurk." The gruff actor predicts great things for the lad.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today was Nora's day off and ma cooked the dinner, being veel cutlet and fried eggplant ,and ma watched pop while he was eating it, saying, How is everything, William?

Couldn't be better, pop said, and ma said, Now William I hope you're not just saying that.

I mean every werd of it, my dear, pop said The only reason I'm not smacking my lips loudly at every bite is because it would be a bad example for Benny, but believe me I'm smacking them under by breth, he said, and ma said, Would you like some more eggplant?

I haven't finished this yet, but by gollies I believe I'd like some more anyway, pop said, and ma said, Are you sure, William? It seemed to me that perhaps I had let them cook a little long, she said.

It didn't seem so to me, pop said, and ma said, I'm glad to hear you say so, but perhaps they could of been done a little less brown.

I like this shade of brown, I used to have a necktie just about this shade of brown and everybody admired it, pop said, and ma said, What I man is, they might of been a little moister inside if I'd taken them off sooner.

Perhaps so, pop said, and ma said, Oh, then that means you really think they're overcooked.

The looce it does, pop said, and ma said, Well what else could it mean for land sakes?

It could mean that London is still the capital of England in spite of what happened to ent Petersberg, but as a matter of fact it doesn't mean a confounded thing, pop said. And now I'm reddy for another big helping of this perfect eggplant, he said.

The result being ma gave him 3 more slices and kept on looking at him kind of sispicious, and pop ate them looking like a narrow excape.

CHAPTER 19

[illegible] been no reasonable alternative to suggest. To leave [illegible] the big Woodside place wasn't practicable; to board them somewhere with their nurse would be a dog-in-the-manger business, when Dennis was so eager to have them and the circumstances were so fortunate for them.

But the point was that in one or two rather vague and uncomfortable talks Isabel had had with his mother on the subject of the little girls, while Dennis was away in the South Pacific, Isabel had rashly said, in her anxiety to be kind and to soften the blow, "Perhaps we'll put them in a city school when they're a little older, and they can spend the week with you, and come to me for the week-ends."

"Summer visits perhaps, to Sausalito?" the heartbroken, self-controlled older woman had suggested.

"Oh, with me for summers!" Isabel had put in definitely. "I'll always have plans for summers."

"Then we'll make the best of our little schoolgirls," Dennis's mother had agreed quickly.

At the time it had seemed as if Dennis might be away at war for years, as if somebody could seriously suggest that little creatures like Pussy and Catherine ever should leave their mother. Everything along that line of thought had been solved by Isabel with a careless "Oh, that'll all take care of itself!" The reality had been Avery, and the New York shops and hotel and theatres, and the mink coat.

Now reality had moved to the other side of the ledger. Dennis was home again, to stay, he and his mother were acutely interested in the disposition of Catherine and Pussy. Summer was upon them, summer that was to be Isabel's time with them. And yet—so contrarily were things working out that Dennis was quite justified in expecting that they should be his for everything but week ends, and perhaps Christmas — but they wouldn't want to leave Sausalito for Christmas!

"Is Mrs. Somers-Cox pretty, Gran?" It was easier to call Dennis's mother that now. Dennis's affectionate "Mom" didn't seem appropriate; she didn't quite dare use it.

"You'll see her, Isabel. Suppose you girls," said Mrs. Hardisty, "go and lie down? Pussy, you take off your shoes and Catherine's, and lie quiet now, no bouncing about. Pussy in Daddy's room, the bed's all turned down, and Catherine in my room."

She had taken over. They obeyed her instantly, almost eagerly. They loved this place so that even the hated naps were accepted as a welcome indication that they belonged!

"Villeshmay—" Catherine began.

"Baby, empty your mouth — swallow that—before you try to talk," Isabel exclaimed.

"She means will Esme be here or you can go over there," said the grandmother. "She's taking a nap, too."

"You asked if she was pretty," said Mrs. Hardisty, when the small girls had trailed away and the lunch table was being cleared. "Yes, I think Madge is pretty —nice-looking, anyway."

"And she runs the school single-handed?"

"No, she has a nice little assistant, who comes up every Monday and goes home Saturdays."

Isabel wiped dishes slowly. She did not want to go away. She did not want to turn her children over to a nice Englishwoman to raise.

"Does Dennis like this Madge Somers-Cox?" her heart asked over and over. She did not dare say it aloud. It was none of her business now. She had done what she wanted to do, and all of this was the result.

And here she was, up in the high green waving grass, the royal lavishness of spring bloom, the buttercups and orange-silk poppies and oak shadows, the flash of jays and the ecstatic rising cry of larks, surrendering her little girls meekly, her hands tied by herself. It seemed like a dream—a ridiculous and troublesome dream.

"I hate to let them go for so long," she said, smiling, surprised to feel sudden pressure behind her eyes, a sudden filling of her throat.

"I know." The other woman's glance was sympathetic. "You must make whatever arrangements you like for week ends," she said seriously. "I can always bring them to the city, or Madge is apt to be going in with one of the children. Here she is."

Madge Somers-Cox had come into the kitchen; she and Isabel were introduced. Isabel found herself looking at a sturdy, squarely built woman with rather lifeless fair hair braided around her head, round brown eyes like a child's eyes, rosy firm cheeks again like a child's, square capable brown hands. Her voice had a pleasant definiteness and her enunciation that crispness that says "England" all over the world. She wore a loose orange jersey jumper that showed the firm uplift of her breasts, a pleated short skirt, and heavy practical shoes.

"I didn't know that the children were here, we expected them this afternoon," she said. "I should never have gotten Esme to sleep if she had known that Mary was here."

"Our girls have been talking of Esme," Mrs. Hardisty said.

"They're off for naps, of course."

"But under promise," Isabel said, getting into the conversation that seemed so readily to exclude her, "of seeing Esme when they wake up."

"Oh, surely," Madge said carelessly. "They'll be together all the time."

"My Pussy is Mary, is she?" Isabel asked, as she and Madge walked out into the strengthening sunshine of the garden. From this height they could see the sweep of the bay, cleared of fog now and liquidly blue, and the long line of buoys that straggled in a brown line across the bay, and showed where the submarine nets were. There was an old bench in the garden; they sat upon it and for the first time looked frankly and curiously at each other. Mrs. Hardisty had gone in to see that the little girls were comfortable and asleep.

"You don't mind our calling her Mary? We have real pussies over at the school, dear wee things," said Madge.

"No. I love the name of Mary. It was my mother's name."

"And it's Dennis' mother's name, so of course he likes to hear it."

Dennis! She was speaking of him quite easily by that name already. She was head over heels in love with him of course.

"He's working hard, his mother says."

"Very hard. They all are, there at Marinship. But it's the best thing in the world for him," Madge stated, with a little nod. "Work—for anyone. It's saving England. Everyone's working. Girls are doing everything. I've seen them scraping bricks — clearing streets."

Isabel was dreading the repetition of Dennis's name; was longing to hear it again. Her heart was fluttering oddly; it was as if this stocky, pleasant Englishwoman, with her taffy-colored braids wound so trimly above her round, slightly freckled blond face, with a snake that might at any moment coil.

"I suppose everyone must work out his own salvation, after a world cataclysm like this," Isabel said almost absently. "I know Dennis will."

"Oh, he will," Madge said confidently. "I know work saved me." Her voice fell to a lower note; she spoke as if half to herself. "John was in the Royal Air Force, he was killed in the winter of thirty-nine. They all were! They all were!"

Isabel was silent; the old-fashioned disorderly sweet garden the drooping eucalyptus, the spreading beauty of the oaks seemed to be silent, too, listening.

"Our boy, Jackie, was struck by shrapnel in London a few days earlier, but John never knew it—he never knew. I'd been thinking how I could tell him. But I'd not any need, then."

"Dear God," Isabel whispered.

"Jackie lived three weeks," his mother said. "Yes, it was bad. I went to my cousins in Cornwall, they were wonderfully kind to me—not that it matters. Esme was just a wee thing—it was so good to have her. Such a comfort

"You have yours," Isabel thought. She said nothing.

"So I came across to Victoria, where I taught in a school for more than a year," Madge presently went on. "Then I came here. Someday I'll take Esme home to meet her people. But my home is here, now. I told Dennis so, last night. These people aren't merely new friends; this is the way I want to live. This place isn't only home, it's heaven. These people—Dennis and his mother—I've never known anyone quite like them."

"They're lovely people," Isabel agreed. To herself she added, "And you make it ridiculously plain that you're after him!"

"I think I truly believed that I never could be happy again," Madge said, "but Dennis—you'll forgive me for saying this, one knows this sort of thing of course—Dennis was desperately unhappy, too, and we helped each other."

A spasm of jealousy such as she had never known in her young life shot through Isabel.

"Last Sunday we all walked up to the ridge, behind us here," Madge said, "and we stood looking down at the bay—and something—the smell of the eucalyptus leaves, deep on the ground, and the peace of it....

"And it will always stay peaceful," she finished as Isabel found nothing to say.

"Unless the little Japs have their say," Isabel answered, not quite pleasantly. Misery groveled in her heart.

"Oh, not in America—one feels that," Madge said, unalarmed. "Those are darling girls of yours," she added, after a moment. "Mary is like Dennis. His mother says they are both like her mother."

The intimate, contented freedom of it! The completeness of this little unit—this small human group up here on the hilltop. Isabel began to think it would be a relief to get away. And yet a sort of fascination held her; what else might Madge reveal, what else might she admit?

"Do you know that adorable little old photograph of her mother, Dennis' grandmother — the one in the bonnet and striped silk?" Madge pursued. She had sat by the fire and gone over old photographs with Dennis, of course. She had seen the one of him, at four, in the David Copperfield suit with the short jacket and long trousers and big buttons, and the one at military academy, looking so serious and determined and altogether adorable small-boy.

"I ought to go," Isabel said.

"Wait until Gran comes out. I call her 'Gran,'" explained Madge, "because my Esme got it from your children, at Easter. Ah, shere she is," she added, as Mrs. Hardisty returned and took a basket chair that faced down across the tops of the trees and the roofs of houses that were half submerged in the trees, and the shining quiet levels of the bay.

"It's turned into such a lovely day," she said.

"I've got to go," said Madge.

"Did they go off?" Isabel asked.

"Sound, both of them. So good for them. Don't go, Madge," the pleasant, finely controlled voice said regretfully.

"I must. What I came over to say is that Tony is coming up to dinner, and he's got the bathtub and the pipes, too. That old second-hand man has found them. They're going to take tomorrow off and work right into Sunday and see how far they get."

"We'll have a bridge game," Mrs. Hardisty said, pleased.

"Well, I'm off." Madge nodded and smiled good-bye and was gone. Isabel and the older woman sat on for a few minutes in silence.

"She's in love with him, isn't she?" Isabel said then.

"They're very good friends, Isabel."

The quiet answer shocked Isabel more than any announcement of an attachment would have done. Dennis wasn't going to fall madly in love with Madge, and Isabel wouldn't have believed his mother if she had said he had done so. But good friendship between a lonely man and an attractive woman he saw every day—that was terrifying.

"Isn't she a good deal older than he is?"

"She may be, a year or two. At their ages, of course—" Mrs. Hardisty fell silent and left the sentence unfinished. At their ages, her tone said, age was not too important a consideration.

Isabel began to feel very tired; a faint headache established itself between her eyes.

"But you don't really think —?" she began incredulously.

"No, I don't think so." Oh, the infinite balm of the words! "I can't think of Dennis as — as married to anyone but you, Isabel," his mother said, with what for her was unusual hesitation.

In the utter stillness of the garden with the sunshine filtering down through the oaks, and the sheen of the blue bay far below them, Isabel felt herself part of a dream.

"But Dennis might not feel that way," she said. And then, somberly. "She is older than he is," Isabel said again.

"A year or two, I imagine. I'm not sure."

"Then if her little girl is only Pussy's age—younger—she must have married rather late."

"She may have. But there was an older child—a boy."

"And does she talk as if she loved her husband?"

"Deeply."

Faithful, loyal. Things that would of course appeal to Dennis.

"The children—they were to be mine, summers," Isabel presently said slowly, with some difficulty.

Mrs. Hardisty had apparently fallen into a dream. She roused herself and said simply, "That was the arrangement. But I thought—this summer—"

"Yes, I shall have to meet Avery," Isabel said quickly. "He is getting his commission and he wants me there. But I was thinking of ordinary summers—after the war."

"We didn't make it too inflexible. I hope it will be that whatever we all decide is best for them is what we do," Mrs. Hardisty said.

GAS AND STOMACH DISORDERS MADE HIM NERVOUS, RUNDOWN

Was Feeling Miserable With Bloating, Heartburn, Sour Acidity and Dizzy Feelings. Had Headaches and Rheumatic Pains. Finally Found Help by Taking Syntona.

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous; if stomach is out of order and food fails to digest properly, bringing on gas, heartburn or sour acidity; if bowels are constipated and you have headache, backache, dizzy feelings or rheumatic aches and pains, why not try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound? This medicine which is so highly praised by thousands of users, acts quickly to help eliminate excess acids and poison waste from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

"For several years I suffered with awful spells of indigestion with gassy pains, bloating and heartburn after my meals," said Mr. Oliver Gale, 510 Adelaide Street, London, Ont., in a recent interview.

"Food just seemed to sour in my stomach, giving me a distressed feeling and shortness of breath. I felt sick and couldn't eat. Many days I got dizzy, light-headed feelings followed by a throbbing headache and I'd feel very nervous and irritable. I had pains and soreness all through my joints and muscles, and especially in my back and limbs. At times they were so bad it was difficult for me to get around at all.

"After reading about Syntona, I decided to get some and it's just wonderful how different I feel since I've been taking this medicine. I am able to enjoy my meals once again, because that awful sick feeling in my stomach is gone. The gas, sourness and heartburn have cleared up and I do not get headaches or dizzy spells as I used to before. Those awful aches and pains and soreness in my limbs and back are relieved and my nerves are more relaxed, so I am enjoying more sound, restful sleep at night. As a result, I feel better and have more energy to do my work."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Bevan Attacks 'Millionaire Press'

London, Oct. 3. (Reuters)—Health Minister Aneurin Bevan last night attacked what he called "The British Millionaire Press", declaring that its "cunning piece of propaganda" was to adopt "the tactics of Dr. Goebbels— the bigger the lie the better chance of people accepting it".

Referring by name to the Beaverbrook, Rothermere, Kemsley and Camrose Press, Mr. Bevan said: "Their papers are trying very hard to bamboozle the public. They began by commanding the recent squatting movement which had in it all the seeds of anarchy, until they found it was going to limits which would trespass on their class privileges. Then they squealed and called a halt."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 3 — (AP) — The stock market today tried to extend its recovery shift but only a smattering of favorites succeeded while many leaders backed into losing territory.

Dealings from the start were among the slowest of the last month or so. Early modest advances were reduced or cancelled in most cases by midday. Declines of fractions to a point or more were plentiful near the 4th hour.

Canadian stocks were ahead at midday, led by Hiram Walker which picked up four points. Dome and Seagrams showed fractional advances and only Canadian Pacific lagged 1/8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP)—Cattle, veal calves, lambs and sheep were steady in trade on the livestock market here up to midsession today. Hogs were up 25 cents cwt. for the week. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 60, calves 40, hogs 260, sheep and lambs 200. Unsold from yesterday were 600 head of cattle mostly stockers.

Prices in the trade included:—plain to medium butcher steers and heifers $10.50-$12, butcher cows $7.75-$10, stockers $9.50-$11.50, choice calves $15-$16, plain vealers downward to $10, lambs $14.75 good ewes and wethers $13.74 bucks, sheep $3.50-$8, hogs dressed, grade A $20.25, grade B1 $19.85, sows mostly $18.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 3 —(CP)— Grade A dressed, bacon hogs, were unchanged at Hull and Barrie $20 delivered, unchanged at Stratford to farmers $19.75, to truckers $19.90 delivered, in markets reporting early today.

Belleville Goodmans Beaten By Toronto Lizzies 2-1 And Eliminated From Playdowns

Locals Held One-Run Lead Until Ninth When Winners Score Two to Win Game

Riding on the crest of a one run lead that appeared enough to earn a verdict and even the series with Toronto Lizzies in the junior "A" O.A.S.A. semi-final playdowns at Alemite Field on Wednesday afternoon, the roof fell in on the Belleville Goodmans in the ninth frame and before the fire could be put out, the Toronto squad pushed across two runs and the Goodmans were retired in order in the last half of the frame. The Lizzies will now meet Brantford for the finals in this series. The game was played under protest due to the Toronto team not being able to produce birth certificates for their players and the result will be up to the O.A.S.A. officials.

Note of Tragedy

A note of tragedy crept into the game of which few of the fans at the game were aware of. The father of Gordon Donovan, brilliant left fielder for the Goodmans, James Donovan, met with a fatal accident previous to the start of the game. Gordon's mother was in the stands and when she was informed, the sad news was passed on to her son. He left the game but in a few minutes returned to the bench at the wish of his mother and continued the game. It was an act of the highest sportsmanship seen in this city in many years and Gordon played his usual fine competitive game although his heart was heavy. He was informed of the death of his father in hospital after the contest.

Splendid Fielding

Don Boyle, backed by superb fielding until the fatal ninth, hurled one of his best games. Although he only struck out four and walked three, allowing eight hits, he kept them well scattered and in the clutches he was almost unhittable or else his fielders rose to the occasion to make sensational pickups or running catches, one being the catch of Culkin in the eighth. Maurice Rollins played a smart game having four assists and three putouts, two of them being on an unassisted double play, that was executed with neatness and dispatch. Boyle worked an effective fast ball with a change of pace but was unfortunate to groove one for Tepperman in the ninth, which he promptly pasted to centre field for the circuit.

Rollins Hits For Circuit

Rollins put his team mates right in the ball game in the fourth frame when he cocked one of Greenberg's slants far and away in centre field and easily made the circuit of the bases. As the game progressed this run looked like a million and the boys had visions of a third game on neutral grounds and protect their championship of last year. The Lizzies were shutout until the ninth and then the balloon went up. Tepperman hit for the circuit and Balsky was retired by Bunton. Greenberg singled through short and Strom worked Boyle for a walk. Hershenhoren rolled to Wardhaugh at third and instead of this fielder going to the bag himself for the forceout on Greenberg he elected to throw to Spafford and the ball got away and rolled into the bats in front of the Goodmans' dugout. Greenberg taking advantage of the miscue streaked for home and before the ball could be retrieved he had scored. Strom tried to make third but was nipped on a fine throw on a close decision. Shadlesky ended the frame by popping to Wardhaugh.

Sent Right Back

Greenberg, who beat the locals in the first game was sent right back by Manager Cornack and he stifled the bats of the losers. He struck out seven, walked a pair and allowed but two hits, one by Moher in the first and the homer by Rollins in the fourth. He was always master of the situation in the clutches and in the ninth he put the game on ice by putting away the first three batters to face him. He was in trouble only once and that was in the eighth. Donovan walked and Wardhaugh went down swinging trying to sacrifice. Culkin was safe when Donovan was forced at third and everyone was safe on Green's bid for a hit that went for a fielder's choice. Moher was not equal to the occasion and struck out in the pinch to end the rally.

It was a smart game played by two good softball teams and it was no disgrace to be beaten by the Toronto team. They had good pitching and excellent fielding through the series and the team got their bingles in the clutches. The juniors will be back stronger and better next year.

Tracey Hanover Wins Matched Race From Rival

(By The Canadian Press)

Tracey Hanover, the 14-year-old campaigner from Halifax, scored a triumph for Canada yesterday in the Lexington, Ky., trots by scoring a victory over its American rival, the 15-year-old Ouster Volo, in the mile pace of the International match. Owned by Frank Scott the Hanover thereby avenged last week's defeat by Ouster in a matched race on the same track. The veteran pacers competed for a $1,000 purse and the winner crossed the line in 2:09 3-4.

The featured Ponenix Hotel Stake for $3,000 on the Lexington card resulted in a two-heat victory for Goose Bay, from Toledo, O., over Forbes Chief. The winner's best mile was 2:05 1-2.

Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox is all steamed up over an injury his star batsman—Ted Williams—received in an exhibition game Tuesday. Joe blames it on the Cardinal-Dodger playoff for the National League pennant, a best-of-three affair, and he wants future pennant playoffs settled by a single game.

Tall Byron Nelson and wee Ben Hogan today start over the course they learned by every weary yard as caddies—strong favorites in the second annual $10,000 Fort Worth open golf tournament.

It's here—a new gadget that pumps pure oxygen into weary football players and shoots them back on the field with more of that "I'd die for dear old Rutgers" spirit. Built for George town University, it is a go-car equipped with two tanks of oxygen and 11 masks. Its inventor claims it may also be used for hangovers.

Branch Rickey, President of Brooklyn Dodgers, said yesterday 50 fulltime members of the Dodgers organization would receive the club's share of receipts for the playoff game or games against St. Louis Cardinals at Ebbets Field, "for faithful performance of extraordinary duties during the past year."

JACKIE ROBINSON SINGLES TO SCORE WINNING MARKER

Negro Second Baseman of Montreal Royals Hero of the Contest

By RUSS WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 3 (CP)—Montreal Royals, farm team of the famed Brooklyn Dodgers, put on a show that would have done the parent club credit last night as they came from behind to chalk up a 6-5 10-inning decision over Louisville Colonels and tie up their Little World Series at two games apiece.

The Royals, trailing most of the way, tied up the game with a two-run outburst in the ninth inning and went on to win in the first extra frame when Jackie Robinson, Negro second baseman, singled home the clincher.

Playing before a crowd of 14,685 fans who braved the frigid temperature, each team used three pitchers with Royals' Chet Kehn earning the nod over Joe Ostrowski of the Colonels.

Fifth game of the series is scheduled to be played tonight, followed by another encounter Friday.

Colonels outhit Royals 11-99 but erred three times, compared with a single Royals miscue.

Estimated Three Millions in U.S. Never Eat Meat

By CHARLES MERCER

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)— The lady at the end of the meat line might be encouraged to know there are about 3,000,000 Americans who never will try to crowd in ahead of her.

That is the estimated number of vegetarians in the United States, according to Symon Gould, associate editor of the American Vegetarian, the publication of the International Vegetarian Society.

Furthermore, the current scarcity of meat is bringing "vast numbers" of new converts to vegetarianism, Gould said today.

"These enlightened people who have had to go without meat are finding they feel better and are healthier than they ever were when eating meat," he said. "They never want to touch the stuff again."

An articles in the current issue of the publication defines meat as "a filthy, decaying food. It has a little protein and nothing else."

While millions are flattening their feet trying to obtain some of this "little protein" the publication recommended the following meal as a satisfying, nutritious way if ingnoring your butcher:

A large vegetable salad, split pea soup, cauliflower roast with corn on cob, baked potatoes and baked squash watermelon, milk and peach pie.

Some vegetarians reached their meatless state, Gould said, for ethical or religious reasons.

"But a large group of persons become vegetarians for scientific reasons," he said. "They are the nutritionists." Another reason is "the economic point of view." Those who subscribe to that belief "contend vast acreages in this country are being wasted on raising food for animals. If it was all converted to raising foor for man, most of our economic problems would be solved."

Thousands of Canadian Horses Shipped to European Countries

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 3 —(CP)— The old grey mare, a sadly diminishing figure on the Canadian scene in the age of mechanized farming, has won new renown in foreign fields.

Her day on most Canadian farmlands is done and her place at the plow and the harrow taken over by roaring, snorting tractors which do twice the work in half the time. She is doomed to become a relic of the past.

But on the war-torn fields of Europe she is setting the pace for popularity and is fast becoming one of the most sought after Canadian commodities.

Thousands of Canadian horses have been shipped to France and other European countries this year and the demand abroad continues unabated. For example, in July, the last month for which figures are available, nearly 10,000 horses were shipped from Western to Eastern Canada on their way overseas.

Up to the end of July, the French horse purchasing commission had purchased more than 5,000 Canadian horses for shipment to France while approximately 7,000 smaller horses, principally mares, had been bought for UNRRA, the the international relief agency which distributed them among the needy farmers of Europe.

The demand has been for good well-broken horses to replace animals which died or were killed during the war. A fact underlying the great need for Canadian horses in that many European countries are, if anything, undermechanized and the horse there remains the traditional mode of power.

Canadian breeders and farmers for decades have exported horses to Europe and other lands but the demand now has been accentuated by the heavy losses suffered abroad. The increased sales consequently have boosted prices on the Canadian horse market, although they never again are expected to approach the days when the horse was king and the tractor a novelty.

For years, Canadian horses have been used in the British West Indies and recently another consignment was sent to Barbadoes at the commissioner of police at Bridgeton. Others went to Bermuda.

Reports received recently from the Leeward Islands spoke highly of Canadian horses shipped there several months ago and there are signs that others will be purchased for the island of Montserrat.

President Requests Immediate Action For Displaced Jews

"Substantial Immigration" Into Palestine Truman View

Washington, Oct. 4 — (AP) — President Truman called today for an immediate "substantial immigration" of displaced Jews into Palestine.

In a Yom Kippur Day statement, which he cabled to Prime Minister Attlee of Britain, the President outlined his own views as follows:

"1. In view of the fact that winter will come on before the conference (Palestine conference in London) can be resumed, I believe and urge that substantial immigration into Palestine cannot await a solution to the Palestine problem and that it should begin at once.

Preparations for this movement have already been made by this government and it is ready to lend its immediate assistance.

"2. I state again, as I have stated on previous occasions, that the immigration laws of other countries, including the United States, should be liberalized with a view to the admission of displaced persons. I am prepared to make such a recommendation to the Congress and to continue as energetically as possible collaboration with other countries on the whole problem of displaced persons.

"3. Furthermore, should a workable solution for Palestine be devised, I would be willing to recommend to the Congress a plan for economic assistance for the development of that country."

Expresses Deep Regret

The president's statement, released by press secretary Charles G. Ross with the announcement that the contents were cabled to Mr. Attlee, expressed Mr. Truman's "deep regret" that the meetings of the London Palestine conference are not to be resumed until Dec. 16.

The president said that in the light of the "terrible ordeal which the Jewish people of Europe endured during the recent war" and the crisis now existing, "I cannot believe that a program of immediate action along the lines suggested above could not be worked out with the co-operation of all people concerned."

He added that "the administration will continue to do everything it can to this end."

Yom Kippur, starting at sundown today, is the Jewish Sacred Day of Atonement. Its annual observance on the 10th day of the seventh month is marked by the custom of fasting, and ceremonies of supplication.

(Mr. Truman's statement coincided with London reports that the Jewish agency and the British government were near accord in proposals providing for general amnesty for prisoners seized during recent disturbances in Palestine. At the same time, police in Jerusalem were altered against recurrence of Jewish-Arab fighting during observance of Yom Kippur.)

Reported Near Agreement

London, Oct. 4 (CP)—The Jewish agency and British colonial office were reported today near agreement on proposals that would lead to a general amnesty for prisoners arrested following recent outbreaks in Palestine.

Resuming informal conversations with Colonial Secretary George Hall, Jewish leaders placed various proposals before the government which were designed to improve the prevailing atmosphere in Palestine, an agency spokesman announced.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Synopsis: Clear, warm weather prevailed on Thursday over Southern Ontario and the eastern parts of Northern Ontario, with temperatures reaching the middle 70s in most places. Rain and snow occurred yesterday in parts of the prairie provinces, and are still occurring in Northern Manitoba, associated with a storm centre moving northeastward over that area. Cooler air, flowing southeastward around this centre, has reached Lake Superior and northern Wisconsin, setting off a few showers and thunderstorms. While this cooler air will spread eastward fairly rapidly north of Lake Superior, it is expected to move slowly southward.

Preliminary Step Take to Resume Production

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 4. (CP)—Preliminary steps to resume production at the Algoma Steel Corporation plant were started today following withdrawal of pickets as the 81-day basic steel strike ended.

Members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.), idle since the wages-hours strike was called July 15, awaited word from company officials about returning to work.

The only activity today was at the huge coke ovens where partial production was maintained during the walkout and at the company docks where loading operations continued.

A few minutes after pickets were withdrawn from the seven entrances yesterday a truckload of processed steel was hauled from the plant.

The company issued no statement about a return to full-scale production.

Algoma offered an eight-cents-an-hour wage increase during the strike and told the parliamentary committee on industrial relations that the offer could not be increased. The strike here and in Hamilton and Sydney, N.S., was settled on a 13-cent basis.

Barney Oldfield Dies Suddenly

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 4 — (AP)— Barney Oldfield, 68, former famous automobile racing driver, died of a heart attack at his home today.

His wife, Mrs. Bessie Oldfield, found him dead in bed this morning. She reported he was alive and apparently well when she arose and left the room to get the morning paper. When she returned a few minutes later, she was unable to arouse him.

The former speed driver complained yesterday, friends said, of a pain in the back of his neck but refused to have a doctor called, saying he would visit his physician today.

LAKE ONTARIO WATER LEVELLS

Ottawa, Oct. 4 (CP)—Water levels of the Great Lakes and Lower St. Lawrence River during September were reported today by the Federal Hydrographic Service:-

Lake Ontario at Kingston is 5 1-2 inches lower than August, 1946; 10 3-4 inches lower than September 1945; 17 1-2 inches lower than the highest September (1943) since 1860; 37 inches higher than the lowest September (1934) since 1860; 3 3-4 inches higher than average September.

Oxygen, Feeding into Tent, Bursts Into Flames and Patient Dies

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—Aubrey Johnson, 64-year-old painter, died in a private room at Niagara Falls General Hospital after oxygen feeding into a tent under which he lay burst into flames while his wife looked on.

The fire is believed to have started from a static spark as an orderly was changing the supply from one tank to another.

Mr. Johnson had been unconscious since around three a.m. his condition became critical and he wasn't expected to live out the day. His wife is a trained nurse.

Quick work by hospital attendants extinguished the blaze before it could spread to other rooms in the second-storey floor.

Dr. J. H. Davidson said he ran to Johnson's room after hearing the hiss of oxygen and upon finding part of it ablaze dashed with a number of hospital employees to other rooms to evacuate patients.

Dr. Davidson carried two patients down a fire escape on his back. Others were wheeled down the corridor and conveyed to the main floor.

The flames had been extinguished by hospital employees by the time the firemen arrived. Doctors said the attendants worked heroically around the blazing oxygen. They connected a hose to a hydrant outside the door of the blazing room to put out the flames.

In Toronto it was announced that the Attorney-General's Department had ordered Dr. Smirlie Lawson, chief coroner for Ontario, to Niagara Falls to investigate.

HIGH FEELING AS STRIKERS JEER THOSE IN PLANT

Pebbles Thrown At Cars Carrying Non-Strikers and Two Men Are Arrested

Hamilton, Oct. 4 (CP)— Strife and ill-feeling engendered by the 81-day basic steel strike, now ended, remained today a force to be reckoned with in Hamilton where the urgent question of a date for full Steel Company of Canada production awaited answer.

The ill-feeling between strikers and their sympathizers and non-strikers flared into open violence for a time last night resulting in the arrest of two men charged with creating a disturbance.

And even as police worked to bring order in a melee involving upwards of 300 men it was anybody's guess when Stelco would be going full blast with its full quota of workers, now to be paid 13 cents an hour more than when they went on strike in mid-July for more pay, a 40-hour week and union security.

R. A. Gillies, works manager, promised normal operations "as fast as plans can be completed and working schedules arranged."

The company, which last night got out of its plant the 2,000 or so men who had kept it in partial production throughout the strike by members of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) promised to advise employees when to report for work.

Departure of the non-strikers caused the flare-up which resulted in the arrest of Arnold Palango 21, and Acio Ugucioni, 20, amid flying stones, profanity and jeers from a mob gathered at a gate on

Shaw Royalties Frozen in Germany About $120,000

London, Oct. 4 — (CP) — George Bernard Shaw is said to have about £30,000 ($120,000) in wartime royalties frozen in Germany.

The Nazis regarded Shaw as an Irish-neutral playwright and his works continued to be produced in Germany and German-occupied Europe all through the war.

The Society of Authors which since last December has handled all Shaw's business says negotiations are in progress with the Allied Control Commission to "unfreeze" the sum.

Ancient Cavern Found in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Oct .4. (Reuters)—A large cavern was unearthed yesterday 1,500 feet under the countyard of the Crusader Church of the tomb of the Virgin and was identified by C. N. Johns, British archeologist, as a water cistern built 1,600 years ago by monks. The church is located a mile outside Jerusalem in the Valley of the Last Judgment where legend says the Angel Gabriel will blow the trumpet for the last day.

Two Men Who Bludgeoned Jail Guard and Escaped At Bancroft Are Recaptured

Bancroft, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP) — Two men who escaped from jail in this North Hastings village yesterday after bludgeoning an aged guard, were recaptured late Thursday night at Apsley, 23 miles south of here, where they were arrested two weeks ago on car theft charges.

The bush-versed pair, accused of stealing $60 from the guard after striking him with a birchwood billet, are 23-year-old Royce Seymour of Toronto and Kenneth Jackson, alias Holland, 26, of Brantford, Ont.

A truck driver saw them at Apsley and drove 30 miles to Lakefield, where a police search was concentrated, to provide the tip that led to their arrest.

The police drove to Apsley where the pair walked out from behind a service station with their hands up. They were taken to Bancroft and then to Belleville where they were lodged in the county jail. The pair will appear before Justice of the Peace Miss Mary Butler today and will be remanded. When they next appear in police court they will face additional charges of jail breaking, wounding and theft.

Inspector Expresses Thanks

Provincial Police Inspector Harry Thompson at Belleville today expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of police from Cobourg, Peterborough and Lakefield, who materially assisted in the search for the two escaped men.

It was the second game of hide-and-seek with police officers for the two men. They kept ahead

Brunner Mond Reconditions Plant as Negotiations Begin

Windsor, Oct. 4 (CP)— Maintenance men entered the Brunner Mond plant at nearby Amherstburg today to recondition the kilns as union and company prepared to open negotiations this afternoon in an effort to end the 84-day-old strike which cut off Canadian production of vital soda ash and brought on a flood of shortages in many manufacturing products.

John B. Aylesworth, company director, announced that officials of the company and Local 89 of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) would begin negotiations at 2 p.m.

Details of the plan to admit maintenance men to the plant, strikebound since July 12 in a wages-hours-union security dispute, were worked out at a union meeting Wednesday night after the company refused to continue negotiations unless workers entered the plant to recondition the kilns. The union claimed it had advanced a proposal for admittance of maintenance men last July 30.

Some foremen are also to go into the plant on condition that they will not do work ordinarily performed by others.

The strike has brought shortages all across the country. Glass making plants closed because they could not operate without supplies of soda ash. A shortage of bottles brought a reduction in the Ontario liquor ration—down to 26 ounces a month from 208 ounces. It cut the supply of men's shirts and textiles and other industrial products.

The plant is the only major producer of soda ash in Canada. Because of a scarcity in the United States, it was not possible to import supplies from there.

The union went on strike for a 25-cent hourly increase, a 40-hour week and the Rand formulae of union security under which the company deducts union dues from the wages of all employees whether they are union members or not. The company offered a 10-cent increase but refused the shorter week and union security. Union sources have said that union security is the chief issue at stake.

Meanwhile there was no word on progress in efforts to settle the strikes at Truscon Steel and Chrysler Corporation. Both began June 18, called by U.A.W. Local 195, for 25-cent hourly increases and a 40-hour week. Negotiation meetings opened this morning in the Truscon dispute and it was reported Chrysler talks would begin this afternoon.

THREAT OF BUTTER RATION CUT SEEN BY DAIRYMEN

Reports Received From All Over Province Shows Decrease in Production

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Figures on butter production, as presented to a meeting of co-operatives and farmers clubs from all over Ontario bode no good for continuance of Canada's current butter ration.

This was the word from James Ross, manager of the dairy department, United Farmers' Co-operative Company, in an address last night in which he foresaw the possibility of butter ration production.

While Mr. Ross gave figures to show Canadian butter production down from a year ago Clarence Dorman, head of the Delta Cheese Board, said the cheese outlook also was black. He complained too of the method of marketing.

Mr. Ross' discussion followed by 24 hours the statement of a Prices Board spokesman in Ottawa that it was too early yet to determine whether the individual butter ration would have to be reduced this winter. That was the case a year ago.

There was a possibility that because the butter ration now is roughly six ounces a person weekly as compared with eight ounces a year ago a cut may be avoided at this time.

August Down Considerably

But Mr. Ross was pessimistic. He said on Sept. 1 the Dominion had the same amount of butter in storage as it had last year but that August production was down 4,000,000 pounds as compared with August, 1945.

"The Maritimes were down 15 per cent; Ontario 12 to 18; Manitoba five; Saskatchewan, 10, and Alberta, because of the strike, 73 per cent," Mr. Ross said.

SCHACHT, FRITSCHE NOT PERMITTED TO ENTER BR. ZONE

France Has Rejected Plea of Von Papen to Settle in French Zone

Nuernberg, Oct. 4 — (AP) — United States Army authorities said today British authorities had declined to permit Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritsche, acquitted of war crimes by the international military tribunal, to enter the British occupation zone of Germany.

Lt.-Gen. Lucius Clay, deputy American Military Governor, announced that the French had rejected the plea of Nazi diplomat Franz Von Papen, the third of the acquitted German war leaders, to settle in the French zone.

The three acquitted men still were in the Nuernberg Palace of Justice jail, awaiting safe conduct out of the American zone. They told lawyers and army officers they feared the treatment they might receive at the hands of the Bavarians around Nuernberg, who want to try them under denazification laws.

Col. B. C. Andrus, security officer, said he was anxious to get rid of his "star boarders," but would keep them in his custody pending a decision at a higher level.

Meanwhile, lawyers for three additional Nazi war leaders and for the S. S. (Elite Guard) filed appeals from their convictions with the Allied Control council. Appeals on behalf of six of the 19 men convicted Tuesday now were before the council.

Appeals were filed for Hitler's erratic deputy, Rudolf Hess, who was sentenced to life imprisonment; for Hans Frank, Hitler's gauleiter in Poland, and Jew baiter Julius Streicher, both condemned to hang.

RUSSIA CHARGES BRITAIN AND U. S. VIOLATED PACTS

American and British Delegates Say That Trieste Amendment Is New Article

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP)—Russia in angry words today accused the United States and Britain of violating their Big Four agreements by voting for an Australian amendment to set up an international commission for supervision of Italian reparations payments.

The Italian economic commission of the peace conference, which still must fix the amount Italy is to pay neighboring Allied states, passed the amendment, 12 to 8, with France, China and the Slavic states opposed.

Under the amendment an international body consisting of the Big Four and countries receiving reparations would supervise payments other than those to Russia. These would go to Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece, Ethiopia and Poland.

A. A. Arutiunian of the Soviet Union, visibly angered, declared that United States and Britain had violated an agreement to a section of the Big Four foreign ministers' treaty draft.

American delegate Willard Thorp and British spokesman Glenvil Hall both protested that the amendment was a new article and not a change in an agreed upon portion of the draft.

At one poin. Australia removed the name of the Soviet Union from the list of members of the proposed body after Russia protested that she was not concerned with non-Russian reparations. When this led to further protested, Australia re-inserted Russia's name, whereupon Mr. Arutiunian branded this an "electoral manceuvre."

Original Amendment

The Australian amendment, as originally worded, would have given the chairmanship of the commission to the United States on the ground that the United States as a non-claimant of reparations and non-European power had a better "perspective."

Mr. Arutiunian, terming this countrary to the interests of the Soviet Union and other countries concerned, accused Australia of acting by prearrangement with other powers.

"The Australian delegation," he said, "is undoubtedly counting on the voting machinery to pass its proposal, especially since other delegations do not hesitate about violating the foreign minister's agreement."

South Africa offered a sub-amendment to let the proposed commission choose its own chairman. This eventually carried. Before the vote, however, Thorp said angrily:

"Mr. Chairman, the United States delegation had the intention of asking that the chairmanship of this commission be entrusted to some other country, but in view of the totally unwarranted attack upon our motives we shall abstain from taking part in the voting and will abide by the decision of the commission."

Mr. Arutiunian countered with the assertion that he would refuse to take part in the vote even to the extent of abstaining. The sub-amendment was passed, 7 to 3, with five abstentions and five states listed as not voting.

The United States, China, France, Greece and Poland recorded abstentions. The five other Slav states did not answer roll call.

U.S. Crop Wins Race With Frost, 25 Bushels for Every U.S. Resident

By WILLIAM FERRIS

Chicago, Oct. 4 — (AP) — A bumper corn crop sufficient to provide 25 bushels for every man, woman and child in the United States was labeled "secure" today by grain experts.

Corn has won its race with frost, grain men asserted, and is now out of danger — assuring United States a firm base upon which to build its cereal, meat and dairy food production next year.

C. M. Galvin, statistician for James E. Bennett and Company, grain firm, predicted a record-breaking crop of 3,326,398,000 bushels on the basis of Oct. 1 conditions reported by grain dealers, millers and other correspondents in the growing territory.

"The great bulk of the corn crop is now beyond frost damage," Mr. Galvin said, "and the crop generally will be of excellent quality. This is in sharp contrast with last year, when much soft corn was harvested."

In its weekly review, the United States Weather Bureau agreed with Mr. Galvin, stating, "Corn is now mostly safe and is in good to mostly very good condition, especially in the main belt." Only two to three percent of the acreage in Iowa, major producing states, is not matured.

Thunderous Blasts Shake Countryside, $300,000 Damage

Many Admitted to Hospital Are in Critical Condition

Marcus Hook, Pa., Oct. 4 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and upwards of 140 others injured by fire and thunderous explosions which roared through a unit of Sun Oil Company's $13,000,000 aviation gasoline refinery seven hours before subsiding early today.

Many of the injured were volunteer firemen. The heaviest casualty toll occurred when flames, racing out of a pump room, reached a 125-foot fractionating tower. It went up with a roar, the shock rocking the countryside for miles.

All of the deaths occurred in hospitals here and in nearby Chester, Pa. Many others of the 69 admitted to hospitals were reported in critical condition.

Arthur E. Pew, Jr., vice-president-in-charge of the company's refineries, estimated the damage at $300,000. The company said the first explosion in the world's largest alkylation plant occurred at 6:10 p.m. yesterday when "a packing gland which failed, caused gas to escape and flash," touching off the explosions. The blaze raged out of control until 10:15 p.m.

Cook Drowned

A fourth man, Leland Bailey, 49-year-old ship's cook, died during the blaze but a company spokesman said investigation disclosed he slipped into the Delaware River while boarding a ship and drowned. The spokesman discounted first reports that Bailey had been blown overboard by the blast which occurred half a mile from the vessel.

Nineteen of the fire victims were reported in critical condition and hospital authorities said several were not expected to live.

In addition a Marcus Hook policeman, was reported in critical condition after he was struck by an automobile while directing traffic after the fire.

Treated at Hospitals

Scores of company employees and firemen injured in the blaze were treated at nearby hospitals and released.

Meanwhile, tankers loading and unloading gasoline at the company's wharves along the Delaware River quickly pulled away to escape flying sparks that threatened to touch off their cargoes.

The blasts which shook this Delaware River industrial community of 4,000, shook homes in Wilmington, Del., 15 miles south of here.

Flames fed by the high-octane gasoline spread to the base of a 125-foot fractionating tower causing it to collapse, spraying flaming gasoline over fire fighters. The fire was visible for a distance of 30 miles.

Dedicated Building

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, former United States Interior Secretary, who didicated the huge Sun Oil Company aviation gasoline refinery just three years ago in his capacity as petroleum administrator for war, rode past the plant last night just 20 minutes before a diststrous explosion ripped through it. He was en route to a speaking engagement here.

HON. P. J. A. CARDIN ILL

Sorel, Que., Oct. 4 — (CP) — Condition of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, recovering at his home here from a heart attack, was reported as "better" today by his physician, Dr. Jean Marie Lessard.

The former cabinet minister became ill last Sunday. He is 67.

FREE NAVIGATION OF DANUBE RIVER MEETS OPPOSITION

Russia Serves Notice She Will Not Attend Proposed Conference

By MAX HARRELSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 4 — (AP)—A threatened Russian boycott appeared today to have blocked United States efforts to force an immediate conference in Vienna to take up the question of free navigation on the Danube River.

United States delegate ohn G. Winant pushed a resolution Through the United Nations Economic and Social Council in the closing hours of its three-week session late last night calling for such a conference before Nov. 1, but Russia served notice she would not attend.

Two other Danubian states, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, also opposed the United States move, indicating they also would refuse to attend the proposed conference.

Dr. Adrija Stampar of Yugoslavia, council chairman, raised a technical point, which might even prevent any action being taken to call the meeting. He said that under the rules of the U. N. no international conference could be called without prior consultation with the states to be invited.

He said the United States resolution, approved by a scant margin of 8 to 5, with five others abstaining, would be turned over to Secretary-General Trygve Lie to take action "according to the rules."

Strange Disease Strikes 85 Per Cent Of Island's People

Manila, Oct. 4 (AP)— A strange and deadly disease has stricken 85 per cent of the 2,000 population on the island of Itbayat north of Luzon and 90 deaths so far have been reported.

As the government prepared to send a medical mission to the Filipini island, Manila physicians said they were puzzled by the symptoms as reported by Governor Eugenio Agudo of Batanes province.

Agudo saying 85 per cent of the population had the disease in various stages, said symptoms included violent headaches, raging fever, rigidity of stomach and abdomen muscles, severe pains and eyes turning a milky white.

Manila physicians said most of the symptoms would fit Japanese encephalitis and several other tropical ailments but they were mystified by the eye symptoms.

Poultry for Killing Up Considerably Over Last Year

Whether or not there is a shortage of beef and pork supplies, there should be no lack of chicken for the dinner table this winter according to an official of the Swift Canadian Company at Belleville.

Reports from other sections of the province indicated that receipts of poultry for killing are up considerably over last year, but at the Belleville plant approximately three times the amount of poultry killed last year is being processed.

Reason for the tremendous upswing in poultry sales was given as because of the additional numbers of chicks hatched last spring with producers seeking to take advantage of high egg prices. Pullets are now coming into production and the cockerels are being brought in off the range and sold to processing plants.

Sales of Radio Licences 1,000 Behind Last Year

Sales of radio licences in Belleville are still considerably behind the number which had been sold at this time last year, it was reported in city police court Friday morning by A. G. E. Argue of Kingston, district radio inspector. As of August 31st sales were approximately 1,000 behind that of last year, it was stated.

The department is checking closely on delinquents, however, as was indicated by the morning police court docket on which the names of no less than 28 West Hill residents appeared. The majority of the accused pleaded guilty and paid their fines out of court, although a few residents, not knowing the matter could be settled out of court, appeared in person to plead guilty. All were assessed $5 including $2 fine and $3 costs. In addition the delinquents will have to purchase their radio licence costing another $2.50.

One accused appearing in court on a charge of not having a radio licence pleaded not guilty on the grounds that he was not the owner. The charge was withdrawn and another charge against the proper owner of the radio will be issued.

Cache of Arms Found on Farm Near Bologna

Milan, Oct. 4 — (Reuters) — Grenades, machine-guns, automatic firearms and several hundredweight of T.N.T. were discovered by the police in a search at a farm near Castel Del Rio, south of Bologna, it was reported today.

Reports said the arms were found in barns, haystacks and stables of the farm. A tank in perfect condition was hidden under a heap of dead branches.

Castel Del Rio was the starting point of a wide police search yesterday after reports that armed bands were believed hiding in the neighborhood.

SALE OF MILK DROPS OFF

Toronto, Oct. 4 —(CP)— Sale of milk has dropped sharply in Toronto since the price was increased three cents a quart Oct. 1, dairies reported today.

"We expected a reaction the first few days," one dairy reported. "Consumers were angry and refused to buy, but the situation was not exceptional. We believe that by next week customers will have studied their incomes, their anger will have cooled and consumption will be almost back to normal."

Church St. Armouries Will Be Used To Accommodate Homeless Families

The Church Street Armouries, former home of the 34th Field Battery, and this year the headquarters of a company of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, will be taken over by the city and used as private accommodation in an effort to alleviate the acute housing situation here, Mayor Frank Follwell was advised today.

A survey of the armouries by City Comptroller Harold Bateman revealed that at least seven families can be accommodated in the building.

Taking over of part of the Bridge Street Armouries by the city, as requested in a wire to the Hon C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction is being held in abeyance pending the acuteness of the housing situation, a representative of the Department of Emergency Shelter told city officials yesterday.

Mayor Follwell wired the minister last week requesting the taking over of the two armouries buildings by the city for housing purposes. The matter was referred to the Department of Emergency Shelter and on Wednesday a representative arrived in the city and conferred with the Mayor and Alderman H. J. Armstrong.

Due to the housing situation here, the Church Street Armouries was immediately turned over to the city, and the representative informed city officials that the matter of taking over the main armouries would be referred back to the minister.

It was then learned that if the situation here warranted the action, some room in the Bridge Street Armouries would be allotted to the city.

Light-Housekeeping Set-ups in Demand, Sharing is Urged

The light-housekeeping situation in Belleville is daily becoming more desperate with applications for shelter far exceeding available accommodation, Rooms Registry officials here said today.

Light-housekeeping set-ups are in great demand as the average couple cannot afford to pay for rooms and get all their meals in restaurants. Even a few kitchen privileges would greatly alleviate the present acute situation.

The warm weather in September was a "godsend" for those in cabins and cottages, officials said, but the sudden drop in temperature this week created near panic in family groups where there are small children and babies.

During the past month, due to the courtesy of the Junior Board of Trade, appeals were made for more accommodation through the medium of radio. This appeal had very few responses.

Rooms Registry officials feel that there are many homes in Belleville which contain shared-accommodation space which would be greatly appreciated by some homeseeker.

Then, too, at this time of year there are a number of people planning to spend the winter in the South. The Registry people urge that these residents seriously consider the rental of their homes while absent. Registry officials will be glad to assist in any way especially in the selection of careful conscientious tenants.

During the month of September there were 420 callers at the Rooms Registry office. Discharged veteran callers numbered 59 and 109 new applications were received. Overnight placements were 36 and total placements numbered 185. Telephone calls amounted to 528.

Gives up Hockey For Priesthood

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 4 — (CP) — Johnny McCormack from Edmonton has given up a professional hockey career for the priesthood. The 21-year-old six-foot husky conferred briefly with coach Hap Day of Toronto Maple Leafs and coach Johnny Mitchell of Pittsburgh Hornets this morning and announcement of his decision followed.

A former star with Toronto St. Michael's College juniors, McCormack played last season with Tulsa Oilers of the United States Hockey League and this season was to play with the Hornets in the American Hockey League. He was owned by the Leafs, who looked on him as an eventual National Hockey League star.

Chinese Troops Probe Outer Kalgan Defences

Nanking, Oct. 4 (AP)— Chinese government army spearheads probed the outer defences of Kalgan today amid predictions the Communist would give up this North China stronghold if the outlying defences crumble.

With the victorious armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek feeling out the strong, natural defences 30 to 50 miles from Kalgan, neutral military observers predicted the Communists probably would give up the city, a keystone of Communist power in north China, if government troops broke through, rather than risk having their troops trapped.

They recalled that Communist forces were badly mauled trying to defend Szepingkai in Manchuria against better-equipped government troops and were now pursuing a strategy of yielding territory while keeping their armies intact.

Meanwhile, the government's central news agency circulated a purported "secret Communist directive" calling on party workers to "prepare for a new anti-Fascist democratic war to defend the fruits of our victory in the Sino-Japanese conflict."

Arrest Hugenberg In British Zone Of Occupation

Berlin, Oct. 4 (AP)—The British military government has announced the arrest of Alfred Hugenberg, former German politician, industrialist and film magnate, on his estate at Rehbracken in the British occupation zone. No specific charges were mentioned in the announcement, but Hugenberg had long been the target of criticism by Liberal and Leftist elements on the ground that he contributed politically and financially to Hitler's rise to power.

SAYS MOVE WRONGLY INTERPRETED

Toronto, Oct. 4 —(CP)— Ontario government policy calls for making beer and liquor available for home consumption before suplying establishments where public drinking has been permitted and that policy is to remain in effect after the opening of cocktail lounges in the province. That assurance came last night from Attorney - General Blackwell, who said reduction this week of the Ontario liquor ration led some people to a "wrong assumption" that the move was intended to build up liquor stocks for the cocktail lounges.

Canada Savings Bonds Will Be Offered On Payroll Savings Plan

Employees of local industrial firms and other plants which during the war did a remarkable job in subscriptions to Victory Loans, will again be offered the opportunity of continuing on the payroll savings plan during the forthcoming sale of Canada Savings Bonds, it has been announced.

Canada Savings Bonds will go on sale throughout Canada on October 15th with the sale to continue until November 2nd.

Differentiating from procedure during past Victory Loan campaigns, there will be no county organization in the forthcoming Canada Savings Bonds sale. There will be no salesmen to canvass the general public the sale of bonds being handled through banks, authorized investment dealers, stock brokers, trust and loan companies.

For the employee at industrial plants and other factories there will be the regular payroll savings canvass organized through the employer, who will be urged to give every co-operation during the campaign.

Former chairman of the payroll savings committee of the former Victory Loans, J. H. Legate, superintendent of Canada Cement Company at Point Anne, will again head this phase of bond selling in the county. Assisting in organization of the payroll savings in Hastings will be Doug Mitchell of Trenton, and Clarke Kinnear who will act in the role of joint organizers.

Popularity of the payroll savings plan was indicated through a survey conducted by the finance department which showed that 82 per cent of Canadians who bought bonds during the war want to keep on saving by a similar plan.

Legion Accepts Plans To Acquire Building For Memorial Centre

Plans for the acquisition of a city building which when changed to suit requirements will cost approximately $10,000 and will be known as the Legion Memorial Centre, met with the unanimous approval of members of Belleville Branch 99 Canadian Legion at an enthusiastic, well-attended meeting Thursday night.

Legion Zone Commander Tommy Mason, who is backed by a strong building committee told the veterans that arrangements for the building were practically complete and that operations for its transformation into a modern Legion club room and recreational centre would be undertaken at an early date.

Renovation of the building, he said, would cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Legionnaires immediately voted unanimous support to a proposed plan of raising the required amount, details of which will be published later.

"The new Legion Memorial Centre," Commander Mason said, "would embody modern clubrooms for members of the branch as well as recreational facilities for members' families, and also spacious room where community meetings could be held or such city organizations as the Teen-Age Club could hold weekly dances.

The new centre he pointed out, will be a distinct asset to the city and one of which not only members of the Legion will be proud, but the city as a whole as well.

With the membership of the Belleville branch increasing at a high rate, the new Centre is urgently needed, and the necessary arrangements with the government are completed, Commander Mason said.

Remembrance Day Dinner

Former Regimental Sergeant Major Duffy of the famous Hasty Pees, was named chairman of a Remembrance Day function here on November 11 which will embody a huge banquet to be held in the Armouries here and which will be addressed by outstanding military figures of the district. Brigadier Howard Graham, D.S.O. and Bar, deputy chief of the General Staff, Ottawa will be the guest speaker.

Arrangements have been made for the accommodation of 400 veterans of the city and district and all veterans of the First and Second Great Wars will be invited regardless of organization affiliations. Tickets will be sold at $1 each and the proceeds will be devoted exclusively to the Belleville Branch Canadian Legion Building Fund.

The ladies of the Women's Auxiliary of the branch will cater to the veterans, Comrade Duffy told the meeting and arrangements had been completed with Lieut. Col. B. C. Sisler officer in charge of the Armouries for the use of the building for the function.

Support Resolution

During the business session of the meeting the branch unanimously supported a resolution to the Dominion Command requesting the Federal Government to rescind its recent amendment to the Veterans' Land Act, in that a veteran must have to take two acres of land instead of the originally laid-down 1-2 acre. The resolution will be forwarded to the Dominion Command in conjunction with similar ones from branches across Canada.

Three new members were installed at the meeting. A vote of thanks was tendered the Ladies' Auxiliary for their splendid work done at the Belleville Fair, and branch congratulations were extended to Comrade Tommy Mason on his recent appointment as Zone Commander in this district.

RUSSIA CHARGES

Meanwhile, weary delegates, after a record-breaking all-night session of the conference's military commission, continued to work against time in an effort to wind up their treaty-drafting task by Oct. 15.

Convening at 9 o'clock last evening, the military commission battled throughout the night on disarmament phases of the Bulgarian Treaty and was still in session at 6:30 this morning when an army of scrub women invaded Luxembourg Palace to begin tidying up the conference chambers.

Sharing the limelight with the deliberations of the military commission was the still unsolved Italian reparations question, which must be settled in commission today to clear the decks for forthcoming plenary sessions of the peace conference.

The four-power Foreign Ministers' Council, which has final say on the treaties, last night recommended rules for streamlined procedure for the plenary sessions with a view to adjournment within a week and a half.

The conference will pass upon these rules in a plenary session Sunday and will begin reading and voting on the treaties Monday morning.

To save time, the council recommended that:

1. Each delegation limits its speeches on each treaty to half an hour.
2. Instead of being read, copies of commission reports in English, French and Russian be distributed to delegates before the meetings.
3. No roll call votes be taken except upon demand.
4. No new amendments be admitted for discussion.

Treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland will be taken up in that order, if the council's recommendation is followed.

McEvoy, late residence, 128 South John Street, was held Friday morning from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father C. E. Baker, who also said the committal prayers at the graveside in St. James' cemetery.

The bearers were William Lynch, Maurice Callaghan, Geo. Giffin, Joseph Cruji, Stephen Garvin and Peter Cote.

District Heating Scheme is Urged In British Cities

London, Oct. 4 (Reuters) — Immediate action in the development of district heating schemes in large British urban areas as opposed to traditional heating of individual buildings was called for yesterday in a report issued by the building and research section of the government-sponsored Department of Scientific and Industrial Research.

Dundee, Scotland, already has such a scheme operating on a small scale, and the Manchester city council has approved plans to heat 10,000 new houses by hot water pipes from central power plants.

FARMER'S TINY DAUGHTER HAS HORSES FOR HER PLAYMATES

Most four-year-olds are content to "play house" with their dolls, but not Shirley Adams. She is happiest when she can drive the horses about the form of Andy Walker, Melbourne, Australia, where she is staying. Here Shirley, under the supervision of Mr. Walker, drives two draught horses up to his plow. A real farmer's daughter, the tiny tot loves horses and is not in the least shy or frightened by them.

Trial of Gerson Opens at Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 4 (CP)—After three days of legal skirmishing and selection of a jury, the conspiracy trial of H. S. Gerson, 41-year-old former official of the munitions department, will enter the evidence stage before Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland in Ontario Supreme Court.

The Montreal-born son of Russian parents, a geological engineer by profession, is charged with conspiring with a large number of Canadians and Russian Embassy officials to gather and communicate confidential information for Russia.

He pleaded not guilty.

The Crown elected to go ahead with Gerson's trial first after Mr. Justice McFarland rejected efforts to try him jointly with four other accused, all former government officials. It was the first attempt by the prosecution to lump together a considerable number of the 18 persons so far detained in connection with the Dominion's espionage probe.

The decision will probably mean that no similar attempts will follow.

Fifty members of a jury panel of 144 men of Carleton County were called before a 12-man petit jury was finally chosen to try Gerson. It includes five farmers, a toolmaker, a mechanic, a civil servant, a butcher, a salesman, a laborer and a window dresser.

Persistent defence challenges "for cause" forced Mr. Justice McFarland, for the first time in his 13 years on the bench, to select two members of the jury panel to try others as prospective jurymen. Once the first two jurymen were selected, the others withdrew and the selection went on with each new member of the jury replacing one of the two who chose him.

The rotating two-man board rejected 11 of the 50 for such reasons as ignorance of how to read, bad hearing, for being government employees and for having already formed an opinion. Twelve of those passed were promptly rejected by defence counsel through his right to as many peremptory challenges.

NO MEAT FROM CANADA

Washington, Oct. 3 (CP)—Lester B. (Mike) Pearson, retiring Canadian Ambassador to the United States, last night told Americans they could expect no meat from Canada because the Dominion, itself rationed, sends its surplus to those abroad who need it more than Americans or Canadians. Mr. Pearson was guest of the (American Broadcasting Company) network radio program of Fiorello T. La Guardia, former mayor of New York and now Director General of U.N.R.R.A.

Water Shortage May be Relieved By Finding Cistern

By JOHN CALDER

Jerusalem, Oct. 4 (Reuters) — Jerusalem's worst water shortage in many years may be relieved by the discovery of a large underground water cistern built by Monks 1,600 years ago.

C. N. Johns, British archeologist Thursday identified a large cavern found 15 feet beneath the courtyard of the Crusader Church of the "Tomb of the Virgin" as an ancient cistern.

The site lies in the "valley of the Last Judgment," one mile outside Jerusalem.

A four-foot-square opening in the sunlit court of the church gives access to a subterranean passage which leads into the cistern.

More than 35 intersecting arches in an excellent state of preservation support the cistern, used by the ancient Monks to catch and store rain-water.

The Greek and Armenian patriarchs, who hold the ecclesiastical rights of the discovery, plan to restore the cistern for present day use.

Covered With Mud

Thick, sticky mud, four feet deep and hundreds of years old, covers the floor of the cistern.

Spaced over the roof at intervals are conduits through which the rain poured in by-gone times.

In the church of the "Tomb of the Virgin," it is said, the Apostles interred the Virgin Mary.

The new discovery is linked with another archeological work going on in this richly historical valley, where tradition says Gabriel will sound his trumpet on the last day.

Present investigations indicate the character and extent of the group of crusader buildings which archeologists identified with great abbeys of the period preceding the 12th century.

This abbey was demolished by Saladin, Sultan of Syria and Egypt, to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, after he had captured the city in 1187, as protection against fresh invasion of the third crusade led by Richard Coeur De Lion.

THREAT OF BUTTER

"The farmers' strike out there (Alberta) is serious. In the first two weeks 25 creameries were picketed and there was no churning whatever."

Of cheese, he said production was 20,000,000 pounds lower this year than last and suggested the Canadian contract to supply Britain with cheese "may last a lot longer than we think."

Ontario Agriculture Department officials blamed a 15 per cent drop in butter production in Ontario as compared with last year on dry weather which spoiled pasturage and increased milk consumption which caused farmers to deliver milk to dairies rather than to butter and cheese factories.

TEN YEARS FOR THREE

Windsor, Oct. 4 (CP)— Three men who robbed the Tecumseh bank June 13 were sentenced yesterday to 10 years imprisonment each. They are: John Zero and Clifford Renaud, 26, and Donald Lowry, 31.

Fred Thibeault and Herbert Grant Farnol were sentenced to two years for attempting to break from the county jail Sept. 2.

Thibeault's sentence was added to the 22 years he had begun to serve on two armed robbery charges. As he was sentenced he claimed that the "so-called attempted jail break" was only a demonstration against intolerable conditions at the county jail. He complained his special diet had been cut off at the jail.

Churchill Will Be Base For Further Cold-Weather Exercises

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, Oct. 4 (CP)— A segment of Canada's vast and silent northland, fanning out from the lonely port of Churchill, Man., soon is to become an experimental test-tube area for the development of the Dominion's cold-weather military equipment.

Into that district, more than 600 miles north of Winnipeg, will be concentrated cold weather exercises aimed at familiarizing Canadian army, navy and air force personnel in defence problems arising in the spacious and vulnerable lands of the north.

The defence games, closely linked to last winter's exercise Muskox in that northern area, will be guided from an experimental station to be based at Churchill and manned by Canadian servicemen.

Establishment of the base, announced last month in Ottawa by Defence Minister Abbott, was understood to have resulted from recommendations of the joint defence board, which plots the defence of this hemisphere, and it is expected United States personnel would participate in the experiment.

Aimed at No Nation

This undertaking, which defence authorities are quick to emphasize is aimed at no third nation, recalls the vital but almost unsung role during the war of the $28,000,000 "crimson route" through Churchill, a summer season port which nestles on the shores of turbulent Hudson Bay.

That was a war-created air route which for years was classified as top secret. It was purposely kept under wraps because it was to be the Sunday punch of the Atlantic air ferry, building up supplies in Britain for the invasion of Europe.

The crimson route was designed to tap the mass production stream of the west coast aircraft plants and on its way from west to east touched Winnipeg, The Pas, Man., Churchill, the Arctic points of Southampton Island and Frobisher Bay, Greenland, Iceland and England.

Work was hurriedly started on the short-hop route, which could easily serve fighter aircraft, when wolf-packs of German submarines began prowling deep into the St. Lawrence River, central Canada's outlet to the sea, sinking ships and landing Nazi agents.

A Natural Step

These spokesmen are emphatic that this new step is directed at no one is merely a natural step in the development of hemisphere defence which, under United Nations security measures will be the joint responsibility of Canada and the United States.

One official put it this way: "If somebody ties up the visit of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, the relative insignificance of the recent exercise north of the Alaska highway and this new development they will be doing the cause of peace a disservice."

He added that the Field Marshal, during his recent visit to Canada, actually had no more than a soldier's private interest in Canada's northern defence — a potential field of battle that never had been fought over and which posed problems in which any student of war would be interested.

Churchill had been selected for the experimental station because it offers conditions of extreme, biting cold in the winter and moderate heat in the summer. Other advantages are that it is accessible by rail and air throughout the year.

An advance party already has gone into the area to survey accommodation facilities and establish administration offices. Many facilities already are available. They were left behind by the United States Army, which operated a wartime air base there.

It is understood that before the end of the winter joint army and air force operations will be conducted on a relatively small smale while next summer will see units of the Canadian Navy's Atlantic squadron, and possibly United States fleet units, taking part in small combined operations.

A Possibility

This was at a time when cautious planners had to consider the possibility that the air route through Dorval, Que., and Goose Bay, Labrador, or Danger Lake, Nfld., might have to be abandoned if their sea-borne supplies were cut off by enemy action.

As a matter of fact, the crimson route was little used during the war but its importance was emphasized by the establishment of United States protective garrisons at all points, made up of line troops, artillery and various types of fighting equipment.

The route has been described in the same terms as other precautionary wartime measures, such as the Canol and Alaskan highway projects. They were considered to be vital if it had been necessary to use them and effective against an enemy considering action on this continent while at the same time being important in the peacetime commercial development and administration of the north country.

The wartime United States commander of the route was Col. Jack Hodgson, who recently arrived in this capital to take up new duties as special air attache to the United States Embassy.

During the period in which he was in command of the section of the route that lies in Canadian territory—a section for which Canada has reimbursed the United States—he was put on the alert for possible U-boats, even in Hudson Bay, but none ever was sighted. The nearest the undersea raider made attacks was at the entrance of Goose Bay, hundreds of miles away.

Made Suggestions

The American garrisons never participated in cold weather exercises as such but found time to make suggestions to Washington on minor improvements to clothing and equipment. Col. Hodgson, for instance, suggested an important alteration in the service parka which provided more protection against the sharp climate.

The garrisons did, however, find time to help the Eskimo populations in the northern areas and it was this work which resulted in their only fatal casualties in the north. That was when an American pilot and an army doctor were lost while returning from a mercy flight during a diphtheria epidemic at Estimo Point.

While the crimson route was a purely offensive operation, the new exercises are strictly defensive in nature.

This has been stressed by government officials in Ottawa who still are mindful of the reprecussions, especially from Russia, which followed the original announcement of exercise Muskox in the same area.

HIGH FEELING

a railway siding at Stelco.

Men were leaving the plant in scattered groups when others, sympathetic with the strike, gathered and two policemen sought to break up the crowd. In the course of it they arrested the two but a third man got away when the crowd stormed the policemen who held him.

Earlier other non-strikers raced through the main Stelco gate in 16 cars to jeers, catcalls and thrown pebbles. They returned thumbed-noses from a group at the gate with just that—thumbed noses. Others left the plant by a "back door" to be landed at given points for ships and taken home in company cars.

A short time previously, after announcement in Toronto that the basic steel strike in Stelco and in the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation plant at Sydney, N.S. and the Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie had ended, the Stelco picket-line was withdrawn.

Received Warnings

Both sides received warnings to avoid difficulties with each other.

Speaking to his retiring picket line outside the main gate, Eamon Park, union official, said, "the company realizes that this is a tender situation and they told us they do not intend to send any of the non-strikers out this way tonight."

Then he warned:

"The union wants no razamataz around town tonight either. I am telling you now that you cannot settle your differences by physical contact. It is much better to isolate them (non-strikers) and have nothing to do with them if that is necessary."

The picket line withdrew in orderly fashion. But where it had been a new crowd gathered about the time the non-strikers were to go home and while the latter suffered verbal abuse there was no serious incident until the late evening fracas around the railway siding.

Meantime groups of special Ontario Provincial Police and R. C. M. P. which had been held in reserve in Hamilton for weeks started to leave town and the last of them were to depart today.

"THE MOOSE"

Based upon a picture painted for Carling's by C. H. Sinclair.

This is one of a series of illustrations on the subject of the Conservation of Canada's natural assets designed to emphasize the fact that the beauties of unspoiled nature that we enjoy today are a precious birthright which we must protect for tomorrow.

† COPYRIGHT BY CARLING'S, 1946

"Give Him a Sporting Chance"

Wily, courageous, resourceful, the Canadian moose asks of mankind only a sporting chance of survival. In the vast forests which are his home, he is king—able to overcome most of the dangers that beset the creatures of the wild.

His sharp hooves and antlers are a match for predatory wolves—his thick coat and mighty frame equal to the hardest winter—his skill, speed and endurance are such that he can be expected to survive even the high-powered rifle of the huntsman — providing that the hunting is carried on according to the reasonable and just laws of conservation.

Things that he cannot survive are indiscriminate hunting, the destruction of his feeding grounds by fire, and the disturbance of the "natural balance" by which Nature protects all wild-life. The destruction of beaver causes marshes to be drained and the moose are deprived of their best feeding grounds. The destruction of smaller game will cause wolves to turn in ravenous packs upon deer and moose. Thus we see how conservation protects not one, but all wild creatures.

We all have a vital interest in the conservation of our wealth of wild-life and natural resources, for these are part of a heritage in which we all share. The preservation of that heritage demands, from each one of us, a thorough understanding of the needs and methods of conservation, and this realization prompted the forming of The Carling Conservation Club.

Mr. Hull's Plea to Great Powers

Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull this week on his seventy-fifth anniversary issued a peace plea which he prepared at a time when his health is in grave danger. This fact makes his plea all the more poignant. It is a plea for mutual cinfidence among the nations for the preservation of peace. "The acceptance of responsibility for such leadership" as he proposed, is, he said, "the responsibility of every peace-loving nation to provide the full share of world leadership for the attainment of international unity and co-operation in the service of peace, justice, freedom and progress. This responsibility he saw especially for each of the great nations "into whose keeping the facts of geography and history have placed great agglomerations of political, economic and military power."

This was stressed by the former Secretary of State who recalled "the soul-searing moments when the very survival of free nations and free institutions hung by a thread. It was then that the nations fighting for freedom achieved, in the face of mortal danger, an unparalleled unity of purpose and action both within and among themselves. It was then they realized that mortal danger would always hang over the free world unless the peace-loving nations before it was too late, established among themselves an effective system of relations based upon principles and rules of international behavior under which the appalling tragedy of another world war could be avoided." He pointed out the untold sufferings of the nations, victors and vanquished, and indescribable miseries. Great strains in the transition to peace have been placed upon the unity of purpose and action so superbly maintained during the war. Mr. Hull sees dangerous conditions and tendencies today. "If unchecked they would undermine the international unit and co-operation so essential to the restoration and maintenance of world peace and security and to the advancement of human welfare. Yet their existence is no reason for anyone to have hesitation or doubts as to the true course to peace and security."

Mr. Hull feels that no matter how great the task, if the large nations can agree and act together to that end, then there is hope that the victories of a year ago will be turned into a peace that will endure. In his words, "incalculable disaster would result if these nations should become irreconcileably divided either within or among themselves."

The need today is paramount for "every one of the United Nations to keep faith with those ideals of a brotherhood of peace, justice and freedom which inspired our wartime unity and our wartime efforts to ensure unity among us after victory."

In hopeful vein the former Secretary of State says that humanity will be grateful to those statesmen who follow the course of justice unswervingly. His last thought was one of confidence that "man will not fail his fellow men in this crucial test."

That was the voice of an elder statesman of world rank, who has given his best in the cause of freedom. He points the way to mutual understanding as the key to security and peace.

Two Incidents

On the day when judgment was delivered by the tribunal at Nuernberg condemning 12 Nazi leaders to hanging, freeing three others and ordering imprisonment of ten others, there were several incidents reported which in themselves throw a light on the state of Germany and the German mind. Schacht, the German banker, who had been liberated, offered his autograph for a chocolate bar and a German on the street told a reporter when asked if he had been at the close of the trial when the Nazis were to receive the judgment of the court, answered "we are lining up for fish. A special ration of one herring a head has arrived in Nuernberg."

A Family Trait

Apparently the ready tongue of Britain's famous wartime Prime Minister is a family idiosyncrasy, as one Australian police sergeant discovered recently. In the Dorrigo country of New South Wales lives a cousin of Winston Churchill, who, naturally, is a centre of interest, Wearing a long, tawny beard, ragged pants at half mast height and sandshoes, the local member of the Churchill clan recently turned up for his gas ration tickets at the police station. On the score of his beard, the sergeant remarked: "You know you'd much improve your looks if you shaved your whiskers."

"Think so," was the answer. "Well, let me tell you, sergeant, that if you grow a beard it would much improve your looks. It would hide some of your cheek." Churchill's relative received his tickets and was shown the door in record time.

Autograph Hunt

One of the penalties that attaches to being a celebrity results from the exactions of the autograph hunters. Theirs is a sport that is not always pursued with due regard for the feelings of the quarry, says the Christian Science Monitor. It is pleasant to hear, therefore, that a film star who recently visited Britain has recorded that she found the hunters there exceptionally courteous and considerate. One small boy even went so far as to offer her a piece of candy in exchange for her signature — a fine gesture, though were it to become widespread most celebrities might find their taste of fame a little cloying.

Nevertheless, however charming the pursuers, one's sympathies are with the hunted, who, short of pleading illiteracy, have little chance of escaping the ordeal. But this hobby of collecting "a commodity of good names" may yet fall out of fashion, and the conditions recur that enabled Shakespeare to ask blithely, "What's in a name?" without fear of finding the answer in the shape of an importunate crowd as he stepped out of the stage door.

Too Clean

Sir Almroth Edward Wright, one of the greatest medical scientists of our generation, who daily for 40 years drew a teaspoonful of blood from his own body for experiments, has just celebrated his 85th birthday.

Director of the inoculation department of St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, his discovery of inoculation for typhoid saved 100,000 British lives during the First World War, says The London Daily Mail.

Sir Almroth once said that asthma could be created by having a wife who cleans too much.

A man who went to St. Mary's with asthma suddenly found that his complaint had vanished. He went home and it returned. It was discovered that his wife was fond of polishing the linoleum, and that mould had accumulated beneath the linoleum, causing the asthma.

While just government protects all in their religious rites, true religion affords government its surest support.—Washington.

All the world loves a dog and London crowds of passengers cheered a little terrier which raced ahead of a train for six miles in the subway under London. How the dog got on the track is not told, but the engineer saw him and applied the brakes, and the dog fled for all his might. The strange race was past ten stations, where crowds cheered the animal which had interrupted the schedule of the train. Such a race would draw the same cheers anywhere, so closely have man and dog been associated down the ages.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

"GOOD FELLOW"

He liked the term "good fellow" and he fancied it to mean
Being generous with comrades that his wife had never seen.
He liked to have it gossiped, by the men about the town,
That he always held "his end up" and he never "let them down."

He was popular with men-folk; fond of cards, and often played;
Never whimpered at his losses, never grumbled as he paid.
He was always jolly company wherever he would roam,
But was never quite so merry when he had to stay at home.

He spent his money freely on the strangers that he met,
But his wife was always waiting for the dress she wished to get.
And it's curious the notion never pierced his solid dome—
Who would be a "real good fellow" first should win the name at home.

Mrs. W. E. Holton, Charles Street, left today to visit her sons in New York City.

Ten years ago, Oct. 4th., 1886, the Dafoe House, situated at the northeast corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets, was destroyed by fire. It was one of the oldest, largest and best known buildings in Belleville. It was a three-storey building with a mansard roof. Mr. S. R. Balkwell was the proprietor, Mr. Charles Hunter, clerk, and Mr. William Dafoe, the owner of the building. The first hotel to stand upon the site was burned in 1854 and was also owned by Mr. William Dafoe.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Young Harold Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and a combat navy captain in the war, has been quietly campaigning throughout the United States with an obvious eye on the 1948 Republican nomination for president.

He is the obvious choice of the party if it wants to put up a war hero as candidate for the White House in the next presidential election.

But there is no present indication that the party wants to stray away from the professional politician type of candidate and the current choice, enlivened by the off-year Congressional election campaign, seems directed toward two of the latter type.

They are Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York who looks like a winner for re-election next month in that post over Senator James Mead, the Democratic choice, and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, perennial willing horse of the Republican party.

Washington observers see no improvement in the chances of Captain Stassen but they also recall that few would give the late Wendell Willkie a chance early in 1940, although he won the nomination.

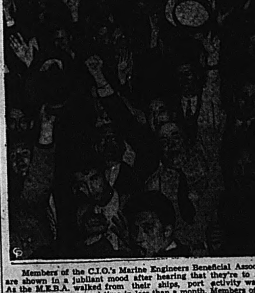
Capt. Stassen is said to be too frankly outspoken in his criticism of "reactionaries" in the party, and too much to the left to suit the stalwarts of the G.O.P.

If Gov. Dewey wins in New York in November he would have a firm hold on leading place among contenders for the 1948 Republican nomination in spite of the fact that the party seldom renominates a one-time loser.

Defeat of Governor Dewey would make strong contenders of Senator Taft, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan who is making a fine reputation as adviser to State Secretary Byrnes in Paris, and former Governor John Bricker of Ohio if he wins the governorship election there in November.

Field Marshal Montgomery's recent visit to Washington revived an amusing story brought back from the Yalta Big Three conference. The story was about a party at which a Vodka-inspired Russian general got so enthusiastic that he jumped on a table, did a Russian dance and fell into the lap of Marshal Stalin. Stalin with an indulgent smile, turned to Winston Churchill and observed: "I suppose you sometimes have the same kind of trouble with your General Montgomery." The point of the story is that Field Marshal Montgomery neither drinks nor smokes — and probably never did a Russian dance on a banquet table.

THEIR STRIKE STOPS SHIPS AGAIN



Members of the C.I.O.'s Marine Engineers Beneficial Association are shown in a jubilant mood after hearing that they're to strike. As the M.E.B.A. walked from their ships, port activity was at a standstill for the second time in less than a month. Members of A. F. of L. unions and C.I.O. affiliates were respecting the engineers' picket lines.

TWO MEN

of police for three days before their previous arrest.

They were difficult to trail. They knew the country well and had a six hours head start through an area where in some sections travel is almost impossible.

Leads to Suspicion

In this remote section, well off the beaten track for most travellers, the appearance of strange men on the roads leads to suspicion and questions. Police counted on residents for clues to the progress of their quarry. They were not disappointed.

Over bushland telephone lines tips came to police from such widely scattered points as McCracken's Landing, the Napthalene mine section, Paudash Lake, Young's Point and Warsaw. But no help to police was the knowledge that Paudash Lake and Young's Point are 60 miles apart.

Police Patrol Roads

Those were the two areas in which residents reported seeing strangers last night. As both are on the Bancroft-Peterboro highway, police cruisers patrolled that road constantly.

Recalling Jackson's record of car thefts — twice he picked police patrol cars — officers kept special vigil for suspicious car movements and were alert for reports of automobile thefts.

The search turned up one abandoned motorcar at Stoney Creek, 25 miles north of Peterboro, but police said they were uncertain if it was linked with the escape.

A handful of summer cottages are scattered through the area and one possibility was that the men might use one as a hide-out.

Used Length of Wire

Investigators found that the men used a length of wire ripped from a bedspring to pick the lock of their cell. Then they rambled through the darkened corridors of the community building, surprised guard Frank Askey, 65, who doubles as janitor, slugged and robbed him and bundled him into their cell. There they bound him with blankets and gagged him with his own necktie. Later a doctor used four stitches to close Askey's head wound.

The men did not free a third prisoner, Charles Airhart, 25, of Peterboro, who was with them at the time of their arrest.

Jackson and Seymour were to have appeared in court yesterday for sentence after conviction on two charges of car theft, tire theft and breaking and entering.

Were New Suits

Apsley, Ont., Oct. 4. (CP)—Cold, tired, wet and hungry, Royce Seymour, 26, of Toronto, and Kenneth Holland, 23, of Brantford, wore new suits when they surrendered to police early today after escaping from Bancroft jail yesterday.

The new suits, police say, were purchased with the $60 stolen from Turnkey Frank Akey after they bound and gagged him.

Police credit Apsley citizens with the capture. Two residents recognized the fugitives when they walked into a garage here 19 hours after their escape. One kept watch on the garage while the other raced a quarter of a mile to warn police who were watching a road block.

Newton Stephens, the garage owner, quoted the men as saying: "The cops are looking for us. We want to give ourselves up. It's too cold to spend the night in the bush." They then waited for police to take them into custody.

Police believe the men travelled back and forth in the sparsely settled country between Bancroft and Apsley while police patrols, called in from a 100-mile radius, hunted them. They are believed to have bought the clothes at a general store in the district.

VITAMINS ARE NOT MEDICINE

A great many people foolishly dabble with vitamins, "trying" first this and then that vitamin or combination of vitamins, and never getting any appreciable benefit simply because they do not continue the experiment long enough.

I have sometimes referred to vitamin B (thiamine) as "poor man's insulin," because, as numerous good authorities now recognize, it contributes something to the metabolism or utilization of carbohydrate (starch, sugar). Persons with diabetes often find that an optimal daily ration of vitamin B1, preferably taken as B complex, does, after a reasonable time, enable them to reduce their daily insulin requirement. A reasonable time for this effect, I find, is three or four months. Moreover it is my opinion that the negative experience of many physicians who have, as they say, tried out this suggestion in practice, is due to the inadequate time they gave for the test. It is hardly worth while to supplement the diabetic's diet with three milligrams (1000 units) of B1 and proportionate amounts of the other B complex vitamins daily for just a few weeks and then discontinue the practice because extraordinary effects have not been obtained.

Most physicians and a good many laymen would think of digitalis at the mention of heart tonic. We need not quarrel about that here, but I must mention that it is generally agreed that one who needs a heart tonic needs it not just for a few weeks but more or less the year around. Even digitalis, which the old physicians today consider a heart tonic, must be taken in small doses but over a prolonged period of time to produce a tonic effect.

Just what is a tonic effect. Tonic means to give tone—in this instance the heart muscle — and improvement of function. Frankly I can't follow the reasoning by which some physicians maintain digitalis has a tonic effect on the heart. But I can readily understand that vitamin B complex tones the heart muscle, just as it tones the gastro-intestinal muscle coat and function. A large part of the Vitamin B stored in the body is found in the heart muscle. It is probably as essential for normal functioning of the heart muscle as it is for normal utilization of starch and sugar in the body. Muscle work involves oxidation of blood sugar, whether it be voluntary or involuntary muscle.

So, with every dose of digitalis or other heart medicine I'd combine a teaspoonful of a pleasant tasting B complex syrup or, if the heart medicine is in pill or tablet form, perhaps a capsule of B complex—and continue the B complex long after the heart medicine is stopped, although once a day is often enough to take it, provided the one daily "dose" or ration gives at least three times the amount of Vitamin B that is ordinarily required to maintain good nutrition, say 1000 to 1500 units or 3 to 5 milligrams of B1 (thiamine) every day in the year, together with proportionate amounts of the other vitamins of the complex.

Remember, it takes two or three months of this to produce an appreciable tonic effect on the heart and once you get the effect you must continue the supplement indefinitely, for, after all, it is just good for which, thanks to your namby-pamby diet, you have been half starving for many years.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Pinworm Eggs

Is there a disinfectant I could use to kill eggs of pinworms there might be around the house.

(Mrs. L. H. R.)

Answer—No. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for booklet "Unbidden Guests." It tells what to do about pinworms, round worms tapeworms, hookworms, ringworms and other pests.

Alcohol

Please tell me if beer and ale puts on weight. I am fond of it and drink a quart a day (not all at once) and I find I'm getting quite heavy although I eat only one substantial meal a day.

(Mrs. O. T. G.)

Answer—A quart of beer or ale yield about 400 valories—about the same as a pound of potato. If you do much physical work or play or exercise every day the beer or ale will produce no greater gain in weight than a pound of potato would.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Which is correct, Persia or Iran?

Iran (pronounced "ee-RAWN") has been for centuries the official name of the Asiatic country that foreigners call Persia.

In ancient times part of this country composed a kingdom known as "Pars" (Persia), and when Europeans began to have intercourse with Iran they called it Persia, the name of one province and the ancient name of part of the territory.

While the inhabitants called their country Iran and themselves Irani (pronounced "ee-RAWN-ee"), their government recognized "Persia" as the name of the country and "Persians" as the name of the inhabitants in diplomatic language and in external affairs.

On March 22, 1935, the Iranian government formally adopted "Iran" as the official name of the country in external as well as internal affairs and requested foreign governments to recognize this designation.

The U. S. Department of State announced that "Iran" instead of "Persia" would be used in diplomatic exchanges thereafter. On February 14, 1935, Second Assistant Postmaster General Harllee Branch published the following communication:

"The Department has been advised that the country which has heretofore been designated as Persia should henceforth be known as Iran, the official name in the language of that country. In view of the foregoing, appropriate changes should be made on pages 203, 207, 211, 225 (see Teheran), 235, 241, 243, 246, 285, 517, 518, and 519 of the Postal Guide for July, 1934. Postmasters will please cause due notice of the matter to be taken at their offices and the widest publicity, without expense to the Department, to be given thereto."

On February 18, 1942, Richard K. Law, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons that instructions would be issued to use "Persia" instead of "Iran" "so far as is practical." In 1946 Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill said he objected to "Iran" because it is easily confused with "Iraq," the name of an adjoining country.

"Iran" is derived from the same Sanskrit root as "Aryan." All Aryan stock is supposed to have sprung from a tribe of farmers on the Iranian plateau.

Swift Canadian Company Signs Union Ageement

Winnipeg, Oct. 4 (CP)—Threat of a packinghouse workers strike set for today was finally removed late last night when the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO) and the Swift Canadian Company signed a wage agreement.

Settlement between the union and the Swift Canadian Company was announced late last night, along the same basis as an agreement reached Tuesday night between the union and the two other big Canadian packing chains, Canada Packers Ltd., and Burns and Company. The new contract, a master agreement covering all plants, called for a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

Fred W. Dowling of Toronto, National Director of the Packing-House Union, estimated the employees' total gain at 18 cents an hour since last November when an agreement was reached providing raises of somewhat over six cents.

Further increases were asked by the employees in July and a company offer of five cents was rejected in a ballot taken at all plants of the three companies.

Negotiations then opened at Hamilton in late August under Mr. Justice S. E. Richards of Winnipeg, Federal - appointed commissioner.

After a temporary breakdown the negotiations were resumed in Winnipeg Sept. 16. Agreements were announced Tuesday with Canada Packers and Burns, but delay in the agreement with Swift led to preparations for strike action today in Swift Canadian plants across the country.

None of Victims In Air Disaster Identified

Stephenville, Nfld., Oct. 4 (CP, Cable)—Government and Airline officials were expected today to begin an investigation into Newfoundland's second air tragedy within a month as the cause of the worst disaster in the history of American Commercial aviation remained unexplained.

None of the 39 occupants of the American Overseas Airlines Skymaster could be identified when Rescue parties reached the charred wreckage yesterday at the summit of a hill ten miles from this western Newfoundland village.

The plane, bound for Shannon, Eire, from New York, landed at nearby Harmon Field early Thursday to refuel because the huge Gander airport 225 miles east of here was closed in by weather. Ten minutes after the take-off in the ere-dawn darkness, the plane smashed into the hillside.

Rescue planes set out after the news of the accident was flashed and their observers reported the wreckage still burning. Later in the day ground parties toiled through marshland and forest to reach the scene.

They found twisted wreckage and charred bodies in the shattered plane.

It was considered that matters pertaining to the crash would be under jurisdiction of United States auhtorities who operate Harmon Field, which was involved in the 1940 British-American destroyers-for-bases deal.

Newfoundland Government officals and airline officers, however, left Gander to begin an investigation.

The tragedy occurred 15 days after a Belgian Sabena Airlines plane plummeted into the forests south of Gander with a death toll of 27. There were 17 survivors.

Union to Deal Directly With Member Co.

By MAX HALL

Washington, Oct. 4 — (AP)—The government sought today to by-pass the Pacific American Shipowners Association and deal directly with its member companies in a fresh effort to end the United States Maritime strike.

The Maritime Commission decided to invite various steamship company officials here for a weekend Conference according to a Maritime Commission official.

This official, who asked that he not be identified, told reporters the representatives of the Pacific American Shipowners Association have done nothing but say "No, no, no" in the negotiations here.

Meantime, the negotiations moved slowly along on wage demands and other matters, with a session scheduled for 10 a. m. (E.S.T.)

But the main obstacle to a settlement of the four-day-old strike of captains, mates, and engine-room officers was still considered to be the West Coast deadlock over demands for more union security.

A labor department formula for a partial settlement, involving a separate East Coast agreement, was still very much in the wind.

But the Maritime Commission official said the Commission wants a uniform settlement on both coasts.

Eastern shipowners have agreed to grant two provisions of union security against which the Pacific Association has held out.

These provisions are: preference to union members in hiring, and a requirement that union men must maintain their membership or lose their jobs.

Those provisions already were in effect in most east coast vessels before the tie-up began.

PIE SOCIAL AT CARMEL

Rawdon — Carmel United Church on the Stirling charge was packed to the doors on Monday evening for a pie social, guests being present from all nearby points. A good program was enjoyed by the audience, with solos by Mrs. Frank Potts of Seymour and Mr. Wm. Reynolds of Stirling, several readings about "Thanksgiving" by Mr. Arhtur Duncan of Batawa, and a duet by Misses Lois Weaver and Ruth Rose of Mount Pleasant, after which abundant refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

The month of October was ushered in with a really cold wave and a blustering snowstorm. This is the earliest date upon which snow has made its appearance for several years.

Several Rawdonians attended Madoc fair on Wednesday.

50 War Brides Entertained By Red Cross Branch

The lounge room in the Y.M.C.A. was the setting for a very successful tea, Thursday afternoon, sponsored by the officers of the local Red Cross organization, extending a cordial welcome to the brides of war-veterans in Belleville and surrounding small towns. About fifty brides responded to the invitations extended. Since this is the opening event of the regular meetings of the Red Cross, which are held on the first Thursday of each month, the ladies in charge are delighted with the results. Mrs. J. G. Hornsby spoke a few words of welcome to the guests, some of whom assisted with the serving.

The tea table, covered with a linen cloth and centred with a bouquet of multi-colored zinnias, presented a very attractive appearance. No special program was arranged for entertainment, conversation filling the hour most acceptably since many English brides were thrilled to meet friends whom they had not seen for three years; and four or five girls from Holland, who had come over to Canada on the same boat, had not met since saying "au revoir" when separating on their arrival in Canada.

Brides were present from Stirling, Bonarlaw, Shannonville, Point Anne and other small towns in the Belleville district.

ST. PAUL'S W.A. MEETING

Stirling—The October meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur Gordonier, with a splendid attendance. During the business period a report was received from Mrs. W. Preston, convener of the "Friendly Workers' Group" which donated another $30.00 to the work of the W. A. The Visiting Committee reported having made eighteen calls during the last month, and 12 cards were sent to sick members during Sept. Plans were made relating to a dinner for the Teachers' Convention in Oct., and for a bazaar to be held in Nov.

A Thanksgiving program opened with a hymn and prayer. Mrs. S. Williams read the Scripture and a paper "Life's Best" given by Mrs. Don Donohue. Another paper, "The First Thanksgiving," read by Mrs. C. A. Wells, was followed by a suitable duet by Mrs. C. Macklin and Mrs. Iva Thain. Readings "To Autumn" and "On This Thanksgiving Day" were given by Mesdames George Megginson and Ted Reynolds respectively. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction and a social hour was enjoyed under the able direction of the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bruyea, Murray Township, Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Well-known and highly esteemed residents of Murray Township near Wooler, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bruyea celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sept. 30 in a setting strongly reminiscent of their wedding day a half century ago.

In his old homestead birthplace which his father the late Paul Bruyea acquired over 100 years ago and which has since expanded to 400 acres, where he took his bride the former Ellen Gallagher of Codrington, Ont., on that late September day in 1896, the 76-year-old farmer surrounded by 40 of his immediate family, recalled events that have mile-stoned five decades of unmarred marital life.

As they attended High Mass in beautifully decorated St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, the first Mass in the history of that edifice said for golden wedding celebrants, perhaps the elderly couple closed their eyes and relived the wedding ceremony performed by Rev. Father Collins in the same church fifty years ago.

Many Familiar Faces

And as they looked about them they saw familiar faces for the sponsors were Paul Bruyea, brother of the groom and Mrs. Jane Empey, twin sister of the bride, who were present at that first ceremony. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father F. L. Rishea, parish priest, against a lovely floral background of yellow roses and gold and rust 'mums. Altar boys assisting Father Rishea were Paul and Jack Bruyea, grandsons of the "bridal" couple. At the organ was Mrs. William Cowan, with Miss Vera Lyons of Frankford, and John Marchen, of Tweed, heard in vocal music.

Guests Of Honor

Following the church service, Mr. and Mrs. Bruyea were guests of honor in their home at a banquet tendered them by members of their immediate family and close friends. Three close neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. John McColl and Mrs. John Regan, assisted by the Bruyea granddaughters were in charge of culinary arrangements and serving.

During the banquet, with the Rev. Father Rishea acting as chairman, the bride of 50 years was presented with a beautiful gold rosary, and a brooch of gold, while Mr. Bruyea was the delighted recipient of a set of Jeffersonian pipes and a handsome wooden humidor engraved in gold leaf with the words "50th wedding anniversary".

Among numerous other gifts were a rose and gold down comforter and two woollen blankets presented by close neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Bruyea.

During the afternoon and evening many friends, relatives and neighbors "dropped in" to offer felicitations. Tea and light refreshments were served by Mr. Bruyea's twin daughters, Mrs. Ray Turley and Mrs. William Smith.

Well-Known Farmer

Following his marriage, Mr. Bruyea settled with his bride on the farm adjoining the old Bruyea homestead, where he now resides. Later he acquired his former home then operated by a brother, Ronald. A keen and successful farmer, Mr. Bruyea later extended his property and took over another farm operated by his younger brother, Paul. The Bruyea farm had now expanded to 400 acres.

The property rated as one of the best farms in Murray Township has ever since been the home of the Bruyea's. Mr. Bruyea took a keen interest in all phases of agriculture and conducted mixed farming with dairying as a specialty. He is regarded as one of the better farmers of the district and is held in high esteem by his neighbors and others who till the soil. His opinions on matters agricultural, often sought, and freely given, are the result of years of study and practical success.

Today at the age of 76, he still does a full day's work on his farm. This summer he pitched hay and grain "with the boys" and loves nothing better than to "get out and work".

President of Factory

He was president of the Rogers' Cheese Factory for a number of years and sat on two boards of school trustees in his native township. A home-loving man, Mr. Bruyea never sought municipal office but took a keen interest in the life and welfare of his community and district. He was the fifth child in a family of four boys and four girls.

Mrs. Bruyea, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher, Codrington, was with her twin sister, Mrs. Jane Empey, the fifth arrival of a family of four boys and seven girls. She is enjoying splendid health and does her daily routine of the housework despite the fact she is 82 years of age.

Seven children were born to the union, four girls and three boys. These include Fred and Edmund Bruyea, at home, and John of Belleville; Mrs. Neil O'Donnell (Loretta) Cleveland, O.; Mrs. William Smith, (Jane) Campbellford; Mrs. Ray Turley (Ellen), Batawa and Mrs. Clare Dean, (Bessie), Toronto. Mrs. Turley and Mrs. Smith are twins and are named after their mother and aunt, Mrs. Jane Empey, also twins.

There are seventeen grandchildren and one great-grandchild in the family.

Late Fall Fruits for Winter Pleasure

(By Robt. P. Brundage in Wall Street Journal)

In San Diego county, California, where the climate is like parts of India, Africa and Latin America, nearly every subtropical fruit in the world is being raised. These include pomegranates, passion fruit, persimmons, lemon guavas, loquats, kumquats and feijoas.

Hundreds of growers are encouraged in their gardening by the fact that 35 years ago the subtropical avocado was just another orphan fruit. This year several thousand farmers will market close to 40,000,000 pounds of the fruit worth $5,000,000.

Some of the new fruits are getting special attention. The college of agriculture at the University of California at Los Angeles is raising cherimoyas and sapotas. The citrus experiment station at Riverside is working with guavas.

Of all the rare subtropicals — most are rare only to North Americans—the cherimoya seems to have the backing of the majority of experts. Cherimoya means "cold seeds" in the Peruvian Indian dialect. It is a native of Ecuador and Peru. A good one is a delicious combination of delicate flavors, like a cross between a pineapple and a banana. A bad one has the sickening flavor of low grade artificial cherry candy drops.

Cherimoyas don't have much eye appeal. Most of them are greenish brown when ripe, about avocado size or bigger, and may be shaped like anything from a bell to a lopsided baseball. The surface may be almost smooth or covered with warlike bumps. t's more often indented as if by thumbprints or scaled like a pineapple or artichoke. They have bluish black seeds. The grower grosses about 30c a pound on them.

White sapotas are much more perishable and thinner skinned than cherimoyas and therefore less likely commercial candidates unless air freight adopts them. But some connoisseurs like them better. Apple size, with the color and skin texture of pears, the "white" sapota (the main variety raised here) comes from the highlands of Mexico and Central America, where it's among the main cultivated fruits. The name comes from the Aztec "tzapotl," meaning "soft, sweet fruit." It's 25 per cent sugar by weight and the meat is white and custardy like cherimoyas.

A chilled sapota tastes a lot like vanilla ice cream, or like a cross between a banana and a pear. One frowers say: "If you get a bad one it may taste like a cake of soap or a bottle of turpentine. One day it may be ripe and the next rotten, but a good one tastes like something out of heaven."

Most subtropical fruits have high water and sugar content but are low in acids and solids—an unusual combination to the average northern palate.

Some experts think the most promising of the subtropicals is a marble size nut named the macadamia, after a professor at the University of Queensland, Australia, who originated it. It's extremely tasty, much like a Brazil nut.

Mangos, the apples of India, have been raised for some time in Florida and now have a toe hold in California. They are the color of peaches, though smooth skinned, about twice as big and even juicier. Mangos make a delicious ingredient of ice cream.

Cactus cultivation is the business of M. Maniscalo of Lakeside, Calif. He propagates the fruit by planting leaves that bud out from each other. Known as "tuna" cactus, it is hand grenade size, with a prickly green skin which peels off to show light pink melon colored flesh. It tastes like a watermelon and has nearly as many seeds.

The citrus experiment station of Riverside recommends lemon guavas, many times richer in Vitamin C than either oranges or tomatoes. They have a musky flavor and look like yellow tomatoes inside and out.

Neither cattleys (called strawberry guavas) nor feijoas (pineapple guavas) are actually guavas. Both are good in shortcake. The carissa, or Natal plum, bears a plum looking fruit which tastes bitter eaten out of hand but makes "the cranberry sauce of the tropics."

Loquats, really oriental, are small, oval, yellow orange and grow in clumps. They taste like some kinds of table grapes. Kumquats, which look like tiny oblong oranges, have a bitter rind, a sweet inner lining and sour meat. The limequat is a cross between a lime and a kumquat.

Delightful Tea Held by Q.M. S. & H. Club

A delightful tea was held on Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of Queen Mary School, which was decorated with flowers for the occasion.

Guests of the tea, mothers of newly enrolled children, were cordially welcomed by the principal of the school, Mr. C. Frederick.

The president of the Association, Mrs. H. L. Croll, gave a brief talk explaining the aims, objects and work of the Home and School Association. She stressed the importance of all mothers becoming members, so that teachers and parents may work together for the general betterment of the school.

Tea was served from a beautifully arranged table. Mrs. L. W. Pringle, and Mrs. D. Stewart poured. Mrs. Kennedy was in charge of all arrangements.

Dusky beige crepe is the medium used for this simple, elegant daytime dress, the sort of thing that is a wardrobe backbone. Subtle draping below the deep neckline takes a surplice lap-over and adds additional interest to the bodice. Slanting seaming on the skirt gives a wrap-around effect. Other details include deep armholes, straight, slim sleeves and a narrow front-tied self sash.

WEDDINGS

TREVERTON—BELL

Decorated with baskets of gladioli, cut flowers and potted ferns, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the setting for a pretty wedding at high noon on October 2, when June Marie Bell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell, John Street, became the bride of Earl Walker Treverton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Treverton, Plainfield. Rev. H. O. Eastman performed the ceremony.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride made a charming picture in a floor-length gown of white sheer with shirred bodice, long sleeves and high neckline embroidered with sequins, and a bouffant styled skirt. She wore lace mitts, and her long veil fell from a headdress of gardenias. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses with fern and baby breath, tied with white satin ribbon.

The bridesmaid was Miss Lois Maybee, who wore a floor-length gown of white sheer with a shoulder-length veil, falling from a halo of pink rosebuds and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses, baby breath and fern tied with pink satin ribbon.

Mr. Clare Weese acted as groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. P. E. Smith and George Clare, cousin of the groom.

Mr. Dorland Houston, organist of the church, furnished the wedding music. During the signing of the register, Miss Edna Jobson sang "Because".

After the ceremony the guests were received at the "Bar-B-Q" by the bride's mother in a blue wool dressmaker suit with black accessories, wearing a corsage of pink and red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a brown wool suit and a similar corsage of roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of flat silver; to the groomsman a leather wallet; to the ushers rings, and to the soloist, 'cologne', initialed tie clips. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was earrings.

Later the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for a motor trip via the Roosevelt Bridge to Watertown, Rochester, and Niagara Falls, N.Y., returning home by way of Toronto, after which they will reside at Plainfield.

Out-of-town guests were from Madoc, Napanee, Kingston, Melrose and Plainfield.

Softly Tailored Handbag

By ALICE ALDEN

THERE'S NO DOUBT about it, he smartly handled shoulder bag at its best with tailored or oftly tailored clothes. Koret, a ioneer in the over-the-shoulder ag design field, uses antelope or this big, handsome bag, obong in shape, gently rounded with row on row of stitching decorating the sides and bottom. A gleaming metal clasp decorates the flap and two buckles on the strap lend a bright note. The shoulder strap is adjustable so that it can be carried over the arm, when desired. It is a grand bag for sports, tailored town or travel use!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Married 25 Years—She Goes Home to Mother

It is never surprising when a bride of a few months goes home to mother; that is apt to be part of the scheme of things in early married life, before a young wife gets used to the fact that she has married a mere man and not a paragon of all the virtues.

But when one hears of a woman who has been married 25 years and then does approximately the same thing, it is something to be taken more seriously.

The bride who has had a spat with her bridegroom usually goes home of her own accord, or else after she has succeeded in scaring her husband into coming after her and begging her to return, which was, of course, her purpose in leaving. The older married woman is a different proposition altogether.

Here is a husband who is facing this problem with his wife of many years' standing:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My wife and I have been married for the past 25 years. We have 3 daughters—one married, two single and both working.

"For the past year, my wife has seemed to want to spend all her time with her mother, who has two daughters, besides my wife, with her. She doesn't need my wife's help. However, pleading and begging can't get my wife away from her for more than a week at a time.

"I need my wife love her, and greatly miss her. She tells me, she loves me, but this can't go on.

"I make good money and have always given her one hundred per cent of her asking. I have been nice and kind to her.

"Should I get a divorce and quit? If so, will time let me forget the one I love?

"Please give me the answer. I can't get it from my wife. I am 47 and my wife is 48.

"Disgusted".

Of course you must be disgusted with this situation, especially when you have tried as hard as you say to make your wife happy.

But before you give any serious thought to getting a divorce, I think you might try to help your wife see the situation a little differently. Instead of merely begging and pleading with her to stay in her home, it may be that you can give her a new point of view that will make her want to do so herself.

No doubt, with one of your daughters married, and the other two working, your wife misses the companionship of other women relatives. When a woman has been used to having daughters in the home with her, it is perfectly understandable that she is very lonely for them when they leave her. This is no reflection on the husband. It is merely a natural thing, and might very well account for the fact that your wife wants to spend so much time with her mother and sisters. Of course, you yourself are away all day at your own work, which would leave your wife alone at home from morning until you get home at night.

A great many women in middle-age, whose children have grown up and developed interests outside their own home, face this same problem for a time, of filling a life that has suddenly become rather empty. If they are wise and clear-sighted, they understand themselves and see the necessity for developing some new interests of their own. That is what your wife needs to do.

You say that you make good money. Would there be any chance that you and your wife would care to adopt a child? You are both far from elderly, and have much time ahead yet to enjoy such a project. I should think it might appeal to your wife and would give her a good reason for being in her own home. Why don't you suggest this to her?

Are there some organizations in your town on whose work your wife might get interested? Naturally, I don't know what her tastes may be, but in almost every town there is some group in whose activities a woman can join and with whose members she can be congenial. Haven't you some friends you might talk this over with and see if they couldn't help you in interesting your wife in some such activity? I certainly would try some such such plan before deciding that you and your wife can't be happy together anymore. You must remember, too, that at 48 a women is apt to be going through a difficult period and feel restless and unsettled anyhow. Such a condition is almost always temporary, and when a woman's husband has patience and understanding, things are likely to straighten themselves out.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

You Can Make a New Face For Yourself

If you were born blessed with beauty, swell and good, but, if the fairy godmother was intent on business other than kissing you at your cradle, don't worry. Most good-looking women create their own charming appearance. They realize that with the right make-up and the use of a little horse sense the feminine countenance can be improved Many movie stars weren't beautiful in their natural state. They were put through the beauty hopper, came out lovely, younger-looking, all made over.

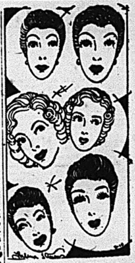
No doubt that correct make-up will change any woman's face for the better. With the lipstick alone an expert can improve the symmetry of the feminine countenance.

If you would have a narrow, thin chin look fuller, give a lift to the centre of the upper lip with the rosy glow, make the lower lip a bit wider. If the lips are thin and narrow, the mouth small, don't try to make a Cupid's bow of it. Sketch an outline with a pointed lipstick, going over the white flesh ever so lightly, then fill in.

If lips are thick and full, and you don't like them that way use a conservative shade of lipstick—the nearer the natural tone, the better. Apply heavily in the centre, let it do a fade-away toward the corners.

A notion shared by most girls and women says that lifted eyebrows make the eyes look larger. The contrary is true. Don't tweeze just from the under side if your eyes are small, especially if they are narrow eyes. Thin both borders, but mostly from above it the growth is thick. Should it happen that the silky threads are not dark enough to suit you, and you must use the crayon, apply it more heavily in the centre of the eyebrow than at the ends. Emphasize the curve of the arch.

When eyes are close-set there should be plenty of space between



Correct Make-up Will Change Any Woman's Face for the Better

the eyebrows, which should be extended at the ends with a carefully sharpened eyebrow crayon. One has to be careful when doing this trick. The line must be clear-cut and light. Never use a black pencil; it is too great contrast to the skin. Select a rich, dark brown.

When the face is full, it is a good plan to apply rouge or faint eye shadows just to the outer portions of the lids, that is, from the centre of the lid out to a point just below the end of the eyebrow.

The girl with the large nose—and gosh; how that worries her—can put it in a less obtrusive position by using a dark powder on it, one several shades darker than the fluff-stuff she applies to the rest of her face.

GOOD MANNERS

Showers Have Become a 'Racket'

Here is a letter from a reader who forthrightly and definitely sets forth the "racket" that bridal showers are getting to be:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Won't you please write something in your column about the terrible "racket" showers are getting to be? I am sure that when the custom was started the originators meant well. . . .but the custom has been exploited, expanded, and abused until now everybody who is willing to be honest will tell you that a shower invitation, except in a very few cases, is an unwelcome thing.

I am at present planning to be a bridesmaid in a wedding party, and evidently all the other well-meaning (I suppose) friends of the bride think that the pocketbooks of the bridesmaids have no limits. I am invited to four showers. It's ridiculous! Four shower gifts (besides the expense of bridesmaid's dress and accessories) and then the wedding gift. Budgeting these certainly takes the joy out of giving!

Some time ago I myself gave a shower for a friend, and the very next week one of the other friends of the bride-to-be invited the exact same list of guests to a shower she was to give. Some of the girls and I talked this over afterward and they were all in agreement that this second shower, with the exact same list of guests, was entirely unnecessary, and an imposition.

Usually when you are well enough acquainted with the bride or groom to be invited to a shower, you are well enough acquainted to be expected to give a wedding present, and to the person of modest or even average means, buying two gifts is a strain and an imposition.

I could go further with many more arguments against this growing racket of showers—but if you say something about this racket in your column, I am positive that you will find that thousands of your readers will be in complete agreement with this complaint of mine.

(If you print this letter, please don't print my name.)

This shower "racket" has certainly become a social menace—and pocketbooks are screaming for help against the persistent and increasing demands for presents, presents, more presents. When one or perhaps two showers are given in honor of the bride-to-be, showers given by a group of her friends and calling for simple, inexpensive gifts, these parties are in just the proper spirit of a friendly merry get-together. But when several showers are given for the same group of girls, or when the invitation suggests presents on the expensixe side, or when sister Betty or Aunt Jennie or Cousin Anne make up their minds that here's a fine chance to garner as many linens or electrical articles or other expensive loot as can possibly be wangled from relatives and friends (and mere acquaintances too) to help furnish Gracie's home, then the shower gives the impression of being produced by a pump! Over and over again, members of the family of the bride or groom write me that since no plans are being made by the bride's friends to give her a shower, wouldn't it be "all right" for them to give her a shower? A sound sense of business "promotion' in such an obvious suggestion—but lacking all social taste or grace. And in many other letters, when all other kinds of showers have been given, the readers want to know if a "greenback shower" will be proper! Today the "gimme" impulse, as far as showers are concerned, is entirely out of control. What do you girls suggest should be done about it?

Fashion Flashes

JUST RIGHT FOR wear with that first dance frock is a capelet of ermine, simply styled with a little turn-over collar. High closing is achieved with two big ermine-covered buttons.

The pigtail set loves its skirt and blouse separates. White batiste is used for a quaint blouse, so right for charming little girls. It is trimmed with lace inserts and fagotting in a wide front panel. Peter Pan collar and short, puffed sleeves.

Just a bit of glitter lends interest to date frocks designed for the college girl. Red rabbits wool jersey is used for a neat little frock made with boat neckline and cap sleeves. Trimmed at one side of the waistline with a large self bow edged and spattered with matching red sequins.

Two shades are better than one, say some fur coat designers. A smart topper of black Persian lamb is cut on flared lines; high closing at the collarless neckline. The lower part of the voluminous push-up sleeves are of gray Persian lamb. When the hands are clasped together, the effect is that of a grey muff.

Not so much silver fox this season as of yore, but what is seen, is usually something extra special. Pearl-platinum silver fox, a light shade of silver overshadowed with soft gray, is used for a handsome cape stole made with horizontally-worked waist-deep cape and long narrow stole panels.

Gaining momentum for Autumn is the white felt hat. White felt is used for a handsome casual, the long-backed swagger brim pleated at one side near the centre front, and faced with gold kid, which is used for the draped crown band.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

Billy Pinkerton, 4, was playing on the lighthouse pier at Port Stanley, Ont. Attempting to step into a boat, he lost his footing and tumbled into the water.

Seeing the child go under . . . his little hands disappearing beneath the surface . . . a woman screamed . . . attracting the attention of Donald Barnes and his brother.

Rushing to the edge, they saw the lad go under for the third time — and vanish! In a split second Donald was in the water. Quickly he swam to the drowning youngster . . . reached down and grabbed him by the arm. Then, working at full speed, he brought the boy to the pier where they were helped out by Donalds' brother. The two boys rushed the blue and speechless little fellow to a nearby house where he soon recovered.

LATTA DEFEATS JUNIORS TO WIN PLAYOFF BERTH

Lefty Weeks Hurls One-Hitter and Team Wins 2-0

Kiwanis Juniors bid a final farewell to organized baseball at the Alemite Field last evening when they bowed to the Latta squad 2-0 in a sudden death game to decide fourth place in the Belleville Senior Baseball League standing and the right to meet Batawa in the semi-finals series of the loop playoffs.

The game was another fine pitchers duel between Bobby Bunton, Juniors and Weeks, Latta southpaw. Weeks pitched a masterful game throughout holding the kids to one hit and striking out five. Bunton was nicked for five safeties, three of them being bunched in the fifth when Latta scored both their runs.

The teams battled scoreless for four chukkers and then came the break. Colden, Latta right fielder first batter up in the fifth smashed out a ringing triple over Bud Green's head. Callaghan struck out and Colden went out on an attempted squeeze play, Carson going to first on the fielder's choice. He stole second and scored on Rogers' single and Chapman poled out the third hit of the innings. Carson later scored on a passed ball after Williams had walked.

Kiwanis threatened in their half of the seventh when Bush and Kelleher got aboard by ah error and hit by pitcher. Bud Green and brother Vern went out, and Huck Reeves strode to the plate. The Latta board of strategy planned to walk the catcher, but perhaps they got a glimpse of Coach St. Louis swinging a couple of bats and decided to pitch to Reeves. Anyway the lad struck out and ended the game.

Igor Gouzenko Identifies 13 Documents

Ottawa, Oct. 4 —(CP)— The Crown will continue in Ontario Supreme Court today to draw from Igor Gouzenko the most vital evidence it has to throw against H. S. Gerson, 41-year-old geological engineer who is accused of conspiring to communicate confidential information for Russia.

Gouzenko, 27-year-old former cipher clerk at the Russian embassy, began yesterday to unfold the story that by now has been told over and over in Canada's various espionage trials and particularly in the report of the royal commission on espionage.

Crown Counsel J. R. Cartwright of Toronto guided him through the story of how he worked in the embassy as a cipher clerk for Lt.-Col. Nicolai Zabotin, former military attache and alleged head of a spy ring said to include Gerson.

While Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland and a 12-man jury listened, Gouzenko identified 13 documents he had taken from the embassy the night of Sept. 5, 1945, when he fled on a mission that was to make him the key figure in Canada's espionage prosecutions.

In only one of the 13 was there a new touch.

It was a draft telegram Zabotin had prepared for transmission to "The Director" at military intelligence headquarters in Moscow. Although undated it was apparently written in 1944.

It contended that the then fisheries minister, now Postmaster General Bertrand had told Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of parliament now appealing a six-year sentence for espionage, that the war would end in September.

It added that "three days before the mutiny, the attempt on the life of Hitler, the same Bertrand told Debouz (Rose) that within a few days there would be in Europe tremendous events which no one suspects."

It was the second time Mr. Bertrand's name has been indirectly-linked with the spy cases. In August he told parliament he had signed in 1936 a recommendation for the granting of naturalization papers to one William Brandis, who turned out to be a Russian agent, but contended that he had been duped as to Brandis' identity by a trusted election campaign worker.

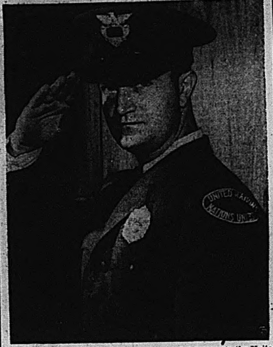
Chinese Dollars Reach All-time Low Price

Shanghai, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Chinese dollars touched an all-time low — 4,700 to $1 U. S.—today in a cataclysmic jump of 600 points, then slumped back to 4,100 to $1. The convulsion was attributed to such unconfirmed rumors as: the government intends to revise the official exhange rate of 3,350 Chinese dollars to $1; the government plans to check black market dealings in United States currency altogether, and that a new Chinese currency may be introduced.

UNIFORM FOR UN'S "ALL-NATIONS" GUARDS



If Russia, England and other nations send delegates to the United Nations Guards in the U.S., there will be an international body of men serving in the same uniform, something unique in history. Pictured above is first showing of the blue-gray gabardine to be worn by the guards. Shoulder patch is in English. Symbol for hat peak and badge is not decided. These uniforms will be worn by the 45 guards who will be the nucleus of the new organization, and later by the newcomers.

Test on Validity Of Bill of Rights Continues

Edmonton, Oct. 4 (CP)—The court test of the validity of the Alberta Social Credit government's Bill of Rights continued today but there was a possibility there may be an indefinite postponement unless the hearing can be completed today.

Attorney-General Lucien Maynard resumed his submission that the bill, enacted at the last session of the legislature with proclamation postponed until the courts decide on its constitutionality, is within the powers of the legislature.

Mr. Maynard contended yesterday that counsel for the Dominion government and the Canadian Bankers' Association were in error when they contended the bill invades fields under the jurisdiction of the Federal government.

Dealing in credit, he told the court, is not banking. Previously in the hearing submissions by counsel for the Dominion government and the Canadian Bankers' Association had contended that the bill is invalid because it exceeds provincial authority.

In reply to this Mr. Maynard said "dealing in credit is in no sense a part of the business of banking," a Federal jurisdiction. He submitted that the Federal government had not occupied the field of legislating as to credit an "therefore the Provincial Act dealing with credit which is inseparably linked with property and civil rights, is validly enacted."

With some of the five judges of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court scheduled to sit in Calgary next week, the hearing if not completed today, will be adjourned indefinitely.

Tobacco Grower Freed of Charge

Brantford, Oct. 4 (CP)— Domikos Balozsi, Hungarian-born tobacco grower is today a free man. He was acquitted late yesterday of a charge of manslaughter laid when he shot and fatally injured his hired man Joseph Warga, on his tobacco farm near Mount Pleasant last June 8.

The jury deliberated two hours before bringing in a verdict of not guilty. Justice Keiller Mackay told jurors he agreed with the verdict and that "no other" was possible.

The shooting occurred when Balozsi mistook his hired man for a thief in the dark and laneway near his farm. Balozsi and his housekeeper testified that as Warga lay wounded in the lane, he recognized his employer and said "it's not your fault."

In reading the verdict Ju Mackay told Balozsi he had ceived the benefit of a reason doubt and added "I hope you alize that the fact that you h had no criminal record since c ing to Canada in 1928 has s you in good stead."

Wallace Hits Back at Baruch On Atom Bomb

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Oct. 4 — (AP)—Grave danger confronts United Nations efforts to set up international atomic controls, Bernard M. Baruch and Henry A. Wallace virtually agreed today.

But they bitterly disputed the cause.

Mr. Wallace, ousted United States commerce secretary, blamed Mr. Baruch. He declared that with nations already launched on "a frantic atomic bomb race," Mr. Baruch has adopted a "stubborn and inflexible" approach to negotiations involving Russia.

Mr. Baruch, American member of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission blamed Mr. Wallace. He asserted the former cabinet officer perpetrated "errors" and caused public confusion in his criticism of the United States control plan.

The 'errors,' Mr. Baruch charged, are "gravely dangerous to the delicate negotiations now under way."

While President Truman put the whole controversy down as a matter between Messrs. Baruch and Wallace, the government actually appeared to be caught between its international negotiations and the domestic controversy which the highly personal charges of the two men seemed certain to arouse.

Mr. Wallace, whom the president removed from the cabinet last month because of his split with State Secretary Byrnes over Russian relations, had the latest word in the row with Mr. Baruch.

In a statement last night, Mr. Wallace declared that atomic energy negotiations in the United Nations have reached as "impasse" on two basic points of disagreement, which he attributed indirectly to Mr. Baruch's "stubbornness." The two points, he said, are:

1. Whether the United States should "continue its production and stockpiling of atomic bombs during the negotiation" of a treaty leading to full international control.

2. Russia's "refusal to agree to an international system of inspection to control atomic energy production."

Value New Egg Contract With U.K. At $80,000,000

Ottawa, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Canada's new egg contract with the United Kingdom is valued by the Agriculture Department at approximately $80,000,000 and offers an assured market at a higher price for every surplus Canadian egg laid from Feb. 1, 1947 to Jan. 31, 1949, the Department announced today.

Details of the new contract, first announced by Agriculture Minister Gardiner at a press conference Sept. 25, were disclosed in a departmental statement.

The contract calls for the special products board to deliver to the United Kingdom Food Ministry a minimum of 7,500 long tons of sugar-dried egg powder and 1,750,000 cases of shell eggs, of which only 600,000 cases are storage eggs, in each of the 12-month periods: Feb. 1, 1947 to Jan. 31, 1948 and Feb. 1, 1948 to Jan. 31, 1949.

Quality of the eggs required to fill each of the 12-month periods of the two-year contract is the same as required by the 1946 contract, but the price obtained will permit an increase of one cent a dozen over the 1946 price to the producer in the spring buying periods (Feb. 1 to Aug. 31) and an increase of two cents a dozen in the fall buying periods, Sept. 1 to Jan. 31.

The Special Products Board will buy eggs of the Canadian government grades A large, A medium and A pullet for its 1947 shipments. Whether grade A pullet eggs will be included in 1948 shipments will be decided by the U. K. Food Ministry before the end of 1947.

The Board will limit its purchase of storage eggs to grades A large and A medium, but grades A, B and C will be accepted for the manufacture of the sugar-dried egg powder to be used by British bakers.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs would seem to be the boys who can take a hint. Training camp gossip had it that both Manager Conn Smythe and Coach Hap Day were considerably put out Wednesday when Leafs failed to get steam up during their St. Catharines Training session. Then Vic Grigg was sent down to Tulsa and Husky Nick Knett came up from the Kingston Camp. Yesterday Day yelled himself hoarse trying to quell his rambunctious charges. Kept busy extinguishing four fist-swinging flareups Happy Day said it was the best drill of the camp to date.

Coach Dit Clapper believes Boston Bruins' plan of starting pre-season warm-ups later than other clubs will pay big dividends. ". . .With a slow start our team will reach its peak along about Christmas time and push to its greatest power early in the New Year. By that time some of the other teams may be letting down a bit and that's where we cash in."

Clapper, speaking at his Hershey Training Camp, said he believes the Brains' famed Kitchener line of Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart is in for its greatest season. He said it looked "better— much better—than last year and that's really saying something."

A 20-year-old Cedar Spring, Ont., player caught the eye of Coach Johnny Gottselig at Chicago Black Hawks' Regina Camp yesterday. The youth, Jack Jackson, surprised Chicago mentods by his display of form in the first game of an exhibition series. Now he is in the running for the extra defence position. He's up from Kansas City Pla-Mors.

Montreal Canadiens loaned their opposition two forward lines and a pair of defencemen last night at Shawinigan Falls —and then defeated them 5-4 in an exhibition tilt. Billy Reay scored twice for the opponents—Shawinigan Cataracts of the Quebec Senior League.

Schools Divide Soccer Opener In 2-all Draw

The Belleville Public Schools Soccer League got off to a flying start Wednesday afternoon at King George School with Prince of Wales School and King George sharing the honor of contesting the opening game. The game had originally been scheduled for Monday but was postponed because of a teachers' meeting being held at the same time. Both teams were very evenly matched which reflects a great deal of credit on the teachers in charge of the teams since this league is operated on a strictly sportsmanlike basis with teams of approximate strength being fielded for each game.

This means that the larger schools do not use their bigger boys when playing against another school which has no Grade 8. and the responsibility of fielding evenly matched teams rests with the teachers in charge of the teams involved. The basic reason for organizing this league, along with the recognized need for more supervised sports for younger boys, is to try and develop a true spirit of good sportsmanship which only too often is noticeably lacking on the playing fields today, particularly among mature men and women. It is further hoped to also develop the idea of "playing the game for the game's sake" among our boys and to get away from the old-fashioned idea of playing to win at all costs.

The opening game was a standout success from the above point of view and it is notable that only two penalty-kicks and five free-kicks were awarded during the entire game for various infractions of the rules, and that no players were banished for rough play. Both teams played hard, clean football with the play evenly divided as the score would indicate. Each team scored once in the first half and once in the last half and each team scored one of their goals from a penalty kick and one from passing plays in front of the goals. All in all it was a splendid game to watch and the boys played a very good brand of football, especially, considering the fact that the grass on the playing field was rather long in places making it difficult to control the ball at times.

The teams:

King George School —Lonnie Reilly, Bob Adamson, Bert Gill, Dover Mark, Francis Scott, Bob Freeman, Jack Thompson, Lynn Wilson John Hinchey, Art Kellar, Ted Stevens, Ray Coulter, Frank Sullivan, Gary Ward, B. Farmer, Max Latchford, Bill Moreau, Bill Miller, Ted Webber, Ted Soule, Bobby Dobbs, Bill Phillip.

Prince of Wales School—Ronnie Maxwell, Donald Burr, Lewis Kline, Gilbert Waite, George Bonyard, Colon Burnham, Edward Schamerhorn, Ernest Brooks, Donald Wynne, Richard Boshall, Garth Joslin, Robert Stoliker, Reuben Kline.

Referee—Mr. Bud Johnston; Timekeeper and Scorer—Mr. M. Hackett.

Officials Mum As Williams Trade Rumors Run Wild

By BILL KING

Boston, Oct. 4 (AP)—The disposal of a report that Boston Red Sox have placed home run slugger Ted Williams on baseball's auction block probably will be owner Tom Yawkey's first order of business tonight when he reaches St. Louis, site of the world series opening with the Cardinals.

Yawkey and Manager Joe Cronin, travelling on the Cardinals' special train from Brooklyn could not be reached last night for comment on Boston record columnist Dave Egan's story that Williams soon would be sold to New York Yankees or Detroit Tigers, American League clubs.

Egan wrote that the Yankees offered outfielder Joe DiMaggio, third baseman Bill Johnson and catcher Aaron Robinson for the splendid splinter and that the Tigers countered with southpaw pitcher Hal Newhouser, and outfielder Dick Wakefield.

That newspaper, adorned with bold, black headlines, was on the streets a short time before the Red Sox, headed by General Manager Eddie Collins, boarded their world series special train.

"I don't know anything about any trade involving Williams," Collins said after reading the story.

Detroit Manager Steve O'Neill, another passenger on the Red Sox special, agreed he would like to have Williams on his club.

"I don't know anything about such a deal but I am certain that the Detroit club will not trade Newhouser, not even for Williams," O'Neill said.

21,000 GERMANS TO BE RETURNED BY RUSSIANS

Berlin, Oct. 4 — (AP) — The Soviet military government announced today that the Russians were returning to Germany 21,000 Germans, including women and children, who "for various reasons" were interned in the Soviet Union during the war. The announcement said that more than 3,000 of these already had been returned to their homes in Thueringen, where they were "put to work." There was no elaboration on the kind of work.

Korean Police, Civilians Killed in Taiku

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 4—(AP) — The United States Army announced today between 38 and 50 Korean police and an undetermined number of civilians were killed yesterday in the city of Taiku, southeast Korea, during fighting that followed what Korean sources said was a Communist demonstration. The military government said fighting broke out after the crowd attacked a police station and obtained guns.

Fatal Outbreaks in Bombay

Bombay, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Three persons were killed and 19 wounded in outbreaks of communal violence in Bombay during the 24 hours ending at midnight, an official announcement said today. Most casualties resulted from isolated stabbings. An Indian newspaperman was injured when shot from ambush in a side Street.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

Brooklyn, Oct. 4. (AP)—Brooklyn will play at Ebbets Field tomorrow night—but it will be the Brooklyn College Football team, not the celebrated Bums. . .They just didn't have it—at least, not enough of it—in the final test that meant the difference between $4,000 or more World Series dough and the second-place club's much smaller cut. . . Maybe the first indication came when Murry Dickson tripled in the second inning to put the Cards ahead: Just then the P.A. System announced —"Important call for Mr. Reise". And someone in the press box wisecracked—"They want him in centre field" . . . From the second inning until the ninth, Dickson didn't allow a hit and only one Dodger managed to drive the ball out of the infield. The ninth was different, but as Stretch Schultz missed that last strike, a harsh-voiced fan had the last word: "Oh, you Bum." . . . . yes, they really do say it.

Quote, Unquote . . . . .

Eddie Dyer, the Cards' genial manager, before the game: "I wouldn't have missed this season for anything. It presented more challenges than anything I ever have encountered. If it hadn't been for those Mexican boys and some injuries, we might have won as easily as the Red Sox. I hope I'm not sounding egotistical when I say I liked it better this way."

Golf News

Last week a strong team of 21 golfers returned the visit to the Cataraqui Club of Kingston. The scores were quite high due to the prevailing winds. After a very closely fought match Kingston won out by a five point margin, 34 points to 29 for the Quinte Club. A most enjoyable game was had by all and the affair will now be an annual one between the Cataraqui Club of Kingston, and the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

In the finals of the Club Handicap Tournament, Tommy Carruthers beat C. W. Jackson. yesterday, (Wednesday), 4 up. These two fine players had previously played a tie round. However, Tommy Carruthers was in fine form yesterday and showed further reason for his being the best golfer in this section of Ontario. Tommy has been the low gross winner of every match tournament played in this district this year. In addition to being Club Handicap winner he also holds the Club Championship for the year 1946.

The Grinning Soldier coming down the gangplank—that's Wilson J. Smith, Jr., from your home town.

Ought to have a piece in the paper about him, the city editor decides.

But, first check the files and get young Smith's background. It may add something to the story.

The envelop labeled SMITH, WILSON J., filed away in the library of clippings which your newspaper refers to as its morgue, contains an account of the Smith, Sr.'s marriage, exactly twenty-five years ago today.

What an anniversary present for the Smiths! Their son home after three years. Makes quite a piece for the paper!

Yesterday's news is stored away in your newspaper's library to give depth to the news of tomorrow. Its files are the composite memory of your paper, in which the present is seen unwinding out of the past, and the future growing out of the present.

Man's memory is fallible . . . but not the memory of your newspaper. Perhaps that's why you can depend on it as you do—it remembers so many things that an individual might forget.

Cards Counting on Two Wins Over Dodgers to Send Them Into World Series Full of Confidence

Believe They Have Enough Lefthanded Pitching to Stop Red Sox

By JACK HAND

En route to St. Louis, Oct. 4—(AP)—Eddie Dyer's St. Louis Cardinals are counting on the momentum of two play-off victories over the Brooklyn Dodgers to send them winging into the world series with the Boston Red Sox Sunday as very healthy 7 to 20 underdogs.

Instead of a bedraggled flock of Red Birds, drooping after a 156-game schedule that included the first tie in major league history, the revived St. Louis National League champs remain completely unawed by the gentlemen from Boston.

Too much occupied by their own struggle with Brooklyn to pay much attention to the Sox, the Cardinals believe they have the lefthanded pitching — and in recent days the hitting too— to give Joe Cronin plenty of headaches.

They know Boston must have had plenty of power to flatten all American League opposition, particularly after the all-star game bout, but they do think they are at a keener competitive edge than a club that has done little more than wait since clinching the pennant, Sept. 13.

Cardinal fans do not have much data on clubs that ride home way out in front for only three of the nine flag winners since 1926 have done it the easy way and two of them did cop the series. The two teams that went down to the final day before settling the issue, Frankie Frisch's 1934 gas house gang and Billy Southworth's 1942 speedy crew both won the world championship.

Never Lost a Series

Boston, without any kind of a title at Fenway Park since 1918, is little concerned with the early clinching argument. They never have lost a series and they remember plenty of early Yankee parades that never bothered their post-season form.

With the chips down in a short series, the Cardinals proved against Brooklyn they can play like the team most of the experts picked last spring to breeze to the pennant. Terry Moore still favors his left knee and Marty Marion's back ailment still bothers his fielding but the smell of that $4,000 winning cut still retains its healing quality.

Brooklyn was inclined to pass off Howie Pollet's aching left side as a "come on" designed to throw them off guard. Actually it was nothing of the kind. Dyer was uncertain about pitching him Tuesday in the 4-2 opener until as late as 10 minutes before game time. His condition is one of the very important question marks in all series conjectures.

Pollet Likely Opener

If Pollet feels that his strained side won't bother his control, he will be the opening game pitcher. If there is any doubt about the matter, Dyer will go with Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, one of the best if not the best "money" pitchers in the game. He is certain to start a lefthander despite Murry Dickson's early success yesterday.

The Cards figure they probably will face Tex Hughson in the first game, a welcome relief from lefthanders as tough as he may turn out to be. Dickson, a converted reliefer who never got a starting chance until June 9 and was passed up in the final Dodger series, showed the Brooks something in the final -4 victory. From the first inning when Brooklyn made two hits count for an early run, until the ninth when they drove him to cover in a rousing three-run uprising, Dickson held the home club without a smell of a hit, allowing only one ball to be hit to the outfield.

ROYALS BOUNCE INTO GAME LEAD OF TITLE SERIES

Defeat Louisville Colonels 5-3 on Strength of Jackie Robinson's Hitting

Montreal, Oct. 4—(CP)—Montreal's rollicking Royals bounced into the lead in the Little World Series baseball classic last night when they pounded out a dozen hits to down Louisville Colonels 5-3 in the fifth game of the best-of-seven series. Royals now lead the series 3-2 and will meet the Colonels tonight in the 6th game.

Jackie Robinson, Royals' second sacker, produced the game-winning run in the seventh inning last night when he blasted out a triple and scored when Lew Riggs clouted one of Jim Wilson's offerings for a timely double.

With two men away in the eighth, Robinson beat out a bunt down the third base line and sent Al Campanis home.

Southpaw Steve Nagy, of the Royals and Jim Wilson, the starting hurlers, failed to see the game through. Little Chet Kehn took over for Royals in the eighth after Naby issued a free pass to the first man up. Wilson was also wild, walking five men, and was replaced in the top half of the eighth by Harry Kimberlin.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis is going to take on a managing job—more along humanitarian lines than anything else. He said yesterday he intends to take over the job of managing his own ring manager, John Roxborough, released from prison after two years for engaging in a gambling conspiracy, and help him get back into the swing of things.

Norfolk, Va., Police Chief John Fulton Woods, 48, onetime professional baseball player with Boston Red Sox, was killed instantly in an automobile accident today when his car collided with a wrecking truck pulling another car from a ditch.

A team of National League players trounced an American League team 6-0, last night in Kansas City, their barnstorming baseball tour to take a lead in the series. Johnny Vandermeer held the American Leaguers to one hit in three innings he pitched. The clubs have 24 games to play yet in the barnstorming series.

New Westminster Lacrosse Team Has Given Dull Performance in East

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Unless New Westminster Salmonbellies lift themselves off the cushion with a decided jerk tonight they'll watch St. Catharines Athletics gallop to the Dominion lacrosse title in three straight games and square things for the humiliating drubbing they absorbed the same way from Vancouver Burrards a year ago.

There's only one thing for sure in the current series which has seen the Saints drub Salmonbellies 11-10 and 18-9 — and that is the Westerners can't look any worse than they did Wednesday.

Their dull performance was disappointing to about 7,700 fans — 1,000 more than witnessed the first fray — and unless the Niagara Peninsula turns out en masse tonight with hopes of seeing the A's win the Mann Cup for the fifth time, the crowd - count will be down.

Only once during the contest did Salmonbellies look impressive and that was when they spread out in a tight zone defence while Ed Downey was serving a major penalty. Other than that they gave little protection to goalie Bill Scuby who pulled up with a lame back — probably from stopping so often to retrieve the ball from his cage.

Only Odd Gripe

There's only the odd gripe about officiating in the series and the Westerners seem to have cause for annoyance over Downey's five minute penalty — the usual sentence for decapitation in this man's game.

When the A's starry Jack (Wandy) McMahon was given a free shot, Downey chopped at him from behind — Wandy outdid Tami Mauriello as he hit the deck but jumped up and laughed when Referee Max Peart waved Downey to the cooler.

Some Western enthusiasts will tell you that if their champions really catch fire they can still be the first invading team to win the Dominion boxla title in the east. They figure it must be a team slump when even their ace scorer — Ike Hilderbrand—has been held to a single goal in two contests.

But you could name your own odds on St. Catharines not winning the title now they're only 1 game away and you could also get rich quick if you sank your roll on the 'Bellies coming through with 3 straight victories —if they happened to perform that little miracle.

Other than Scuby's creaky spine the only other casualty Wednesday was Bill (Ham) Nelson of the Athletics who severely twisted an ankle. Physicians announced there was no bone fracture but Nelson will take it easy until the whistle calls the teams to action tonight.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Bob Feller's pitching performance of the 1946 season stands out in many respects as the most brilliant in the history of major league baseball. The sensational young fireball hurler, did a far better job than mere figures appear to indicate.

• • •

On the last day of the season, Feller established a new high record for strikeouts, a record previously held by the great Rube Waddell who was one of Connie Mack's great pitchers in the early days of the American League.

• • •

But Fellers achievement in winning 26 games for a team which was almost hopelessly impotent at bat, was in many respects greater than the new strikeout record. Along with the 26 victories went 15 losses to establish Feller as one of the most hard-working pitchers in the history of the game.

There is no point in speculating on what might have been. But when comparison is made of Feller's talents with those of Newhouser of Detroit and Hughson and Ferriss of Boston, the question may be properly raised of the number of games he probably would have won had he had the power of the Red Sox or the Tigers behind him.

• • •

Manager Bill Veeck, new boss of the Cleveland Indians intends to add some batting power to the Tribe line-up before the 1947 season opens. If Veeck succeeds in getting a couple of hitters who can belt in runs occasionally Feller should have an even more successful season next year.

• • •

Despite other reports to the contrary, the third game between Bill Easton's Batawa Shoemen and the Niagara Falls Terminals will be played in Port Hope on Saturday at three of the clock. This is the word from Convener Ernie Summers, a gent who should know what he is talking about. "Smoky" Smith will take on the task of turning back the Terminals in the playoff tilt while no word has been received here as to who will essay the chucking role for the Fallsmen.

• • •

The game should be another classic—a repetition of the two smart brawls that featured the double-header between these squads last Saturday. The Falls gang are a determined crew, appear to be well-balanced and will take a lot of beating. However the mental hazards are all-even on neutral grounds and it should be a battle of the breaks. The teams are evenly matched, and whoever wins will know they have been in a ball game after the final out is made.

• • •

"Mr. Morton Cooper, the celebrated discard for whom the paths of glory led but to the Braves," chirped Waldo, the wizzard copy boy this ayem, "let it be known with his last Sabbath shutout of Brooklyn, that he is still St. Louis' most valuable pitcher."

• • •

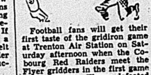
Kiwanis Juniors passed out of the baseball picture yesterday afternoon when the Latta squad defeated them 2-0 in the sudden-death playoff game to decide fourth slot in the final standing of the Belleville Senior Baseball League and the right to meet Batawa in the loop semi-finals series.

• • •

"Lefty" Weeks pitched a grand game holding the St. Louis kids to one measly hit, striking out five. Bunton on the slab for the losers was nicked for five clouts and whiffed nine, five of them in succession. The game was a hurlers' battle all through with the Latta southpaw getting the nod when his mates pounded out two hits in the fourth to score the only two tallies of the game.

• • •

Latta is in, but their playoff troubles are just starting. They tangle with the powerful Batawa squad in the semi-finals and that series should be a "must-see". And they have OBA playdowns in the offing too but with what team, is not known as yet.



Football fans will get their first taste of the gridiron game at Trenton Air Station on Saturday afternoon when the Cobourg Red Raiders meet the Flyer gridders in the first game of the season. Flyers defeated the Albert College seniors 5-0 in a practice game on the school gridiron on Wednesday afternoon and reports from the game have it that the air laddies field what might prove to be a powerful squad. They have plenty of weight and ability and Saturday should prove a real test. Eddie Schrieder has been named one of the game officials.

• • •

"Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the children shout,
But there ain't no joy in Flatbush
For dem Dodgers was put out."

• • •

Harlem was the Great White Way compared to Flatbush last night after the terrible truth had rammed home that "Dem Bums" were pennantless. Sobs of sorrow were wrung from the chests of the faithful as the hated Redbirds from St. Loo who had invaded their sacred Ebbets Field wrought disaster on the "Lip" and their beloved Bums.

• • •

They lifted sodden eyes from foam-topped beakers of suds in the taverns. Salty tears dripped down grief-stricken faces and dropped into empty schupers. On street corners they gathered in little knots, anger mingling with grief as they played the game over and over. Flags drooped on staffs in a listless manner. There was a hush over Brooklyn. From the ashes of Hiroshima rose no greater cry of pain and suffering than did from the loyal faithful of the Durocher clan. People walked with bowed heads. No greater catastrophe or indignity had been suffered since Bill Terry of the Giants made the now famous query years ago "Is Brooklyn still in the league?"

A horesemeat market at 2326 Russel Avenue, Detroit, is doing a land-office business according to an American friend of ours. The manager sold 30 carcasses of nags during the past week. Horseburgers and horse steaks sold at 23 cents a pound. No wonder those two racehorses bolted and ran the other day when they overheard the trainer say they were to be entered in a stake.

• • •

Tonight sees the "Battle of the Villains" at the Hume Arena. Ex Interest in the main bout between those two bad men of the ring "Krippler" Davis and "Scowl" Henning is almost at fever heat. Manager Gerow is prepared for any emergency and fully expects that fun, feathers and feelings will go over the board. Then too, there is our old pal the Human Skyscraper "Wady" Talun, and Bobby Nelson, Olaf Olsen, the Swedish gent and Terry McGuinness. Better come early and avoid the rush.

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Quarterbacks, the little men whom coach Ted Morris seems to draw from a hat to direct his Dominion champion Toronto Argonauts, just as mysteriously become the little men who weren't there when it comes to taking the football field.

"I make them, they take them or they break them," was Ted's comment on the situation that has seen the Grey Cup holders run through five traffic-directors already with the season not yet half over.

The parade started with Fred Doty, Billy Myers and Tom Waldon, the latter more at home on the half-line, all three of whom were claimed by the University of Toronto's intercollegiate league team. Ted broke them into the quarterbacking job last season and their performances in opening games for Argos this year showed the quality of his workmanship.

Incidentally, the 135-pound Myers, one of the smallest players ever to last in big-time football, was rejected two seasons running by Varsity as physically unfit because he wore glasses. Morris introduced him to contact lenses, so Toronto declared him eligible.

With these three gone, Ted called on two replacements but within minutes after last week's Big Four game against Ottawa Rough Riders both were finished. Al Jacobs of last year's Varsity team came up with a broken hand a day before game-time and Chuck Camelleri, a Morris "find" from high school ranks, was injured almost on the opening play.

So Morris, who through all this has kept his Argos unbeaten, moved end Ron Smylie to the signal-calling job and "acquired" 20-year-old Andy Martin from St. Lambert Combines of the Quebec Rugby Union.

"I'm going to make that boy a quarterback and I'm going to keep him from getting hurt if I have to run interference for him myself," he says.

This Happy Breed

It happened in the sixth at old Woodbine on "getaway" day of the Thorncliffe race meet.

Four horses outdistanced the field in the 3,000-added Fred S. Livingson Handicap and the stewards called for photos to decide first place between Sweepnito and Old Faithful and third place between Top Dollar and Magpie.

Old Faithful, they decided, had won but its jockey had fouled Top Dollar so they placed them in this order: Sweepnito, Tod Dollar, Old Faithful, Magpie.

That was fine, except that Magpie's owner, Gord McMacken, said the picture clearly showed his horse had beaten Top Dollar for third so, after the disqualification, he should get the $600 second place money. One day and another look at the picture later, the stewards agreed and announced the new order of placing: — Sweepnito, Magpie, Top Dollar, Old Faithful.

Of course, the bettors had already been paid off on the original order of finish so there was nothing they could do about those unhappy souls who now had the knowledge that their Magpie ran second but empty pockets to show for it.

The punters, a hardier breed than the thoroughbreds they bet on, showed their displeasure with the whole business by flocking out to the Dufferin track opening four days later.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When playing with Goit, the talkative skoit, I harbor the funniest notion. Who fuels that goil sufficient to oil her tongue for perpetual motion?

When Gertie is my partner, she is always doing me favors. She does all the talking and thus saves my breath. She volunteers to use my system. She thus has something on which to blame her errors.

In a deal, I opened with one spade when she had this hand:

♠9 4 2
♥K 8 4 3
♦Q 7 2
♣A 6 4

Her first response was one no-trump. This was correct. She had no takeout. Nor had she adequate support for a spade assist. Three high cards are three no-trump tricks; enough for her bid.

Responder is assumed to have two tricks before bidding. A suit responsive shows three tricks with two high cards among them. The third trick entitles responder to one raise in number in a suit.

My next bid was two hearts, showing six of the seven tricks I had. She passed and the bidding ended there. It turned out, of course, that we had enough for a game in hearts between us.

Without shifting gears from one subject to the next, she told our opponents why she passed. Mainly she put over the idea that she would have bid again under another system.

Not once did she consider asking my version. It is her custom to accentuate her negative, eliminate my positive, and make a mess of mister in between. Nor does she run down.

The one no-trump reply was not a raise in number. The hand still had a trick that a suit raise could later consume. And here is the adequate support for my second suit.

Over my two hearts, a raise to three hearts would have used the third suit trick there. I could have gone to four with my seventh.

To a babbling tongue you must nod assent in a unilateral argument.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 4 —(AP)— For some years now, Hollywood and the general public have had the impression Paulette Goddard is a sort of glamorous J. P. Morgan, a girl with a sharp eye for collecting and retaining money. Well, you can forget it.

"I don't know where people get the idea I'm a shrewd business woman," she told me between scenes of "Unconquered." "I hate responsibility. Honestly, I can't tell you how much money I've got or what banks it's in."

She said when she married Burgess Meredith, he was shocked at such a state of affairs and immediately threw her into consultation with a lawyer. The lawyer wanted her to list all her assets, but she wouldn't be bothered with such nonsense. She even sold her beach house to avoid financial entanglements.

"Don't you have any investments?"

"Not a single one. Oh wait — that's right, I do own a piece of beach land above Malibu. It cost me $50,000 and recently I turned down an offer to sell for $80,000."

Among Paulette's other worldly goods is one of the most expensive jewelry collections in Hollywood, valued at close to $250,000. And she didn't buy any of it.

"I came by it honestly," she quickly added. "You know, I've been married three times."

Cheques evoke nothing but disdain from Paulette. Her secretary prepares them and the actress signs without reading them, although she may be more careful after this story appears.

"You know," she said, "I ran across a cheque for two weeks' salary in a black suit the other day. I don't know how it got there."

Paulette is supposed to wangle a hard bargain with the studios, but this is just another myth, she said. Her Paramount contract, one of the most envied in Hollywood, was none of her doing, or so she claimed.

"I simply told a certain agent that if he would arrange a certain type of contract, I would sign him as my agent," she said. "He got it. I haven't been in the front office in three years."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking to school with Shorty Judge, going kind of slow on account of doing as much stopping as we did walking, and I said, Hay, what time is it, we're going to be late.

Hay, I tell you what let's do, Shorty said. Let's dog trot all a ways to school the way the Indians used to run all day through the forrests without getting tired, he said, and I said, Sure, G, then we'll be sure to be erly and we'll be having fun besides.

And we began to run dog trot, and after about 2 blocks our legs started to go slower on account of our breething going faster, and I said, How the heck did the Indians do this all day without getting tired? It must of been easier in a forrest, I said.

And it must of been easier because they weren't running to school, Shorty said.

And we didn't stop running till we got all a ways to school, and there wasn't hardly any kids there yet, proving we were earlier than we wanted to be, and I said, This is a heck of a note, we'll catch a cold standing around all damp and wet from running. Maybe we better keep an excercizing slow so we'll dry off gradual, I said.

Okay, yet's see if we can walk backwerds around the block without bumping into anything, Shorty said. You're only allowed to look around once every 30 steps to see where you're going, that's the rule, he said.

The result being we didn't bump into anything except people, taking us still longer on account of having to apologize and explain what we were doing, and by the time we got around to skool again the last bell was just ringing.

Proving we were late.

LIBEL SUIT FOR MILLION DOLLARS

Los Angeles, Oct. 4 — (AP)— Actress Myrna Loy filed a $1,000,000 libel suit Thursday against the Hollywood Reporter, and the editor, W. R. Wilkerson. She alleged the film trade paper last Monday published a "false and malicious" political story concerning her.

Immediate Application For Family Allowances Urged by Department

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (CP)—Persons with children under 16 years who now are not receiving family allowances should make immediate application to meet income tax revisions effective Jan. 1, the Health Department said today.

Under income tax revision made in the budget last June and effective with the 1947 tax it is assumed that all taxpayers with children under 16 receive the allowances and the exemption for each child is fixed at $100.

Previously, taxpayers who were in higher tax brackets and whose allowances would have been entirely offset by tax could either collect the allowances and repay them or not take allowances. Under the existing arrangement small families with incomes of not more than $3,200 receive no benefit from children's allowances.

The department said in today's statement that a number of families receiving less than $3,200 had not taken the benefits because the amount they retained would be negligible.

"This will no longer be the case," the department said. "Beginning in 1947 the taxpayer will be allowed a straight $100 exemption from taxable income for each child under 16 years of age and may also receive the full family allowance, if registration is made before January."

Those affected by the change were urged to obtain forms from a post office and make immediate application.

Payment of allowances starts one month after registration is made and payments are not retroactive.

AT THE BELLE — Anna Neagle, Dean Jagger and Rex Harrison are co-starred in the exciting love story, "A Yank in London," 20th. Century-Fox hit, closing at the Belle tonight. The action-packed fun film "Double Exposure," starring Chester Morris and Nancy Kelly is the companion feature.

FOIL SAFE-CRACKING ATTEMPT

Galt, Oct. 4 (CP)—Timely arrival of a police patrol failed a safe-cracking attempt at the Sturtevant Company plant early today but the would-be thieves eluded police by fleeing into a nearby swamp under cover of darkness.

Police are searching for a taxi cab stolen a short time later — apparently by the same men.

Y NATIONAL COUNCIL MEETS

Niagara Falls, Oct. 4 (CP) — Almost 200 delegates are expected Sunday for the three-day 33rd annual meeting of the National Council of Canadian Y.M.C.A.'s. A highlight of the meeting will be inauguration of the World Youth Fund for Restoration and Advance. Canada's share in the fund's $8,000,000 objective is $400,000.

CHAPTER 20

"It always seems as if when Avery has any plan, that's just the time when my plans for them are all made."

"Oh, that's true, Isabel. I remember that same feeling with my own husband."

"He died when Dennis was quite young?"

"Seventeen. Then we had only each other."

"When Avery goes he may be gone for some time. Of course it isn't like regular duty — not battle fronts. Colonel Chapelle is a doctor, you know—it's inspection, really. Then—if it was July—I've registered them in a school in Woodside, you know."

"We must all try to do what is wise for them, to keep them happy, not feeling any sense of separation or bitterness," Mary Hardisty said in her quiet way.

"They liked the little place at Pebble Beach," Isabel said forlornly. Tears were suddenly in her eyes, and her throat was thick. "I want to do what's best for them."

"Of course you do." A fine frown was between the older woman's eyes. "Are you sure," she asked, spaces between her words, "are you sure that you wanted to leave Dennis, Isabel?"

"Not now," Isabel answered with difficulty. "Now I am not sure."

"But you did feel sure?"

"Oh yes."

"And you did love your husband—love Avery?"

"Oh yes. And I do. But it's all so mixed up. It isn't that I don't love Avery. It's just that—that I don't seem to have my feet on the ground—there's nothing to be done about it. Only, it's come to me, just of late, that you can't—"

She stopped short.

"You can't end a marriage with divorce," Isabel said, beginning again in a very low voice, not looking at her companion. "It's deep in you, part of you. And no matter what you gain by another marriage, the fundamental things remain, don't they? I mean that a man is your a part of him as well as yourself."

"I suppose so," the other woman said slowly, as she paused.

"Those are the things you ought to weigh against making any change, and those are the things you don't," Isabel said with a mirthless smile. "When I saw Dennis again I knew—oh, I don't mean in the movie sense—'This is the man I truly love,'—that sort of thing. I mean that the—the value of marriage came to me suddenly, that it's just what people make it. That if we had stayed together there would be something between Dennis and me now that would be valuable, to us and to the girls. Perhaps—I don't know."

"And to society," Mary Hardisty said quietly. Isabel gave her a look of surprise, weary acquiescence.

"Well, yes, I suppose so," she admitted. "But you don't see those things until you're older, until you've made some mistakes and learned something," she protested.

"Perhaps that is why there have always been rules for permanence in marriage, in all the old religions," the older woman said. "Perhaps it was the ultimate happiness—the rightness of woman's position—that they were protecting, after all."

"Whatever I do now," Isabel said, with trembling lips," it hurts someone."

"I don't think you can do anything now, Isabel," the older voice said.

"No, not now."

"Except as I was saying, keep the children happy—keep them from suspecting anything wrong."

Isabel suddenly turned her face away and was weeping. Mrs. Hardisty watched her with troubled eyes.

"And wait for time—time does much for us all, time changes everything—don't cry so, Isabel," she presently said.

"Time will only take my children away from me," Isabel said thickly. She took out her handkerchief, wiped her eyes and blew her nose, and getting to her face all the loveliler for a to the house. "They are so dear to me now, I need them so now," she said.

Mrs. Hardisty was walking beside her.

"I think there is nothing to do now," she said. "We must feel our way."

Suddenly Isabel turned upon her a face all the lovlier for a rain of tears, and her old smile. If the older woman felt a sudden thrill of love and admiration, a sudden rebirth of the affection she had once known for Dennis's wife, she gave no sign of it.

"We can do the dishes now," said Isabel. "Ever since lunch they've been worrying me."

"No, my dear, that's not necessary. I'll have plenty of time—"

"Now is the acceptable time," said Isabel, in the kitchen, tying a big apron about her. They had done this together before, when Hing had been away for a day or a holiday; they quite-simply began the attack on the lunch dishes.

"I remember this plate," said Isabel, drying it.

"I've had that since I was married."

"You have some help here, Gran?"

"Oh yes. Hing helped with the move and then went down to Los Angeles—San Diego, I believe it was. His son is drafted, and to be sent overseas."

"Little Thomas old enough to be drafted!"

"Yes, little Thomas is eighteen."

"Hing will come back?"

"I believe he and his wife want to go to some hotel together, he as cook and she as upstairs woman. But a nephew is coming to us next week, a boy of sixteen."

"They always have nephews."

"Hing helped me with all the packing and segregating in the Laguna Street house, before Dennis came. Then Dennis helped, of course. I stored two barrels of china and silver for the girls—and still had a rummage sale left!"

"But you'd been there—?"

"Almost forty years. And Dennis' grandmother thirty years before that."

Isabel felt she couldn't stand this cautious surface approach any longer.

"Dennis talked to you about me when he first came home?" she asked, with scarlet cheeks.

"Yes. I was glad he could talk."

"He—but naturally he would. He blamed me."

"He never said so, Isabel. But he felt—he felt it deeply."

"I didn't know." Isabel turned from the dresser, where she had been ranging the blue cups and plates. "I knew he was busy—out there."

"Oh yes, he was completely absorbed."

"It wasn't like—like throwing a man down," Isabel said. "I never thought of that. I wrote him and asked him." She spread out her hands in a little gesture of self-defense.

"Yes, I know you did. He said so."

"I suppose he thought he could only answer one thing."

"Is there any other answer?" Mrs. Hardisty said, with her straightforward smile.

"Well, no, I suppose not." Isabel's face reddened.

"He would feel he couldn't hold you."

"If he had tried to—it might have brought me to my senses," Isabel muttered, sitting down at the table in the now orderly kitchen and staring ahead of her with a vague frown.

"You mean you were carried away?"

"Well, yes. Nothing like that had ever happened to me."

"I was afraid it was that," Mary Hardisty said. "I knew it must be."

"Not—not that Avery isn't all I thought he was—not in any criticism of Avery," Isabel said quickly. "But I didn't see the—the ramifications."

"We never do, Isabel," the other woman said with a sigh. "I've often thought of that. A young couple look for a house in Menlo—in Berkeley—in Ross Valley," she said. "It seems to make no difference which, they take the one whose fireplace or view they like. And perhaps the neighbors, friendships, schools of the family are decided right then, with all their ramifications that nobody can foresee."

She hung damp towels neatly on the wooden spokes of a rack.

"Perhaps that's the place where the baby is going to catch typhold and die," Isabel said, struck.

"Or perhaps it's the next-door neighbor who's going to give the husband his first business chance."

"But we can control things," Isabel said honestly. "We can choose." She got to her feet. "I want to go before the children wake up," she said. And then suddenly, "She's very attractive."

"Madge? Yes, in that nice frank English way, she is." Mrs. Hardisty lifted the mink coat, held it open. "Beautiful coat, Isabel," she said.

"Yes. I got it in New York last year. It was really cold down our way this morning."

"Here, too. And it's clouding over now." Mrs. Hardisty touched the fur with a firm, square old hand. "Lovely," she said.

The soft rich folds were wrapped about Isabel; her own beautiful hands were set off by the full sleeve and the narrow cuff. She pulled on her loose driving gloves.

"A woman like Madge would have—tremendous family pressure behind her, I suppose?" she ventured.

"I don't think so. They seem an independent and not very affectionate family. They've been through some demoralizing times. She speaks a good deal of her husband's sister. No, I think it's something inside Madge herself that gives one that effect of—of reliability, of trustworthiness."

"I felt it."

"Under all the changing and general upset of these times," the older woman said, "each one of us has to solve his own problems. Each one has to feel that there are things he may and may not do. You can only stick to the laws," she added, as Isabel did not speak. "And, if you make a mistake, try to start all over again. They seem dull, they are dull, but they are safe."

"Easier said than done," Isabell said ruefully.

"Don't be too quick to decide that this second marriage of yours is a mistake, my dear," the other woman said kindly. "Every marriage had to be worked out—every marriage is a separate problem."

"No, no, I'm not calling it a mistake, as a marriage!" Isabel defended herself eagerly. "It's only that it has complicated so many other things that ought to be perfectly natural and simple. I so want the girls to be happy, and Dennis to be happy, and I seem to have made it so difficult!"

"I think Dennis is very happy," his mother said slowly. "He has been planning for the children's coming as if he were a boy with school friends coming to stay. I think the war has done that to a lot of really big men, given them a longing for simple things—gardens and children and peace. He works terribly hard, comes home completely exhausted, but after supper, if we've a fire, and he has his books, or if it's moonlight, and he goes for a walk, he'll sleep eight hours like a child."

"And I suppose she goes walking with him?"

"Madge? Yes, sometimes she does. She tells me that his friendship had brought her back to sanity—to normality, so perhaps they've helped each other. She doesn't make any secret of her feeling for him," Mary Hardisty said mildly, "but I don't think Dennis can feel anything in that way again, not for a while, anyway. He likes her. And her being here is company for me, and a solution as to the children's schooling, for a few years anwyway."

They walked through the house to the front porch and looked down the slopes of the green hills to the blue silky waters of the bay. The clear day had clouded over; a bank of fog was crawling slowly through the Gate. A cloud had gone over the sun, and the birds were still. A sharply repeated whistle from the shipyards sounded faintly through the spring hush that had fallen on the meadows and the hills and the spreading oaks.

"You've always been a good friend to me, I appreciate it," Isabel said suddenly.

"I always will be that," Mary Hardisty answered. There were tears in the eyes of both as they kissed each other.

Then Isabel got into her car and drove away. Down the rough earth road to the turn, where the smooth asphalt began. Around curves that were a marvel of engineering ingenuity and skill; up the approach to the bridge and into the first shifting transparent curtains of the softly blowing fog; through the city again, and out into the summer confidence and warmth of the Peninsula.

And so home, to a big orderly house filled with old-fashioned stately comfort; majolica jars and oriental rugs, waxed floors, polished tables. Every heavy silver frame and looped brocade curtain was in place; there was no dust on the wide balustrade of the stairway or the plate-glass doors of the big solemn bookcases in the library. Sunlight slanted pleasantly in through the colored window on the stairway landing. Old Mamie was polishing the bedroom silver—brushes, mirrors, pin trays, and cigarette boxes—in the utility room off the back hall. Mamie had scissors and hammer, tacks and glue and wrapping papers, strings and vases in here; white shoe polish and linen for mending or marking. The room was bright and comfortable, and Mamie looked comfortable too, in her gay moire uniform and ruffled apron.

"Just to let you know I was back, Mamie, in case anyone telephoned."

"Fong come up to ask was anyone for dinner," Mamie said, rising with her chamois rag dangling from her puffy old fat hand.

"Sit down, sit down. No, I'll be at Mrs. Fowler's."

"You'd ought to get some rest."

"I'm going to. Did Martin bring up my trunk?"

"Yes'm, and I think Edna was pressin' them linen covers for things, in your suitcase."

"That's good."

Isabel went back through the heavy door with the opaque glass panels that divided the service rooms from the main rooms on the second floor, found her own quarters, speckless and silent on this spring afternoon. Light seemed to linger unexpectedly long today; there was in the air that pleasant compound of soft brightness, perfume, garden sounds, that are the very essence of the changing season. A crystal-and-gold clock struck a surprising five. She must rest indeed before Katty Fowler's party. Katty would have a great roast of beef with Yorkshire pudding, because Guy Fowler, elderly and stout and friendly, was English-born and that was his idea of a good dinner. Just where and how Katty got these immense joints was a nice question; she had an explanation: her nephew was manager of a packing plant in Evanston, and he could ship—at least, there were these surpluses—and it wasn't black market because the authorities. . . . It was quite involved. Nobody believed it; nobody questioned it.

A profound weariness, a distaste for Katty and her entire circle possessed Isabel, as she put on a crepe gown heavy with silver and steel and crystal and pearl embroideries, and wrapped herself in her big fox cape for Katty's dinner. Everyone knew that she was starting for the East in a few days, and Sather Cornwall said he thought he was going to be on the same train.

"In the upper right above you, Isabel," suggested Ronny Tait, balancing a cocktail glass on the arm of his chair.

"I have a bedroom," Isabel stated.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 4 —(CP)— Light trading and receding prices in the early session today reversed yesterday's trend on a first three hour volume of 452,000 shares.

The noon index showed losses for all issues except base metals. Industrials stood at 177.23, loss .02; golds 94.78, loss .17; Western Oils 21.50, loss .10. Base metals went up .20, to 79.24.

In the senior golds three gains, Little Long Lac, MacLeod and Malartic, were counted in the points but losses were only in fractions except for Wright Hargreaves down 8.

Changes in the secondary golds were slight with losses and gains running less than 10 points.

Papers held to fraction changes as did foods and steels.

TO HANG FOR CANNIBALISM

Guam, Oct. 4 —(AP)— Three high-ranking Japanese commanders on Chichi Jima were sentenced today to hang for cannibalism. A United States military commission, which convicted the three Wednesday ruled they must pay the supreme penalty for their part in a grisly feast at which roasted livers of executed United States airmen were served.

Causes Deadlock

Other action taken by the council in the 13-hour session that ended shortly before midnight included:

A decision to pass along to the general assembly three proposals concerning the future care of Europe's 1,000,000 war refugees. This tossed into the lap of the assembly a deadlock between Russia and the western powers, which the council had been unable to break.

A decision to postpone until the next council session scheduled for February, action on the key proposal of a plan for the reconstruction of war devastated areas of Europe. This proposal called for creation of an economic commission to co-ordinate the economy of Europe as a whole and to aid individual states in recovery.

Meanwhile, a statement by Gen. George C. Kenney, native of Yarmouth, N.S., and chief of the United States delegation to the U. N. military staff committee, indicated that some progress was being made at last in the military discussions which have been going on for the last five months.

He said Russia had belatedly submitted a proposal looking toward setting up the international "police force" called for in the U. N. charter. The other powers, Great Britain, the United States, France and China, already had submitted plans.

Gen. Kenney's statement was the first direct public comment on the highly secret committee meetings since that body went into session last March.

NO PAPAL INTERVENTION FOR WAR CRIMINALS

Vatican City, Oct. 4—(Reuters) — A Vatican spokesman said today the Pope will not make any intervention for clemency on behalf of those condemned at Nuerenberg. The spokesman added: — "While it is possible to maintain some reservations over the legality of the tribunal, there can be no reserve over the guilt of those sentenced. They fully 'merited their punishment.'"

Baltimore Sun Press Room is Damaged by Fire

Baltimore, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Fire broke out early today in the press room of the Baltimore Sun paper, filling the entire four-storey building with dense smoke and driving employees into the streets.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. Firemen were hampered by smoke but brought the fire under control about an hour after the alarm was given.

Two presses seemed badly damaged but that three apparently escaped impairment.

Br. Conservatives Cheer Principle Of Preference

Blackpool Lancs., England, Oct. 4 —(CP)— Demands that the United States keep out of British imperial affairs were voiced today as the Conservative party conference voted unanimously and with cheers that "the principle of imperial preference must be maintained."

Prominent speakers voiced fears that the Labor government would abandon imperial preference — tariff protection of empire products against competition from outside the empire — in return for the American loan.

"There is nothing more calculated to injure or embitter our relations with the United States than any interference by that nation in our imperial relations," declared Lord De 'Isle and Dudley adding:

"It may seem surprising that that great nation, which really owes so much in terms of security and freedom from fear to the existence and conduct of the British Empire, should seek so many, many opportunities of harassing and embarrassing us and our empire."

"What the United States wants," said L. S. Amery, former Dominions secretary, "is a veto on economic preference, with the Dominions eventually becoming economic tributaries of the United States that is an unwarranted demand and should be rejected unhesitatingly."

Avery Praises Canada.

Mr. Amery said no Dominion had played a more marvelous part on the munitions side of the war than Canada.

"I know from my own experience that India's great army could not have taken the field without tens of thousands of lorries and chassis Canada supplied it," he said.

This contribution had been possible because of Canada's great automobile industry which had been built up through the preference Canadian cars enjoyed throughout the empire.

Brig.-Gen. A. R. W. Low, member of parliament, set the stage with a motion, unanimously adopted, calling for "closest collaboration" between the United Kingdom and Commonwealth government.

"I believe that imperial security will breed world security," Gen. Low declared.

As the party executive added a policy debate to the day's agenda, Lord Camrose's Conservative Daily Telegraph applauded the "vitality" among the delegates as a sign that the Conservatives are emerging from the "bewilderment" of their 1945 defeat.

With only one dissenting vote, the conference approved a resolution calling on the government to safeguard the rights of minorities and of the Indian States in any settlement of the Indian problem that might be proposed.

Meanwhile this famed seaside resort gave Winston Churchill, who will address the conference tomorrow, a tumultous welcome when he arrived to receive the freedom of the city. Cheering crowds lined an eight-mile route to the Blackpool opera house.

Favor French Type Of Republic in Italy

Rome, Oct. 4 —(AP)— A subcommittee of the Constituent Assembly has rejected the American form of government, in favor of a parliamentary republic of the French type after a three-day session in which it was argued that a presidential regime holds the elements of dictatorship.

HOUSEHOLD FUEL

Parts of Canada face a shortage of fuel for domestic use

This situation has been caused by the strikes of coal miners, the seaman's strike in the early summer which retarded shipments and the strike at the steel mills which has created a grave shortage of coke for domestic use.

To Protect Your Family Next Winter:

1—Order your fuel at once if you have not already done so.

2—Accept whatever suitable fuel your dealer can supply whenever he can make delivery. (At present there are satisfactory substitute fuels available).

Conserve Your Fuel Wherever Possible:

1—Do not light your furnace until absolutely necessary.

2—Fire your furnace carefully and save every shovelful of fuel you can.

3—Do not overheat your house.

TAKE THIS WARNING SERIOUSLY

Fuel will be scarce before winter is over.

Conserve your supply for cold weather.

BRITISH PLANE FORCED DOWN BY THE YUGOSLAVS

Schacht, Fritsche Taken From Jail And Hidden Away

'Protected' From Public By U.S., German Police

Nuernberg, Oct. 5 (AP)—Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritsche were spirited out of the Palace of Justice jail during the night and hidden from the public in private residences in downtown Nuernberg.

The two were "protected" by American and German police, who had orders from the American military government to keep visitors away from their refuge.

The former Nazi financier and radio broadcaster were released without advance notice shortly before midnight and whisked in jeeps to homes obtained for them by United States army authorities.

Schacht, Fritsche and Franz von Papen, one-time Nazi diplomat, were acquitted Tuesday by an international military tribunal which convicted 19 other high Nazis of war crimes, sentencing 12 to hang.

Clemency pleas were filed for Herman Goering, Walter Funk, Karl Doenitz, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Alfred Gustav Jodl, Joachim von Ribbentrop and the S.D. (Spy organization) just before the 3.45 p.m. deadline today.

Can Reduce Sentences.

This made 12 individuals and three organizations that had pleaded for lighter sentences. The final decision is up to the Allied Control Council in Berlin, which cannot reverse the verdicts of the international tribunal but can reduce sentences.

Goering, Seyss-Inquart, Jodl and Ribbentrop are under sentence of hanging. Funk was sentenced to life imprisonment and Doenitz to ten years in prison.

Pleas already had been filed on behalf of Martin Bormann, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick, Julius Streicher and Alfred Rosenberg, sentenced to hang, and Rudolf Hess, sentenced to life imprisonment. Bormann, tried in absentia, is missing.

Von Papen remained in jail today. His appeal for permission to enter the French occupation zone was denied yesterday by the French military government. He asked officials to try to arrange for his entry into the British zone, where he originally was arrested as Germany collapsed.

The British army, however, announced at Herford yesterday that it would not let any of the three acquitted Nazis into its occupation zone.

Schacht and his wife went to a house on Freilingstrasse and the aging financier spent the morning pacing up and down, trying to decide what to do next.

Leo Stahl, German police chief, arrested Schacht some time after midnight, it was learned, but freed him immediately because a proper warrant had not been prepared.

The chief said police would arrest both "later," when American guards had been withdrawn.

FIVE VEHICLES IN CRASH

Woodstock, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Four motorcycles, two autos and one tractor-type transport truck were involved in a multiple crash two miles west of Woodstock last night.

An auto driven by Donald Blancher of nearby Ingersoll slowed down to pass four motorcycles parked on the shoulder of the highway. D. K. Wilson, transport driver who was behind Blancher, applied his air brakes and the big vehicle swung to the centre of the road into the path of a car driven by Dr. J. N. Stevens of Woodstock. Injuries were not serious.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 5—(CP)—Weather synopsis: Fine weather prevails over eastern United States, southern Ontario, southern Quebec and the Maritimes associated with a high pressure area centred over New York State. A strong southerly flow of air from the Gulf of Mexico is causing temperatures to be much above normal over southern Ontario, and no break in this warm spell is in sight for two days at least. A deep storm is developing over Colorado with a broad rain area extending north of it as far as the north shore of Lake Superior. This storm is expected to move northeastward. Clear cold weather prevails over the prairies.

FARM MACHINERY IN BIG DEMAND IN WEST CANADA

Return to Production of Steel Averts a "Bad" Situation

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Oct. 5 — (CP) — The farmer rattling across the prairies in his patched, old tractor is almost as happy about the end of Canada's steel strike as the bumper harvest he is reaping.

Return to production of steel averts what might have been a "bad" situation in farm machinery. But a serious shortage still exists with a backlog of 63,000 orders for tractors highlighting the list.

This year 13,053 tractors were delivered and next year production may be limited to about 14,000. The old tractor will be perked up again with spare parts — if they are available.

Shortage of machinery has not hampered food production but it has added an extra burden to the already hard-working farmer. Less efficient machinery means longer hours. Borrowing a neighbor's machine throws out the harvesting schedule.

Cause of the booming demand for new tractors, discs, swathers, combines and other machinery reaches back into the 1930s. Drought and low prices forced the agriculturist to postpone renewing his equipment. Today with several good crops behind him, debts paid off and money in the bank, new machinery is one of the necessities.

Place Several Orders

And there is the backlog piled up during the war when few farm machines were manufactured. It has added up to a point where farmers are placing orders at several distributing points, hoping to get delivery of at least one—furtheir distorting the picture.

But the shortage is not all caused by the steel strike.

At a recent meeting at Saska-

Two Witnesses Say Motor Car Did Not Stop

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Two witnesses testified yesterday that W. J. Osborne Dempster, former Ontario Provincial Police constable, did not stop his automobile at an intersection in suburban Weston where Mark Mundier, 48, was killed Sept. 23. A third witness said the car did stop.

Dempster, a key figure in the 1945 investigation of charges that the Ontario government operated a "Gestapo," is charged with dangerous driving and careless driving in connection with Mundier's death. A Royal Commission found the "Gestapo" charges groundless.

Nicholas Bura, Mundier's son-in-law, said: " . . . I noticed the accused's car on the east corner of the intersection traveling quite fast. I knew he wouldn't stop and I applied my brakes. Then the two cars sideswiped, more or less, turning my car over on its left side. The next thing I remembered was seeing my father-in-law under the car . . ."

Donald Sutherland, who was driving behind Dempster's car, said Dempter "most certainly did not stop at the intersection."

John Guest, Dempter's son-in-law, said: "We definitely did stop at the corner."

ATTLEE SENDS STRONG NOTE TO PRESIDENT

Reply to Truman On Request For Early Immigration of Jews Into Palestine

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Foreign Office confirmed today that Prime Minister Attlee had sent a note—a strong one, it hinted—in reply last night to President Truman's demand for immediate and substantial Jewish immigration into Palestine.

As the British press predicted a new wave of terror over the Holy Land as a result of the President's statement, a foreign office spokesman, disclosing the note had been sent, said it was "personal" and he did not expect that it would be made public.

He said Britain was "puzzled" to learn that Mr. Truman had acted so "precipitately" and that the President did not accept the decision of the government bearing "the responsibility for Palestine."

Thus the spokesman underlined the view that Britain under its League of Nations mandate remains in sole control of Palestine and has no obligation to accept suggestions made by the United States or any other outside power.

Last night, an official speaking for the Prime Minister said flatly that Mr. Truman's statement "may well jeopardize" British-sponsored negotiations to determine Palestine's future.

Earlier the Foreign Office said Britain would not act upon Mr. Truman's appeal "until the whole political future" of Palestine was settled. The President had said that further immigration could not await a settlement.

By diplomatic standards, Britain's statements were quick and sharp and some London diplomatic writers said they indicated Mr. Attlee was angered, both by Mr. Truman's proposals and his insistence on publishing them despite Mr. Attlee's request that publication be deferred.

Early Settlement Of Brunner Mond Issue Apparent

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP)—Hopes for settlement of the Brunner Mond strike at nearby Amherstburg, the cause of many industrial and commodity shortages across Canada, reached a new high today.

Although neither the management nor officials of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) will discuss progress of the negotiations which began yesterday and continue today, it is reported in labor circles that some progress has been made. The strike began July 12, when the union walked out to enforce demands for a 40-hour week, 25-cent hourly wage increases and union security.

The strike involves 400 men but has attracted nation-wide attention because it cut off Canadian production of soda ash, widely used in manufacture of glass and in other industrial processes.

There also was optimism today concerning the Chrysler Corporation strike which began June 17 when 3,500 workers in Windsor and another 500 in Chatham stopped work in a wages-hours dispute. Negotiations were held yesterday but there were no talks today because of regional U.A.W. meeting in Toronto tomorrow. Talks also were carried on yesterday in a strike at Truscon Steel. There have been no negotiations for several days in the strike at Canadian Industries Limited. It and the Truscon strike, both called by U.A.W. unions, started June 18 over the wages-hours issues.

EACH FINED THREE THOUSAND

Frankfurt, Oct. 5 (Reuters)—Capt. Harold Cobin and Lieut. George E. Wyatt, of the United States Army, were each fined $3,000 by an American Military tribunal in Berlin for unlawfully entering the Soviet zone of occupation on July 4, the American News Service in Germany reported today.

Churchill Charges Labor Govt. Has Mishandled All Problems in India

Blackpool, Oct. 5 (CP)— Winston Churchill said today that Britain's government is "vacillating without any plan or policy" for Palestine and is "holding onto a mandate in which they have no vital interest."

The Conservative leader, speaking in Blackpool at a national party conference, said the government's tactics were "gaining distrust and hostility both of the Arab and the Jew and exposing us to world-wide reprobation for their manifest incapacity."

Mr. Churchill also charged that the Labor government had mishandled the Indian problem so badly that "no one can measure the misery and bloodshed which will overtake these enormous masses of humble helpless millions or under what new power their future and destiny will lie."

Will Not Resign

Mr. Churchill denied rumors that he would resign the leadership of the party. He said he had considered retiring "gracefully, in an odor of civic freedom," but "I feel now, however, that the situation is so serious....that I am resolved to go forward carrying the flag as long as I have the necessary strength and energy to have your confidence."

Mr. Churchill contrasted a shrinking British Empire with an expanding Russia.

With the prospective loss of India" "—and it may be that Burma will soon suffer the same fate"—Mr. Churchill said "the number of the King's subjects is being reduced to barely a quarter of what it has been for generations."

Endorses Policy

Mr. Churchill, speaking before a crowd of 5,000, gave general endorsement to the policies of Foreign Secretary Bevin for friendship with the Russians "if they will let us." He dissented vigorously, however, in the case of Palestine and India.

He said that Mr. Attlee's government, instead of making India a British Dominion, had given the Indians "hardly any choice but to become separated from the British crown which has so long shielded them from internal convulsions and foreign invasion."

Mr. Churchill said that despite "voluntary abdication" in India, "we are still ceaselessly abused by the Soviet wireless and by certain unfriendly elements in the United States for being a land-grabbing imperialist power."

These criticisms come, Mr. Churchill said, "while Soviet Russia is expanding or seeking to expand in every direction and has already brought extra scores of millions of people directly or indirectly under the despotic control of the Kremlin."

He assailed the labor government as "markedly unequal to holding our place in the world," but said there was "considerable measure of agreement upon the main lines of foreign policy."

"This is especially true of our close association with the United States, whose firm and unchanged policy in Europe and abandonment of the doctrines of isolation constitute the main bulwark of the peace of the world," he said.

"We should all like also to preserve our wartime friendship with the Russian people and with the Soviet government if they will allow us to do so, and will stop what Mr. Bevin calls the war of nerves."

He asserted that the Conservatives had recovered from their heavy electoral defeat last year and now represented half or more of the British people.

"Highly intellectual left-wing scribblers" who prophesied 20 years of labor rule in Britain, could be made to "change their tune" by continued "wise and efficient" action in parliament, by a giant recruiting drive and by a livewire party organization in the country.

The party also would have to look to its financial resources, seeking funds from "millions of small subscribers."

Acceding to pressure within the party for a concrete program to put before the electorate, Mr. Churchill said:

"Our main objectives are: To defend our monarchial parliamentary constitution; to provide adequate security against external aggression and safety for our seaborne trade; to uphold law and order, impartial justice, administered by courts free from interference or pressure on the part of the executive; to regain a sound finance and strict supervision of national income and expenditure; to defend and develop our Empire trade, without which Great Britain would perish; to promote all measures to improve the health and social conditions of the people; to support as a general rule free enterprise and initiative against state trading and nationalization of industries".

Five Peace Treaties Ready, British Plan Ends Deadlock On Reparations by Bulgaria

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Oct. 5 (AP)—The peace conference commission today completed their work on treaties, which now go before full sessions of the conference for action.

After a 28-hour session, the Balkan Economic Commission ended a deadlock on reparations by adopting a British proposal calling for Bulgaria to pay $125,000,000 jointly to Greece and Yugoslavia, the amount to be divided later by the Foreign Ministers Council.

The vote of 9 to 5 was along west-Slav lines. The delegates were haggard as the session ended.

A five-hour virtual filibuster by Slav delegates, who wanted the Bulgarian reparations question referred to the Big Four, blocked a United States proposal that Bulgaria pay $100,000,000 to Greece and Yugoslavia together and a British proposal to pay that sum to Greece alone, and settle with Yugoslavia later.

Other conference commissions had completed their work on all other clauses of the five peace treaties—for Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Italy and Romania — after three long days and nights of rush work at the end of 10 weeks of debate.

Greek delegate Jean Politis, insisting on a decision by the Balkan-Finland Commission, proposed an overall figure of $200,000,000 for Bulgarian payments, to be divided equally between his country and Yugoslavia.

Soviet delegate Fedor Gusev complained that for weeks Greece had been asking $985,000,000 in reparations and that the new figure would require time for more study. Politis retorted that Greece had never asked for that high amount but had listed it as total Greek damage suffered at Bulgarian hands.

In a "spirit of conciliation," he said, Greece would be content with the $100,000,000.

Milan Patros of Yugoslavia, paying no attention to the 10-minute gag rule under which the commissions have been operating, talked for 45 minutes and suggested, rather vaguely, that Yugoslavia be given $15,000,000, and Greece $10,000,000.

"We don't want to be Shylocks" said Bartos.

E. A. Berthoud of Great Britain, suggested that since Yugoslavia had shown herself an "eloquent advocate of Bulgaria," the two countries should settle their reparations problem bilaterally, with the commission making a decision only on the figure to be awarded Greece.

Yugoslavia then gave up the fight to send the matter back to the Big Four and began debating the actual amount to be awarded to each country.

A United States' effort to cut Finland's reparations payments to Russia from $300,000,000 to $200,000,000 was beaten down at the conference, pointing for adjournment by October 15, wound up its 10th. week of deliberations.

The defeat of the United States proposal came as the Balkans-Finland economic commission continued through the night. The United States announced it would fight the Finnish issue further.

The same commission, overriding the Slav bloc, voted 9 to 5, to put a clause for free navigation on the Danube into the treaty with Hungary.

The Italian economic commission adjourned at 3.45 a.m. after voting Italian reparations of $100,000,000 each to Greece and opia and nothing to Albania. opia and nothin g to Albania. Russia promised a continued campaign for Albania.

A.V. ALEXANDER IS PREDICTED AS NEW MINISTER DEFENCE

Is Named Minister Without Portfolio, 3 Ministers Resign In Cabinet Shakeup

London, Oct. 5 (CP)—Political sources predicted today that A. V. Alexander, former First Lord of the Admiralty, would become Britain's new Minister of Defence, a separate ministry emerging from last night's shakeup of the cabinet, the first major revision since the Labor government took office more than a year ago.

Mr. Alexander was named Minister Without Portfolio in the cabinet revision, which involved three ministers resigning, presumably to make him available for the defence post which will coordinate the work formerly done by the navy, army and air ministries. The new minister of defence would act as Prime Minister's deputy integrating the work of the three services. During the war the Prime Mnister held the title of defence minister.

The cabinet shuffle was forecast in 1945 when Prime Minister Attlee promised the Labor Party to review his cabinet after 12 months in office with the view of raising younger men to top rank.

The shakeup resulted in the resignations of the two department heads most directly concerned with Palestine. War Secretary Jack Lawson leaves the government entirely, while colonial secretary George Hall has been shifted to the Admiralty to succeed Mr. Alexander. Mr. Hall was made a Viscount in the shift.

It appeared possible, in the light of these developments, that one reason for Mr. Attlee's appeal Thursday night for President Truman to postpone his proposal on Palestine may have been a fear of misinterpretation abroad of its being timed to coincide with the cabinet changes.

There was no indication that the timing was other than accidental. The new defence department has long been planned, as was evidence by an announcement in a white paper, and there have been hints in the press for weeks of impending cabinet changes.

Nonetheless, it is true that Lt. Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker, British commander in Palestine, responsible to Mr. Lawson through the chain of command, did issue a non-fraternization order last July that has been the subject of much adverse comment.

Two Committed To Stand Trial

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP)—Two members of the recently-formed Ottawa Veterans' Housing League stood committed for trial today due to their recent actions in forcibly housing more than 200 persons, but neither was alarmed over the proceedings which may result in jail terms.

The men were F. E. Hanratty, leader and organizer of the league and former R.C.A.F. air observer, and George Bleakney, Ottawa barrister who has acted as legal adviser to the League. They are charged with forcibly seizing and detaining government property in connection with the League's invasion of H.M.C.S. Carleton last week and occupation of former W.R.C.N.S. barracks there.

Both are scheduled to appear in court Oct. 9.

Another charge, that of obstructing R.C.M.P., was dropped by the crown, although Magistrate Glenn Strike said in court yesterday he believed there was sufficient evidence for committal.

H.M.C.S. Carleton, on the edge of Dow's Lake at the southwest side of the capital, was broached Sept. 24 by a truck-convoy of veterans' families who moved their furniture into a building where valuable equipment was stored and which was being prepared for instructional work.

Far from being dismayed over their committal for trial in a higher court, both Hanratty and Bleakney expressed satisfaction that a "jury of people" would eventually have the opportunity to show whether or not they consider the Veterans' Housing League had committed any actual crime in providing shelter for the homeless.

Craft Signalled To Ground By Combat Aircraft

Plane Lands at Airdrome Near Nis, No Casualties

Caserta, Italy, Oct. 5 —(CP)— Allied Headquarters announced today that reports from Belgrade said a British airplane was forced down yesterday near Nis in Yugoslavia.

The statement said "it is believed the craft landed as a result of signals from Yugoslav combat aircraft" and that there were no casualties.

The plane was believed to be a Bari-Belgrade-Bucharest courier craft, the statement added.

Last night the Belgrade radio said that a British aircraft had flown over Yugoslav territory.

"After flying around for some time, trying to find its way, the plane landed at an airdrome," the broadcast said.

In a later broadcast it said the British aircraft "was asked to land."

Airhart Back In Custody For Jail Breaking

Given suspended sentence Thursday morning by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Charles Airhart, Bancroft district, is back in custody today on a charge of jail breaking in connection with the getaway of Kenneth Jackson and Royce Seymour who escaped from Bancroft jail early Thursday.

The last two named men escaped while they were awaiting sentence on car theft and breaking and entering charges, and early reports indicated Airhart declined to leave the jail with his two associates. The three were arrested about three weeks ago on car theft charges and were to have appeared in Bancroft court Thursday morning for sentence.

Jackson and Seymour were rearrested by provincial police at Apsley, 19 hours after their getaway from Bancroft jail when their 66-year-old guard Frank Askey had been bludgeoned with a birchwood billet. Practically all of the $60 claimed to have been stolen from Askey was recovered.

According to Airhart's story following the discovery of the jail break Thursday morning, Seymour and Jackson had picked the lock of their cell block, but that he, Airhart, had declined to leave the jail with his associates. As a reward he was granted suspended sentence on the car theft charges on which he had been arrested.

The re-arrest of Seymour and Jackson cast a different light on the details of the jail break, however. Further investigation revealed the cell lock had not been picked, but rather had been forced. Police have evidence which indicates Airhart assisted in forcing the door and it is apparent the door was sprung sufficiently to allow one of the thre to crawl through. Police believe this man surprised Askey, slugged him over the head and then took the keys of the cell block to release his associates.

Police then believe that with the jail guard cut and bleeding, Airhart got cold feet and declined to leave the jail, later telling the story for which he was rewarded by being given suspended sentence.

As result of investigation police issued a warrant for Airhart's arrest and early Friday morning he was picked up on the jail breaking charge.

GRENADE KILLS THREE IN GREEK THEATRE

Athens, Oct. 5 — (Reuters) — Two people were killed and 13 injured last night when a hand grenade was thrown into the auditorium of a cinema in the populous Piraeus district of Athens during a performance in aid of a leftwing organization for women's rights. Four other people were killed and two injured in another part of the city by a 200-pound bomb stolen from a British dump, police stated today.

53 KOREAN POLICE KILLED BEFORE ORDER RESTORED

One Hundred Reported Missing and 20 Wounded in Series of Riots

By ROY ROBERTS

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 5 —(AP)— Rioting mobs in the Ttikyu (Tiegu) region of south-eastern Korea killed 53 Korean police and seriously wounded 20 others before the United States troops restored order, United States army headquarters announced today. One hundred Korean police were reported missing.

Lt.-Gen. John R. Hodge, United States occupation commander, described the mob leaders as "vicious agitators from outside." Koreans said they were Communist demonstrators agitating against the Korean police as rep-Rioting mobs in the Taikyu military government.

Gen. Hodge's headquarters announced a few days ago it had discovered a Communist plot, conceived in Russian-occupied northern Korea, to discredit United States occupation forces and drive them out of the country.

Civilian casualties were not known. The demonstrators carried off their dead and wounded.

The telephone line to Taikyu, 150 miles southeast of Seoul, ws 150 miles southeast of Seoul, was was told the crowd quieted after United States troops declared martial law. The rioting began Wednesday with attacks on police stations and government buildings.

Gen. Hodge's headquarters said American troops had not fired a shot and had not suffered any casualties. It reported the crowd fled at the appearance of United States troops.

Later, Gen. Hodge's office said all of Kyong Sang Pukto Province, of which Taikyu is the capital, was under United States martial law and 1,100 Korean police were arriving there from nearby provinces.

Korean National Police Headquarters said 100 prisoners were liberated or escaped from the Taejon jail during the rioting. It reported the families of several police of two adjoining provinces were taken as hostages.

The police chief and 21 police were rescued by fellow officers from a burning jail at Songjin. They had been locked in the jail by rioters.

COMMODORES CONCLUDE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Concluding another successful summer dancing season the Commodores Orchestra will stage their closing dance at the Park Pavilion on Saturday evening. Next week the eleven-piece orchestra which is one of the highly rated musical organizations between Toronto and Ottawa, will move into their winter quarters at the Club Vanity Fair.

The Park Pavilion has been an exceptionally popular spot for dance lovers during the summer months, according to Bud Haines, manager of the Commodores Orchestra. The orchestra will continue through the winter months to live up to its motto of "Music in a Distinctive Manner" following their opening dance at Club Vanity Fair on October 12th.

Air Vice-Marshal McGill Fulfills Airman's Ambition

Air Vice-Marshal Frank McGill, former commanding officer of the Trenton Air Station and well known in the city told a story of his experiences in France to a group of his friends the other day.

The Air Vice-Marshal who was very popular with his men wherever he went was mingling with a group of them in a Paris club one day.

The party grew more convivial and bye-and-bye he found himself being kidded a bit by a youngster which he took in good part.

He had on his battle dress so the youngster did not notice his rank insignia. When he did he was a bit horrified at his brashness and started to apologize.

The Air Vice Marshal assured him everything was O.K.

"But you know, sir, my greatest ambition has always been to kick an air vice-marshal in the rear," he said.

"Go right ahead and do it, sonny," said his superior officer, "So he did too" smiled the air vice marshal, "and then let out a war whoop that was a forty ounce pippin."

Optimist Week Made Official By the Mayor

Mayor Follwell has officially proclaimed the week of October 6 to 13 as Optimist Week for Belleville and urged all citizens to co-operate with the Optimist Club of Belleville in the observance.

The newly-formed club of Belleville this year joins its member clubs in the tenth annual observance of Optimist Week, sponsored throughout North America by the 400 community service clubs making up Optimist International.

Mayor Follwell paid special tribute to the Belleville Optimist Club for its work in connection with youth development of Belleville and for promoting the Optimist Week idea.

He signed the official proclamation at a meeting in his office with officers of the club present and its appears in this issue along with a summary of the events of the week.

Askey's Condition Is Reported As Satisfactory

Condition of Mr. Frank Askey, turnkey at the Bancroft jail who was slugged over the head early Thursday morning during a jail break, is satisfactory with no complications expected, it was stated today by his daughter, Mrs. Charles Musclow, North Park Street.

The Bancroft turnkey was bludgeoned over the head by a birchwood billet allegedly wielded by Kenneth Jackson and Royce Seymour who were awaiting sentence following conviction on charges of car theft and breaking and entering. The two men were re-arrested at Apsley about 20 hours later by provincial police.

A retired railroader, Mr. Askey worked as brakeman for 40 years on the Bancroft-Lindsay line and during his entire railroading career never had an accident. At Bancroft Red Cross Hospital where he is recuperating from his head injuries he stated his first accident was when the two cell inmates slugged him over the head.

A second daughter of Mr. Askey's, Mrs. Sheenick, lives on Pine Street, while two sons, Frank, Jr. and Alvin are C.N.R. employees in Belleville.

Former Belleville Boy, E. Reid Leaves for Llasa, Tibet to Film Life in the 'Forbidden City'

Perched high on a towering rock in a mountain-rimmed plain of that famed land of mystery, Tibet, is the city of Llasa. In his palace in this "Forbidden City" sits the young Dalai Lama, solemn-faced youth whom Buddhism recognizes as its head. Few white men have penetrated the walls of this famous place which physically resembles an ancient medieval castle and none have been permitted to bring out photographs of its inner mysteries.

Within the next six months, two young Canadians with an Indian cameraman and a safari of Tibetan coolies and muleteers, armed with movie and still cameras, will penetrate 150 miles inside the Tibetan border on a picture-hunting expedition that will, it is hoped, produce for the "outside" world a filmed story of this land of wonder and mystery, and the legendary "Shangri-La".

One of the Canadians is William Dunning, 28-year-old Toronto war veteran, who served with the RCAF in Calcutta and has been "inside" Tibet as far as Phari-Dzong, a city 14,000 feet above sea level. He brought out a few hundred feet of movie film when he returned to his base.

In Charge of All Photography

The other is Ernest M. Reid of this city, a BCI graduate and former assistant manager of the Capitol Thearte. Mr. Reid during the past five years has been associated with the National Film Board, Ottawa, as a director, and he will be in charge of all photography. "Shooting" of pictures, editing of film and stories on the Tibetan expedition.

While the young men expect to bring out a picture story of the Himalayan Plateau in natural colors, their fondest ambition, and the photographic goal at which they are aiming, is a film sequence of the mysteries of the interior of Llasa, something never before accomplished by a white man.

With the two white men and their Indian cameraman will be "Sirdar" a famous guide familiar with the Tibetan topography and weather, who will be in charge of the coolies,muleteers and transport. He will also supervise camping arrangements when the party leaves the end of the railroad for the long and dangerous trek on foot over treacherous mountain country inside the Tibetan border.

The expedition was conceived after friends of Dunning, who saw the pictures of the Tibetan interior he brought out with him on his first trip, were impressed. Dunning saw a commercial value in the small strips of film and suggested the idea to friends. A small syndicate was formed to finance the venture. The present expedition is the result.

Leave For New York.

Messrs. Dunning and Reid left today for New York City where they will embark aboard a ship bound for the Mediterranean. Their first stop will be Casablanca and then Cairo. They will make the entire journey from New York to India by ship. At first they intended to fly, but the possibilities of "shooting" unusual pictures at several ports of steamship call presented themselves and the flying was "out."

From Cairo they will go to Bombay and from there to Delhi where the Indian cameraman will join the party. The next stop will be Calcutta and then they head north to Kalimponga on the northern frontier of India.

They will halt in Sikkin, a small Indian state for here is the last place to get supplies. Here, too, they will form their safari of coolies, muleteers and pack-mules.

Then comes the great adventure. They will enter Tibet at Phari-Dzong (dzong is the Tibetan word for fort) and journey 75 miles inland to Gyantsi-Dzong. This fort is the end of the "line" and from this point on, the journey must be made on foot.

Then Send Mules Back

The mules and muleteers will be sent back at this point as the roads are too dangerous even for sure-footed animals like donkeys to travel safely. Supplies and valuable camera equipment will be transferred to yaks, native Tibetan beasts of burden, while the expedition will pick its way on foot over the treacherous mountain trails, and rocky fastnesses that are typical of Tibetan topography.

In the shadow of mighty Mount Everest, highest peak in the world as yet unscaled by man, the little party will journey to Llasa seventy-five miles away. En route they will get pictures at quaint Tibetan monasteries perched precariously, it seems on the sides of towering cliffs like an eagle's eyrie.

They will descend to green verdant valleys modern Shangri-Las, tucked deep in crevice-like leys between Tibetan mountains. According to Mr. Reid, Mr. Dunning told him that it was perhaps these green oases of the snow-bound Tibetan ranges that gave the writer of "The Lost Horizon" his Shangri-La inspiration.

Then one day they will stand below the towering peak, a huge upflung rock upon which is built the last mystery city of the world Llasa. It will be journey's end, but they fondly hope the beginning of a pictorial adventure never before experienced by white men.

Easing the path of the camera adventurers will be the many connections made in India and Tibet by Dunning during his period with the RCAF there. The Rajah Tobgay Dorje, who wears a Bond Street suit beneath a Tibetan gown and speaks English with an Oxford accent is the foreign minister of Bhutan and a personal friend of Dunning. The Rajah is also well connected in Llasa and his brother-in-law is the Maharajah of Sikkim, mentioned before in this story.

A Thurlow Boy

Ernie Reid is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reid, Thurlow township and after attending public school near home studied at Belleville Collegiate Institute.

In his spare time he used to do odd jobs for Miss Nichols, owner of "The Book Shop," Bridge St., and also acted in an usher capacity at the Belle and McCarthy Theatres. Later he became associated with the Capitol Theatre where, recognizing his ability, Manager T. Mascaro gave him special training and later promoted him to the position of assistant manager.

Some time after he was transferred to Windsor in the same capacity at the Vanity Theatre on Ouellette Avenue. Later he was sent to Ottawa where he worked in the same capacity at the Elgin Theatre. Prior to his theatrical experience he spent three years at Queen's University.

While in Ottawa he became associated with the National Film Board ,and has spent the last five years with it as a director of films. He is on six months' leave of absence from the Board in order to go to Tibet. He married a Toronto girl and has an eight-months'-old daughter, Susie. A brother, Norman Reid, 164 Albert Street, is a member of the Collegiate Institute teaching staff.

Apples Main Market Offering

Apples were again featured on the local produce market Saturday morning as numerous varieties of cooking apples, together with McIntosh and Snows were offered for sale. Practically every available space on the market was occupied by vendors.

First grade McIntosh fetched three dollars per hamper, while No. 1 grade Snows were offered at $2.75. Six-quart baskets sold at 60 cents. Talman Sweets were offered at $2.50 per bushel for first grade, while Milwaukee and other cooking types were held at from $1.75 to $2 per bushel.

On the vegetables market potatoes sold at $1.65 per bushel while bag lots were quoted at $2. Cauliflower sold up to 40 cents each while other seasonal vegetables and melons brought regular prices. Tomatoes sold at 30c the basket or $1.25 per bushel, while corn sold from 25c to 35c the dozen ears.

On the inside market eggs held firm at 50 to 55c the dozen for firsts with pullets bringing 40 cents. Fowl was offered at the usual price of from 38c to 40c for first grade chickens with capons bringing up to 45 cents the pound.

Red and blue grapes were available at 65 cents the basket; frost plums sold at 75 cents and hickory nuts, this season's crop, brought 35 cents the quart.

Young pigs were offered in considerable numbers with seventeen farmers' rigs being noticed. Prices ranged from eight to ten dollars each for young pigs.

Dosco Management Ordered to Open Plant by Govt.

Montreal, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Union leaders at the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation plant in Sydney had a meeting scheduled for 10 a.m. today with Lewis N. Fulton, assistant general, superintendent, and were ready to demand a definite statement as to when the plant would resume operation under terms of the basic steel strike settlement.

The Dosco management, which said it couldn't pay its 4,000 employees the 13-cent hourly pay increase awarded in the strike-ending formula, had a terse message from F. B. Kilbourn, steel controller, who is Montreal issued this statement:

"The government is still operating these plants. As steel controller I have instructed the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation to resume operations as quickly as possible."

Mr. Kilbourn controlled the Dosco plant, together with Algoma Steel at Sault Ste. Marie, and the Hamilton plant of Steel Company of Canada, throughout the three months of the strike and in that capacity negotiated the 13-cent wage increase with the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.). This was a compromise of the original 19½ cent demand of the striking union.

C. M. Anson, Dosco general manager, gave the Sydney situation its surprise turn Friday when he announced the corporation had been losing money on operations at the old wage scale and could not meet the 13-cent boost. Ottawa circles thought it possible that the problem would be solved by a hike in the subsidies which Dosco already received from the Dominion government.

In the meantime the 4,000 Cape Breton steelworkers prepared to flood the Sydney Unemployment Insurance office with applications for out-of-work benefits.

Tweed Farmer Harvests 7,000 Bags Potatoes; Uses Modern Methods to Speed Harvesting

Although Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick may be noted for the quantity of potatoes grown, the Maritime Provinces have no monopoly in quantity potato growing in Canada.

This is indicated by the experience of Thomas Keilty, aggressive young farmer of Chapman's Corners, Tweed district in Hastings county, who this year expects to harvest in the neighborhood of 7,000 bags of Irish Cobblers from his 35 acres planting.

Very few people, even in Hastings, are aware of it, but the potato plantation of Mr. Keilty and his father William Keilty, is the largest in Eastern Ontario. And Mr. Keilty has all the necessary equipment to make growing and harvesting easier.

Favors Irish Cobblers

Five years ago Mr. Keilty grew only enough potatoes for his family's own use. Then he decided to go into the potato growing business and the first year 50 bags were produced. Irish Cobblers found a ready market and when good yield was obtained the Tweed district farmer decided to stick to this particular variety.

Today the Keilty market has been extended until it now covers the Army camp at Kingston, the Sawyer-Stoll lumber Co. at Massanoga and Pine Camp and several outlets in Belleville, including the Belleville General Hospital. Some customers are now buying in 100-bag lots, anticipating the scarcity which may occur before next spring. This is possible due to the frost which killed a percentage of the late potato crop.

Modern Machinery

To cope with the increased potato planting on the Keilty farm which this year amounted to 325 bags planted, the Tweed potato king has acquired the best of equipment and this now includes a potato cutter, a planter, weeders, hillers, a sprayer which covers four rows at a time, a digger and a picker. This last piece of equipment is the only one of its kind in the district.

The potato picker which was only purchased this year is a comparatively modern invention and is capable of harvesting approximately 1,000 bags per day. And to prove the accuracy of this claim, the day on which this reporter visited the Keilty farm, 111 bags were picked in slightly over an hour. The digger removes the potatoes from the ground, passes the "spuds" along to the picker where an elevator carries them up and into the bagger attachment where two men are kept busy handling and tieing the bags.

One particularly fertile field on the Keilty farm is expected to produce 3,000 bags of potatoes from 13 acres planting.

Uses Four-Horse team

Although the farm tractor is used frequently on the potato digger, Mr. Keilty prefers a four-horse team which he claims can be controlled to better advantage than the tractor. When a tractor-pulled digger gets off the row it cannot be brought back into line as quickly as when it is pulled by horses.

First tubers on the Keilty farm were dug on June 29 and operations will continue until after the autumn frosts. Assisting the father and son potato growing combination is Mr. Pat Mulroney of Stoco who says he has tied well over 5,000 bags this season.

But potato growing is not the only farm operation conducted on the Keilty farm. In addition to specializing in tuber growing they devote their spare time to mixed farming, dairying and production of peas and tomatoes for canning factories in Belleville.

In development of the potato growing business to its present level which was accomplished only after careful planning and study, government officials were frequently consulted. Pamphlets were obtained covering the best methods of producing big yields with the minimum of manual labor.

But the Keiltys are still not satisfied and in another year expect to considerably increase their potato acreage.

Canada Plans New Health Deal for Indians, Eskimos

Ottawa, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Canada has planned a new health deal for Indians and Eskimos, but like nearly everything else the scheme is being retarded by shortage of help and building materials.

Doctors and nurses with a yearning for the wide-open spaces and a bit of adventure to boot might answer the call of the north and help to man hospitals and serve on reserves.

This is the word from Dr. P. E. Moore, superintendent of Indian health services, who reviewed in an interview the prospect of better health services for Canada's 127,000 Indians and 7,700 Eskimos.

Stubby and cheerful, Dr. Moore said that Canada had increased expenditures for maintenance of such health services from $3,901 in 1879 to $4,103,390 for the fiscal year 1946-47.

But despite the increased appropriation the government's hospital expansion program was at a standstill for lack of trained personnel. A "limited response" had been received to advertisements seeking 100 nurses. More than 70 still were needed, as well as a few hardy characters to serve on northern reserves.

New Hospitals Located

Dr. Moore emphasized that prospective doctors and nurses need not fear being sent into the Arctic Circle to administer to the Dominion's "wards." Under revised government policy new hospitals are being located on the "fringe of the north" rather than in isolated regions.

This change isn't due to better "health-giving" qualities in the southern climes, but an attempt to overcome the difficulty of obtaining — and retaining — staff in remote areas. Transporting medical supplies was another problem.

Citing specific instances, Dr. Moore said the former Nanaimo Military Hospital on Vancouver Island could not be opened because of inadequate staff. The 200-bed hospital serving 10,000 Indians urgently needed a chest specialist who also would act as superintendent of the hospital.

But the genial doctor had a cheery story to tell, too, and he proudly related some of the department's successes.

Within a year, Indian health services had expanded hospital accommodation by more than 650 beds. Operating for more than a year as the Clearwater Lake Indian Hospital was a former United States Army Airport Hospital at The Pas, Man.

Taken from Army

Taken over from the Canadian Army was the former Jesuit College Hospital at Edmonton. The hospital contained more than 150 tubercular Indians and 85 veterans.

A more recent acquisition was the former R.C.A.F. hospital at Miller Bay near Prince Rupert, B.C. It has only 40 patients, but could care for more if a larger staff was available.

The Health Service utilized commercial and R.C.A.F. airplanes for individual "mercy flights."

The Indian branch kept tab on the health of 11 Indians and Eskimos scattered through the Northwest Territories and Eastern Arctic by dispatching doctors to pull teeth, administer diphtheria toxoids, whooping cough vaccine and generally assist the seven doctors who normally cared for their needs.

For the last 20 years the "RMS Nascopie" chartered by the Hudson Bay Company made annual trips to the Eastern Arctic carrying medical supplies and personnel. This year the medical party was augmented by an x-ray machine and technician. By examining 1,500 natives they expected to give the health department a picture of the present tuberculosis situation.

Cost of Graves Up

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Even the cost of dying has gone up.

Rates for four Toronto cemeteries approved by the Ontario Department of Health and effective Oct. 1 increased 45 per cent, it was learned Friday. The interment fee for a five-foot grave jumped from $14 to $20 and from $19 to $30 for a seven-foot grave.

Dr. A. E. Berry of the department said the increases were authorized because of increased labor costs. He added applications for increases are reaching the department from all over the province.

TO INVESTIGATE CHARGES

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP) — A special mission is en route to Yugoclavia to investigate charges that U.N.R.R.A. relief supplies are being diverted to Marshal Tito's military forces it was announced today and the disclosure raised a strong possibility aid will be halted if the charges are found accurate.

Says P-C Win In By-Election Would Indicate Trend

Portage La Prairie, Man., Oct. 5.—(CP)— J. M. MacDonnell, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Muskoka, told a campaign meeting last night that if his party won the Oct. 21 Portage La Prairie by-election "There is every reason to believe it will form the next government of Canada." Mr. MacDonnell was speaking in support of candidate C. C. Miller.

He said when all controls came off, there would be a period of difficulty and danger.

"We have to decide whether we want to be free or whether we want to be controlled.... there is a great deal of work to be done in parliament. The problems facing us today are almost terrifying in their magnitude. They cannot be settled by little minds in a little way. They must be solved by people with broad minds and long views."

The by-election was necessitated by the death of the Liberal member Harry Leader.

U.S. Plane Takes Off on Honolulu To Cairo Flight

Honolulu, Oct. 5 (AP) — The United States army's B-29 Pacusan Dreamboat took off Friday on its proposed 10,300-mile flight from Honolulu to Cairo "over the top of the world."

To carry the greatest possible amount of gasoline, the ship was overloaded 27,000 pounds at the takeoff. Of its total weight of 137,000 pounds, approximately half, 77,352 pounds, was gasoline.

Milk Price Boost On Temporary Basis

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP)—The three-cent increase in the price of milk may be a temporary measure that will not last more than 30 days, according to Mrs. A. S. Whiteley, Ottawa Milk Consumer representative to the Ontario Milk Control Board who recently went to Toronto to protest the increase.

Mrs. Whiteley, speaking at a meeting sponsored by the Ottawa CCF council, said the Ontario Milk Control Board stated in a letter received yesterday:

"This agreement approved by the Board through the Minister of Agriculture is on a temporary basis, and the situation will be reviewed at the end of 30 days by the producers and distributors."

Premier Drew Praises Optimist Club Work

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Commendation for work of Optimist service clubs came last night from Premier Drew of Ontario who endorsed the club's aims in a message issued in connection with Optimist week, Oct. 6 to 13. "I should like at this time to commend their objects and plans to the people of Ontario," he said, "and to endorse their constructive effort to encourage that healthy enthusiasm for the future of this province and country which is so well warranted by the resources and opportunities with which we are blessed."

Supply of Coal This Winter Depends Largely on Weather, Situation is Still Critical

By The Canadian Press

Fingers crossed hopefully, coal dealers from coast to coast are talking just one thing these days —weather.

They say that providing the winter isn't severe your chances of having a roaring furnace come snowtime are pretty good—despite fuel shortages born of strike and transportation difficulties.

But many a householder is in for trouble if wintry blasts are longer and colder than usual.

And—extra cold or not—the winter of '46-'47 is going to see tens of thousands of Canadian homes settling for something less than top-grade fuel.

Although Central Canada's supply of coveted American anthracite is better than last year, the shortage of railway cars is expected to prevent any exceptional improvement.

There's little comfort for persons who prefer Alberta coal. The same car shortage, accentuated by the urgency of eastward grain shipments, means the west-to-east coal traffic won't reach the proportions many Ontarians would like.

Coke became scarce during the 81-day basic steel strike but settlement of that dispute Thursday may help the situation materially.

Still Critical

E. J. Brunning, Dominion Coal Controller, said in Ottawa: "The (fuel) supply situation is still critical in some parts of Canada. . . All estimates of supply and demand have been based on expectations of a normal winter. A mild season can reduce demands considerably but a colder or longer winter will greatly accentuate the difficulties."

Loss of coke production because of the strike at Dominion Steel Corporation, Sydney, N.S., seriously hampered the Maritimes' Supply and the loss cannot be remedied immediately, he said.

Central Canada's bituminous coal supply is behind requirements because of strikes early this year in the United States coal fields and the Great Lakes Shipping industry.

With the threat of a strike in Alberta coal districts averted, adequate supplies for domestic purposes will likely be available but equitable distrbution will be difficult because of the railway car shortage, Mr. Brunning said.

A Canadian Press survey indicated about 50 per cent of householders already have purchased most of their winter's fuel needs.

Said Edward R. Lockyer, secretary of the Toronto Fuel Exchange:

"The others should take action while the supply is fairly good. When things tighten up later on they may have trouble."

Picture Across Nation

Nova Scotia has lots of soft coal, very little hard coal and no coke. Dealers say no one will suffer acutely if people take what they can get when they can get it.

Moncton, where gas-heated homes are numerous, won't have the same problem as other New Brunswick communities. The province's over-all coal supply is "none too heavy" and dealers aren't sure when the situation will improve. Even in forest-rich New Brunswick some scarcity of wood as a substitute is expected.

With shipments to Quebec among the best anywhere, an estimated 70 per cent of coal-burners in that province have all or part of their fuel needs securely tucked in cellar bins already. Coal for commercial use is scarce. The wood supply is only fair; oil plentiful but oil-delivery facilities poor; electricity and gas supplies unlimited but the necessary hearing units scarce.

Coal Better Quality

Ontario dealers report not only a greater quantity of fuel this year but coal or better quality. The return of skilled veterans has meant more careful preparation of coal for domestic use. Supply of wood is poor—because of the shortage of farm laborers. Coal dealers said installation of oil burners has not been as great as expected and that any loss of business was nullified by mushroom construction of new houses.

Eastern demand for western coal is a prime concern of Manitoba consumers. They see in the possibility of a severe winter a greater shipment to Ontario and Quebec—and therefore a reduction of their own supplies.

Prices About Same

Saskatchewan dealers report poor supplies from the Lethbridge and Drumheller, Alta., fields but expect inferior lignite grades from Southern Saskatchewan will prevent acute suffering. As everywhere else in the Dominion prices are the same as a year ago but consumers say they are "sure" of increases because of the $1.40-a-day wage increase given Alberta Miners.

Alberta's own supply is fairly good. By Aug. 31 production was almost 1,000,000 tons more than last year's eight-month total but more miners are needed. The increased pay is expected to ease the labor shortage.

Scarce but enough to meet requirements is the report from British Columbia where consumers responded well to the suggestion to get supplies in early. Many home-owners have switched to heating by oil, which is plentiful. Scarcity of sawdust fuel has resulted in many conversions to coal or oil.

London, Ont., dealers say their guess is the city's cellars are well stocked. "We have been moving coal directly from cars to consumers all summer," said one retailer.

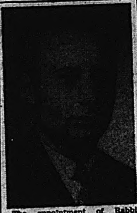
Wholesalers Not Satisfied

Wholesalers are not as satisfied. A poor supply of fuel for industrial purposes makes this "the worst year in history," another dealer declared.

Kitchener and Waterloo supplies are greater than they were last year and the quality of coal noticeably better. At Stratford and Guelph the picture is considered bright. Stratford dealers said a shortage of soft coal is the usual October situation—and only 20 per cent of Stratford consumers burn soft coal, it was estimated.

Oshawa anthracite prospects are poor but no house need be cold if consumers accept inferior grades, dealers said. Stocks of coke, soft coal and Alberta coal are reasonably good. Other Lake Ontario port communities report the same situation.

Shortage of ships and railway cars has forced cut-backs in deliveries to industrials in the Cornwall district. Some distributors said commercial deliveries might dwindle seriously during the winter.



The appointment of Rabbi Isaac Bertram Rose of Ottawa as national executive director of the Canadian Young Judaea, the leading Zionist youth organization in this country, has been announced by Samuel J. Zacks of Toronto, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada. Rabbi Rose's headquarters will be in Montreal.

A Different Objective

One of the easiest things man does is to accept a habit. As the various Victory Loan campaigns approached during the war years, about the first question a citizen asked was, "what is the objective this time?" Since money was needed to win the war and to take care of our men and women in uniform, the money objective in each campaign became a challenge to Canadian people.

Naturally, when the new issue of Canada Savings Bonds was announced, men and women promptly asked, "what is the objective this time?" And as they got the answer "There is no money objective," they were momentarily puzzled. A sale of bonds without a goal to aim at just didn't seem fitting and wasn't easy to understand.

It is literally true that no prescribed sum of dollars is sought during the sale of Canada Savings Bonds which opens on October 15th. This sale was not prompted by a desire to fill up the money bags of the government treasury. It is being launched to meet the keen desire of thousands of Canadians to continue their program of regular savings inaugurated by the Victory Loan and War Savings Certificates campaigns during the war years.

However, there is an objective associated with the approaching sale of bonds to the public. It might be described as the determination of those who are responsible for the sale of bonds in all provinces of Canada that all citizens shall have an opportunity to buy bonds. That is why the story of the canvass of the new Canada Savings Bonds is being so widely told, and why investment dealers and the banks are setting up facilities which will enable citizens to buy, no matter where they may be located.

Put another way, each Canadian sets up his own objective this time. Canada Savings Bonds have been created to help a man help himself.

A Day of Travel

The post-war world has not lost the habit of travel which reached the greatest heights in the late years of the war when appeals had to be made to the public to check itself to make more easy the transportation of members of the armed forces to and from training centres or on leave or on the holiday season. The great seasons of Easter and Christmas saw unprecedented travel.

Now after the war the new civilian public, made up of those who were civilians at the time of the war and of those who were members of armed forces formerly have all the urge to travel. They do not only travel singly but also as families or groups. Today as in the war days the railways were able to do a most commendable thing in the attainment of so many passenger miles.

The war taught many lessons and these are still being followed. War meant the shifting of a large number of the service folk and of people moved from their homes to go into industry or other essential work of the nation. Many of those shifted folk still are in the homes in the cities to which they came. Others have moved from their war-day communities to other communities, not to their original homes. So it amounts to this, there is a vast number of people who feel double attractions, that of the present home and that of the home they came from. So they are often found on the trains. War too was a great friend of marriage and couples who were wed have in most cases had dual or more than two community appeals to satisfy, that of their former homes and that of their homes today.

Though the railways have problems of rolling stock and equipment before them they are finding Canadians more travel-minded than before. Boosting rail travel one has only to think of the motorists who travel by train to save tires or while waiting for the time when they can get a new motorcar will often travel in railway coaches.

A look around railway stations about the time trains come in will convince anyone of the number of those who travel on trains. Their numbers are markedly higher than in the pre-war era.

"An Ounce of Prevention"

There is more to fire prevention than reporting the gory details of death and destruction that result from carelessness and neglect. Fire prevention can only be brought about by the individuals responsible for fire hazards. So this brings the question of fire prevention right down to the home and place of business of every person.

A furnace, for instance, when properly installed, is provided with insulation to eliminate overheating inflammable surroundings. The same applies to the electric or gas water heater. Even the electric iron has safety devices, but individuals are responsible for their use. Electric wire is made as nearly foolproof and fireproof as possible, but again the human element can render its safeguard valueless by carelessness or neglect.

A guest in a hotel feels much safer sleeping in a room if he knows a sprinkler system is ready for instant use in the event of fire. Every home and building cannot afford a sprinkler system, but the occupants of such places can see that all wiring and heating systems have needed attention, and they can clean up trash, dirty rags, paint cans, paint brushes, oil, etc., which are all potential fire hazards.

The same rule applies for fire prevention as for health — "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And nobody but the individual whose life, property and health are at stake can, in most cases, provide the "prevention" that will forestall calamity.

—Journal of Commerce, Vancouver, B.C.

Britain Can Make It

Opened by Their Majesties the King and Queen recently, the "Britain Can Make It Exhibition" is in full swing. This has a meaning for other lands for it typifies, the King said, "the speed of our change-over from the grim tasks of war to the creation of these many serviceable and attractive articles of peace."

Britain's recovery from the war, the quality of her workmanship, her reconversion and the enterprise in trade which she has always shown are the admiration of the world. She is making a powerful appeal to the world markets through her fine products which will mean prosperity for the courageous people who were so strong defenders of freedom in the hour of the world's great peril. What Britain gave in the fight for maintenance of freedom and democracy in the war years is one of the proud facts of history.

Mobile Squad of Builders

A special drive in Britain's temporary housing program includes the expansion of the Mobile Labor Force from some 2,500 to 6,000 men. This team of men directly employed by the Ministry of Works tackles urgent building jobs which might otherwise be left undone, an extension of work done by the Special Repair Service — a famous organization of the blitz period. The men must be "tough," ready to travel anywhere in Britain at short notice and be able to work on any kind of building or civil engineering project and adapt themselves to the job in hand. They are guaranteed at least twelve months' work at the "inner London rate" — the highest in Britain — plus lodging allowances, holidays with pay and free facilities for travel home. They also get a yearly free issue of protective clothing and overalls and special facilities for buying tools. The Ministry reports the response to recruiting to be very good.

Eloquence is logic on fire.—Beecher.

COTTAGE CLOSING

Put away the paper napkins and the common butter dish.
Put away the five-cent glasses and the tools for cleaning fish.
Store the faded robes for swimming and the family brush and comb.
Send a letter to the milkman we will shortly be at home.

I am tired of Monday's paper coming Wednesday afternoon.
I am tired of stirring coffee with a leaden-tasting spoon.
I am tired of reading stories from an ancient, musty tome.
And the books that I am wanting are the ones I left at home.

Let us close the summer cottage, now the autumn has begun,
Let's remember it was fashioned just for laughter and for fun.
But the longing deep is in me, as it is where'er I roam,
For the friends I left behind me and the joy of being at home.

How Safe Are You in a Hotel?

The tragic fires in the La Salle Hotel in Chicago and the Canfield Hotel in Dubuque, Iowa, in June of this year, with the resulting loss of sixty-one lives in the case of the former and nineteen in the case of the latter, have brought into sharp focus the question "How Safe am I when I go to a Hotel?" The La Salle Hotel fire demonstrated that, even in a supposedly "fireproof" hotel, disastrous results can follow the outbreak of fire.

Investigation has shown that at least two-thirds of the fatalities in the La Salle holocaust were due to panic and fear which caused occupants to jump to their death or to attempt an unsuccessful escape through flame-swept corridors

In an attempt therefore to give the fire-conscious guest some hints on what to look for when he registers at a hotel and what to do if caught in a fire while there, the National Fire Protection Association has published a pamphlet entitled "Fire Safety Precautions for Hotel Guests." The following are excerpts from this pamphlet prepared by Mr. Robert S. Moulton, Secretary, Committee on Safety to Life, National Fire Protection Association:-

1. When entering the hotel, look around the lobby. If you see automatic sprinklers, you will know that the danger of fire is greatly reduced. If there are open stairways leading up from the lobby, this is a danger signal as in case of fire originating anywhere in the basement or first floor the stairs serve as flues to spread the fire rapidly throughout the building. Open elevator shafts present a similar danger. If you see open stairs, make up your mind that in case of fire you will have to get out some other way.

2. In any hotel where you have any doubt as to its fire safety, ask for an outside room not too high above the street—in other words, within reach of fire department ladders. Avoid inside rooms in closed courts where there is no way for the fire department to get in and where if you should escape by the window you would have no place to go.

3. When you get to your room, immediatelly look around to see how you would get out in case of fire. Find the way to the stairs or fire escapes and make sure that no locked doors or barred windows block your escape. Unless your room is so high up that the physical exertion would be prohibitive, walk down the stairs tower and see how you would get to the street from the bottom. Fire doors on the stair tower are for your protection and are usually required by law to be kept closed. If you find them blocked open with wooden wedges, report this to the hotel clerk. If you don't get satisfaction from the hotel clerk, ask to see the manager.

4. Inquire as to what provisions are made to warn guests in case of fire—is there a hotel fire alarm system, or is the only way to notify guests ringing individual phones or knocking on doors?

5. If other possible means of exit appear unsafe, figure out how in case of necessity you could get out your hotel window. If there are balconies or adjoining roofs, see how you could use them. If, as a last resort, a rope made of bed sheets seems the only possible way out, figure out just how you would tie the sheets and fasten your improvised rope. Be sure you tie a safe knot.

6. Unless immediate comfort is more important than safety from the relatively remote chance of fire, close both door and transom to the corridor before going to bed. Do not yourself contribute to the fire hazard by smoking in bed.

7. If you are suddenly awakened by a night fire, open the door to the hall very cautiously. If the hall seems safe to use, proceed at once to the exit you have previously selected. Don't stop to pack your luggage; a minute's delay might prove fatal.

8. If, when you open the door, you meet fire or hot smoke, do not try to get out that way but stay in your room. Even an ordinary wooden door, tightly closed, can hold back fire for some time before it burns through. Open your window and wait for the fire department. As long as you keep your door and transom closed, you should be safe in your room for a considerable period of time.

9. When the firemen arrive, follow their instructions. Wait your turn at the ladders; there may be someone else in another window in more immediate danger. If it is a question of jumping to a life net, wait until the firemen are ready to catch you.

Byrnes Reminds Russia Dangerous Acts Cause War

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Some languages are difficult to translate into English and among them is the diplomatic, but United States State Secretary Byrnes' speech in Paris yesterday certainly is open to the interpretation he is reminding Russia that any nation in too avid pursuit of its own political and economic objectives is running the risk of war.

As reported here the other day, most world statesmen do not think that Russia wants war — but many of them are afraid she will eventually reach for something, in the belief that she can get it without war, and then find herself mistaken.

Mr. Byrnes didn't actually mention Russia in the same breath with his definition of what will cause war, but here is the way he put it:

"I concur most heartily in the view recently expressed by Generalissimo Stalin that there is no immediate danger of war. I hope that his statement will put an end to the unwarranted charges that any nation or group of nations is seeking to encircle the Soviet Union, or that the responsible leaders of the Soviet Union so believe.

"I do not believe that any responsible official of any government wants war. The world has had enough of war."

"The difficulty is that while no nations wants war, nations may pursue policies or courses of action which lead to war. Nations may seek political and economic advantages which they cannot obtain without war."

Mr. Byrnes had been expected to find an occasion on which to take cognizance of Stalin's recent statements to the press. The American Club luncheon in Paris apparently provided it.

The general reaction to Gen. Stalin's statements among the western democracies was that a cessation of controversial acts would do more for the cause of peace than anybody's words. Renewal of Russian pressure against Turkey did nothing to heighten whatever enthusiasm was engendered by Gen. Stalin's words. Mr. Byrnes could have added that one nation's search for military security might so threaten another's position as to cause war, also.

Perhaps he did have that in mind when he said:

"The people of the United States believe in freedom for all men and for all nations.... (and) "have no desire to impose their will upon any other people or to obstruct their efforts to improve their social, economic or political conditions.

In our view, freedom and human progress are inseparable."

Here is Mr. Byrnes' answer to Gen. Stalin—that he who will respect the rights of others will have his own so respected by the United States.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

TOO, TOO MANY DOCTORS

In the mail today I come upon a letter bearing a letterhead printed like this: Dr. Dorothy Somebody Ox-7439 129 Main Ave., Campville, Mo. It was a request for further information about a remedy or treatment I had mentioned in this column—but the correspondent neglected to inclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. But, shucks, what's a nickle more or less, between colleagues? I immediately stopped the machinery and instituted a seach for the item to which the correspondent referred. Only after we had wasted several minutes of time did I re-examine the correspondent's letter. Then I noticed, first, that the correspondent's name was printed in largish type; second that the correspondent either had no degree or, if she had one, she preferred not to reveal it to me. So I looked her name up in the blue book — or rather I searched for it there and failed to find a physician of that name among the 150,000 or more physicians in the United States and Canada. Then I summed up the evidence, all circumstantial, of course decided that Dorothy Somebody was not a medical colleague, called off the search, tossed her letter into the chucker and resumed work where we had left off.

One thing the matter with the United States (Canada, I believe, is far less afflicted) is that we have too many trick or phony "Doctors" like Dorothy Somebody—and too many laymen take these near-doctors at their own face value under the impression that the "government" or some such authority would not permit them to hold themselves out as doctors if they were not really qualified to do so. Your Uncle Sam, has nothing to say about it, and your state government is so ridden with political chicanery that you have no assurance whatsoever that the person who calls himself "Doctor" and treats this or that human ailment has ever received any medical education of training. There are so many trades whose masters have more or less legal sanction for this deceptive use of the title "Doctor" that you never know, when a stranger approaches you merely as Dr. John Doe whether the fellow is a real doctor or not.

Once in a while I find a real doctor using that style of letterhead—that is, instead of printing his name Richard Roe, M.D., the fellow fears his correspondents will not know what that means and so prints it Dr. Richard Roe. Well, it seems a wretched sort of obscurity to assume, that is, if the man has a doctorate degree.

The purpose of this particular bit of carping is to put readers on guard against the familiar trick of using the title "Doctor" to explot the gullible public—a trick that is favored by "special" legislation in many states.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Down to Glamor Size

I am 18 and I have had to earn my figure—I am now down to glamor size through a whole year of dieting. Every diet authority seems to have a different theory of the caloric requirement . . . some say 2000, some say 3000 and some say 1800 calories a day.

(L. R.)

Answer—Whatever a diet authority may be. Perhaps the charlatans who gave those figures had different conceptions of glamor size. If you are alive yet and not in the first stage of consumption from your foolish deiting, you probably need 3000 calories a day to keep you from coming down with nutritional deficiency disease. Vite is the secret, daughter, not emaciation. Follow the daily exercises and the basic health diet described in booklet "The Seven Keys to Vite"—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Varicose Veins

Husband thinks it will cause enlarged veins if I golf twice a week in the season, as I like to do. I sit at a desk all day every day.

(Mrs. E. T. W.)

Answer—He is wrong. Sitting at the desk may tend to cause varicose veins. Golf, brisk walking and other exercises tend to prevent the trouble. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on "Varicose Veins."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Was Guillotin a victim of his own invention?

That the French physician Dr. Joseph Ignace Guillotin invented the instrument of execution bearing his name and was a victim of that mode of execution is a persistent fable.

Dr. Guillotin did not invent the guillotine and he was not put to death by it. Machines for decapitation resembling the guillotine were in use in Italy, Germany, England, Scotland and even parts of France long before the French Revolution.

When the French Revolution broke out people resented the fact that under the existing penal code only nobles had the privilege of being decapitated. Before that ordinary condemned persons were hanged, broken on the wheel, tortured on the rack, burned at the stake or executed by other plebian methods. In 1784 Dr. Guillotin, a member of the Academy of Surgeons, served with Benjamin Franklin on a committee appointed by the King to investigate and report on Dr. Friedrich Franz Mesmer and his mesmerism. On December 1, 1789, Dr. Guillotin proposed in the Constituent Assembly that "in all cases of capital punishment it shall be of the same kind —that is, decapitation — and that it shall be executed by means of a machine." He was a humanitarian as well as an ardent revolutionist and sought merely a swift, painless, uniform and democratic method of execution that all condemned citizens might enjoy regardless of social status.

The particular type of machine adopted several years later was suggested to a committee by Dr. Antoine Louis, secretary of the Academy of Surgeons. The first machine was an adaptation of an Italian decapitating device and was made under Dr. Louis's directions by a German harpsichord maker named Schmidt. On March 25, 1792, the National Assembly recommended its introduction in all French prisons. At first the French called it the "louisette," after Dr. Louis, but soon they began to call it the "guillotine," after the man who first proposed decapitation as the general mode of execution and who later advocated adoption of the machine designed by Dr. Louis.

The first public demonstration of the guillotine was on April 25, 1792, when a highwayman named Pelletier was decapitated. Dr. Louis died a natural death a few weeks later. Dr. Guillotin was imprisoned during the Reign of Terror and was in constant danger of becoming a victim of the machine named after him, but he was released and permitted to practice his profession until he died a natural death in 1814 at the age of 76.

The legend that the inventor of the guillotine was guillotined is really a perversion of another story. In 1574 James Douglas, 4th Earl of Morton and Regent of Scotland, had a decapitating machine removed from Halifax in Yorkshire, England, to Scotland for the purpose of beheading several noblemen condemned for rebellion. This instrument, somewhat like the later guillotine, was known as "The Maiden." On June 2, 1581, the Earl was executed by "The Maiden" for implication in the assassination of Lord Darnley, second husband of Mary Queen of Scots.

SAYS SECRET CODE BROKEN

Shanghai, Oct. 4—(AP)—German spies in the Far East broke the United States coast guard code and kept track of troop movements in the Pacific, Louis T. Siefken testified before a United States military commission yesterday as the war crimes trial of 27 Nazis. Siefken identified himself as head of Germany's naval intelligence in the Orient from Aug. 15, 1940 to Dec. 1, 1942, when he was succeeded by Lothar Eisenstraeger, alias Ludwig Ehrhardt, one of the accused.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPTING TO DEFRAUD

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)— Police last night arrested Albert Hall, 54-year-old First Great War veteran and employee of the Veterans Affairs Department, on a charge of attempting to defraud the government of more than $2,000. Police said Hall endorsed and uttered about 60 cheques which had been issued by the department to needy soldiers awaiting employment.

HIGHWAY RURAL MAILBOXES SMASHED

Guelph, Oct. 5 (CP)— Ontario Provincial Police here and in Kitchener are hunting for persons, believed to be young men, who smashed between 40 and 50 rural mailboxes on highways between the two cities. Farmers have to replace the boxes, worth $4 each, at their own expense and current metal shortages make it hard to find replacements.

WEDDINGS

TREVERTON—BELL

A pretty Autumn wedding took place in Victoria Avenue Baptist church on Wednesday, October 2, at 12:30 o'clock, when Rev. H. O. Eastman united in marriage June Marie Bell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell, John Street, Belleville, to Earl Walker Treverton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Treverton, Plainfield. The bride looked very charming in a floor-length gown of white sheer with long bishop sleeves, high neckline embroidered with crystal sparklers and shirred bodice with bouffant skirt and wore a floor length veil caught to her hair with gardenias. She wore lace gloves and carried an arm bouquet of red roses with fern and baby breath, tied with a large bow of white satin ribbon with long streamers. The bridesmaid, Miss Lois Maybee, also, wore a floor-length gown of white sheer with a shoulder-length veil caught to her hair with a halo of pink baby roses, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses with baby breath and fern tied with pink satin ribbon, with long streamers. The groom was attended by his brother-in-law, Mr. Clare Weese, acting as best man.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of gladioli, potted ferns and cut flowers, the seats for the guests being marked with white satin bows. The ushers were Mr. P. E. Smith and Mr. George Clare, cousin of the groom. The wedding music was played by Mr. Dorland Houston at the console of the organ. The bride entered the church to the strains of the "Wedding March" and was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Percy Bell. During the signing of the register, Miss Edna Jobson sang "Because".

After the ceremony the wedding guests gathered at the Bar-B-Q where a delightful wedding dinner was served. Acting as master of ceremony, Rev. H. O. Eastman proposed a toast to the bride and groom, to which the groom ably responded. The dinner room was decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and white bells. The bride's table was decorated with bouquets of pink and white asters and centred with a three-storey wedding cake. The bride's mother received the guests wearing navy blue wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink and red roses tied with silver ribbon. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Walter Treverton, wearing a brown wool suit with matching accessories and a corsage of pink and red roses tied with silver ribbon.

The groom's gift to the bride was a walnut chest of silver in Lady Hamilton design. The groom's gift to the best man was a leather wallet and the gifts to the ushers were initialled gold tie clips. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a pair of earrings and the gift to the soloist was a bottle of cologne.

After the reception the guests visited the bride's home where they viewed the many beautiful wedding gifts. The bride and groom thanked their many friends most graciously. The young couple then left for a honeymoon trip amid showers of confetti and best wishes. The bride chose for her travelling an olive green wool suit with brown accessories. They will travel by motor to the United States, visiting Watertown, Rochester, Medina, Niagara Falls and Toronto, Ont. On their return they will reside at Plainfield, Ont.

Out of town guests were from Madoc, Napanee, Kingston, Melrose and Plainfield. (Contributed)

HOLLINGER—KNUPP

An effective arrangement of pink and white gladioli with ferns decorated Central United Church, Barrie, Ont., for the marriage at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, of Pearl Yvonne Knupp, 9 Parkside Drive, Barrie, daughter of Mr. George Knupp, and the late Mrs. Knupp, of Minesing, Ont., to Joseph Rodger Hollinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hollinger, of Foxboro, the nuptial ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. F. A. Bewell. The guest pews were marked with bows of white ribbon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church to strains of wedding music played by her uncle, Maj. T. J. Williams, making a charming picture in a gown of blush ivory satin. The bodice was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and Victorian sleeves pointed at the shoulders, the bouffant skirt ending in a short train. Her fingertip veil fell gracefully from a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of red roses. The bride's sister, Mrs. John Partridge was the matron of honor, gowned in Venetian velvet, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, molded bodice and bouffant skirt. Her headdress was a mingrose plume and she carried a cascade of pink carnations.

Mr. Harold Wilson, of Foxboro, brother-in-law of the groom, was groomsman; and the ushers were Messrs. Harold Hollinger, brother of the groom, and John Partridge, brother-in-law of the bride.

Before the ceremony Mrs. J. D. McNabb, cousin of the bride, sang "O Promise Me" and "I Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register. She was gowned in fuchsia colored silk jersey with sequin trim, and wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Club 79" where Mrs. W. Culham, aunt of the bride, received in a grey crepe gown with black accessories, wearing a corsage of deep rosé gladioli and roses. She was assisted by the groom's sister, Mrs. Harold Wilson, of Foxboro, in a gown of moss green crepe with black accessories, and wearing a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a wedding trip to points in the United States, the bride chose a mulberry suit, trimmed with grey squirrel fur, and black accessories. Her corsage was of mauve orchids. Upon their return the happy couple will reside at 9 Parkside Drive, Barrie, Ont.

Moira

Moira — Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Foster on Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Ketcheson, Jane and Griffin of Foxboro, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and family, Misses Mina Dracup of Wellman's and Marjorie Haggerty of West Huntingdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson.

Mrs. P. McInroy, West Huntingdon, has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mumby.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post and family had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy on Sunday.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emerson on Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. Dave Thompson and Mary and Mr. and Mrs. Les Adams and family.

Ninety - Second Anniversary

On Sunday Moira United Church celebrated the ninety-second anniversary. In spite of inclement weather good congregations were in attendance at both morning and evening services. Special music was given by the choir. In the morning Mrs. Donald Holbert sang "The Stranger of Galilee." At the evening service Misses Grace McInroy, Lola and Evelyn Emerson contributed a trio "The Old Rugged Cross." Maj. Rev. M. O. Price was special speaker and commanded the closest attention of young and old speaking in the morning on "Launch out from the Shore" and in the evening on "I Have Finished my Course."

In the afternoon flowers from the congregation were taken to Mrs. David Thompson Sr., now living with her daughter Mrs. Clarence Elliott, Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Martin, Thomasburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Tweed, had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mumby on Sunday.

Women Thanked By Auxiliary For Work Done

The Kiwanis Auxiliary meeting was held on Thursday evening at the Centre with an attendance of forty-four.

The president was in the chair, and seven new members were welcomed.

The various reports were presented and several letters were read thanking the ladies for their assistance with the distribution of the new ration books.

After other items of business had been taken care of, Flossie Smith, as convener of the Hope Chest draw at the Karnival, and Gladys Currie, convener for the ration books, were called to the front and President Ethel Stiver, personally congratulated them for the wonderful success each had made of her project. She stated that the proceeds from the Hope Chest draw amounted to $811.75, which is the largest amount ever raised during the 23 years since its inauguration and for the expert efficiency shown in dispensing the ration books. As a token of appreciation a lovely rose was presented to each this being the highest insignia of merit in Kiwanis work.

Special Speaker

Mr. Frank Stevens, who was the Fresh Air Camp supervisor during the Summer, was guest speaker, using "The Big Sister Work", as his subject. In closing he urged all Auxiliary members to become interested in underprivileged girls and try to become big sisters to the little unfortunate ones. A vote of thanks was expressed by Hazel Baragar. In the euchre which followed the prize winners were Perle Sills, Ann Finkle and Erma Reid.

Refreshments were served by Pearl White and her committee.

Surprise Party For Newlyweds

Marsh Hill.—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Tanner met at their home, 7th of Sidney on Sept. 30, to honor their daughter, Eileen and her husband, Elwood Bateman.

Mr. Berson Mitts was master of ceremonies for the evening.

After a half hour of community singing, Mrs. H. Detlor was called upon to give one of her usually amusing readings.

Miss Lois Mitts and Miss Evelyn Olmstead delighted the audience with a song and Mrs. Charles Ross contributed a reading entitled "Home Bodies".

The young couple were invited to seats of prominence and Mrs. F. Heasman read an address.

Messrs. Leonard Marisette and Garnet Sarles presented the young couple with a bridge lamp and a mirror on behalf of their Marsh Hill friends.

Eileen and Elwood thanked their friends and extended an invitation to visit them in their home at Rawdon.

Refreshments and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

TWEED

FOXBORO UNITED CHURCH W. M. S.

Foxboro.—The October meeting of the United Church W.M.S., was held on Thursday afternoon in the S.S. rooms. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. W. Simmons and Mrs. Shorten led in prayer. The Worship service, as outlined in The Missionary Monthly, was led by Mrs. W. Hodgen. Mrs. Percy Kilpatrick gave the Scripture reading and "A Challenge to Church Members", was read by the leader. Readings on "Christ-like Living", were given by Mrs. George Priest and Mrs. Clare Finkle. Mrs. E. Tummon sang "Lord I Want to be a Christian in my Heart", as a very appropriate solo. A most interesting synopsis of part of the new Study Book was given by Mrs. J. G. Sills and Mrs. Shorten, illustrated by the use of maps. Mrs. Simmons, president conducted the business meeting and reports were received from the different secretaries. Temperance reading "Two Ballots", was given by Mrs. M. Reynolds. Mrs. B. Rombough assisted by Mrs. E. Tummon, Mrs. A. Shorten, Mrs. J. G. Sills, Mrs. S. C. Gay and Miss A. Clarke, presented "Important Findings", from the Dominion Board. It was decided to send flowers and a basket of fruit to a sick member, Mrs. H. Badgley. Mrs. Hodgen closed the meeting with the benediction.

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

Wallbridge W.I., met at the home of Mrs. Evans on Sept. 25 with ten members present. In the absence of Mrs. Sine, Mrs. White presided.

An outline on "The Framework by Great Britain's National Health Plan" was read. Also a reminder to choose a leader for the "Cereal Shelf" course, resulting in the electing of Mesdames White, Nicolson and C. Smith to go to Stirling to take the leaders' course in Oct.

Mrs. Sine sent word the first lot of home-made soap has been finished and is ready for sale.

Arrangements were made to sell hot dogs and melon slices at Mr. Latta's sale.

Mrs. Westover and Mrs. Harvey were named as delegates to the Belleville Area convention in Belleville this month.

Mrs. White read a poem "The Stranger Within Our Gates".

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess following which refreshments were served by the social conveners.

25th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Celebrated

Friends of the Rev. Neil D. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson, formerly of Dundas, Ont., now of Granby, Que., will be interested to learn of the celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary on Saturday, Sept. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson were "At Home" to their congregation and friends both afternoon and evening and received upwards of 170 callers. The rooms of the parsonage were tastefully arranged with gladioli, yellow daisies and Autumn leaves. The dining table was beautiful with cutwork lace cloth and centred with a four-storey wedding cake. Silver tea services and long white tapers in silver candle sticks completed the arrangement.

During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Patterson were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Solomon and in the evening by Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Fowler. Ladies of the congregation served delicious refreshments.

Family Attends Reception

In addition to their own two daughters, Miss Ethel, now attending Queen's University, and Miss Flora at home, Miss Nellie Bell, of Foxboro, Ont., sister of Mrs. Patterson and John G. Patterson, of Moncton, N.B., brother of Rev. Mr. Patterson, attended the reception and spent the weekend as guests at the parsonage.

On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson were waited upon by members of the Official Board and on behalf of the congregation were presented with a silver tea and coffee service, and a generous purse of silver. These gifts and many others were to be seen during the reception. Many cards, letters, long distance calls and telegrams were received from all parts of Canada, also the United States and Scotland.

The happy couple were married September 28, 1921, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, by the Rev. A. S. Kerr, formerly of Belleville. Mrs. Patterson was formerly Miss Margaret Bell, of Foxboro, and Mr. Patterson, who is a native of Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, supplied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, while attending Queen's University.

FOUND LYING IN FIELD

Cobourg, Oct 5 (CP)—Missing since Thursday, 70-year-old A. J. Gould, retired druggist, was found yesterday lying in a field some four miles west of here. He was weak when found by Police Chief W. J. Carey and a railway section man.

The Important Little Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

The "LITTLE" FROCK, that looks like nothing at all in the hand, but when donned, fits unobtrusively but smartly into any decor, at any time, for any but the most formal occasion, used to be a Paris special. Now American designers have the know how of this type of frock as can be seen from this Joseph Halpert model. Of Brittany purple crepe, it has a high-necked, unadorned bodice which is slit from its one-button closing. It is the tuck-pleating on the skirt that gives the dress such distinction.

V.O.N. News

With the present policy of hospitals, which are greatly overcrowded, of allowing patients to return home for convalescence far earlier than in former times, it is often necessary for dressings and other prescribed treatments to be carried out by a trained nurse. For this reason, the Victorian Order Nurses are in constant demand where a part-time nurse is needed in the home.

Not only those who have just been discharged from the hospital, but also patients whose illness requires a nurse's skill for part of the time each day, find in this particular V.O.N. service the type of care which they require. The nurses visit the home, complete the necessary treatment, and instruct some responsible person in how best to take care of the patient until the nurse returns.

This is just one phase of the many types of service performed daily by nurses of the Victorian Order. The fees are set in accordance with the circumstances of the family and care is never refused when the family is unable to pay even the smallest amount. With such a service available at all times, to all members of the community, it naturally follows that the fees do not cover the cost of operation. For this reason citizens are asked to remember the work of the Victorian Order when the representative of the Community Service Chest calls this week for the annual donation.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw — St. Mark's Church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruits and vegetables on Sunday evening last for the annual Harvest Thanksgiving service. A good attendance gave inspiration to the guest preacher, Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, of Madoc, whose sermon was greatly appreciated by his listeners.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

The woman who says she "sees red" probably does hat you should know about your eyes

It is well to remember that, om the standpoint of good oks, the eye is the most charm- g and arresting feature. Also, is the most useful and the most used. The women who reads or ws in a dim light, or who fuses to put on spects when she eds them, subjects these licate mechanisms to strain. e pays a pretty price for her auty crimes. Headaches and rvous exhaustion may result. the lids partially close to pro- ct the eyes, turkey tracks will me along before their sched- ed time.

It is not always those with paired vision who suffer from estrain; the eyes may be so used by glaring lights or gen- al lack of care that there is a rious strain on the muscles of commodation, and serious mis- ief results. Those of you who ad on moving trains should ep that fact in mind. Because the movement of the train, e eyes must be in a state of nstant readjustment!

Violent emotions have a de- orable effect upon vision. When u hear somebody say "I was so d I saw red", the person was obably telling the truth.

Extreme terror has caused mporary blindness. The wom- who indulges in crying spells ll cause her eyes to weaken ervous tension and some inter- l disorders may cause blurred ots in the print one is read- . For the sake of appearance, well as for the sake of health d happiness, all unpleasant otions should be avoided: Ex- pt for ill-health, they will age woman more quickly than any her influence. They retard nu- ition, play havoc with the rves, makes of almost any oman a grand old wreck.

There's a lot of talk going on out eye exercise. Specialists ll tell you that ocular gym- stics are not something one can plan for oneself. They should be done under the supervision of a specialist. Because of the extreme delicacy and sensitiveness of the eyes, they must not be monkeyed with.

Every morning the eyes should be bathed with warm water, then with cold, to remove the secretions that have accumulated during sleep and to freshen and stimulate the blood streams. This practice will have an excellent effect upon the eyelashes.

Because of the extreme delicacy of these tissues, one should use the washcloth gently. Never dig the knuckle into the eyes, a habit that children have, and of which they should be broken.

Take care of your eyes, and they will take care of you.

ONE FOR THE BOOK

Whitby, Oct. 5 (CP)—Sgt. R. Love has been a policeman long enough to have seen many an offence against the liquor laws. But early Friday he saw one for the books.

At 4.30 a.m. he stopped a car driven by Claude Langford of Warkworth, Ont. Inside, the sergeant said, was a quantity of liquor and a pyjama-clad boy who escaped from the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville, Ont.

Langford will be charged with drunk driving and having liquor in an illegal place, police said. The boy is back in Bowmanville.

Fashion Flashes

GOING UP are the collars on many new suits. Dark blue and white checked worsted is used for a suit with a jacket that flaunts a rippled, pointed collar above a high throat closing. Four-button jacket has rounded, rippled peplum.

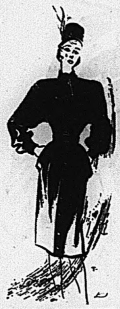
Time passes, but we won't forget a handsome blouse of white China silk printed with a design of clock faces with hands pointing in all directions to show time all over the world. Design is printed in two shades of blue.

This is the season, above all others, for the fur-trimmed suit. Quality of design and of media is apparent in every good collection. Inter-white woollen is used for a handsome model made with a deep curved border of Canadian beaver, fashioned to suggest a cutaway line. A dashing cravat scarf of the fur may be adjusted in revers effect.

Hand in hand go comfort and beauty as evidenced by some of the new late Autumn street costumes. Deep emerald green woollen makes a long torso jacket, nicely fitted through the waist and worn with a skirt of red and green plaid. Under the jacket is a turtle-necked green wool jersey sweater-type blouse.

More than a dash of Scotch is to be found in the new college clothes with every store featuring plaid suits, dresses, accessories and smart separates. Teamed as a suit, but nice on their own, is a shirt-type jacket of woollen in the Stuart tartan worn with a matching skirt nicely pleated and set on a yoke band.

Nice and neat is the simple but smart little hat designed to be worn with a walking suit. A modified bowler in deep aqua blue felt has a somewhat squarish crown and a very curved brim. It is trimmed with a dashing brown grosgrain ribbon cockarde and plenty of filmy brown veiling.



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BROWN wool jersey makes a dress that is perfect for the college girl or the girl already launched on a career. It is nice for early Fall wear without a coat, and, with the advent of colder weather, will be comfortable under a cloth or fur coat. The shoulders and bishop sleeves are cut in one piece. The pockets, self-buttoned plackets and wrists use the rib horizontally and the rest of the dress is vertically ribbed. There is a separate matching ascot.

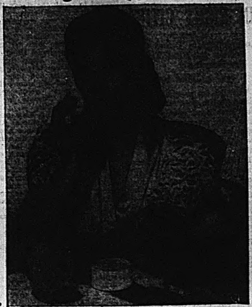
Achieving the Right Ensemble



By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY detail of dress should contribute to the ensemble if a woman is to be a top-notch good looker. The ensemble idea is not confined to dress alone; but includes the coiffure and make-up.

The pursuit of pulchritude is fun if one goes about it the right way, uses the old head, develops a keen eye for line and color. It is like taking up an interesting, fascinating study and getting good marks for one's efforts.

More and more is the lady of fashion depending on color to make herself attractive. No longer is it the mode to wear hat, coat, shoes, frock of one shade. There should be a complementary color, possibly a third to supply striking note of artistry. Hodgepodge color schemes denote lack of taste.

Bargain Hunter

That happens to the women who chases bargains, who doesn't plan, her entire outfit. She finds a blouse that screams at every skirt she owns, gets a wild magenta hat that fights everything she wears, or selects a coat that has no qualities of harmony.

The desire to reduce is born of a desire for anatomical symmetry, harmony of line. With slim shoulders and a spreading waist line, the silhouette is awkward looking. Fat legs and a slender body do not form a pleasing composition. Proportions are the main thing; more important even than weight.

Complexion Ensembles

Cosmeticians have complexion ensembles to offer. Powder, rouge and lipstick must be of tints that will live together happily. To be aesthically pleasing, they must work with eyes, hair and skin to compose a pleasing whole.

The scent of powder should not conflict with the scent of cream. It is smart to hold to one floretted aroma. The entire wardrobe will become impregnated with it which makes for economy these days when fine perfumes are soaring sky-high in price.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Girl Problems

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am considered a very good dancer, and I love to dance. when a boy with whom I have never danced before asks me to dance, and I find that he is not a good dancer, what should I do? I don't see any reason why I should keep on dancing with a poor dancer.

2. If a boy holds a door open for a girl, is it necessary for her to thank him?

3. When it is time for a boy to leave, how should the girl tell him, if it is apparent that he isn't thinking of leaving?

Peg.

1. You'll have to be a good sport, Peg, and not stop dancing with every partner who isn't as good at dancing as you are. You may try the stop-dancing manoeuvre once too often and find that the boys may gang up on you and not ask you to dance with them. Take your partners in their stride. . . even if their stride isn't so good!

2. Yes! Every courtesy, small or large, is thanked for by a mannerly person.

3. I judge that your family is probably insisting that you deal straightforwardly with this situation. . .so you'd better! Perhaps by saying, "I'm sorry, but you'll have to be going now, Bill. Mother's orders!"

Unexpected Callers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When unexpected callers arrive at a time when we are planning to go out, should we stay at home, or leave after explaining that we are planning to go out?

M. S.

Callers who drop in unexpectedly should, naturally, be prepared to adapt themselves to whatever circumstances they find. If you and your family are about to leave when the callers arrive, you needn't and shouldn't hesitate to explain. They are guests by chance, and they should graciously and understandingly accept this chance.

As in all other circumstances that may be awkward, there are gracious ways of doing this explaining. For example, you may say, "It was so nice to have you drop in, and I do wish we could ask you to stay. But we are leaving for Mary Allen's, and she's expecting us to arrive at five o'clock. Do let us know when you can come again. . . and please do make it soon". Certainly no friend worth having could possibly be offended by a polite and straightforward explanation.

Announcing an Elopement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a sophomore in college and I have been secretly married since last April. Soon my husband and I both plan to return to college, but since we have rented an apartment in town, we will commute to school. Before we leave, my family would like to announce my marriage. Would it be proper to have formal, engraved announcements? We were married in a town near the college . . . would it be possible to omit this information on the announcements?

C. R.

Some kind of announcement should be sent out as soon as possible: you may both tell your relatives and friends and write notes to those who live at a distance; or engraved announcements may be sent out. On formal announcements the date when the ceremony was performed and the name of the place (city or town) where it was performed must be given.

Women's Activities

JUBILEE EVENING AUX.

The regular monthly meeting of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge Street Church, was held on Tuesday evening, Oct. 1. A social hour was spent while the groups enjoyed a hot supper served by Mrs. Harris' group; then the members adjourned to the church parlors where a few strains of quiet music brought the meeting to order. The consecration hymn "Take my life and let it be", set the tempo of the meeting.

Mrs. Fairman, Community Friendship secretary, spoke of the special need of community friendship here, where there are so many newcomers, and reported on a letter received from the Presbyterial Community Friendship Secretary, stressing the following aims, to assist in re-establishment of war-workers, to visit hospital cases, and to make a wider use of removal slips. A committee consisting of Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Rollins was appointed to assist in the advance of these aims in Bridge Street Church.

The program was under the capable direction of Miss Morden, and was introduced by a reading from "God Calling", giving a modern setting to the theme of the evening. "God Calling" is an interesting set of daily meditations written by two ladies who call themselves "Two Listeners".

and who recorded each day the message which they received as they listened.

The discussion was then continued by a review of the work of the W.M.S. in Ontario under three divisions—community work in centres through Home Mission churches, hospital work, and missionaries-at-large where work is done from home to home. The community work is done in crowded, downtown sections, of large cities with new Canadians where a trained worker gives leadership. An outstanding example of this is the Church of All Nations in Toronto, where services for all nationalities are carried out in their native tongues and where people of all nations meet with one common goal for quartely communion. They have an annual international fair, evening concerts and mid-week activities. They show us how widely differing individuals can live, forgetting of all prejudices, to prove that "men should brothers be, and form one family, the wide world o'er."

The hospital work is carried on at Hearst and Matheson, Ont. The missionaries-at-large work in five or six isolated sections of Ontario, and travel through bushland, over ice and snow and precarious roads, systematically calling at the home of their parishioners with one purpose—to keep the church alive in these communities. Miss Morden gave an eye-witness account of our Maynooth mission and an enthusiastic report and the wonderful work that Miss Coultes and Miss Willowes are doing there.

A much enjoyed number on the program was a vocal solo "O Dry Those Tears" by Mrs. Robbins accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Duff and with a violin obligato by Mrs. G. E. Currie.

Charges too Many Professors, Teachers Are Socialistic

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Ralph L. Duclos, president of the Ontario Insurance Agents' Association, charged yesterday that Canadian universities and high schools "have all too many socialist professors and teachers" inculcating into the students "vicious doctrines" for the destruction of the country's democratic system and private enterprise. Speaking to the association's annual meeting, Mr. Duclos said the result is "an ever-increasing percentage of young, so-called educated men and women who have been indoctrined by alien, non-Christian beliefs and theories."

TRENTON FLYERS DEFEAT SWACOS TO ENTER FINALS

Al Wade Allows But One Hit in Registering 8-3 Victory

Behind the masterful one-hit hurling of tall Al Wade, the Trenton Flyers eliminated Swacos by a score of 8-3 from the Belleville Senior Baseball League semi-finals at the Alemite Field Friday afternoon. It was the fifth game played between the squads with Flyers winning three, Swacos one and the other an eleven-inning tie.

The Flyers now await the winners of the Batawa-Latta semi-finals series which will probably get under way at the beginning of the week.

The Swaco runs were all unearned, all three coming in as a result of Flyer errors. The airmen bobbled five times all told with the infield being guilty of all the miscues. Outside of the errors Wade should have scored a shutout. He had the city batters practically eating out of his hand for the entire game. The only hit off his delivery came off Rowbotham's bat in the fifth innings.

15 Hits Registered

The Flyers sluggers took a liking to the slants of the veteran "Chuck" Barriage getting to him for fifteen clouts all told. "Chuck" held the opposition to two hits for three innings and then the roof fell in. Five hits for three runs went zooming into the field in the fourth and the same thing occurred in the fifth. Flyers scored another run off two clouts in the sixth and another in the eighth when three Swaco errors were committed.

"Moose" Matthews started the hit parade in the fourth with a single but went out at third base on a force. Bridgeman, Cox and Remigio hit in succession the first two scoring then Haffey drew a walk and Al Wade drove out a hit scoring Remigio.

Gill led off with a clout in the next inning and Lee singled but was caught off the bag. Matthews got his second hit and Bridgeman drove out a sizzling homerun, driving in two ahead of him. Remigio got his second hit of the day but Haffey went out to retire the side. Cox has been previously retired.

Matthews and Remigio paced the Flyers attack with three hits each with Gill, Bridgeman and Wade getting two each.

The teams: Trenton—Garbas, 3b, Gill rf, Lee c, Matthews cf, Bridgeman ss, Cox lf, Remigio 1b, Haffey 2b, Wade p.

Swacos—Genereaux cf, Pitzpatrick 2b, Sero ss, Gerow 1b, Latchford lf, Booth rf, Rowbotham 3b, Elliot c, Barriage p.

Score by innings:

Trenton .. 000 331 01x—8 15 5
Swacos .... 020 000 100—3 1 4

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Oct. 5 — (AP) — Minor league baseball men who dropped in here for the Cards-Dodgers play-off figure they have a lot of work to do before the first week in December, when the winter meetings begin in Los Angeles . . . when the majors set up their new executive council to give players representation, it virtually wiped out the old executive council through which the minors had their say . . . As a result, they'll have to start from scratch in producing a new set-up and they have less than a month in which to make plans, as amendments to the agreement must be submitted 30 days before the convention.

What, no wolves?

Topeka, Kas., boasts the "doggondest" trio of sports figures in captivity — Ray (Fido) Murphy, owner of the baseball club, "Bow Wow" Woftkiewicz, coach of Capital Catholic high school, and "Poochie" Coffman, manager of the Decker Oilers, the town's leading semi pro ball club.

Dots all, Brothers

The Dodgers have hooked up with Columbus, S. C., to get their only class "A" farm. After Thursday, the Brooklyn fans likely hope most of the players will be shipped there . . . W. A. Harriman, new secretary of commerce, is a former president of the Grand Circuit. Wonder if that's why he advocates a stable economy?

SIXTEEN CLUBS IN GRID ACTION IN EIGHT CITIES

Intercollegiate Union Opens Season for First Time on Pre-War Basis

(The Canadian Press)

With the pot sweetened by the Intercollegiate boys sitting in for their first hand, plenty of blue chips were stacked on the line today as 16 of Canada's senior football clubs clashed in eight cities.

In the university circuit, two games were scheduled that should show the rah-rah fans how their favorites will run in their first full post-war season. The champion university of Western Ontario Mustangs are at home to University of Toronto while Queen's University play McGill at Montreal.

But the crucial action was slated for eastern Canada's other two big leagues, both nearing the halfway mark in their schedules and the old playoff fever starting to set in.

In the three-team western senior circuit, only one game was carded but even that, bringing together the first-place Calgary Stampeders and the cellar-dwelling Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina, had elements of drama. It was Coach Dean Griffing of Calgary who said Roughriders would not win a game this season. So far the Saskatchewan team has made a prophet of Dean, dropping five straight, but they have vowed to break the streak today.

Argos Can Better Selves

Back in the east, the champion Toronto Argonauts get a chance against the winless Hamilton Tigers to better their top berth in the Interprovincial Union. But it was against Argos that the Tigers picked up their only point with a 15-15 tie and there was plenty of V-day talk among Hamilton supporters accompanying their team to Toronto for the Varsity stadium tilt.

In the other Big Four match, the second place Montreal Alouettes get another chance against Ottawa Roughriders, who handed Alouettes a 4-0 defeat last time out for the Montreal team's only loss. The teams, playing today in Ottawa, move to Montreal Sunday afternoon to complete a weekend doubleheader and a victory for either team could make a big change in the standings, particularly if Argos lose.

The big game in the Ontario Rugby Football Union pits the leading and unbeaten Toronto Indians against the Wildcats at Hamilton. A Hamilton victory here could put the Wildcats into a first-place tie. This could be made a three-way deadlock if Sarnia Imperials, also just two points off the pace, come through with a home victory over Toronto Balmy Beach.

In the third O.R.F.U. tilt, the fifth-place Windsor Rockets could enchance their play-off prospects with a triumph over the winless Ottawa Trojans at Windsor.

ALBERT COLLEGE WINS COSSA GAME FROM B.C.I. 10-6

Green and White Had Edge on Collegians Especially in Line Play

Albert College senior COSSA gridders won their first COSSA game of the season Friday afternoon on the college gridiron defeating their traditional city rivals, Belleville Collegiate Institute 10-6 after a hard fought battle.

The game was played in weather a bit too mild for football but the squads appeared to be in fairly good condition and the warm air did not appear to bother them much.

Both squads showed plenty of tackling ability and this in part prevented any exceptionally long runs. The Albert line had an edge on their rivals and improved as the game progressed.

The collegians drew first blood in the first quarter when they plunged over for a touch from the eight yard line. It was unconverted. Near the end of the half, Spafford ran thirty yards on a quick flip play to go over standing up. Diamond kicked for the extra point.

Fall to Dent Line

Early in the third quarter, the city plungers failed to dent the Albert line to any great extent. On a third down kick on the BCI twenty-five yard line, the collegians blocked the ball and fell on it for possession. They made yards on two successive occasions and John Merkly, Albert quarter, went over from a yard out for the score on a quarterback sneak. The kick hit the goalpost.

Albert had a good edge of the play in the final quarter keeping the ball in BCI territory for the most of the period. They plunged and ran the ball down to the enemy fifteen yard line, then BCI resorted to a flat short passing attack that clicked for two plays. The third flip went straight into the arms of an Albert receiver and at the final whistle the collegians were in a scoring position.

The teams;—

BCI; Flying Wing, Diamond; Halves, Locke, Haggis, Gibson; quarter, Spafford, snap, Watkins; insides, Yarrow, Lampman; middles, Milligan, Kelleher, ends Bush, Carefoot; Subs; Shiels, Robbins, Pappas, Legate, Scott, Ray, Bradshaw.

Albert;— Flying Wings, Scott, Lill; snap, Wiley; quarter, Merkley; halves, McCullough, McKendry; insides, McKenzie, McChesney; middles, Burns, Cook; ends Aiken, Zanchin; subs, Middleton, McIntyre, Sheppard, Griffith, Lemon.

Yes, you get more miles to the gallon with new ARGO Gasoline. It's a story in itself — this gasoline — a product of wartime research, refined by a new catalytic process to give you a fuel that develops the most efficient power yet known to science.

ARGO Gasoline for many years has powered the fleets, transports and buses of owners who demanded special quality and economy—and who took almost our entire production. Now expanding facilities make the new, more powerful ARGO Gasoline available to you.

At a limited number of stations you can buy this superior quality gasoline fuel and now more than ever, with your increased driving needs, it will pay you well to fill your tank with ARGO Gasoline. This superb gasoline costs no more than ordinary motor car fuels. Yet every time you buy ARGO you get a bonus—MORE MILES TO THE GALLON. There are two grades. —Argo Ethyl and Argo Standard.

And Remember: The new high octane ARGO Gasoline is safe for all motors. Make no adjustment to your car, and see how ARGO lowers maintenance costs and gives you more miles to the gallon.

NEW COMMERCE SECRETARY, WIFE, ARRIVE

Reaching town in the wee hours of the morning, W. Averell Harriman, newly appointed secretary of commerce, and Mrs. Harriman are pictured at La Guardia airfield minutes after alighting from the Pan American World Airways' transatlantic clipper "Invincible." Harriman, former ambassador to Great Britain and Russia, was appointed to the cabinet post following Henry A. Wallace's ouster by President Truman.

Capital Closeups

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 5 — (CP) — If you met him on the street, neatly dressed in dark blue suit and matching shirt and tie, you'd take him for a banker or a merchant or maybe even a senator. He's just that kind of efficient-looking man.

But you don't meet him on the street, mainly because he's too busy with the many tasks at hand. You find him in a tidy little office on the ground floor of Canada's Parliament Buildings, just down the stairs from the big, arched rotunda inside the main door.

The sign on the door has nothing but the number — 162—and the name — J. Cardinal. A knock on the door and it swings open and there you meet Joseph Cardinal, who isn't a banker or a merchant or even a senator but has the distinction of being Canada's No. 1 housekeeper with the job of seeing that the House of Commons is kept spick and span, whether or not the Chamber sits.

He's one of the little-known men behind the scenes of parliament. He has an official title — "supervisor of char services" — but actually his duties extend far beyond that and his guidance of the 140-odd men and women who clean, sweep, polish, paint and decorate the scores of rooms in the building put the job on the plane of an unofficial parliamentary housekeeper.

His work, you might say, extends even into the international field, for he has had the job of arranging the reception rooms for each of the many Royal personages, heads of state, generals and other notables who have paid their official respects to Canada's parliament during the war years and since.

But the broader task is that of making the Commons shine. It would make your head swirl — especially if you're a housewife — to think of the miles of floors that have to be swept, the hundreds of yards of brass rail to be polished and the multitude of windows to be washed and cleaned.

For instance, the brass polishing to be done daily includes 1,800 feet of stair railing, 445 door knobs, 455 door locks, 249 door mail chutes, 166 window slides and 48 ministers' and committee nameplates and 15 large cuspidors. That's not the entire list by any means; just a sample.

There's the iceman to be considered, too. He delivers 3,500 pounds of ice to 221 ice coolers while the House is in session and 800 pounds to 45 coolers during the recess.

When the House is in recess there is painting and decorating to be done.

Each room is given a thorough going-over. Walls and ceilings are washed, re-painted if necessary and floor surfaces de-waxed and re-waxed. Rugs are vacuumed on both sides and every stick of furniture washed, vacuumed and polished.

The ticklish part comes in the dismantling of a room for the cleaning process. To make sure that everything, even to ashtrays and pictures, go back in their places, one man is assigned to make a chart of the room before it is touched and to supervise the replacement of its furnishings afterwards.

Latest Offer Of Tire Company Turned Down

Hamilton, Oct. 5 — (CP) — It was revealed Friday by officials of Local 113, United Rubber Workers of America, on strike against the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, that the latest offer of the company had been turned down at a meeting Friday.

The offer rejected was for a 10-cent on hour increase on return to work and the balance of any pattern that may be established in the rubber industry to be negotiated while the plant is in operation.

"The offer was turned down unanimously," said a union statement by John Lumsden, chairman of the publicity committee. "The bargaining committee was further instructed to accept not less than the latest offer of the Dominion Tire and Rubber Company, Kitchener, which approximates 18 cents an hour."

It was added that the union did not desire and would not tolerate "another Stelco situation".

"The committee was further instructed," said the statement, "to notify the management that only those employees would be allowed access to the plant who were originally permitted entry since the start of the strike. If any others are brought in the union will see to it that everyone, including management, will be denied entry."

Nearly 2,000 striking veterans paraded today to the Firestone picket line while the union meeting was in progress.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, and I said, Hay, pop, say, ma, can I get a tin helmet? All the fellows have got one except me, pritty near, practically, so when we play jungle fighting and diffrent things, I'm practically almost the only one that's not protected from the bullits by a tin helmet, I said.

War, war, aren't you ever going to get tired of war games? ma said. I was just reeding in this paper how people all over the werld are trying to make war a thing of the passed, she said, and pop said, By gollies that's what it says in my paper too. I'm serprised at you, Benny, why dont you try to keep up with the times? he said.

My goodness yes, ma said. What kind of a boy are you? Are you living in the past or the present for land sakes? she said, and pop said, I'd hate to think I've got an old fashion son, When I was a boy I was always up on my toes reflecting current events in the games I played. Nobody could call me a back number, he said.

Well gosh, do you mean we ought to make up games about peace? I said, and pop said, A splendid idea, now you're talking.

Of course, naturelly, now you're sounding like a modern boy to be proud of, ma said, and I said, Jeepers, that's a swell idea.

Let me be the ferst to congradulate you, pop said, and ma said, Let me be the second.

ure, gee, we'll get up a werld police force, and if any of the fellows have the nerve to get fresh with us, or even if they try to pick a fight with each other, oh boy they'll wish they hadn't, I said. But anyways, pop, gosh, ma, then I'll need a tin helmet almost werse than ever. o can I get one, ma can I, pop? I said.

The result being 2 answers, both the same.

THE NASCOPIE RETURNS

Montreal, Oct. 4 —(CP)— The Arctic ship Nascopie dropped anchor in Montreal harbor yesterday after completing her annual 10,000 miles, three months' voyage through Canada's northern waters. The Nascopie, which left here July 8, visited Hudson Bay ports and stations on Baffin Island and Somerset Island. She brought back a number of government and civilian passengers after long stays in the Arctic.

Churchill Renews Call for United States of Europe

Blackpool, Lancs, England, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Winston Churchill Friday renewed his call for a United States of Europe, declaring "All the burden" of restoring world peace "should not be thrown upon the United States of America."

"Why should we not also have a United States of Europe?" the former prime minister asked in a speech after receiving the freedom of the city of Blackpool.

"Why should this continent be a mangled victim and dependent for succor upon the generosity of other lands?

"The United States of America has definitely declared herself as abandoning the policy of isolation, and of watching vigilantly, and sharing effectively in the guidance and restoration of Europe and the peace of the world.

"All that has to be done is that some 250,000,000 people have to wake up one morning and say we wish to be happy, free and prosperous, and will only give our votes to the political parties who will vote for a United States of Europe."

Repeating the plea he made in a recent speech at Zurich to "let the bitter feuds and quarrels of the past pass away," Mr. Churchill added:

"We cannot afford to go forward dragging those chains of vengeance and hatred behind us."

Plan to Leave Scars of Battle In Present State

London, Oct. 4—(CP)—Efforts are being made to preserve some of Europe's battle-scars in their original state, delegates to the International Conference of National Tourist Organizations said yesterday.

France, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, in consultation with each other and with Allied military authorities, are taking measures to leave for future tourists as complete a picture as possible of certain war-torn theatres.

Asks Churchill To Intercede

Nuernberg, Oct. 5 (Reuters)— The wife of Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl sent this message to Winston Churchill:

"Sir, you have always been proud of being a soldier—you were the most when, in deadly peril, Britain kept the flag flying .. May I, as the daughter of a British-born mother, appeal to you as a soldier to give your voice of support for the life of my husband, Col.-Gen. Jodl, who — like yourself—did nothing but fight for his country—Luise Jodl."

PATRIOTISM HITS THE PICKET LINE

PLANE MAKES SECOND TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

Vancouver, Oct. 4 — (CP) — The Douglas DC-4 Skymaster "Warana" of the Australian National Airways landed here late yesterday on its second trans-Pacific flight. It touched down at Sea Island airport 36 hours after taking off from Melbourne, Australia, on the 8,000 mile trip. The "Warana" scheduled to arrive here Wednesday was forced to turn back to Oakland, Calif., when adverse weather conditions were encountered over Oregon.

Eight out of ten will buy again... WHY?

They want to keep on saving. Canadians, being thrifty folk, like to put something away for a rainy day. They liked the idea of saving by means of Victory Bonds during the war. They want to continue this method of saving.

That's what was disclosed in a survey, conducted early this year in all parts of the country. 82% of the thousands of Canadians interviewed said, "Yes, we want to keep on saving. We like to save with bonds."

Since no more Victory Bonds or War Savings Certificates will be issued, it was decided to make "Canada Savings Bonds" available to Canadians. These bonds have many new features that will interest you. For example, you can buy Canada Savings Bonds in units of $50, $100, $500 and $1000. You may buy up to $2000 per person. They pay 2¾% interest each year, for ten years. You can cash Canada Savings Bonds at full face value, with interest, at any time, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

But please remember this point. These are "Serve Yourself" Bonds. This time there will be fewer salesmen. They will not be able to call on everyone. So it's up to you to take advantage of this fine investment opportunity—without delay.

How to Buy

You can buy them at any bank; authorized investment dealer; stock broker; trust or loan company—for cash or by the Monthly Savings Plan. Where your employer offers a Payroll Savings Plan you can buy Canada Savings Bonds by regular deductions from your pay.

Henning Decisively Beaten By 'Krippler' Davis in Main Bout at Memorial Arena

Two Bad Men of Ring Put on Show That Had Fans Howling

It finally happened. Like death and taxes it was inevitable—but the faithful did not know when it would arrive. It got here Friday night. And Karl "Krippler" Davis was the gent that carried it and brought it here.

What is referred to is that long-looked for decisive defeat that was definitely dished out Friday night to Lee "the Scowl" Henning, Iowa Cornhusker bad man of the mat, who has dominated the cream of wrestlers here for the past three months with his unorthodox methods.

There was no doubt about it. There was no after-bout high jinks on the part of the Henning. He lay on the floor of the ring after absorbing some terrific punishment from the Krippler and was apparently quite content to have the bout end the way it did. As a matter of fact, he was not in any position or condition to do much about it, in the physical sense of the word.

The faithful came expecting anything to happen. For both the "rippler" and "La Scowl" enjoyed the unenviable reputations of being the bad men of the current wrestling season. There have been other "villians" of the mat appear here but the pewholders, if their reaction to the mat methods of the two main bouters last night as evidenced in former appearances can be judged a criterion, give Davis and Henning the palm.

Henning The Villain

It was, according to previous battles a tussle between two "heavies" of the rassle drama. The popularity odds according to pre-bout fan reception as the pair entered the ring were on the Krippler. Henning was the villain of the peice in the minds of the customers if mass boos and cat-calls were the judges.

And the Henning started out to prove that the fans were right in their guess. He attacked the Krippler viciously in the opening minutes of the bout, using his eye-gouge on numerous occasions and leaping out of the ring to pick up and secrete those mysterious somethings that he uses on the foes eyebrows.

He had the Krippler staggering about the ring rubbing his eyes and although Referee Ernie Powers diligently searched the Henning trunks, the little things were there. Then Henning diverted his attack to a tattoo of punches on the south side of the Krippler's jugular vein. He had the man from Texas in a bad way with this muscle-paralyzing method—then the Krippler suddenly snapped out of it. He launched a two-fisted attack on the Henning's jaw that had the faithful almost sobbing with joy. He punched and slugged then by way of a change slugged and punched. Henning tried to dodge the flurry of blows but finally the Krip hurled him out of the ring.

Henning failed to return at the end of the count and Referee Powers awarded the Krippler the fall. Henning flew into a rage. He stamped and jumped, and threw himself on his robe.

Tit For Tat

Came the second fall and therein lies the secret of the Davis victory. Henning pulled a few of the nastier tricks out of his war bag, but was met in turn with his own medicine. He poked his fingers in the Davis optics. Davis immediately gouged the Henning orbs. Henning pounded the upper arm muscles of Davis. Davis retaliated in like manner. Then they punched and slugged. Davis flew to the attack and pounded and flung Henning all over the ring. Then he worked the favorite Henning trick of using the opposition's noggon as a battering ram against a ring post. Three times he tore across the ring and rammed the Henning conk against the uprights.

Then by way of extra dessert, he again resorted to the punch-slug attack. A minute of this was sufficient and the Henning was down and almost out. Referee Powers stopped the fall and awarded the bout to Davis.

Colorful Grappler

One of the most colorful wrestlers to appear here in some time was Sheik Emir Badul, a pure-blooded Arabian who defeated Pat Flanagan when the latter injured his leg in the ropes. The dark-skinned Iranian is of the Flanagan type and put on a splendid clean aggressive show that caught the crowd's fancy.

He is quick, agile and by his performance here last night is a wrestler of no mean ability. He is in Canada to challenge Whipper Billy Watson for the British Empire wrestling title, and will likely be seen here again at an early date. He made a distinct hit with the fans and the management can bring him back any time.

In the preliminary Olaf Olsen, the Swedish Swivel expert, essayed the role of bad man against powerful Terry McGuiness a clever matman, and the two battled to a draw after thirty minutes of aggressive wrestling.

ST. CATHARINES WINS CANADIAN LACROSSE TITLE

Athletics Defeat New Westminster for Third Straight Time to Gain Mann Cup

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Major problem facing master minds of lacrosse today was how to solve a monopoly being established by St. Catharines Athletics, newly-crowned Dominion champions for the fifth time in the last nine years.

The Athletics made it look easy last night as they polished off New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-7 for their third straight victory over the western title holders to win the $5,000 solid-gold Mann Cup.

Probably half the 7,726 fans in attendance at Maple Leaf Gardens came from all parts of lacrosse-mad Niagara Peninsula to enjoy the "kill" of their perennial favorites who outscored the Westerners 40-26 on the round.

Nobody in the know claimed it was a great club which was crowned last night but coach Jack Wood of the vanquished Salmonbellies figured the champions were superior to the St. Catharines team which downed New Westminster two years ago.

Victory established eastern supremacy over the west in Canada's national game 15-11 in the history of the Mann Cup and 5-4 since the sport moved indoors as boxla in 1933. Since the days field lacrosse folded a western team has never won the trophy in the east.

When their mighty atom—Ike Hilderbrand — failed to explode, the Westerners lacked necessary scoring punch to match the goal-hungry A's. Little Ike doped out the cause of the downfall closely when he praised goalie Doug Favell as the finest he'd ever faced and confessed he'd never been tailed so closely by checks.

Goalie Outstanding

Voted outstanding player of the series by sports writers, Favell who sharpened his eye with a three-year navy stint as "lookout" was presented with the Mike Kelly Memorial Medal. He blocked 35 shots, a couple of them with his face, in last night's duel compared with 22 saves for Bill Scuby in the coast nets.

For one of St. Catharines' all-time greats — Jack (Wandy) McMahon — last night's tilt marked the end of the lacrosse road. The 32-year-old winger who has played on seven Mann Cup clubs, in announcing his retirement, admitted "the going is getting a bit tough."

Two other members of the club who have played on seven championship squads — captain Joe Cheevers and Roy Morton—expressed no immediate intention of hanging up their sticks. The experience these veterans provided the squad, well sprinkled with youngsters, played a major role in the A's success.

In the final tilt the Saints were behind but once — when the 'Bellies scored the opener. They beat the Westerners to the draw on almost every faceoff and as throughout the series, their passes were smoother, their shots sharper. They were worthy champions all down the line.

132-game Schedule For Junior 'A'

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association announced today that its 10 junior "A" teams will play a 132-game schedule this season, starting Nov. 1 and finishing Feb. 19. Play-offs start Feb. 22.

Three clubs — Windsor, Toronto Marlboros and Toronto Young Rangers — play a single schedule and their games count for 4 points in the standings. Each of these plays nine games at home and nine away.

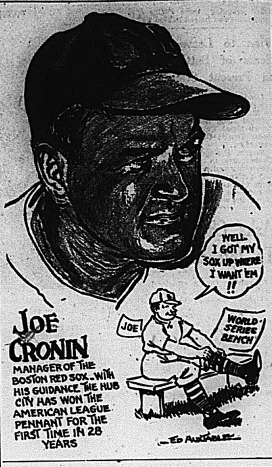
The other seven — Oshawa, Galt, Stratford, St. Catharines, Hamilton, St. Michael's College and Barrie — play a double schedule, 15 games at home and 15 away. Single schedule games count for two points in the standings.

Stratford plays at Barrie in the Nov. 1 opener and the other 8 teams swing into action Nov. 2—St. Mike's at Windsor, Young Rangers at St. Catharines, Marlboros at Oshawa and Hamilton at Galt.

GOOD PRICES PAID

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Thirty-four yearlings brought $89,100 — an average of better than $2,620 — last night at the third annual yearling sale of the Canadian Thoroughbred Horses Society.

Highest price was $6,000 paid by the Kinrara stable for a brown colt by Peace Chance out of Queen's Barge, the first produce in Canada of this stallion.



WELL I GOT MY SOX UP WHERE I WANT 'EM !!
JOE
WORLD SERIES BENCH
JOE CRONIN
MANAGER OF THE BOSTON RED SOX. WITH HIS GUIDANCE THE HUB CITY HAS WON THE AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 28 YEARS

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The world series Battle of the Reds overshadows even the gridiron's greatest in sportdom over the weekend in point of interest. Boston's great American League champions, the Red Sox march into a hysterical St. Louis where the rampaging Cardinals fresh from their two straight playoff victories over the hated Dodgers, stand ready and unawed by the dynamite batting power of the boys from the home of the bean and the cod.

• • •

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, will be the mecca for a seething baseball-mad crowd on Sunday afternoon when the first game of the series gets under way at 1:30. Boston are heavy favorites to win the series because of their imposing league record and the atomic offensive power in their bludgeoning war clubs and a pitching staff that is rated tops. The betting at present is 11-5 for the Cards to win the series and 7-20 that Boston takes the title back to Yawkey, Back Bay and the Cabots and the Lodges.

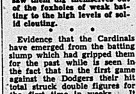
But there is perhaps a new psychological angle arisen from the ashes of the Dodgers-Cards famous playoff series in which the Flatbush Fusiliers fought futilely but bravely against the rejuvenated hickory artillery of the Redbirds.

• • •

The Cardinals instead of a weary bedraggled flock, tired from the terrific stretch drive to the wire and the now memorable play-off series, are a cocky, inspired crew, that has taken a new lease of life from the fact that the Dodger series just concluded saw them dig themselves out of the foxholes of weak batting to the high levels of solid clouting.

• • •

Evidence that the Cardinals have emerged from the batting slump which had gripped them for the past while is seen in the fact that in the first game against the Dodgers their hit total struck double figures for the first time in weeks. It could mean the Reds are once more roaring in high batting gear. That is backed by their performance in the second game.



It is only logical that a team that cannot hit does not score runs. The Cards hadn't made five runs since they toppled the Giants on Sept. 17 and failure to hit puts extra pressure on the boys on the mound. Usually the weight gets so unbearable that the fielding suffers as well. There is only one way to escape from such a circle and that is by crashing through the ring with hit-burning bats.

• • •

And from the performances of the gentlemen from Boston, the St. Loos will need all their batting eyes, their fielding prowess and their pitching ability. Theodore "Sliver" Williams, injured elbow included, and his mates are still rated potential dynamite and all the ballyhoo about the rejuvenated Redbirds doesn't lessen their diamond ability one iota. And they took no chances on going rusty when the now famous pause for identification of baseball stations was caused by the unexpected Dodger - Cards playoff series.

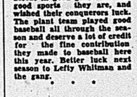
• • •

They played against an American League All-star squad and their performances indicate that they are far from rusty and are the same power - packed aggregation that swept through to the American League pennant.

• • •

Swacos baseball team passed out of the Belleville Senior Baseball League playoff picture yesterday afternoon at the Alemite Field when the R.C.A.F. Flyers tacked an 8-3 defeat on them to win their third victory of the semi-final series. Al. Wade, Flyer flinger hurled a neat one-hitter and if his mates hadn't kicked the ball around several times would have scored a shutout. Swacos took their defeat in good grace like the good sports they are, and wished their conquerors luck. The plant team played good baseball all through the season and deserve a lot of credit for the fine contribution they made to baseball here this year. Better luck next season to Lefty Whitman and the gang.

• • •



Batawa are battling Niagara Falls Terminals this afternoon in Port Hope in the third game of the Intermediate "A" playdowns. A number of local fans made the journey to the lakeside town to root for the Easton-Smith Shoemen and a large delegation from Batawa accompanied the team. It should be a thriller from what we saw last Saturday, the squads are evenly matched and the breaks might throw victory one way or the other.

• • •

A colorful figure appeared in the semi-final bout of the wrestling card at the Hume Arena last night. He was Sheik Emir Badul from Arabia. Olive-skinned with black whiskers adoring his upper lip and chin, he proved an agile aggresive wrestler and his match against the popular Pat Flanagan, was a distinct departure from heavy pachydermics usually seen. The Sheik created a near furore at the beginning of the second fall of the main bout when he appeared in the ring in full Arabian tribal regalia. He wore the white burnoose and flowing headgear typical of the Arabian tribesmen, and made a hit with the crowd, especially the younger boys for whom he smilingly signed autograph books.

Sheik Badul is in Canada to challenge Whipper Billy Watson for the British Empire wrestling title, but wants a few warm-up bouts before he tackles the big job. It is quite likely he will be seen in action here before his supreme test, and Belleville fans will give him a warm welcome.

• • •

This afternoon's sport tidbit is the gridiron battle between the Cobourg Red Raiders and the Trenton Flyers at the air station gridiron. Cobourg has always had a powerful intermediate squad and advance reports say that this year's aggregation is as good as any to come out of that good little town. Flyers have a big team, which packs plenty of punch and ability. They have not had much time to practise together, but those who saw them in action against the Albert College senior gridders the other day, say that the Flyers will do with a few games under the belt. The game starts at 3 o'clock.

• • •

There was a lot of the old rah-rah stuff at the Albert College gridiron yesterday afternoon while Pete Beach's Albert seniors were defeating Red Townsend's BCI'ers in their first COSSA football tilt. Both teams had plenty of student support with the town squad having a bit of an edge. BCI studes lined up on the west side of the field with their colorful cheer-leaders and it wasn't their fault, that the Red and Black went down to a 10-6 defeat.

• • •

The game produced some good football with Albert's line having an edge on the town squad. There were a number of penalties for hitting dished out by Referee Bud Johnson who doesn't stand for any fooling from any player no matter what colors he wears, Johnson and Vern Goyer handled the game in good style.

• • •

Now for that football game at Trenton, and a Sunday afternoon's relaxation listening to the Battle of the Reds down Boston way.

BOSTON FAVORED TO WHIP CARDS IN WORLD SERIES

Ted Williams Will be in Lineup When Teams Square Off at St. Louis Sunday

By JACK HAND

St. Louis, Oct. 5 —(AP)—Boston's fence-busting Red Sox, with Ted Williams definitely back in the lineup, are ranked top heavy favorites to whip the newly-crowned National League champions from St. Louis in the 42rd World Series opening tomorrow at Sportsman's Park.

Despite the Cardinals stretch drive that overcame a 7 1-2-game Brooklyn lead and finally carried them past the Dodgers to the flag in the first tie play-off in baseball history, the odd makers remain loyal to the home run power in the Sox bats, particularly in William's ability to hit for distance. Boston is a 7 to 20 choice to take the series and 13 to 20 to take their first game.

For manager Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals who has been riding the baseball hot seat since the "experts" last spring picked him to coast home 15 games in front, the role of an underdog is a welcome change. The freshman skipper honestly believes his Red Birds have a real chance to upset the mighty Sox and he is banking on his southpaw pitching to do the trick.

With that in mind, "Skip" Dyer plans to open with lefthanders Howie Pollet and Harry Breechen and followed with Murry Dickson at Boston. Tex Hughson is expected to be Joe Cronin's choice although it may not be definite up to the game time. Dave Ferris and Mickey Harris are the other possibilities.

Cronin, despite his 12-game edge over Detroit at the finish, is not taking the Cardinals lightly. The Irish skipper from San Francisco, who like Dyer won a pennant in his first year as a big league manager with Washington in 1933, isn't sure about his opening day pitcher. He prefers to wait until after today's workout and perhaps until game time.

Both clubs have planned to limber up at Sportsman's Park with every nook and cranny of the field.

With all reserved seats sold in a wild 90-minute scramble at the park yesterday, capacity crowds of close to 34,000 have been assured.

GRIGG SENT TO PROVIDENCE

St. Catharines, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Vic Grigg, 25-year-old defenceman from Victoria Harbor, owned by Toronto's N. H. L. Maple Leafs has been sent to the Providence team of the A. H. L. on loan, Leafs officials announced last night.

Earlier this week Grigg had been sent from the Leafs' training camp here to the camp of Tulsa Oilers of the U. S. H. L. at Kingston.

MONTREAL WINS LITTLE WORLD SERIES EASILY

First Time Quebec Club Has Had Honor of Being Best Minor Team

Montreal, Oct. 5 (CP)—Nineteen thousand satisfied sport fans filed out of Delorimier Park last night after watching Montreal Royals win their first Little World Series baseball championship. Royals defeated Louisville Colonels 2-0 in the sixth game of the best-of-seven series, taking the set four games to two and winning the last three games in Montreal.

"Ol' Coonskin" Curt Davis tossed a neat nine-hitter while his mates supported him with some nifty fielding.

Harry Dorish of the Colonels limited the Royals to a mere six blows, but the big second inning robbed him of victory when the Royals pushed two runs across the plate.

In the lively second inning Montreal's Lew Riggs walked and Dixie Howell smashed out a double scoring Riggs with the first Royal run. Howell advanced to third, Earl Naylor grounded out and shortstop Al Campanis singled pushing Howell home with the second run.

The game proved to be a combination of tight pitching and flashy fielding with six Montrealers and nine Colonels left stranded on bases.

In the sixth inning a fast double play by Montreal halted a Colonel rally. Robinson snagged a grounder and relayed it to Campanis who tossed to Burge for the twin-killing.

A total of 91,607 customers contributed $78,302 for the six games of the series. Of this, $29,030 goes to the players' pool.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — It's inevitable as the fact that leaves will fall from the trees each autumn that the question will crop up during the pigskin season why the two big football leagues in the east don't amalgamate.

Only during the war when the Interprovincial Union — the Big Four loop — folded and gave the Ontario Rugby Football Union a clear field to keep the game breathing did the question lie forgotten. Previously the O.R.F.U. had to take a back seat to the Big Four as it put inferior teams on the fields and watched the crowds flock to the games in the other league.

It was readily suggested in those days that the two circuits get together and form a Big Six group with the two best teams in the O.R.F.U. coming into the interprovincial fold. Everybody listened but nothing was ever done — nor is likely that anything will in the near future.

The principal reasons that prevented amalgamation in those days still stand today. Briefly they can be cut down to two:

1. The O.R.F.U., oldest football body in the country hasn't any great desire to have their senior field absorbed by the Big Four even though they have to operate with only one or two first-rate teams.

2. The Big Four, which has always operated at a big profit, doesn't wish to divide the cut into any more slices.

The other day Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle surveyed the O.R.F.U. troubles after watching the Toronto Indians, the only really top-notch club in the league this season, play before less than 3,000 fans in Oakwood Stadium which on two previous Saturdays was filled with 8,000 when Argos of the Big Four were entertaining.

Andy wrote: If there are any football glamour pusses in the two-league set-up, nearly all of them are wearing Big Four uniforms. I say this, with an eye on all O.R.F.U. atoms unjaundiced, I hope, off the basis of gate receipts . . . money talks in sport and its language is universal.

"So what do we find? We find the Big Four teams skimming the cream off the customer crops in four cities. We find the O.R.F.U. top heavy with inferior clubs, unable to conduct its affairs except as a jeep running well back of a transport which gaily hogs the gridiron highway.

Pointing to the fact that the Toronto Big Four club outmanoeuvred the O.R.F.U. in obtaining Varsity Stadium for their home games for several Saturdays, Andy wrote: "About the only conclusion to be reached is that the Big Four is as far ahead of its rival in leadership as it is is the possession of more entertaining clubs.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Despite their late training start, waist-line bulges are going the way of all flesh as Boston Bruins round rapidly into shape at their Hershey, Pa., training camp under coach Aubrey (Dit) Clapper's whip-cracking.

The Bruins, badly crippled during the war by enlistments but still good enough to be Stanley Cup runners-up last season, are looking toward the coming campaign as a chance to show they can produce real pre - war hockey. Goalie Frankie Brimsek, the Kitchener line of Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart, and centre Terry Reardon are among veterans who returned too late last year to hit their full stride.

In an exhibition game at Regina last night, Chicago Black Hawks put their farm club, Kansas City Pla-Mors of the United States League, in their place with an 8-2 triumph. Twice during the contests, the light went out due to city power failures but the referees came through unscathed. High scorer for the N.H.L. club was Red Hamill of Sudbury, who tallied three.

prospective N. H. L. centre ice great to the priesthood yesterday when 21-year-old Johnny (Goose) McCormack said he was retiring from the ice lanes to enter the church and left immediately for his Edmonton home.

After endless experimenting, Toronto appears to have found at least one forward line and one defence duo that will stick together as units to start the Maple Leafs N.H.L. campaign. The Flying Fort line of Bud Poile, Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar have been working well with the defence pair of Bobby Goldham and Harry Watson at their St. Catharines training camp.

President Bill Tobin of Chicago Black Hawks has explained how the Hawks come to have two junior teams under their wing, while N.H.L. clubs are limited officially to two. Interviewed at their Regina camp, Tobin said the Hawks are "protected" only on two of the teams, Edmonton Canadians and Winnipeg Rangers, and any N.H.L. team drawing players from these must pay for the privilege. But Chicago has merely a financial interest in Moose Jaw Canucks, another junior squad.

Toronto Maple Leafs lost anior squad.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Joe Miller is to blame for some awful bridge hokum. Some of his cracks have been given a laudable twist. Now there are players who quote them as coming straight from the hall of justice.

A corney one is coming to life again. It has been reaching me from several parts of the country by mail and carrier pigeon. It is the claim about getting a new deal if you have a bust hand.

Typical is from a letter that reads: "We have a visitor who belongs to several clubs. When she got a hand without an honor, she threw it on the table and called it a misdeal."

Well, that one started long before Hoyle had a rule. And Hoyle was dead long before bridge was born. So you can see why Joe Miller must have made it into a story for modern radio comics.

If you want to believe it, you could say it was in the early days of whist, way back in the hot winter of 1678. That was when the Gordon highlanders were playing the Mactavish clans.

One of the bumblepuppies asked: "Iffe gie mana ooner, kina mon frae anoodle?" Take the mush out of your mouth and it means: "If I get a hand without an honor, can I ask for a new deal?"

An opponent replied (translated:) "Sure, laddie. Of course you can ask. Nothing to stop you from asking. But that's all the good it will do you. None of us are durn fools enough to permit it."

Two and a half centuries later, the laws still do not permit a new deal because a player received a poor hand. Even if it is a yarborough like this:

♠ 7 6 3
♥ 9 5 4 2
♦ 8 6 3 2
♣ 7 5

If a player received a hand with no good cards in it, he can do something about it. He can pass when it is his turn to speak. And he can feel sorry for himself.

A yarborough is a hand with no card higher than a nine.

Hollywood Column

Hollywood, Oct. 5, —(AP)— Actors, comedians and columnists have become movie producers in the last few years, and now comes a band leader. Artie Shaw, the volatile clarinetist, has landed a deal to produce films at RKO. His only other activity will be making records.

Tyrone Power, now resting at a ranch near Buenos Aires, completes his South American jaunt Nov. 1. He'll fly directly to New York and Annabella to quell separation rumors.

Ray Milland, Maria Montez, Jean Pierre Aumont, Pat O'Brien, William Eythe, Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger will attend the command performance in London Nov. 1 for the British Cinematic Trade Benevolent Fund.

English friends of James Mason here are trying to convince him to lay off the outspoken remarks he delivers in interviews. If he doesn't they fear he will be lacerated by the press and bobby-soxers when he arrives.

Strike Sidelights . . . "This Time for Keeps" gets top priority of men and materials at MGM because of Esther Williams' delicate condition . . . Red Skelton kept dashing off his set to take pictures of the brawling . . .

Charles Boyer's trip to France next year will be more than social. He'll lay the groundwork for his first picture there since "L'Orage" in 1938.

Orson Welles says "Lady From Shanghai" will be a closed shop with all the English speaking parts going to his Mercury Theatre players.

Darryl Zanuck received a request from the International Film Exposition in Paris for the miniatures of the city of Paris used in "The Razor's Edge."

Purely Personal . . . Van Johnson and Van Johnson exchanged autographs on the "Rosy Ridge" locaton. The other one is a Santa Cruz, Cal. lad . . . Jack Carson has his own solution to the meat shortage. He had to munch on 15 hamburgers for one scene in "Love and Learn." Now he can't stand the sight of the stuff.

In Manhattan

By FRANK HINDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 5 —(CP)—Two ballet companies opened their fall seasons on Broadway on two successive nights this week and the battle of the balletomanes was on.

With a pirouette and a jete, one camp of enthusiasts rallied to the support of Col. De Basil's Ballet Russe at the staid Metropolitan Opera House, but only the reverent were satisfied with the first week's stuffy repertoire. The famed English team of classical dancers — Alicia Markova (Alice Marks to you) and Anton Dolin—stove to make up for the flatfooted corps de ballet and the poverty of the program, but audiences were cool even to the beautfully dressed "Camille." England's Cecil Beaton designed resplendent sets and costumes, but this ballet interpretation of the Dumas story was thin and prosaic. "Paginini," a revival, looked pretty old-hat in spite of the Rachmaninoff score.

The opposing camp of devotees had a far better time the following night when the youthful, not-so-classic Ballet Theatre presented the stand-by program which won ecstatic plaudits a few weeks back at London's Covent Garden. Jerome Robbins' "Interplay" and "Fancy Free" — sprightly with syncopated borrowings and bouncy humor — and "Pillar of Fire," a psychiatric ballet to Schoenberg music, went off wonderfully. Fans of the classic dance were rightly rhapsodic over Igor Youskevitch and Alicia Alonso in a Tchaikovsky Pas De Deux.

Vintage Stuff: "Obsession," with Basil Rathbone and Eugenie Leontovich, turned out to be no more than an English adaptation of Louis Verneuil's "Jalousie," 20 years old and looking its age. The two-character drama of jealousy and off-stage murder suffered from elderly stage technique, a creaky plot and the general air of a tour de force no longer valid in the modern theatre. The two actors performed well on one of those tricky two-room sets which are fun to watch — but it wasn't enough. Even with the low salary overhead, this one won't make money.

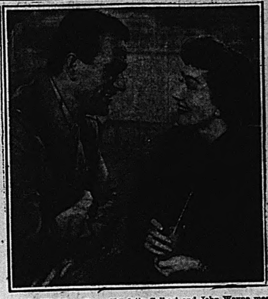
Residential Nurseries Should be Used Only For Orphaned Children

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Viscountess Alexander told a crowded meeting of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday that there are people in Britain "who believe a child is better in its own home, even being looked after by a drunken grandmother, than in a nursery where it loses its individuality and security."

"I personally believe very strongly that residential nurseries should not be used except where children have no parents," she said. "They leave their homes and when they go back to them their parents are almost strangers."

STOCK BREEDER DIES

Sarnia, Oct. 5 (CP)—A stock breeder whose heavy horses and race horses were known throughout Ontario and in sections of the United States, William Moore, 69, died yesterday at his home.



AT THE BELLE — Stars Claudette Colbert and John Wayne meet adventure and romance in Mervyn LeRoy's "Without Reservations." The sparkling comedy brings Miss Colbert back to the romantic field in as merry a vehicle as her prize winner, "It Happened One Night." Don DeFore heads the featured cast.

Cowboys Not Like Other Folk

Cowboys really are a race apart, Percy Waxman writes in the Christian Science Monitor. They don't look at things the way ordinary people do. They have ideals of their own, standards of their own, and almost a language of their own. In many ways, oddly enough, they are as temperamental as opera singers and you have to be most careful what you say to them and how you say it.

I remember once a freind of mine visited a ranch to help out during a spring roundup. One day she was out riding range with one of the boys named Slim Atwell, and as they went along Slim "read the trail" as you and I might read a book. He would point out some odd markings in a river bed and remark. "A tortoise crossed here." At another point he'd whistle, stop his horse, and casually say, "There's a mountain lion not very far ahead of us." And so it went nearly allday long.

Nose Out of Joint

On returning to camp that evening, my friend was bubbling over with praise of Slim. "He's simply marvelous," she said, "the way he can read signs on the ground." Slim grinned happily, but not Dogie Phillips, who also happened to be present. He just couldn't stand hearing another cowboy praised in his presence, and after supper he came to his boss and said, "I guess I'd better be quitting tomorrow," and when asked the reason, Dogie hung his head sheepishly and said, "Oh, I dunno. Nobody seems to like me around here."

"That's nonsense, Dogie," his boss said, knowing only too well what was wrong. "Just today I heard someone says that no one could cut cattle the way you do." Dogie's face broke out into a pleased boyish smile, and after a few more kindly expressions he decided to stay.

If there's one thing more than another that a cowboy dislikes, it's the idea of growing old. There was one named Ed Dogan who had been on the D. G. ranch in Arizona for several years. He couldn't bear to see his hair getting gray, so he used to make periodical trips to Phoenix to get it dyed. On one of these visits something went wrong, and the day after the barber had done his stuff, Ed woke up with a perfectly ghastly head of greenish-yellow hair. Back he went to the barber and had his whole head shaved.

Ate With Hat On

Later as he was on the return journey to his boarding-house, he met Clarence Budington Kelland, an old acquaintance of his. Bud invited Ed to lunch, but Ed politely refused and explained why he couldn't possibly accept. Mr. Kelland said that nobody at the lunch would bother him and begged him to come. So Ed Dogan went, and in the company of several distinguished guests of Bud Kelland's solemnly ate his lunch with his hat on.

Cowboys have a very picturesque way of expressing themselves and make use of phrases completely unknown in any but cow circles. Where they come from and how they originate is something for the philologist to discover. An angry man is said to be one who "just suls up," and if he gets "real mad" he is said "to go on the prod." One cowpuncher said of his companion that when they slept out under the stars, "Lenny just tucks himself into his bedroll, lays his head on the saddle and lets go with both nostrils."

Time is Unimportant

Cowboys have little sense of time. Nobody lives by the clock on a ranch, which may be the reason for the saying that a cowboy is "always a dollar short and a day late." They start work when the sun rises and quit when it sets. In roundup times, when there's plenty of action all day long, the boys get along nicely with each other. They're too busy for feuds or arguments. It is during the less active periods that they get on each other's nerves.

On a classic occasion two cowpunchers got into an argument about the day of the week. One said it was Friday. The other said it was Saturday. This discussion became super-heated so they made a bet on it. Then they saddled their horses and rode 35 miles to the nearest town to settle the question. To their chagrin they discovered it was neither Friday nor Saturday. It was Thursday.

They got so mad they never spoke to each other again.

Loves His Horse

In the movies, cowboys are nearly always represented as sentimental, romantic, devil-may care individuals, generally on the lookout for trouble or ready at the drop of a hat to twang a guitar and sing sad songs. Nothing could be further from the truth. The life of a cowboy consists of hard outdoor work under pretty tough conditions. Up long before sunrise, he's on the job, mostly in the saddle, till nightfall. His pay varies from $30 to $60 a month with grub, according to the type of work he does. No matter how high the wages, indoor jobs have mighty little attraction for a dyed-in-the wool cowpuncher. Life between walls is not for him and if his work doesn't mean having his horse with him, no amount of money will compensate.

A cowboy really loves his horse and is quite convinced that a good cow pony knows more than a man. Next to his four-footed pal, his most prized possession is his saddle. A saddle to a cowboy is sort of a badge of honor. He'll part with his boots, his Stetson, his money or even his best girl, but never his saddle. They tell a story of an Arizona schoolboy who, when asked to tell what he knew about Benedict Arnold, replied: "Oh, he was the man who sold a saddle."

To that boy selling a saddle was the last word in depravity.

CHAPTER 21.

"Oh, perfect," said Sather.

"Katty, why don't we have a ham now and then?" Guy asked from the head of the table.

"Ham next week. I have three," said Katty.

Everyone was saying the same things about Russia and China; "we don't really know anything," Isabel thought, feeling rather dazed by the warm air and the scent of massed summer flowers. Stock and roses, freesias—the house was full of the subtle sweetness of them, delicate and smooth, fresh as the languorous May night. Willis Kerrigan and she went out on the terrace for a few moments after dinner; there was no moon. Stars were throbbing brightly.

"I wish I was going to be on that train," Willis said unexpectedly. Isabel looked at him in surprise and distaste; she was too weary tonight, too puzzled and troubled, to start this sort of thing. He put his arm tightly about her.

"It's a pretty trying trip, now" Isabel said levelly.

"I don't think it would be," he murmured in her ear. "Come down in the garden, eh?"

After another second she sighed, disengaged herself gently, went back into the house again. Willis stayed outside, lighting a cigar. Isabel played some gin rummy with amusing, gossipy old Mrs. Tait; lost several hundred points, regained all but forty, and went home at midnight feeling herself the winner.

"Anyway, I won the last two games!" she reflected complacently, getting ready for bed. The foolishness, the emptiness of this consideration struck her, as she stood, in wrapper and slippers, looking out the wide-open window into the spring night, and she jerked her head impatiently, as if she could jerk herself free from her thoughts. "And I leave for New York day after tomorrow," she said aloud. That was something. Any trip was exciting, even now, under uncomfortable war conditions. There would be some man on the trip, a business or club friend of Avery's—not Salter, she hoped, but someone who would be glad to play cards with her and pay for her lunches. Or perhaps she would pick up a couple of young hard handsome marines or sailors and be a good big sister to them; in any case, the trip meant only one day on the train, with part of a day for starting, and morning arrival in Chicago. Then a change of trains and New York. Avery would have a brief leave; they would take in some shows. She could buy some cloths now. The point was to find exciting and worthwhile occasions on which to use these clothes.

To have been an English duchess a hundred years ago, in the golden age of crinolines and garlands of roses, of ringleted beauties swinging down long curved brightly chandeliered stairways to extend hands to the waiting adorers! Whom did one dress for now; Ronny Tait and Phil Harmon? Or fresh Willis Kerrigan, who had broken the hearts of two wives in turn?

Edna came upstairs with a telegram. It had just come. Avery objected to having messages telephoned, and sometimes in war years this meant delay. But this, Isabel noted, had been sent from some place called Port Washington, New York, and penned by Avery barely two hours earlier.

"All plans changed, leaving immediately, don't come, Avery," were its brief eight words. Isabel sat looking at it idly, one slippered foot tapping the floor, her lips pursed.

"Now what?" she said aloud. Nothing stirred in the handsome big room, with its ruffled rose-colored curtains, its old-fashioned rose-trellised wallpaper, its pink rose-patterned rug. There was no answer.

The children were gone and Yelta was gone, and Avery was flying somewhere across the world; happy in his work and in his uniform, and in the new silver bars on his shoulder. The house was very quiet.

Fong cooked marvelous meals, with little Fong Wah's help. Yeats served them perfectly. Edna kept the bedroom floor speckless, and old Mamie puttered about with bundles of snowy sheets; Isabel's stockings were always washed and rolled; fresh curtains were hung in the sewing room; the contents of boxes that came from the city shops were relieved of price tags, were pressed, were ready to put away.

When Fong was off for a day Fong Wah carried on. When Yeats wasn't there, Edna could fill his place. If Edna spent a day or two in bed with a cold, old Mamie took care of Isabel's rooms. Whatever happened, she never had to pick up a torn letter or empty an asn tray. Perfect service carried her on like a resistless river; do what she would, she could not be useful now.

The Latimer servants had many holidays; the "folks," as Isabel knew she and Avery were designated, were away a good deal; even when they were home they did not often lunch or dine at home. Having a perfect staff to care for them, it surprised Isabel that Avery so liked to go away, to friends' homes, or to any restaurant, resort, hotel, roadhouse that achieved a passing reputation for interesting meals.

Isabel mused on this curious fact; when there were two of them, eating at home was so comfortable! But she personally hated to have meals at home alone, with all the grandeur of candlesticks and crystal, heavy silver and exquisitely arranged flowers. When Yeats passed the sherried sweetbreads it was embarrassing to help herself to just a spoonful from the well-filled platter. It was even worse when she wasn't hungry and waved things away; no biscuits, no potato puff, no cake.

All this for one lone woman, a perfectly healthy young woman who had always liked to add the finishing touches to Aunt Mansie's dinners, making brilliant suggestions as to baking the frankfurters in rolls, frosting the gingerbread in rainbow colors, or garnishing the salads with nasturtium blossoms; it was simply silly!

Turkey, magnificently served sliced and smoking, by Yeats, never had the taste of those old turkeys in the Sutro's Mill kitchen, when Isabel had chopped the giblets for the gravy, and Aunt Mansie had put thyme and sage and onion into the dressing Pie was a drab flat affair at the Latimer table, even though Fong's pie crust was a marvel of flakiness.

Mrs. Hardisty's new Chinese boy Old Hing's nephew Young Hing, would have been installed in the kitchen on the hilltop by now, Isabel thought. Young and green and nervous in his white cottons, he would be taking her expert training gratefully, as the Chinese always did any learning. Isabel's small girls would be at home in the sun-flooded, eucalyptus-scented farmhouse, racing upstairs, dangling from porches, going wild under the big oaks. Their adored Esme would join their races and scrambles, would play house with them in the little tent and at the tiny table in the shadow of the windmill. They would all gather eggs; chase the one lone goose that lived across the road; share their suppers on the deep side porch.

And Madge would always be near. Madge cheerful and capable and independent, bearing her grief so well. Her little boy dead her husband dead; perhaps by now she would be giving Dennis her confidence, abruptly, briefly, incompletely, in her English way.

Dennis would sit by the fire listening, pulling on his pipe. He liked brevity himself, and he would not be human if he didn't like the nearness of an attractive sympathetic woman. She probably dined at the Hardisty's every night, and he walked home with her. Across the road past the little cottage hidden in dusty evergreens and hot crowding grape arbors where lived the Silvas, the Portuguese family who owned the lone goose, down the lane and around the turn where the fallen oak lay. There they would stand, Dennis and Madge, perhaps talking idly, easily of the children and the day's work, perhaps not talking at all. She'd be too smart to frighten Dennis with too swift an approach, with too intimate personalities. Her treatment would be brief and brusque and independent, no asking for sympathy, no bid for his confidences.

"Your husband was a doctor, Madge?" Dennis would be loitering at the fence rail, looking down at the moon-washed bay.

"No—head of Pentecost School. It's not one of the big one, but he would have made something unusual out of it."

"You were teaching there."

"I had the dreadful fourth form."

So admirable, all of it. The earnest teacher, the amusing young woman who managed the boys, the completely suitable marriage and the birth of a son Then war. Then John going away and the school closing and all England settling down, with England's own bulldog stubbornness, to face bombings, and fires, and evacuated London children, and long, slow, tiresome food shortage in the rubble and ashes.

Little Esme had been born just before her father left; little Johnnie had been killed. And then had come the telegram about John. Of course; they had all been killed, as Madge had said, the young brave fliers—one after another. All that so calculated to appeal to Dennis's sense of pity and admiration! And Madge's bluff philosophical repudiation of that pity and admiration would increase them all the more.

Dennis would not fall in love with her as he had while dancing with a blue-eyed girl in Sutro's Mill, six years ago. But companionship, and Madge's undisguised admiration, and propinquity would work their inevitable miracle just the same. They would come to depend on each other; perhaps they recognized that dependence now, perhaps they were planning their happy united future now.

"No, no, no," Isabel said aloud, when her thoughts reached this point.

There was too much time to think, these days. Walking home from some elaborate luncheon, her face flushed from rich food and hot rooms and eager gossip, wandering about the garden on a summer night, looking at the misty shafts of moonlight that slanted down through the oaks, and the pattern of the maple leafs on the terrace, laced and interlaced like finest cobwebs, insufferable thoughts came flooding upon her, and she could not hold them back. Now and then she would waken in the night, twisted with unbearable regret, And then she would hear her own voice:

"You fool! You fool! You fool!"

"D'you think," she said to gentle little Mrs. Watkine, whose husband wasn't ever coming back from France, and who spent her days lying on a couch in an upstairs bedroom, pressing a folded handkerchief to blue eyes always drowned in tears. "D'you think we get second chances in life? I mean—supposing one to have made a mistake. How much chance is there of starting over?"

Grace Watkins looked at her apathetically. She knew that Isabel was simply amusing her, trying to distract her, trying to get her to think, even for a minute, of anything but Owen; Owen who had lain in a faraway army hospital ten days, when she, Grace, had neither known it nor been able to get to him!

"You can always start over," she said. "My father made fortunes and lost fortunes all his life long. People were always thinking he was poor when he was rich, and rich when he was poor."

This was more than Grace had said in the last five weeks, and Isabel felt encouraged.

"What on earth was his business?"

"Oil."

"Oh, and which is he now rich or poor?"

"I think those last wells were nothing but dust," Grace said, vaguely.

"If I thought," Isabel said, "that I could get back something I've lost—even if it took years—if I thought that I could be loved, and needed, and busy, and—and respected again—"

"You have Avery. Oh, you can be together, you can kiss him, you can hold him!" Grace burst out. "If I could have one hour with Owen—one hour—"

"I know but Avery's overseas, too."

"Yes, but just on a medical inspection ......Isabel," said Grace, "with other things you can get back. People do. They wait and save and work—that's different. But when it's this way—like Owen and me— when it's forever—"

"I know. It's awfully hard."

There was a silence during which Grace pressed the folded handkerchief to her brimming eyes.

"You mean you lost someone, Isabel?" she presently asked.

"A baby?"

"No. No—not lost exactly. It's just—just that my small girls are with their father, will be with him a good deal now that he's home again," Isabel explained uncertainly.

"Oh, that. But you have your husband," the other woman said wearily.

"That's partly it. Trying to reconcile the claims of Avery and the children, too."

"Oh well, they'll grow older—they'll be off at schools. But Owen—Owen will never walk again, never run downstairs singing—never come home with theatre tickets and tell me that We're dining downtown!"

And for a while both women were silent, each one wrapped in her own sorrow.

"Yes, they will grow older, and go away from me," Isabel mused. "They won't be little very long. Catherine's getting so tall, she's taller than Pussy already— and they're mine—little shy Pussy and Catherine so bold and noisy—mine coming into my room in their nightgowns—mine running up and downstairs—living and soft and warm, mine. And I've let them go.

"There'll always have to be a nurse," her thoughts ran on, "and the nurse will always be quietly infringing on my rights to them. 'I didn't want them to disturb Mama. I thought we'd better not keep them up until you got in. I knew you and Mr. Latimer would be going away this weekend."

Going away for dinner, and going away for the weekend, and going to New York for five weeks, and going to Avalon and Palm Springs—always going away from them. Always kissing the small surprised little faces for good-bye, and buying the Indian dolls and tea sets and furry monkeys to make up for it.

There was no help for it. Even when she cancelled some engagement, and disappointed or even angered Avery, she couldn't very well settle down just to amuse Catherine and Pussy for days on end. There must always be a nurse.

One July day she was in San Francisco, ready for luncheon after a morning of shopping. She had had a long walk in the magnificent drapery department at Sloane's about upholstering two chairs, she had gotten the girls three dresses apiece at Schonwasser's, she had found just the right clip for a navy taffeta gown, and had sent home some clear crystal vases—old Mamie had been scolding about the vases. Shopping was exhilarating, especially when one found the things that were wanted.

But luncheon was another matter. There were long waits in hotel dining rooms nowadays, and at her club the noon hour was always one of fluttering and laughter and chatter and delays—clubs were the last refuge of shopping women, and the little tables were crowded from 12 o'clock until two.

There remained Townsend's counter; good food, and hot, and quick, when you finally got a seat. But usually the row of lunchers was backed by a row of women waiting to seize their places, and there must be an interval of watching some hurrying woman finish her club sandwich of cheese rarebit and eating her pastry with an actual air of guilt.

Where then? The glorious soft fogginess of the morning had given away to glaring sunlight and a harsh wind. Chaff and papers swept along the curbs; hats went spinning.

"It's cold," Isabel said aggrievedly. She stood hesitating. Solari's in the alley; that was the place. She could find a dark corner there and wait for onion soup would be a little more acceptable on this cold, windy summer day—

"Dennis," she said breathlessly, to the tall man who was standing just outside Solari's doorway. He widened his eyes at her with an expression of pleasure.

"Isabel," he said. "Were you—were you going in? Were you meeting someone?"

I'm not meeting anyone—" How to escape, how to get away, what excuses to make?

But after all, why try to escape? What could be more natural than to walk into Solari's and find the old table they knew so well, in an obscure corner? Isabel loosened her coat, laid her smart summer bag on the table, smiled across at him with an air of composure.

The Hawk and the Fish

By R. J. DEACHMAN

Come with me for a few minutes to Metis Beach. It's a brief period for so long a trip but in imagination one travels far in a short time. Metis is a little burgh, about four hundred and seventy-five miles north-east of Ottawa, perhaps fifty less as a duck flies, if a duck ever does fly straight. Now get your geography right. This place is situated on the south bank of the St. Lawrence about forty miles east of Rimouski which is the last port of call for out-going steamers on the St. Lawrence, the first place they touch on their return journey.

The town and its neighbor Les Boules is about three miles long and one street wide, with straggling houses on a higher level. The population is three hundred all the year round with perhaps seven hundred more during the summer season. People come here for a holiday, throw their worries to the winds, drink in the salt air, enjoy the sea breezes, the tang of Spruce and Cedar trees and then go back home feeling like a million dollars, to wonder ever after why they felt worth less.

Of course Metis Beach isn't on the sea shore; it's on the St. Lawrence River. Strain your eyes as you will you cannot see land on the other side. The tides come in as regularly here as they do on the ocean shore. The water is salt. There are gulls and fish and rocks. Shortly after sun-up the breeze moves in from the water and all day long you have a warm sun and a cool breeze, you feel very happy about it. Temperatures in the West were running from 90 to 97 in Ontario 85 to 90 odd degree while down there on the shores of the St. Lawrence, 50 and 75.

It is strange how quickly people in a place like this forget the troubles of the world—also their own. They sit and watch the moods of the river and the tides, they play golf, do it with enthusiasm, quite impossible in less moderate climates. They make side trips to other places, boats to the North Shore, drives in the country to other towns.

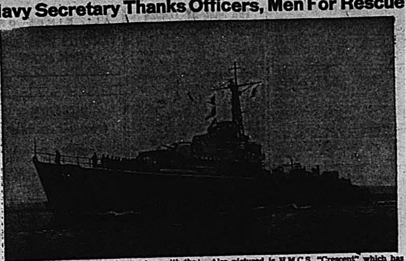
Agriculture, in the Gaspe,is a rather peculiar task. Spring comes late. There is little growth until about the middle of June, then it comes with a rush. In that way it reminds me of Northern Alberta. I stood in a garden at Metis a few days ago where rows of garden peas stood eight feet high, there were all the common vegetables and flowers, also small fruits and gooseberries, the largest I have ever seen, they looked like plums.

One day I watched a sea-hawk, an osprey I think, plying his trade. Never before have I been so close to one in action. At Metis there are two or three small islands lying a short distance from the shore. They are called the Boule Rocks, they shelter the waters inside the barrier and present to the sea-hawk a fine fishing ground. He patrolled his territory at a fairly low level, moving from side to side watching for fish. Directly opposite to me not 200 feet away he back-peddled in the air and came almost to a dead-stop.

He had seen something he wanted in the water below. He went up a little higher and still watching. I saw him stretch his feet out to full length, he flexed and unflexed his claws as you have seen a cat stretch its claws while sitting before a fire. Suddenly he moved out in a circle, straightened out, hesitated again, and then went down like a plane shot out of the sky, his body cutting The water like aknife. He was up again in a few brief seconds, a fish in his claws. There was something wrong, the fish may have been too heavy for the hawk or his grasp was not sufficiently tight, he flew at a low level finding it difficult to rise higher with the burden he carried. His hold weakened, the fish fell back into the water.

His temper was rising now, he circled again and again, hesitating from time to time in mid-air, turning his head on one side looking down. He stretched his legs, he opened his claws then he saw what he wanted and with more power in his dive because made from a higher level he flashed in and out of the sunlit waters, this time with a fish held tightly in his claws. Outwards he winged towards Boule Rock, again he dropped his fish but this time it landed safely. Once more he circled to see if there were enemies who might dispute possession. There were none. A fish which a few moments before seemed secure from almost every enemy but man became dinner for a fish-hawk. Security is not enough, intelligence is needed, without intelligence security is of little value to either fish or man.

Navy Secretary Thanks Officers, Men For Rescue



On a training cruise in Alaskan waters with the cruiser H.M.C.S. "Uganda," the Canadian destroyer, H.M.C.S. "Crescent" recently sped 400 miles into the Pacific from Kodiak, Alaska, to rescue 12 American sailors from a floating drydock which sprang a leak while being towed to Seattle, Washington, from Alaska. Also pictured is H.M.C.S. "Crescent" which has been in service with the Royal Canadian Navy for a year. She is of completely modern design, with radar-controlled guns, and her 40,000 horsepower engines can drive her at more than 35 knots.—(R.C.N. Photo.)

Esquimault, B.C., Oct.5 (CP)—Officers and men of the Canadian destroyer H. M. C. S. Crescent have received official commendation from the secretary of the United States Navy for the Alaskan rescue of 12 United States sailors from a sinking ocean drydock, it was announced today.

The 2,500-ton Crescent, in company with the Canadian cruiser H. M. C. S. Uganda, was on a training cruise in Alaskan waters when the incident occurred.

The war vessels were lying side by side in the fog-bound port of Kodiak. Suddenly, from 400 miles to the southwest, came the SOS message of a ship in distress.

It was the American tug, U.S.S. Apache, with a 5,000-ton wooden drydock in tow and 12 men aboard in difficulties on the high seas.

At the request of the U. S. Commander Alaskan Sea Frontier, senior ship of the Canadian group, Uganda, ordered the Crescent to proceed to the rescue of the sinkig drydock and the tug which was having difficulty keeping headway in a storm.

The Crescent, sailing at 30 knots, battled seas which stove in her forcastle lockers and battered the bridge. By noon the next day, however, the Apache, studying its radar equipment, informed the Crescent, "You are coming in fast."

The Crescent put out a boat and took off the American sailors. Afterwerds, a combined party of Canadian and U. S. sailors attempted to save the big ocean-going drydock, but it sank within two hours.

ATTLEE SENDS

Factors Behind

Behind Britain's deep concern over the presidential statement lay the following factors:

1. A feeling that Mr. Truman had affronted the British government by publishing the statement against Mr. Attlee's wishes.

2. A belief, often expressed in authoritative British quarters, that Mr. Truman's 100,000 figure for immediate Jewish immigration tends to become an absolute minimum Jewish demand.

British sources have suggested that, had Mr. Truman set no figure, the Jewish agency might have accepted a lower quota.

According to this theory, Mr. Truman's request has given the agency added courage to fight for goals which meet greater resistance from the Arabs. This possibly was what Britain meant when she said Mr. Truman's statement "may well jeopardize" current negotiations for settlement.

Fear has been voiced by both the Conservative press and by some government sources that Mr. Truman's statement might stir both Arabs and Jews to violence, complicating the already difficult problem of maintaining order in Palestine.

May Intensify Campaign

The Daily Mail said today that "Jewish Terrorists...are likely to regard this intervention...as a direct incentive to intensify their campaign of terror and murder.

"Arabs on the other hand, will have an acute cause for bitterness and it would not be surprising if the prospect of Mr. Truman's proposals being made quickly effective stirred them also to the point of violence."

Behind the whole issue lay the major consideration of Britain's strategic position in the Middle East.

Britain committed to withdraw from Egypt, has counted on Palestine as a centre for some military bases to protect the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean "lifeline."

The Labor Government is giving India her freedom, but the Indians are virtually bound by debt to trade with Britain and the lifeline remains essential.

The Holy Land is also a military consideration when Britain contemplates her oil fields in southern Iran. Thus Britain must avoid any Palestine explosion.

Hog Production Receding in West From 1943 Peak

By NORMAN ALSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Oct. 5.—(CP)—Western Canada's hog production is receding from the 1943 peak—largely, livestock men say, because of fluctuations in grain-growing—and the result may imperil Canada's effort to make secure her place in the United Kingdom market.

A decline in all livestock population in Saskatchewan has been recorded but swine tumbled to the bottom of the pile in statistics released this week showing the estimated hog population of this province in June at 757,000 compared with 1,006,000 at the same time a year ago.

Production, however, remains above that of 1939 which was the highest up to that date. Whether it falls into the doldrums of the early 1930's depends to a large extent on production of grain.

The unexcelled wheat crop of 1942 filled farmers' bins to overflowing. They were compelled to hold some of their grain and used it for livestock feeding, bringing about a large increase in hog production and marketing in the succeeding two years.

Experts say the primary jump in hog production came in the first two years of the war when the price relationship between pork and grain favored the former. The successively higher prices in meat contracts with Britain encouraged farmers toward swine production.

The decline began when grain prices became more attractive than those offered for livestock. The wedge was opened in September, 1943, when demand for barley and oats in the United States induced the Canadian government to make advance equalization payments of 10 and 15 cents respectively. Then grain prices were more alluring and it was not until January, 1944, that a premium was put an carcasses bringing livestock prices in line with grain. But experts say, the delay was enough to start the slump in hog production in Western Canada.

Psychology entered the decline picture when western farmers believed that eastern agriculturists were getting preference under an arrangement where the federal government paid the freight on feed grains from the Great Lakes to points in Ontario and Quebec.

EX-GOVERNOR PINCHOT DIES

New York, Oct. 5—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot, 81, twice governor of Pennsylvania and an expert on forestry, died last night in Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre here.

Mr. Pinchot, ill for some time, had been in the hospital for a week. He gained national prominence as a supporter of President Theodore Roosevelt's conservation program. He was chief of the Federal Department of Conservation under Roosevelt and President Taft.

Forecast End of Bread Rationing. In United Kingdom

London, Oct. 5 (Reuters)—Officials of the British baking industry forecast yesterday that bread rationing would end in Britain Oct. 13, the day on which the next four-week ration period begins.

HURRICANE SWEEPING TOWARD FLORIDA COAST

Mrs. Evelyn Dick Tried Separately On Murder Charge

Woman's Father, Bohozuk Will Face Trial Jointly

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 7. (CP)—Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, dark-eyed Hamilton beauty of 25 will stand trial alone for the March 6 "torso murder" of her husband, John, Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow ruled in Ontario Supreme Court today.

This was the trial plan proposed by the Special Crown Prosecutor, T. J. Rigney, and the woman's father, 68-year-old Donald MacLean will be tried jointly afterwards with William Bohozuk on the same murder charge.

Just what was inherent in this Crown strategy was not immediately apparent.

All three pleaded not guilty, said they were ready for trial and immediately the trial plan was decided, selection of a jury to sit in judgment on the widow of the slain Hamilton Street Railway tram operator got underway.

Mrs. Dick, whose presence attracted a large crowd to the courthouse for her arrival from the jail exercised 19 of her 20 jury challenges as the first 19 jurors were exhausted. Only five had been selected.

Groups Wait Outside

Mrs. Dick was alone in court, her father and her one-time friend Bohozuk, having left the court room when it was decided to proceed against Mrs. Dick alone.

Groups of people waited outside the courthouse in the hope of a noon adjournment glimpse of the young widow.

But they were disappointed. Arrangements were made for Mrs. Dick to have her noon meal in the courthouse.

The jury was selected quickly, with little trouble though the defence exercised 19 of its quota of 10 challenges. Selection took little more than 40 minutes and the court then adjourned until 2.15 p.m. The Crown indicated it would need a week to complete its case against Mrs. Dick.

Here, interest in the trial ran high. You heard it mentioned on trains coming into Hamilton. You could hear it talked of in restaurants.

The big query: what would the verdict be in the case of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, dark, good-looking widow of the slain man who came to Canada from Russia and earned his living as a tram operator.

And, though they had scant chance of a courtroom seat, many Hamiltonians planned on being about the courthouse door early, just to catch a glimpse of the 25-year-old accused widow as she enters the building.

Perhaps no trial has so stirred Hamilton as this case which last March was a 10-day mystery until on March 16 five small boys, out hiking, found the headless, limbless body of Dick on Hamilton Mountain.

In large measure it is still a mystery. But at that time Dick had been missing for 10 days and police were searching for him.

Unearthed Human Bones.

To this day there has been no word of his head, arms or legs being found. But at preliminary hearing of the accused last spring, police testified to unearthing human bones in ashes taken from the back yard of Mrs. Dick's father, Donald MacLean who is accused of the murder along with his daughter and her friend, ex-steelworker and one-time oarsman William Bohozuk.

Estimates on probable length of the trial ran all the way from a week to a month. For jury selection each of the accused was entitled to 20 challenges and the Crown had a total of 12. For this reason a large panel was on hand from which to choose.

One indication that the Crown has not yet concluded its probe of the case was seen in the fact the grand jury which returned a joint indictment against the three accused is to be recalled on Oct. 10. Just what they are to deal with specifically remained unmentioned but it was understood it had to do with the Dick case.

Many Newsmen at Trial.

Out-of-town newspapermen converged on Hamilton last night for the proceedings, coming from Toronto and Buffalo, while newspapers in Halifax and New York among other points placed orders for coverage.

Since their arrest a week or so after Dick's body was found, Mrs. Dick, her father and the 27-year-old Bohozuk have been held in jail here. They showed little emotion during their preliminary hearing with the exception of Bohozuk who called to newspapermen he had been "railroaded" when he learned trial of the three had been set for the current assizes.

At that time Mrs. Dick posed willingly for newspaper photographers, seemed almost to enjoy the limelight which had caught her.

Both Ignore Bohozuk

Her father, a burly, florid-faced man of 68 who, like the victim, was employed by the Hamilton Street Railway Company, sat almost without expression throughout the preliminary hearing. As witness after witness testified, the father and daughter ignored Bohozuk, not giving him so much as a glance.

Mr. Dick and Bohozuk face additional charges of murder in the death of infant Peter David White Maclean whose body was discovered in a suitcase which had been filled with cement and stowed in a cupboard in the house where Mrs. Dick lived with her mother.

Police discovered it during their search in connection with Dick's body, the same search which yielded the human bones from the back of Mr. MacLean's house.

Not Living with Wife

At the time of his death the murdered man was not living with his wife. She, with her small daughter, stayed with her mother while Mr. MacLean lived in yet another house.

Because of the smallness of the courtroom — it barely seats 200—Sheriff A. C. Caldwell ruled for exclusion of the public during the opening day when the jury is chosen before Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow. The 140-odd prospective jurors, courtroom officials and legal representatives of the Crown and the defence will more than fill the courtroom.

Selection of a jury, according to all advance reports, was expected to take up the first full day of the trial.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 7 —(CP)— Synopsis: Fine weather continues to prevail over most of eastern United States and Canada. The storm which was moving across northern Ontario yesterday has weakened considerably but is still causing considerable cloudiness and showers over northern Ontario. An extensive high pressure area over Hudson Bay and the Prairie Provinces is gradually moving eastward and causing cold air to move over Ontario. This is expected to result in somewhat lower temperatures in the forecast regions on Tuesday. An extensive area of rain covers the midwestern states with snow farther west near the mountains. The tropical storm off the west end of Cuba is gradually moving towards the southern tip of Florida.

Hamilton Plant Likely First of Three Plants to Regain Full Production

Hamilton, Oct. 7 (CP)—Indications were today that the Steel Company of Canada here would be the first of Canada's three basic steel plants to regain full production after settlement of the 11-week strike.

Workers continued to stream back to the huge Stelco plant which maintained partial production during the walkout through the efforts of more than 2,000 employees who did not join the strike.

It was learned the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) has not yet taken formal action against 192 union members who remained in the plant but it was understood that under the union constitution they had forfeited their right to membership.

One union official said: "They will be treated in the same manner as the others who stayed in the plant. Sooner or later they will have to join the union in their own interests." He did not indicate how the others would be treated.

Other basic steel plants are the Algoma Steel Corporation, Sydney, N.S. The back to work movement at Sydney struck a snag when the company told the union it could not pay the increase granted.

Under terms of the settlement strikers gained a 10-cent an hour increase with a further increase of three cents on their return to work.

SMUTS WARNS AGAINST CLEAVAGE OF EAST AND WEST

Deliberately Brings Up Matter in Order To Ventilate, Clear It Up—Urges Unity

Paris, Oct. 7. (AP)—K. V. Kisselev of White Russia asserted on the floor of the Peace Conference today that Yugoslavia had been insulted by a United States proposal during the drafting of the Italian treaty.

He spoke soon after Sen. Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.), had declared the United States would make no further concession on the Trieste issue and after Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, called on the Slav Bloc and the western powers to forget the "cleavage" between them because it "may bode ill for the future of world peace".

Kisselev asked the conference to reject paragraph four of Article 13 on the Italian Draft Treaty, guaranteeing equal rights to Italians living in sectors of Istria, being transferred to Yugoslavia.

He maintained that Yugoslavia already had given fundamental freedoms of human rights by her own institution, and termed the words of the guarantee "insulting, unjust and unfair".

More than 100,000 Italians live in the territory which the Italian treaty would cede to Yugoslavia. About 5,000 Italians live in the three small sectors going to France.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia, in Moscow since last Thursday, came into the red plush conference chamber at Luxembourg Palace when the session was less than three hours old.

The return of Mr. Molotov brought all the members of the Four-Power Foreign Ministers Council into today's conference.

J. A. Beasley of Australia, spoke for 30 minutes, asking the delegates to build a peace that would be lasting for generations to come.

Prime Minister Smuts told the conference he had been "struck" by the "consistency with which the Slav group and the western group voted against one another" in Commission voting.

"This cleavage may in time overshadow the work of the conference itself. . . We seem, in this moment of unparalleled victory, to be forming up into new camps of east and west. This would be a fatal divisioon."

Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Texas) told delegates the United States would make no further concessions on the Trieste issue and urged the adoption of Commission recommendations.

Senator Connally was the first speaker in general discussion on the Italian treaty as the conference went into plenary session under the chairmanship of Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain.

Senator Connally reminded delegates the outline of principles for the projected free zone had been backed by two-thirds of the Italian Political Commission and then added:

"It outlines principles without which no settlement is possible."

There were indications that the delegates would be compelled to sit day and night for the next eight days if they are to adhere to schedule and adjourn on Oct. 15 to avoid conflict with the impending United Nations General Assembly session in New York.

German Court Starts Proceedings Against 3 Acquitted at Nuernberg

Nuernberg, Oct. 7 — (AP) — Dr. Camill Sachs, chairman of the Nuernberg Denazification Board, announced today that proceedings have started against Franz Von Papen, Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritsche, but that no arrests would be made for some time.

All were acquitted by the international military tribunal of war crimes charges last week.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, one of three sentenced to life imprisonment, appealed to the Allied Control Council to change his sentence to death by shooting.

(Lt.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, in Berlin, said the council had no power to increase the severity of a sentence.)

The council decided to meet Thursday and arrange final details of the execution here of the 11 condemned German leaders, army authorities said. Tight secrecy prevailed.

Sachs said he could not predict the date of de-Nazification trials. Schacht was reported to have left for Stuttgart in the French zone after informing German police of his plans. Von Papen still is at the Palace of Justice jail. Fritsche has not yet received proper clearance from military government authorities and German police.

Mrs. Hermann Goering obtained admission to the Nuernberg jail, but no officer would say whether she visited her doomed husband. One officer said she talked only with the prison chaplain.

15 TO 20 PERSONS INJURED IN RIOTS AT GORIZIA FETE

Crowds Shout "Duce" Fail to Break Up Grape Harvest Observance

Gorizia, Venezia, Giulia, Oct. 7 (AP)—Bitter Italian-Yugoslav differences in this hotly disputed area were fanned today by an outbreak of violence in which 15 to 20 persons were injured yesterday during a demonstration of the pro-Yugoslav-Italo-Slovene anti-Fascist Union.

The trouble broke out when crowds shouting "Duce, Duce!" attempted to break up the demonstration, which had been authorized by the Allied military government as a "purely cultural" observance of the century-old Slovene tradition of celebrating the grape harvest.

Rocks, smokebombs and other missiles were hurled at the demonstrators in the worst display of violence in the Gorizia area since Aug. 9, when at least 30 persons were injured during a pro-Italian demonstration.

For a week prior to the celebration all demonstrations had been banned to decrease the danger of Slav-Italian disorders.

The disturbance was preceded by explosions which blew up tracks on the Trieste-Gorizia railway over which the participants in the festival were to travel.

The disorders in Gorizia began when several floats appeared in a parade illustrating "the sufferings of the Slovene people during the war." One, depicting a Slovene being hanged by two German S. S. men was greeted with Fascist salutes, catcalls and jeers. This demonstration was ignored by the 2,000 paraders.

Five marchers were struck down by missiles, but the parade, protected by the Allied organized Venezia Giulia civil police as well as military police of the United States 88th division completed its scheduled route.

DREAMBOAT ENDS FLIGHT OVER TOP OF WORLD

Proves Ability of B-29 to Defend U. S. Over Any Part of World

Cairo, Oct. 7 (AP)—The commander of the Superfortress Pacusan Dreamboat maintained today the big plane's 10,925-mile non-stop flight from Honolulu to Cairo via the Arctic Circle had proved the ability of the B-29 to "defend the United States over any part of the world."

The Dreamboat landed at Payne Field in the desert near here at 9:57 a.m. (2:57 a.m. E.S.T.) yesterday—39 hours, 36 minutes after the takeoff on a flight to test equipment in polar weather.

Col. C. S. (Bill) Irvine of St. Paul, Neb., pilot of the big four-engine Boeing and commander of its 10-man crew, said the flight had proved the Superfortress "would do its job" of defending the United States anywhere.

The Dreamboat had been stripped even of de-icing equipment to carry a heavier fuel load and had exhausted all except 400 gallons of its 13,000-gallon supply by the end of the trip.

But Col. Irvine told reporters the United States army's new B-36 was designed for a range of 10,000 miles with a load," he explained, "while the B-29 has a range with load of 7,000 miles."

(In Washington, Gen. Carl Spaatz, army air forces commander, said the journey had proved "the feasibility of a flight across the polar wastes by properly equipped aircraft" and had given valuable information on problems of navigation, engineering, communications, weather, fuel consumption and physical endurance.)

Closer Than Believed

Col. Irvine said the flight had shown the magnetic North Pole to be about 200 miles closer to the geographical North Pole than scientists had believed. When the plane passed north of the presumed magnetic pole, its magnetic compasses, instead of pointing south pointed toward the geographical pole.

(In London Sir Harold Spencer Jones, Britain's Astronomer Royal yesterday said that the Dreamboat's flight, strongly supported his theory that the north magnetic pole is about 200 miles north of the commonly accepted position. Sir Harold had based his conclusion in part on data compiled by R.A.F. bombers which flew over the North Pole in May, 1945.)

The plane was the most heavily loaded Superfortress ever to take off when it lifted 74 tons, more than half that in gasoline, into the air at Honolulu.

Flew Above Clouds

To escape icing conditions, it flew most of the way above the clouds and higher than its most efficient altitude of 10,000 feet, once going to 22,000 feet between Baffin Land and Iceland. With better conditions, Col. Irvine said, it could have gone about 1,000 miles farther to Khartoum.

Over Northern Canada, from Alaska to Greenland, the magnetic compass needle spun madly and Maj. N. P. Hays of Senca, Mo., navigator, fell back on a six-pound electrical gyro for guidance. Over England the weather was so bad the crew did not see welcoming R.A.F. planes, and over the Mediterranean there was a thunderstorm.

Plane Crashes Dutch School, Causes 9 Deaths

Apeldoorn, Holland, Oct. 7.—(AP)— A military plane flown low over the home of the pilot's mother crashed into the roof of a nearby school today, killing the pilot and eight school boys and seriously injuring at least ten others.

The flier's mother, a witness, died of a heart attack.

The plane was a single-seater Firefly. It struck a school hall in which 25 boys were doing gymnastics.

Witnesses said the pilot, Max Christern, was stunting over his parent's home when the plane's left wing struck the school roof. The left gasoline tank fell into the gymnasium and exploded.

Some boys ran from the school in burning clothes. Two leaped through a window into a pond and escaped. Soldiers from a nearby camp gave first aid.

The pilot's body was found some distance from the burning plane wreckage.

Four boys died en route to a hospital and four others died after arrival. A number of others and their teacher were in critical condition.

ALBERTA FARMERS DELIVERY STRIKE IS SUSPENDED

Talks Will Continue At Ottawa on The Demands for Parity Produce Prices

Edmonton, Oct. 7 (CP) — A heavy flow of agricultural products rolled towards markets and distributing centres today as leaders of 50,000 Alberta and Saskatchewan farmers announced the indefinite suspension of the month-old delivery strike for parity between farm costs and returns.

The strike, precipitated Sept. 6 by 20,000 members of Alberta Farmers' Union, who halted at midnight Sunday by the A.F.U. and the United Farmers of Canada, whose estimated 30,000 members confined to Saskatchewan, supported the Alberta farmers.

Meanwhile at Ottawa a joint A.F.U.-U.F.C. delegation continued negotiations with Federal authorities on union demands.

Today they will meet the Board of Railway Commissioners to discuss reductions in freight rates.

The delegation was sent to Ottawa at the request of Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who told the unions that the agricultural prices support board more than met their demands for establishment of a fact-finding board to set parity between farm produce prices and purchased by farmers.

President F. T. Appleby of Saskatoon, who headed the delegation with Carl J. Stimpfle, the A.F.U.'s farmer president, said Mr. Gardiner had assured the delegation, of representation on the Prices Board.

Pleased With Promises.

"We are pleased with the promises we have received from officials here and feel that they will, if implemented constitute a real stride towards advancement of western farmers," Mr. Appleby said in Ottawa last night.

The delegation will leave for the west Tuesday.

Many northern Alberta towns, which bore the main brunt of the strike, received their first normal deliveries of eggs, cream and livestock today since the strike got underway. Butcher shops and restaurants and some points had closed for want of supplies.

Main centres such as Edmonton and packing plants laid off more than 1,200 employees when livestock receipts dropped sharply.

More than 40 A.F.U. pickets still face police court charges as a result of sporadic outbreaks of violence during the strike. Convictions have already passed the 50 mark and the A.F.U. is appealing jail sentences against four pickets.

At the height of the strike the A.F.U. claimed it was receiving strong support from non-union members. However, the United Farmers of Alberta with a membership of more than 35,000 of all the 97,000 farm families, did not support the delivery strike.

NO REPLY FROM TRUMAN

London, Oct. 7 —(CP)— Informants at 10 Downing Street said today President Truman had not yet answered Prime Minister Attlee's last communication on Palestine and that the message "called for a reply."

Mr. Truman asked Britain Friday to open Palestine at once to "substantial" Jewish immigrations.

American Hangman Will Likely Execute 11 Nazis at Nuernberg Oct. 16

London, Oct. 7 —(CP Cable)— An American hangman probably will have the job of carrying out the death sentence on 11 Nazi leaders at Nuernberg Oct. 16.

This opinion was expressed today by British officials, who said they believed that the hangings will be performed by United States personnel already in the American zone of Germany.

These officials said there appears no support for a report that Britain's official hangman, Albert Pierrepont, will spring the Nuernberg trap, as no request for a British hangman has been made by the United States.

"However, if we are asked, undoubtedly Pierrepont will do the job as he is our star man for such turns," said one British official.

Pierrepont, 39, is a member of a family which has supplied Britain's chief hangmen for half a century.

His reliability, his quickness and neatness are the mainstays of his profession.

He does not discuss his "job," even with his wife, who is resigned to the fact that "some one has to do it." Pierrepont puts behind him each execution as it is finished. He does not like the job.

The other side of his life has been filled with first a grocery business, then pub, a happy home and dreams about the future.

Ironically, his best friend is a butcher. His customers and assistants insist that he is the nicest man one could meet "anywhere" — which might be disputed by some. An elderly Lancashire housewife commented: "I cannot see how anyone who deserved it could mind being hanged by Albert. He has such a lovely smile."

Storm Expected To Strike Tampa Area at Midnight

Evacuation of 2,000 People Begins at Poinciana Place

Miami, Fla., Oct. 7 — (AP) — A severe hurricane with winds over 100 miles an hour at the centre and gale winds extending outward 200 miles from the core roared toward the Florida coast at 15 miles an hour today after lashing the western tip of Cuba last night.

The storm will enter the Florida west coast between Fort Myers and Tampa about midnight and sweep northward through the state, the Federal warning service at Miami stated in a 6:45 a.m. (E.S.T.) bulletin.

The hurricane centre was placed about 140 miles southwest of Key West with winds of 50 miles an hour at Key West and 38 miles an hour at Miami.

Rain squalls which lashed Miami and the Florida - Keys throughout yesterday and last night continued today.

Hurricane warnings were extended northward along the Florida west coast to Cedar Keys and northeast storm warnings westward to Appalachicola, and on the Florida east coast northward to Fernandina.

Warnings Given by Red Cross

As the storm approached the Florida Keys, a fleet of Red Cross trucks, escorted by state police, rumbled over the overseas highway to bring out all who cared to leave their island homes for shelter in either Miami or Key West.

Residents of Key West and Fort Myers braced for the blow. Windows were boarded and disaster and relief workers were placed on the alert.

Others in the southern section of the necklace of islands stretching southward from the mainland to Key West were instructed by the Red Cross to secure their homes and boats and board busses for city shelters.

With the storm centre 140 miles southwest of Havana at midnight, the wind already had reached 60 miles an hour at Dry Tortugas, a group of 10 coral islets 65 miles west of Key West, and was increasing elsewhere.

At that time the Cuban town of San Julian was being buffeted by 112-mile winds.

W. O. Johnson, federal storm forecaster, urged the more populous areas of the rich 'Gold Coast' from Miami northward and the west coast above Fort Myers to remain on the alert.

Ominous black and red hurricane warning flags flapped over the area from Key Largo, forty miles south of Miami, to Key West, and along the Florida west coast to Fort Myers.

Dozens of airplanes flew northward to escape the storm, and two blimps scurried from the Key West naval air station to Glynco, Ga., to seek haven.

Small boat owners headed for protected coves and rivers. Pan American Airways cancelled all its Clipper flights to Havana, Guatemala and Merida, Yucatan, but its longer range schedules—the Panama Canal Zone and S. America — departed on schedule and sped around the hurricane.

Key West, Fla., Oct. 7—(AP)— Mass evacuation of some 2,000 residents of the government subdivision, Poinciana Place, began today as navy vessels put out to sea to ride the outskirts of the tropical hurricane which was lashing this tiny island city.

Gusts over 60 miles an hour were reported by the Weather Bureau, with a sustained wind of between 48 and 50 miles an hour whipping across the Atlantic and sending mountainous waves hundreds of feet inland.

The navy also opened emergency shelters and prepared to evacuate the complement of the Boca Chica naval air station.

Meanwhile, the city of Key West became virtually a deserted village, as residents kept vigil inside boarded-up homes. What few grocery stores that opened this morning reported a rush for canned goods, bread and candles. Schools were closed and the buildings used to house evacuees from less protected suburbs.

A meteorologist of the Key West Weather Bureau said indications were that the centre of the storm would pass to the west of here sometime around 4 p.m.

Circulation Of British Papers Sharply Higher

London, Oct. 7 (CP)—Circulation of Britain's national daily newspapers jumped approximately 1,500,000 copies in the first week of unrestricted postwar sales, the weekly New Statesman and Nation reported.

Surveying the newspaper circulation campaign on which new newsprint quotas will be determined early next year, the magazine concluded that unleashing the presses had proved the existence of "a general and previously unsatisfied public demand" for more morning newspapers.

The dailies now are being allowed sufficient paper to increase their four-page editions to six pages three days a week and to sell as many papers as the market will take on order. Proportionate increases were allowed papers like the Times and the Daily Telegraph which had been slightly larger.

Analyzing contents of the larger papers, the magazine said the additional pages had been devoted to features more than news and that the sports news had been given priority over "news of more serious import."

SKUNK IN BOILER ROOM SHOT AFTER TWO DAYS

London, Ont., Oct. 7 — (CP)— A skunk in the boiler room at the Prince Edward Hotel was shot by a Humane Society official today after it had kept the hotel staff on edge since Saturday.

COW RUNS INTO TRUCK

In collision with a passing truck operated by O. Sills of Roblin's Mills, a milch cow owned by Malcolm Wallbridge, Ameliasburg township, was severely injured Saturday morning, the animal having to be disposed of. According to the police report Sills had stopped his truck when he saw the cow on the road but when he started his vehicle the cow darted into the side of the truck.

OFFICIALS TO DISCUSS HOUSING PROGRAM

Heads of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ottawa, have notified city officials here that they will be in Belleville this week to look into the matter of a housing program for this city for 1947.

MAYOR, OFFICIALS TO ATTEND JOINT LUNCHEON AT LINDSAY

Mayor Frank Follwell and a number of city officials left today for Lindsay where they will attend a joint luncheon of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of that town tonight.

The function is a formal reception for the heads of all new industries that have been established in Lindsay during the past year and also present will be a number of high-ranking officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Accompanying the Mayor are Chairman of Industry Alderman Lorne McDougall; Chairman of the Industrial Commission, R. A. Pringle, and Deputy Chairman Harry Rollins.

NAME OF FATHER IS ARMOUR REID

Ernest Reid, one of the two young Canadians heading a photographic expedition into Tibet, famed land of legend and mystery, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Armour Reid, R.R. 4 Belleville, and not "Arthur" Reid as was reported in a recent edition. Mr. Reid, Sr., has been associated with the Singer Sewing Machine Company here for a number of years.

Ernest Reid left for New York on Saturday and will leave on the first log of the expedition from that city on Wednesday. He will be absent at least six months.

RESIDENTS URGED TO EXTEND FACILITIES

Realizing the acuteness of the light-housekeeping situation in the city, Mayor Frank Follwell today urged all residents who can do so, to extend any rooming facilities they have to the jurisdiction of the Rooms Registry office here of which Mrs. J. A. Kerr is the secretary.

Both civic and registry officials feel there are a number of rooms which could be utilized for the alleviation of a situation that is rapidly becoming desperate.

Motorist Faces Three Charges After Accidents

Michael Thompson of Hamilton will face three charges in police court this week as result of being involved in two accidents in the city and immediate district within a short period of time. Charges are leaving the scene of an accident, dangerous driving and drunken driving, the first charge being laid by the Provincial Police.

Early Saturday evening Provincial Police were called to Thurlow township on No. 2 Highway where Harold Cooney of Trenton, who was westbound, claimed to have been sideswiped by a vehicle going in the same direction. The other vehicle did not stop, but Cooney managed to secure the licence number and gave it to police.

Minutes later city police were called to Dundas Street West to investigate a motor accident, and found that a vehicle driven by Fred Carscallen, Bleecker Ave., had been in collision with another driven by Michael Thompson, of Hamilton. The Thompson vehicle had been proceeding on the wrong side of the road, police were informed.

Accordingly, Thompson was arrested on a dangerous driving charge and also for drunk driving, while the charge of leaving the scene of an accident was laid later when it was discovered the licence number of the Thompson car corresponded with that given to police by Mr. Cooney following the accident east of the city.

Falls Asleep at Wheel.

Two other highway accidents were reported by police over the weekend. Bruce J. Hamilton of Trenton was driving south on Highway 37 when at Glenn Miller he fell asleep at the wheel, his car crossing the road to crash into two parked trucks at the loading platform at the Glenn Miller paper company. Trucks and the Hamilton car were badly damaged but the driver escaped injury.

Hits Pole After Skid.

Early Sunday morning, James R. Sisler, Belleville, was driving north of Ivanhoe when his vehicle skidded and crashed into a telephone pole, breaking the pole and damaging the car. The driver escaped with only a slight cut on the wrist.

PLENTY OF POTATOES

Brantford, Oct. 7 — (CP)—One of the top potato growers of Ontario, Russell Gowman has so many potatoes he doesn't know what to do — for storage space. He has already harvested 30,000 bushels, or two-thirds of his crop. Fifteen people are kept busy 10 hours a day picking up the spuds which run 350 to 400 bushels an acre.

Obituary

LATE JAMES DONOVAN

Saturday morning the funeral of James Donovan, late residence, Cannifton Road, was held from the Corrigan & O'Brien Funeral Home, 30 Moira Street West, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. Le Marsh of Trenton. During the offertory Mr. Edward Buckley sang, "Pray for the Dead".

Interment took place at St. James' Cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell.

The bearers were Frank Edgar, Frank Wims, Edward Schreider, Cecil Lloyd, James Morey and Michael Smith.

MRS. FRANCES L. LANGEVIN

The funeral of Mrs. Frances L. (Hotte) Langevin, wife of Mr. Joseph Langevin, was held from her late residence, 269 John St., to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated at 11 o'clock by Hon. Captain the Rev. Father J. J. Collins of Barriefield. During the offertory Mr. Harold Barrett sang, "Nearer My God to Thee".

Interment took place at St. James' Cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell.

The bearers were Fred Stewart, Lacy Rathwell, John Welbourn, James Elliott, Gerald Clement and Alphonsus Black.

FREDERICK FLETCHER

Frederick Fletcher, 191 Bridge Street East, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning after an illness of six weeks' duration.

The late Mr. Fletcher was born 79 years ago on the 7th line of Rawdon township and was a son of the late Joseph Fletcher and his wife Julia Drewery. For many years he lived near Weyburn, Sask., south of Moose Jaw. He was a pioneer in that district and had large land holding devoted to the growing of wheat. Thirty-three years ago he returned to the east and since then he made his home in this city. He was well known to many citizens and enjoyed the respect of many friends by whom he will be much missed. He attended the United Church and fraternally he was a life member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123, A.F. & A.M.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Ida Spry; one daughter, Miss Blanche I. Fletcher, at home, and one sister, Miss Eliza Fletcher, Stirling.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street, until this Monday evening, then at his late residence, 191 Bridge Street East; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. PHILA ANN CLAPP
(Moira-Edmonton)

The following obituary notice of Mrs. Phila Ann Clapp, which appeared in an Edmonton paper recently, will be of interest to residents in the Moira and Belleville districts:

"Funeral for Mrs. Phila Ann Clapp, pioneer of the Edmonton district and active church and missionary worker since she came to the district 52 years ago was held Wednesday at the Howard and McBride funeral chapel. Mrs. Clapp died at her home at 11832 94 St., last Saturday.

Born at Moira, near Belleville, Ont., 83 years ago, Mrs. Clapp married George Albert Clapp, a descendant of a United Empire Loyalist family in 1883 and came west to Brandon, Man., the same year. Six years later they moved to the Clover Bar district and a few years later took up a homestead at Ardrossan. Mr. Clapp died in 1909 and his wife moved to the Norwood district in Edmonton where she resided until her death.

When she first came west, Mrs. Clapp assisted Rev. C. M. Tate in missionary work among the Indians of the district and while in the Clover Bar district taught Sunday School and assisted in the foundation of the Fairmount Methodist Church.

After coming to Edmonton, Mrs. Clapp was active as a member of the Norwood United Church and also of the Women's Missionary Society. She served for many years in the community as a practical nurse.

Until her death she was active in every field of church and social work.

Conducting the service at her funeral was Rev. Dr. W. T. Young. Burial was in the Fairmount cemetery at Ardrossan.

Surviving are two sons and two daughters; Mrs. J. M. Fawcatt, Nanton, Alta.; Mrs. V. I. Vance, Edmonton; Clifford Clapp, Edmonton, and Harold Clapp, Namao.

LATE MISS ELIZABETH RUSSELL

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Russell, late residence, 331 Albert Street, took place Saturday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street. The service in the chapel and at White's cemetery, Sidney township, was conducted by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bearers were William Donaldson, James Harry, John McEwen, James Weir, Walter Jackson and Vernon Weir.

St. Thomas, Oct. 7 — (CP) — The death on Saturday of a Royal Swan at Pinafore Park in St. Thomas brings the flock, presented to the city by the late King George V, down to one. The birds were numerous a few years ago but have gradually died from mysterious causes.

Police Offices At Ffankford, Marmora Opened

Two new Provincial Police detachment offices, one of Frankford and the other at Marmora, were established Monday morning, it was announced today by Inspector Harry Thompson at Belleville. The two new offices are being opened to permit of greater efficiency in the operation of the police department.

Provincial Constable J. A. Rogers, formerly at the Picton detachment office will be stationed at Frankford and will be responsible for the townships of Sidney and Rawdon and will also look after Batawa. The officer at Marmora will be P. C. Hector Gould, formerly of Port Hope. Constable Gould also served at Belleville in the role of patrol officer.

In other transfers within the Belleville district Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell who has been stationed at Belleville for a number of years, will be moved to Picton where he will act as general law enforcement officer and patrol officer for duty within Prince Edward county.

Transfers also include P. C. R. E. Dolochek, formerly at Belleville district headquarters, who will be stationed at Bancroft assisting P. C. Stan Palmateer, while P. C. L. H. Erskine, formerly of Bancroft, will go to Cobourg.

All provincial officers who were at Hamilton on strike duty are now back on duty at their respective offices in the district.

Fog banks sweeping in from the marshlands and lakes bordering the southern part of Prince Edward county created a dangerous driving hazard Sunday night to motorists returning to the city from that part of the district.

Low-lying spots along the Picton-Wellington highway were completely invisible at times as whitish mist suddenly settled down. Motorists were forced to travel at a snail's pace and in some cases halt at the side of the highway until the drifting fog lifted sufficiently for them to proceed.

The fog was not apparent in the higher places and near Mountain View disappeared altogether, although a slight haze was apparent all over the district.

Drug Store Owner Foils Attempt At Break-in

A Sunday morning break-in at Dolan's Drug Store was frustrated by Terry Dolan when he investigated a noise at the back of the store only to discover a youth attempting to turn the door lock after smashing the glass panel.

Jamming his hand in his coat pocket and mumbling something which sounded like "gun," the youth turned quickly away from the door when disturbed by Mr. Dolan and managed to make good a temporary escape.

Description of the intruder was given to police and a short time later a Kirkland Lake youth was found hiding near the rear of the Belvedere Hotel by P.C. Frank Sunderland. The youth was identified by Mr. Dolan as the party who had attempted to break into the store and a charge of breaking and entry with intent was laid by police.

Articles found in possession of the youth led Inspector Clair Hayes to believe that a successful break-in had been made at a local store and a check of local stores revealed the Kresge's store had been entered by the back door with a flashlight and some change from the till having been taken.

When he appears in court the youth will now face a second charge of breaking and entry with theft.

TAKES TURN FOR WORSE

Washington, Oct. 7 — (AP)—Walter Johnson, famous baseball pitcher, was reported in "very critical" condition today by attendants at Georgetown hospital. The former strikeout king, now 58, under treatment for a brain tumor since last April, had shown some improvement recently. However, he "took a turn for the worse" last night.

Building of Homes for Veterans Called No. 1 National Emergency By Angus McGinnis, C.C.F., M. P.

The building of homes in which veterans of the last war and their families may live is a national responsibility the same as the production of the war machines which made victory possible.

Such was the contention of Angus McGinnis, C.C.F. member of the House of Commons for Vancouver East, who in speaking to a representative gathering of local party supporters Saturday night urged that the government should provide leadership in the construction of homes. The present housing problem was rated by the speaker as being the No. 1 national emergency of today.

Quoting figures of the James Commission report which estimated that 750,000 homes were needed in Canada today to meet the current housing emergency, Mr. McGinnis, who for the past 15 years has represented Vancouver East at Ottawa, declared that it was not the shortage of building materials which was holding up house construction.

"If the government had applied themselves to remedy of the housing problem the same as they applied themselves to the production of war materials there would not be a national housing emergency today," he said.

He claimed that because private enterprise wants to get as much as possible out of each house built and for each door manufactured the result is there are comparatively few houses being built. Before the war 85 per cent of Canadian heads of families were in the "under $1,500" class and men in this salary bracket cannot afford five and six thousand dollar houses.

As result of the war the control of business is now more than ever in the hands of big business, according to Mr. McGinnis, and it is these very people who are foremost in urging the release of price controls and who talk of free enterprise—"so free that only the monopolies can engage in it."

Housing at Reasonable Price Rental

"The housing problem in Canada is far too important to leave to private enterprise," continued the speaker. "It is the duty of the government to see that veterans have houses at reasonable rents or at prices which they can afford."

In passing, Mr. McGinnis outlined the C.C.F. proposal for the government provision of low cost housing, a plan recommended to be carried out on a municipal basis.

In opening his remarks the Vancouver party representative asserted that the C.C.F. as a political organization had grown out of conditions in Canada, the same as new parties in Europe had grown out of unsatisfactory conditions there.

He likened the policy of the C.C.F. in Canada with that of the Attlee Labor Government in England which he declared was giving that country "good government" and which was about the greatest thing there is in the hope for a better world. Labor governments had been in power in Australia since 1941, and in New Zealand since 1935. The government of the latter country was known the world over for its social security program, he said.

Says Party Not Opposed to Private Property

Contradicting the assertion of other political parties in Canada that the C.C.F., if elected, would take away private property, Mr. McGinnis assured that his party was not opposed to private property. But he pointed out that national resources by which people live should not be private property. "The right to take away that by which we live, should not be the right of the individual," he stated.

Turning to economics the speaker pointed out that Canada had come through the war much better fitted to provide for the necessities of her peoples. Her productive capacity had been vastly increased, new skills had been acquired by her workers and her finances were among the best in the world.

This was in direct contrast to the depression years when if public works programs were suggested to provide work for Canada's vast army of unemployed the government lent a sympathetic ear but asked "where was the finance to come from?"

Not a Problem of Money Says McGinnis.

Provision of full employment and a national security for workers is not a problem of money, according to the speaker. This was proven by the fact that the sinews of war were delayed not one minute because of the lack of funds.

"Providing national security is merely a question of the will to do things. During the war we had a national objective; if we are going to perform miracles of production during peace we must still have a national objective, and co-operation of all is what is needed. That apparently is where the C.C.F. and other parties in Canada disagree.

"Other parties believe that the proper course is to permit each individual to look after his own welfare and interests. Even before the war there came a cry for government controls to be relinquished in order that the 'Canadian way of life' may be resumed. But it was these same people who were responsible for the last depression.

"Men who risked their lives in the last war cannot be driven to work through fear of hunger. They know now that it is no longer necessary.

"Men should stand fearless and unafraid, but should stand ready for co-operation with others. There must be patriotism for peace as well as for war."

Security of Living No. 2 Problem.

Security of living was given as Canada's No. 2 problem of today. In reference to old age pensions the speaker stated that no country with the Dominion's wealth treated its old people as "niggardly" as did Canada. And these are the people, he said, who laid the foundation for Canada's present wealth.

In the opinion of the C.C.F. the pension age of 70 years should be reduced and the present average pension across Canada of $25 per month should be increased.

"The necessities of old age must be produced when we are old. We cannot save for our old age. If all did that so much would be taken out of circulation that depression would come all the sooner."

New Zealand's Example

In conclusion Mr. McGinnis outlined the social security program of the New Zealand government which he said provided pensions at 60 with a generous means test; national superannuation; sickness provision, and special provision for those in dangerous vocations. All this was paid for out of a small income tax, and if this proved insufficient the balance was taken out of consolidated revenue.

Canada, with its much greater wealth and national resources, could do the same, it was claimed.

"Our one greatest tragedy of today is that when the country is so crying for production that our factories should be idle—that is not what we fought for.

"And these things will not be remedied until all the people assume responsibility by giving thought as to what goes on about us. There is a great work to be done—the job of preventing the next war—and if we fail the responsibility is ours."

Director of the local Trades and Labor Council Mr. Arthur Cole, acted as chairman for the evening, while appreciation of the gathering was expressed by Mr. Douglas Bews.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE

Kennewick, Wash., Oct. 7 — (AP) — Four children, alone in a small tourist cabin while their waitress mother was away at work, were found dead in their beds yesterday. Deputy Coroner Kenneth E. Derier said all were overcome by heating gas. The victims were Ethlen, 12, Donna, 10, Harvey, 8, and Harry Woods, seven.

Two Employees Of CPR Honored By Associates

The home of Mrs. C. Morgan, C.P.R. station apartments, was the scene of a dual presentation to two employees of the Canadian Pacific Railways on Friday evening when D. J. Blair, section foreman, and Joseph McEwan, chief clerk, were honored by fellow associates.

After twelve years as section foreman at Belleville, Mr. Blair, Church Street, has been promoted to the position of roadmaster at the Chalk River Sub-division with headquarters at Carleton Place. Mr. Blair was presented with a Gladstone bag by his fellow employees and friends, while Mrs. Blair was presented with a wall mirror.

Chief clerk at the C. P. R. freight office in Belleville for the past 26 years, Mr. McEwan has been retired on pension and was honored by his fellow employees and business associates in the city, including many of the local factories, with the presentation of a purse of money. Mrs. McEwan also received a handsome handbag.

James C. Allin, freight agent, acted as master of ceremonies for the happy occasion, while Dick Cameron, long a friend of the two principals, made the presentations on behalf of his associates.

Rev. H.B. Neal Accepts Call To Lindsay Church

Rev. Harold B. Neal, B.A., minister for the past eight years of Trinity-St. Andrew's United Church, Renfrew, Ontario, has accepted a unanimous call to succeed Rev. J. J. Black, B.A., as pastor of Cambridge Street United Church, Lindsay, one of the leading churches in the Bay of Quinte Conference of which Mr. Neal was president last year, and which has 425 families and 1,050 members.

Mr. Neal is a former chairman of the Renfrew Presbytery, and convener of the Home Missions Committee and an outstanding religious leader in the Ottawa Valley. He is a native of Port Hope, Ontario, graduate of Victoria University, Toronto and has held pastorates in Wooler, Campbellford and Belleville; and has been prominently identified with Religious Education enterprises, Boys' and Young People's Camps, Summer Schools and of the Bay of Quinte Winter School; and recently has given leadership in the "Deficit" and "Crusade for Christ" movements throughout the Conference, and been active in Masonic and Service Club circles.

Mrs. Neal was engaged in church work in Vancouver at the time of her marriage there. They have two children: Harold, Jr., a student at the University of Toronto and Gwendolyn, Physical Director at Belleville Collegiate.

It is expected that Mr. Neal will assume his new duties in mid-November.

Gordon Friesen Tells Experiences As Military Gov.

The Sunday School room of Bridge Street United Church was occupied on Friday by a large and interested audience when the Women's Canadian Club held its opening meeting for the Autumn, with the president, Mrs. B. C. Sisler in charge.

Having welcomed the members and friends of the club, Mrs. Sisler introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Gordon Friesen, saying: "We are very fortunate in having Mr. Friesen as our guest this evening. We are proud of his military promotions which he received through his achievements and we are honored because his career began in our local regiment, the Argyll Light Infantry."

Talks of Experience.

In opening his address, Mr. Friesen said: "I am glad to be back, and happy to be able to talk to you of my experiences in Germany as a military governor for an occupied district. We did not take on these important duties without preparation. We spent months taking special courses, but at length on April 1st., 1945, arrived in Germany after having crossed Holland in a 3-ton truck, which was not too comfortable as a mode of conveyance.

"In reality we followed the army and in one instance came very near to, in fact actually saw some real action; being finally posted near the site of a well-known medical college; the office of military governor offered a large scope for activity and a corresponding number of responsibilities, including the religious life, education and public health of all misplaced persons (most of them brought to Germany for forced labor) in one large district. There were 1400 Russians, 1200 Poles, numerous French, Belgians, Jews, Slavs — and no natural resources at hand to help in securing supplies and solving problems; for here we found only devastated farms, bombed homes, no crops and all cattle lost. The people who after the capitulation of the German army had been completely stunned, later became drunk with liberation and in some cases with alcohol too.

Gov't. Established.

"A form of democratic government was established making a German army barracks a "centre" for displaced persons," said the speaker. "It was necessary to have an "overseer" to enforce obedience. A trustworthy looking Belgian was chosen, and to assist him a constable for each nationality.. i.e., a Frenchman for the French persons; a Russian for the Russians, etc. In order to have some sort of natural existence in the 'centre', church services were conducted, entertainments provided, schools opened and hospitals operated. To make sure that all were unarmed it was necessary to search all new arrivals, as more displaced persons continued coming, especially to the barracks set aside for the Russians, until the place was overcrowded. The Russian women were less clean than those of any other nationality represented; the Dutch women being the cleanest of all.

Lived in Fine Home

Moved to another town, Mr. Friesen and his assistants, three British officers and one Canadian, lived in a home formerly owned by one of high ranking Nazi officers.

Here, again a skeleton democracy was put into operation, basing the choice of officials upon their integrity, but it was often found that even the priests could not be trusted. The Germans have no understanding concerning democratic government. Under a totalitarian regime they had lived in a fools' paradise, believing in the power of Hitler and of the super-race. While Nazism began with a religious appeal, it was definitely anti-Christian and its teachings opposed all Christian philosophy. They mocked at religion, and eventually closed the churches. The Nazi creed was "I believe in Hitler as my god." It was this opposition to everything religious that made the German people so cruel and sadistic. In this district are established 112 schools with 159 teachers, 11 hospitals with 2400 beds, and a modern sanitarium —100 industries were opened for the manufacture of much needed supplies. Banks were opened, and telephones installed, and a court established to watch the working of the German administration.

Not Always Good Example.

In this kind of situation the officers of occupation should be ambassadors for the better way of life to which we are accustomed," said Mr. Friesen. "We should stand on a level with the missionaries who go to other lands, but I must acknowledge that British and American soldiers did not always set a very good example.

"To my idea there is no fundamental difference between Russian Communist and the German Nazi, the same evils are found in both countries and the peace-loving nations must form a bloc to prevent any form of aggression. In Russia might is right. Democratic nations must be prepared for war to avoid war. To dispense with selfishness and greed let us introduce a Christian philosophy and let us not overestimate the importance of the material aspects of life. Where parental influence in Germany continued stronger than Nazi teachings, there are still good children, but these are the exceptions that prove the rule."

Mrs. Sisler expressed the appreciation of the club for this instructive address.

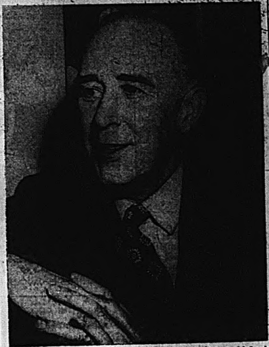
World-Renowned Mining Magnate Is British Columbia's New Governor

Charles A. Banks, mining chief whose interests range from Arabia to Alaska and who has spent years of his life moving from one continent to another, has accepted the lieutenant-governorship of British Columbia — the province to which he came after serving with the Royal Engineers during the first world war. This quietly-spoken, clean-shaven man with shrewd face and keen eyes sought and found adventure in British Columbia and today is one of the province's most distinguished and wealthiest residents.

During the last great war Mr. Banks was installed in Canada House as the United Kingdom's representative of Canada's department of munitions and supply. He divorced himself almost completely from his routine as an officer and director of half a dozen important gold corporations for the simple reason both he and Mrs. Banks were too busy in London.

Mrs. Banks, born Jean de Montalk in Paris, is now back in British Columbia after doing voluntary war work in Britain during the grim days of the war. She was one of the hardest working Canadian women in Britain during the battle against the Nazis and help found the United Nations club in London. War work, however, is an old story with Mrs. Banks for she also worked in London during the First Great War with various women's army auxiliary corps. She met her future husband while he was a struggling young engineer with lots of ambition but limited prospects. At that time Charles Banks was associated with several mining enterprises in British Columbia, until one day he became associated with William Addison Freeman of Australia and thus familiar with the South Pacific, and Freeman became fascinated with a story from New Guinea of a fabulous gold mine which could not be developed because of the difficulties of coastal jungle. They conceived the idea of using huge transport planes, flying in the necessary men and machinery to work the mine, and thus brought out the gold. Their efforts were rewarded in the successful development of the great Bulolo Gold Mines which was the beginning of many other important gold dredging projects. How successful Mr. Banks has been in the mining field can be shown by the vast interests he has in New Guinea, South America, Australasia, Canada and the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Banks have lived in many places which include Vancouver, London, Australia and San Francisco as well as the far-off places where Mr. Banks has his gold interests. Today they are back in their native British Columbia, Mr. Banks to take over his duties as lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Banks to serve by his side.



Shown here in this study is Charles A. Banks, mining chief, who becomes the lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, succeeding Hon. W. C. Woodward who is retiring.

Louis Bercovitz To Serve Prison Term for Slaying

Montreal, Oct. 7 (CP)—Louis Bercovitz will serve a prison term for manslaughter in the slaying of Harry Davis, Montreal gambling overlord.

A jury found the 32-year-old racketeer guilty on the lesser count Saturday night after a five-day trial on a charge of murder. Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure will sentence Bercovitiz October 29.

The defendant had admitted on the witness stand that he shot Davis July 25 in his gambling house in central Montreal. Claiming self-defense, Bercovitz said he had heard he was blamed by Davis for a bombing attempt on another gambling place, that he was 'on the spot" and American gangsters were being imported to "get" him. He went to see Davis about these reports, Davis threatened him and drew a gun first.

The Crown contended there was no provocation and that Bercovitz used the rumors about himself as an excuse to visit Davis. Crown witnesses said Davis was not in the habit of carrying a gun. Mr. Justice Lazure in his charge told the jury: "You must look over the facts and then apply the law to the facts as you see them. . .if you believe Bercovitz was provoked into the attack, you have the right to reduce the charge from murder to manslaughter. . . .if you decide that Bercovitz shot Davis in self defence, you must acquit."

Bercovitz took the verdict calmly, looking straight at the jurors. When the judge announced the date for sentencing, he bowed and left the dock between two policemen.

As diamonds and grease have an affinity, diamonds are obtained by washing the crushed rock from the mines over tables of grease, to which only the diamonds adhere.

17 Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Eleven deaths in Ontario and Quebec highway mishaps during the weekend helped swell total accidental fatalities in Eastern Canada to 17. Of the other six deaths, three were from various causes, two resulted from shooting accidents and one person drowned.

These were figures compiled from reports to The Canadian Press. They showed 10 of the eleven highway deaths were in Ontario and the other was at Montreal.

One double fatality was a few miles east of Midland, where Arthur Robillard, 35, and Peter Gragelle, 73, both of Penetanguishene, died in the flaming wreckage of their car after it left the road in fog, careened into a ditch before snapping off a hydro pole and burst into flames.

At Cornwall, Brian Barry, 11-year-old newsboy, was struck by an automobile and thrown from his bicycle to the pavement. T. J. Garno, Ogdensburg, N.Y., has been charged with manslaughter as a result.

Dennis Henry, seven-year-old Hamilton boy, died in hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by a truck as he alighted from a bus.

Douglas McLean, 26, of St. Thomas, was killed at Ingersoll, when the borrowed car he was driving, failed to make a turn and crashed into a service station. One passenger was seriously injured.

Went Out of Control

Douglas Armstrong, 20, of Beaverton, was struck and killed near his home when an automobile in which his father was a passenger went out of control and crashed into him. At Niagara Falls, Mrs. Clara Lake, 36, who was seriously injured Sept. 24 when she walked into a moving car, died in hospital Sunday. Mrs. W. E. Pakenham, 61, died in an accident near Port Hope, and Charles W. Robertson, seven, at Coldwater, as he returned home from Sunday School with his brother.

In a ditch outside Tilbury, police found the body of Constant Van Luncker, 65, apparently killed in an automobile accident. He suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs, lacerations and other injuries. At Montreal, Helen Cardinal, 20, died in hospital a few hours after she was struck by a car on a downtown street.

Died Reaching Door

William H. Wheeler, 30, died at Sarnia, en route to hospital after police found him unconscious in a smoke-filled room. The mattress of his bed was ablaze and he apparently died in a futile attempt to reach the door.

Dr. Maud Maxwell Vesey, prominent writer, was another fire victim. She died in hospital at St. Stephen, N.B., from injuries suffered when her clothing caught fire in her home.

A Quebec City, Ray Hemond, 20, was killed when he fell from the deck of a steamship into the hold. A coroner's inquest decided death was accidental.

Mary Christine MacLean, 18, carrying a shot gun to kill a rat, instead had the gun discharge in her hands and kill herself.

Albians Butler, 24, whose home was near Buckingham, Que., was shot through the heart when another hunter mistook him for a deer.

The only drowning accident took the life of William Sullivan, 19. He fell from a ferry dock at Desjardinesville, opposite Pembroke, Ont.

Gullible Americans Fete Village Youths

Lagos, Nigeria, Oct. 7 (CP) — Imaginative African village boys, capitalizing on American regard for exotic titles, are living the life of Riley in the United States on the strength of nothing more than an assumed princely rank, a convincing tale of fabulous wealth and a European-made suit.

West African villages have heard with amusement and delight of state-educated village youth who attended banquets in Washington, kept notable citizens waiting and wore stove-pipe hats at the table like crowns.

An enterprising young Nigerian who recently visited America, vested himself with the title of 'Prince', claimed to be ruler of the "Kingdom of Nnewi," and gave an interview to Afro-American magazine.

In the interview, the "Prince" said his family had ruled for 600 years, during which time they had produced 13 kings. Both his father and grandfather were said to have had nearly 500 wives, and the daily cost of supporting the household was in the region of £1,000 ($4,000.) The father's fortune was estimated at £125,000,000.

This may have been news in America, but it was a bombshell in Nigeria.

To those who knew the prince's father as the headman in a small Ebe village in the Onitisha province, paying less than £3 per annum tax, and living in a mud hut, the report caused neither mirth or indignation.

For the Onitisha Province is intensely democratic, and with very few exceptions, no chiefs exist. A headman is a village councillor, and elected by vote.

His duties consist of petty village administration which is discussed with the district officer, and limited powers in cases of native law and custom.

The possessions of the average headman are a handful of goats and sheep, and an annual income rarely exceeding £20.

Crusaders' Cavalcade To Visit Here 5 Days

The Crusaders' Cavalcade, a pictorial presentation of the United Church of Canada in action, will be held at Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, from October 12, to 16. The Crusade is intended to emphasize Christian Stewardship by depicting the world-wide work of the United Church and the challenge of the need for the dedication of life and possessions to the service of God. The exhibit consists of electrified models, illuminated transparencies, artistically painted panels, pictures, maps, charts, curios of eastern lands, moving pictures in sound and color, and other interesting features. The exhibit was made by some of the best display artists in Toronto and is modern in every particular. A staff of missionaries will accompany the cavalcade to explain the various exhibits and to share in the meetings to be held in connection with it.

Leaders of the United Church including Rev. D. G. Ridout, D.D.; Secretary of The Missionary and Maintenance Dept.; Rev. Manson Doyle, D.D., Assoc. Secretary of Christian Education; Rev. James Semple, representing the Board of Evangelism, and others will be present. A special C.G.I.T. rally will be held at 4 p.m., on Saturday, October 12. In the evening of the same day, the exhibit will be open to the public. Sunday will be featured by visiting speakers and a fireside hour. On Monday, Rev. Anson Moorehouse and Rev. Manson Doyle will be heard, the program to conclude with a youth rally in the evening. A program sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society and the Woman's Association together with an address from Dr. James Semple, Peterborough, will feature the Tuesday program. On Wednesday, the exhibit will be open to the public at 2 p.m. and there will be a conducted tour by the Rev. D. G. Ridout. This will be continued in the evening and the Cavalcade will be brought to a close with a missionary rally with Rev. Dr. McClure, the speaker. A coaching conference in which visiting speakers will take part, will be held at Madoc on Friday, October 11.

LOST ON ROUTINE FLIGHT

St. John's Nfld., Oct. 7 (CP Cable)—A United States army C-68 Norseman with three passengers aboard was lost Saturday while on a routine flight between here and Gander. A search party reached the crash and found two injured and the other missing. An investigation is underway into the crash of the single-engined plane, third in Newfoundland in three weeks.

KILLED IN CRASH

William H. Westerfield of Long Island, N.Y., who was pilot of the Berlin-bound American overseas airliner that crashed near Stephenville, Nfld.

Miss Margaret Ann Burleigh, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who was Stewardess aboard the American overseas airliner that crashed and burned near Stephenville, Nfld., carrying 39 persons to death.

Amplifier Used To Record Words Of Complainant

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 5 (CP)—An assize court jury last night acquitted 23-year-old David Descheries on a charge of rape after a trial in which the complainant figured in a series of unusual incidents.

When the trial opened, the girl was not present and bench warrant was issued to bring her to court. The hearing was delayed by the installation of an amplifier system in the witness box so her low-voiced evidence could be heard by Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson and the jury. Finally, during defence counsel's address to the jury late yesterday she was ordered to leave the courtroom when she jumped up and shouted "it's a lie, it's a lie" at one stage of the argument.

Tragedies by Fire

One of the great tragedies so forcibly brought to the attention of the public is the loss of human life through fire, especially of child life. The Dominion Fire Commissioner's statistical report of fire losses for Canada in the ten years from 1936 to 1945 shows that 1,231 children have come to their death by fire. The figure for 1945 of 146 is lamentable. The facts in the cruel fate of these children stand out:

Twenty-one children died when their homes caught fire in the absence of their parents.

Ten died as a result of playing with matches.

Seven were burned to death when their clothing caught fire, became ignited from stoves.

Eight received fatal burns when gasoline was used to light the fire; and fourteen when kerosene was similarly used.

Fourteen died when trapped in burning buildings and ten more by smoke and gas suffocation. And the gruesome story goes on until the total of 146 is used up.

This raises the attention of the public to the responsibilities of parents in seeing that their children are safeguarded and protected from the cruel enemy fire. Accidents will happen and that fact makes all the more insistent the need for the utmost precautions to guard the young.

Such loss is irreparable. Not only families and communities are the loser but the nation to which young children are of the utmost importance. They are the citizens of the future and a loss of no fewer than 1,231 in ten years is the equivalent to the loss of a really large community in a decade. The average for a year is that of a good sized community. If such a community were destroyed in any other way its fate would stir everyone.

Irreparable Loss

This nation's fire bill in 1945 was made up by 52,173 fires for property losses of nearly $42,000,000 excluding $9,867,000 in government properties. The death toll was 146 children, 159 men and 86 women.

Smokers' carelessness caused damage of $2,286,430. Defective electric wiring and appliances caused damages of $3,813,153, while fires from unknown causes brought a loss of $18,686,000.

Canada's fire loss is growing. In 1945 it was almost one hundred per cent higher than it was ten years ago.

Of the total property loss approximately 25 per cent was uninsured and this at the time of shortages of all kinds represented a total loss.

Adding to these losses was a forest fire loss of more than three million dollars.

Without fire civilization would not exist and yet it is one of the greatest destroyers of the modern world. It heats homes and plants, and also destroys them. It creates heat necessary to life and yet it destroys life.

What does a fire mean? — ruined homes and plants, destruction of merchandise and shelter, unemployment, lost profits, and human lives forfeit.

Wreck Dispersal

The United Kingdom Royal Navy is in the midst of one of its most ambitious tasks, that of clearing the seas around Britain's coasts of the numerous ships sunk there during the war. Though the Nazis failed in their attempt to stifle the shipping of supplies to and from the British Isles, they sent wreckage to the bottom of the sea which still endangers vessels now plying these waters.

Some of the hulks have been salvaged for the metal they contain. Others have been refloated, towed in, and made fit to sail again. Most of this salvage work is now completed.

The longest job remains — destroying those wrecks which cannot be extracted or are not worth stlvaging. These must be disintegrated by high explosives, a dangerous task for the men of the Admiralty's Wreck Dispersal Department. Divers descend to the hulks to pack them with T.N.T., the explosion is set off, and the skeleton is finally laid, its danger to commerce over. A surveying vessel next examines the seabed to report on the success of the destruction, and the news is passed on to mariners all over the world.

Britain's salvage ships and craft now comprise the largest fleet available anywhere, chiefly as a result of the necessity [illegible] for Allied shipping all over the world during the war. Bases were organized in the United Kingdom, Iceland, the Faroes, the Mediterranean, Africa, India, and the Pacific. Differing conditions called for differing equipment, since the problems of salvage in the Arctic, for instance, are unlike those in the Indian Ocean. In many waters there are tides to assist in lifting and removing wrecks. In the Mediterranean, where tides do not occur, other methods of lifting must be substituted.

The Salvage Department of the Admiralty includes a large number of skilled and experienced personnel, men who had their apprenticeship raising vessels sunk at Tripoli, Naples, Cherbourg, Dieppe, and other ports of northwestern Europe. With their modern equipment developed out of war necessity, they are able to undertake any kind of marine salvage work anywhere in the world.

British Newspapers

British newspapers have faced trying conditions during the years since the war began. One London daily with a circulation of 3,405,135 copies daily, is a sheet of four pages. Into that space are crowded news, editorials, fashions, sports along with advertisements, including government priority notices about food and clothing advertisements. Huron Expositor of Seaforth notes that it takes about a week's supply of the London daily to light a fire. "And over there it is still necessary to take a page or two for the fishmonger to wrap fish in or to the butchers to wrap the meat supply in, because wrapping paper is very scarce and is not supplied."

However with characteristic enterprise the British newspapers have a powerful appeal under the handicaps of war and the period following.

Air Tragedy

Death still rides the airways. The latest Newfoundland disaster, claiming the lives of two score Berlin-bound passengesr and crew, is peculiarly shocking because of its juxtaposition to the Gander crash.

It is unlikely, however, that it will act as a deterrent to air travel. Statistics and personal experience have convinced most people that the sky-ways are today safer than the highways.

The public, plane-preferring and earthbound, will await with keen interest the findings of the inevitable official inquiry, hoping that they will indicate ways of widening the present margin of safety.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

LITTLE FELLOW

Just a little fellow, romping in and out.
Hasn't started wondering what life's all about.
Hasn't yet met worry; hasn't had a care.
Thinks, or so I fancy, fun is everywhere.

Just a little follow, boasting: "Seven am I!"
Hasn't yet descovered how the years race by.
Filled to brim with laughter; only hurts he feels
Are the ones that mother very quickly heals.

Just a little fellow, sleeps the whole night through.
Never tosses, restless, as the grown-ups do.
Hasn't looked at evil. Wish he never would!
When he thinks of people, fancies all are good.

Just a little fellow! Romp the while you may.
Go it, helter-skelter! Laugh the hours away.
Age is fraught with heartache; care and worry, too.
Happy little fellow, play your boyhood through.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Oct. 7 (CP) — Sales discussions with traditional buyers of Canadian wheat, other than Britain, are expected to take place shortly but the quantities Canada will be able to supply them likely will be small, despite this year's bumper crop.

The Dominion harvested some 440,000,000 bushels of wheat this year but not all of this will be No. 1 wheat and not all of it will be usable for human consumption. A percentage, just how much is not yet known, will have to be classified as feed because of its poor quality and deducted from Canada's food supplies.

Added to this is the fact that the Dominion ended the 1945-46 crop year with a carry-over of some 70,000,000 bushels, one of the lowest carry-overs on record and the lowest point to which she could go without being in a dangerous position as to domestic supplies.

The new crop, plus the carry-over, brings the total wheat supply to approximately 510,000,000 bushels but from this will have to be deducted 175,000,000 bushels for domestic consumption and another 85,000,000 as a safe margin for the 1946-47 carry-over.

That will leave some 260,000,000 bushels available for outside customers. Britain will take 160,000,000 bushels through the new Anglo - Canadian wheat agreement, leaving possibly 100,000,000 bushels. However, Canada has other flour commitments totalling some 50,000,000 bushels, so a bare 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels will be all that will be left for shipment to other customers.

Official sources here say Canada had been under considerable pressure to supply more wheat for food-short countries because of an impression that her bumper crop gives her more wheat for export. Actually, however, she may end up by shipping less than she did last year.

The bumper crop harvested in Britain this year may relieve the situation somewhat if she is able to reduce her imports and make greater use of her own crop.

Conference: Labor Department officials are busily thrashing into shape a model, labor code which will be put before a Dominion-Provincial Labor Conference scheduled to open in Ottawa October 15th.

The conference, called by Labor Minister Mitchell, will be attended by labor ministers of the provinces and will consider primarily what the future is to be of the Wartime Labor Code which marked the first introduction of collective bargaining on a compulsory basis.

C.C.L.-T.L.C.: Labor circles are watching with keen interest for the next move toward unity between Canada's two major labor organizations, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The C.C.L. has long been urging closer co-operation between the two groups, which jointly have a membership of more than 600,000. General opinion in the past has been that the T.L.C. was the more hesitant to take such a step but at its recent Windsor convention the T.L.C. gave unanimous support to a resolution advocating the establishment of a Central Labor Council which would enable the congresses to collaborate on matters of mutual interest.

Just what the next step will be is not yet clear but there are hopes in some quarters that it may mark the first move towards unity in the ranks of labor.

WHATEVER BECAME OF RESISTANCE?

I have learned that it is a bad policy to flatter laymen about their extraordinary medical knowledge or understanding. Some laymen take it without losing balance, but others can't.

I am reminded of the harmfulness of such flattery of the Wiseacre layman whenever a reader knocks the breath out of me, as the reader apparently thinks, by telling me that of course Stefansson and his companions in their lonely Arctic life, did not catch "cold" because they had resistance to protect them. Or sometimes the Wiseacre varies the words but not the music, to say that of course the lumberjack, the fisherman, the hunter, the soldier, the sailor or the surveyor, exposed to the bitterest cold and wet, did not catch "cold" because he was "hardened" to it.

A hundred years ago these quaint notions probably passed for good sense. Today there is not one scintilla of experimental or scientific or practical evidence to support either conjecture. If you have any doubt that I know what I'm talking about, try to find anywhere in medical literature or try to obtain from any physician or health authority of standing, a definition of either "resistance" (apart from specific immunity, such as immunity to typhoid or immunity to smallpox or immunity to diphtheria) or "hardening" or the "hardening process.' I'll be grateful if you can refer me to a medical work, a physician or a health authority who can or will define either "resistance" or "hardening", that is, if he does not forbid me to quote him.

Here is a paragraph from the diary of Theodora Stanwell-Fletcher (Driftwood Valley, 46):

"The last day we travelled the twenty-five miles down the lake .. All the way it was glare ice .. "Our mocassins were soaked thru' by melting snow and our feet rubbed raw .. "Nearly everyone here" (a Hudson's Bay Company outpost) "has a cold. J. and I tremble for our perfect health record and wish we'd never come. I'd almost forgotten" throughout a winter the author and her husband spent in the wilds of British Columbia) "such things as colds existed. In the wilderness we have never once caught cold from being wet or chilled. The Indians, too, inadequately dressed and nourished and exposed constantly to terrific weather conditions, apparently never have colds or contagious diseases unless they get 'outside' to some settlement and pick up a germ."

But, shucks, Wiseacres, sitting by the fire and yammering away in stereotyped fashion know more about the alleged dangers and the imagined effects of "exposure" than a mere naturalist spending the winter in the wilderness where temperatures are often 30 to 40 blow zero could possibly know?

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

No Burst

Is it possible for a twisted chronic appendix to burst at any time? (W.G.A.)

Answer—I don't know what twisted chronic appendix means. There is no such ailment as "chronic appendicitis" — that is a blind guess when the doctor doesn't know what ails the patient, if anything. As for bursting, of course anything is possible, except a mouse's nest—all right, all right, but tell me another metaphor that conveys the idea as well as a mouse's nest in a cat's ear.

Sexual Problems

Readers who have sexual problems or marital questions please take notice. Dr. Brady is unable to deal adequately with the numerous questions in that wide field. The best source of information, instruction and advice on such matters is The American Institute of Family Relations, 607 S. Hill Street, Los Angeles 14, California. The Institute publishes numerous excellent pamphlets which will give the authoritative information or advice most readers want. I have not seen all of these pamphlets but the few I have seen seem well suited for the purpose.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Where did sweet potatoes originate?

The sweet potato (Ipomea botatas), a member of the morning glory family, is believed to be native to tropical and subtropical America.

It was cultivated by the pre-Columbian Indians and grows nowhere in the wild state. Sweet potatoes were among the West Indian products presented to Queen Isabella by Columbus when he returned from his first voyage. The Spanish called the vines and edible roots "patata," from the Taino Indian name "batatas." Spanish "patata" became English "potato."

The sweet potato thus has a prior claim to the name "potato" and still retains the Taino Indian name in its botanic designation.

The Spanish introduced sweet potato cultivation into many parts of the New World where it had been unknown to the natives and into Spain, whence it spread to other countries. Its introduction into the British Isles in the latter part of the 16th century is variously attributed to Sir John Hawkins, Sir Francis Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh. A statue at Offenburg in Baden, Germany, the work of an Alsatian sculptor named Andreas Friedrich, bears the inscription: "Sir Francis Drake, Introducer of the Potato into Europe in the Year of Our Lord 1590." The Drake legend appears to have referred to the sweet potato, although the sculptor probably erroneously supposed that it referred to the white potato.

Many Europeans regarded the sweet potato as a medicine and in the literature of the 16th and 17th centuries many references are made to its supposed aphrodisiac qualities. "Potato" occurs twice in Shakespeare and both times refers to the sweet potato. "Let the sky rain potatoes," says the lecherous Sir John Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and in "Troilus and Cressida" the caustic Thersites uses the phrase "Fat rump and potato-finger."

Whether the English settlers in the Southeastern States received the sweet potato directly from the Indians or from England is not clear The chronicles of the Hernando de Soto expedition (1539-42) indicate that the Indians in Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi cultivated some sort of "patatas." De Soto himself and some of his followers had served in Peru and probably knew the difference between sweet potatoes and white potatoes. Some authorities suppose that sweet potatoes were introduced into England from Raleigh's Roanoke colony. They were called "Carolina potatoes" in England as early as 1599. On the other hand, the English used to call sweet potatoes "Spanish potatoes" to distinguish them from "Chilean" or white potatoes. It seems probable that sweet potatoes were a common vegetable in England when the Jamestown colony was established in 1607 and that the English took seed with them when they reestablished themselves in Virginia.

BREAK UP RIOT

Chatham, Oct. 7 (CP)—A squad of police wielding clubs broke up a riot in front of a hotel in the east end of the town Saturday night. Fifty veterans were involved. Glen Burroughs received cuts to his head during the melee, necessitating his removal to hospital. He was later detained on a charge of drunkenness.

VIC OLIVER MARRIES

London, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — Vic Oliver, 48-year-old comedian whose marriage to Sarah Churchill, eldest daughter of Winston Churchill, was dissolved a year ago, was married at Caxton Hall, London, today to Natalie Frances Conder, 25, of London.

Negotiations Over Indonesia

Batavia, Oct. 7 — (AP)—After a three-months lapse, Dutch officials resumed negotiations today with representatives of the unrecognized Indonesian Republic in an effort to effect a settlement on Indonesian demands for independence.

LAST GOLF GAME ON 100TH BIRTHDAY

New York, Oct. 7 — (AP) — Nathaniel Vickers figures 100 is par for the course so he's giving up golf next Wednesday. Vickers, a retired architect, played golf most of the summer, but vows his last game will be on Wednesday — his 100th birthday.

NOT NICE THING TO DO

Brantford, Oct. 7 — (CP) — Mrs. R. Proll, who lives just outside the city, befriended a man and woman she met in town Saturday and gave them accommodation. When they left, her purse containing $35 was gone.

HONOR AMONG THIEVES

Kitchener, Oct. 7 — (CP) — There's honor among thieves. A thief who stole a truck from a city home Friday night apparently had a twinge of conscience. When the truck was recovered on the highway outside Kitchener late Saturday, a dollar bill was tied to the steering-wheel.

STIRLING

Re-instate Branch Canadian Legion

Stirling.— Forty-five veterans of World Wars I and II assembled in the Community Hall, Thursday at 8 p.m., to re-instate and re-organize the dormant Stirling Branch No. 228 of the Canadian Legion. A report of the Committee on Arrangements and signed by George Heasman, C. F. Walt, Harry Francis and Rev. A. M. Laverty, Fred Donohue was received and a report from the Nominating Committee composed of C. R. Bastedo, Joseph Whitehead, X. P. Mayhew, Ray Sine, Bob Luery, Bill McMullen and Clare West brought in their report and the balloting took place with the following being elected:

President—A. M. Laverty
1st Vice President — Russell West
2nd Vice President—Fred Donohue
Secretary—John Munro
Treasurer—Clare West
Sergeant-at-Arms — Harold Skillicorn

It was originally suggested that a committee of six be elected to serve with the executive but on motion it was agreed that the number be increased to nine and the following were named: X. P. Mayhew, Colin Fox, Bill McMullen, Lorne Watson, Ormel McMullen, Bob Luery, Harry Francis, Barton Haggerty and Leslie Clements. Appreciation was expressed by the veterans of World War II of the tradition of service inherited from the veterans of World War I and of the fine co-operative spirit so clearly in evidence. As a symbol of this bond of fellowship and service the meeting unanimously and enthusiastically created the office of Honorary President, and named Dr. C. F. Walt to the office Dr. Walt thanked the meeting and feelingly said that he accepted the honor as a representative of the older veterans.

A. S. Miller, of Brighton, Zone Commander, spoke of the wider work of the Legion and remarked how pleased he is that the dormant branch in Stirling is to be revived and that he is sure its revival will strengthen work and the influence of the Legion in this part of Eastern Ontario. Fees for the year were set at $4, a committee formed to head up a membership drive in Stirling and the areas of Rawdon, Sidney and West Huntingdon adjacent to Stirling, plans for the sale of poppies on Remembrance Day were made. The next meeting is to be at call of the chair not later than the first week of November. The National Anthem closed the meeting.

GIVEN BACK PAY

Hollywood, Oct. 7 — (AP) — The Screen Extras Guild announced yesterday it had approved by a vote of 2,605 to 151 a contract with major producers providing for pay increases averaging about 30 per cent, retroactive to last Jan. 1. H. O'Neil Shanks, secretary of the A.F.L. group, said the back pay would aggregate between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

LARGEST U. S. LINER IN RACE FOR ATLANTIC TRADE

J. C. Lester, staff supervisor, LEFT, looks down on the newly-painted America, largest U. S. liner, from a crane, as she lies at the outfitting dock at Newport News, Va. She is in a race with Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary in a bid for North Atlantic passenger trade. The British ships may get going quicker, getting their furnishings out of storage, but the America will be newer. Everything is being bought again. This is the second time that she will be "new." The first time was in 1940 when she made her maiden voyage. Then she was called to war service and became the U.S.S. West Point, navy's largest troop ship. Now a civilian again, she is scheduled to begin her first transatlantic voyage from New York on Oct. 17, a voyage delayed six years by the war.

Many Upsets In U.S. Football

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—The rule book describes a football as a prolate spheroid—which probably accounts for the crazy way in which the leather-covered pellet bounces.

Here are some of the crazy bounces it took on some of the United States' major gridirons Saturday.

Texas annihilated Oklahoma A & M, 54-6, piling up the astronomical number on a team that starred a two-time all America halfback and had not been defeated since 1943.

Illinois crushed Purdue, 43-7, with Buddy again held in check but with Perry Moss, former Tulsa here, guiding the Illini to a flock of touchdowns.

Army, with Doc Blanchard still on the bench, turned Glenn Davis loose and the California comet blazed the way for a 46-21 verdict over Cornell. It was the most points scored on Army since it started its string of 21 straight triumphs.

Columbia spilled Navy, 23-14, and got revenge for the 61-0 pasting taken when the teams met last three years ago.

Arkansas, with ex-navy star Clyde Scott the main spring, bounded over Texas Christian, 34-14, for its second straight surprise.

Indiana spanked Minnesota, where 260 stalwarts reported for practice last month, by a 21-0 margin. It was the sixth straight big nine loss for the one-time Golden Gophers of Bernie Bierman.

Delaware pounced on Randolph-Macon, 53-0, for its 23rd. consecutive victory, a string that was interrupted by a three-year wartime hibernation.

HIS MAJESTY RETURNS

London, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — The King, looking bronzed ahd fit, arrived back in London today from his Scottish home, Balmoral Castle where he spent a holiday. The Queen and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret remained at Balmoral for 10 more days.

Threatened Strike Football Players Not Surprising

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 7 —(CP Cable)— The threatened strike of Britain's professional football players for higher wages isn't a bit surprising to the million-odd spectators who weekly battle their way into the country's soccer stadia.

The man who pays his one shilling, three pence (about 25 cents) for two hours of sport has, like the players, been watching the rapid-fire player deals recently ballyhooed in British newspapers.

The prices paid are hardly consistent with management's refusal to meet the £12 ($49) a week maximum salary asked by the players union.

The boys who draw the crowds are a little peeved at the high finance; they want to cut in on the weird "share the wealth" by-play prevalent among clubs which are paying fantastic sums in a mild scramble to build up their teams in the first post-war season.

The announcement Saturday by James Fay, secretary of the players' union, that the labor ministry has been requested to arbitrate the union's wage demands before Oct. 15 or face a strike, followed by only two days the transfer of coal miner Leonard Shackleton to Newcastle United from Bradford.

Bradford paid £13,000 for Shackleton's services and at the same time Brantford paid £10,000 for George Paterson, Glasgow Celtic international wing half.

Fay said the players already have decided on strike action by "an overwhelming ballot" amongst the English league's 88 clubs and if there is no action by the ministry of labor, "we have no option but to declare all further games off until league clubs meet our claims."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Oct. 7 (AP) — An associate of Ted Collins, the radio man who dashed into pro football without even any interference, offers the suggestion that the club owner has more courage than a footballer facing the Army team ... "The player only has to tackle Blanchard," the gent suggests, "and look what Collins tackled?" ... Of course, a lot of other men have displayed the same sort of bravery—or foolhardiness — in risking their money and their bonds in a business where they can lose both because of a couple of rainy Sundays.

Swap the Wings for Coupons

Money is so easy to spend—and there are so many ways to spend it—that we say it seems to "fly away". But today the old saying that "money has wings" is out of date. For instance, there is a way to swap the "wings" on a $100 bill for coupons that pay $2.75 interest each year. Yet the money is always ready to use should it be needed.

Best of all—the urge to spend is replaced by the urge to save—to conserve a part of income for emergency use or for important purchases—to make life more secure, more satisfying—to help make dreams come true. How do you do this? By buying Canada Savings Bonds. This is today's opportunity to swap the "wings" for coupons—to join the throng of thoughtful savers. These bonds, created especially for you, pay 2¾% interest by annual coupons for ten years—the finest investment today for your personal savings—a security backed by the resources of your country. Yet they can be turned into cash at full face value, with interest, at any time, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank. They are better than cash because they pay interest.

How about swapping the "wings" on some of your dollars for coupons?

Sold by banks, authorized investment dealers, stock brokers, trust and loan companies.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. T. H. Norton and Carol, have returned to the city after visiting with relatives in Toronto and Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. Howard Holland, of Enterprise, visited with her father, Rev. J. W. Down and sisters, Mrs. Andrew McLauchlin and Miss Florence Down at 161 George Street, on Friday.

Miss Mary A. Fanning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Fanning, formerly of Belleville, was successful in receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and is now attending the Ontario College of Education at Toronto, Ont.

Misses Josephine Buckley and Margaret Bennett, of this city, spent the weekend in Toronto and attended "The Living Rosary" in Maple Leaf Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

The many friends of Mrs. Kenneth Wood, South Park Street, will be sorry to hear that she is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Corporal Wm. Tracey, Mrs. Tracey (nee Florence Clement) and son, Dennis, left on Saturday to reside in Ottawa, where Corporal Tracey expects to be stationed for the coming winter in connection with a government post.

Capt. H. W. Thomas has been accepted in the permanent force of the Canadian Army and has been posted to the Armored Corps Training Centre at Camp Borden, where he will be instructing.

Mrs. W. Bromley, Chicago, Ill., is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Charlton, North Front Street.

Mrs. D. E. Jeffs and Mrs. L. Young, president and secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 99, Canadian Legion have returned from the Convention of the Ontario Provincial Command, held at Windsor, Ont., last week. Much valuable information was obtained and a very pleasant trip enjoyed.

The girls of the Mead Johnson staff held a miscellaneous shower recently to honor Mrs. William Thompson, nee Tena McCullough, at the home of Mrs. MacDonald, 63 Station Street. The rooms were attractively decorated with pink and white streamers and gladioli in corresponding shades. Games and contests were enjoyed, after which the shower gifts were presented. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. "Bob" Anderson and Mrs. David Kelley.

WEDDINGS

McGUINNESS—McKENNY

Read.—St. Charles' Church, Read, was the scene of a very pretty Autumn wedding on Monday, Sept. 23, at 8.30 a.m., when Margaret, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent McKenny, became the bride of Edward McGuinness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGuinness, of Marysville, Ont. The Nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev .R. J. Coyle.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mr. William Hanley. Her floor-length gown was of white satin, fashioned with tight fitting bodice, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves with points on wrists and a lace inserted skirt. She wore a fingertip veil with a white satin halo and carried a bouquet of roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ann McKenny, as maid-of-honor, yearing a floor-length pink taffeta gown with a matching fingertip veil and carrying a nosegay of blue cornflowers centred with pink sweetpeas and baby's breath.

Miss Eileen McGuinness, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid wearing a floor-length mauve taffeta gown, with matching finger-tip veil carrying a nosegay of white baby 'mums, centred with mauve sweetpeas and baby's breath.

Little Bernice McKenny, sister of the bride, was flower girl in a floor-length gown of blue taffeta with a matching fingertip veil, carrying a pink basket of mixed flowers with petunias falling from streamers of blue and white ribbons.

Thel groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Francis McGuinness and Mr. Donald McKenny, brother of the bride.

The ushers were Messrs. Lawrence McKenny and Leon McGuinness. During Mass, which was served by Leo McKenny and Raymond Plews, Misses Helen and Bernice McGuinness rendered solos.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother receiving in a navy crepe gown with a corsage of pink sweetpeas. The groom's mother assisting wore a black crepe gown with a corsage of pink roses.

The happy couple left on a wedding trip to Midland and other western points. On their return they will reside in Cobourg.

GAMBARA ACQUITTED

Rome, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — Gen. Gastone Gambara, Chief-of-Staff in Mussolini's Republican Fascist army in 1943-44, has been acquitted on a charge of collaboration with the Germans by a special court at Brescia, northern Italy, it was learned today. Gen. Gambara commanded Italian troops who took part in the Spanish Civil War. He later commanded Italian troops in Libya.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.-W.A.

Mrs. Everett Stratton opened her home on Thursday afternoon for a joint meeting of the W.M.S. and W.A. of Shannonville United Church. The president welcomed the eighteen members and visitors who were present. The opening hymn and The Lord's Prayer were followed by the responsive reading of a Psalm. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Elliott, making special mention of Mrs. L. E. Mills who is a shut-in as the result of a recent accident.

During the business period, Mrs. Mastin read a letter regarding the Crusade Cavalcade coming to Bridge Street United Church, in Belleville, in the near future, and Mrs. Robertson read a communication from the Presbyterial Community Friendship Secretary. Miss Sara Stickney expressed gratitude for the card sent to her mother, and Mrs. Elliott thanked the hostess for the use of her home.

The group leader, Mrs. S. McFarlane, had charge of the program, following the plan outlined in the Missionary Monthly. Readings were given by Mesdames E. Stratton, Robert McFarlane and Orval Stratton. Mrs. Arthur Houston contributed a poem "The Indian Road". The W.M.S. meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction and Mrs. Elliott presided for the W.A. in the absence of the president, using the theme song and the National Anthem as an opening. The devotional service was conducted by Mrs. C. Clarke, with Miss Sara Stickney reading the Scripture lesson, followed by "Lesson Thoughts" read by Miss Betty Mastin.

During the business period the finances of the society were increased considerably by the amount contained in the "Thankful Sacs", with more to be collected. Mrs. Houston offered her home for the November meeting. Mrs. Stratton and her assistants served delicious refreshments and a social hour enjoyed by the ladies.

INVICTAE MISSION CIRCLE

On Friday afternoon the Invictae Mission Circle of Bridge Street United Church held a tea and sale in the Sunday School rooms. The President, Miss Ruth Blatherwick and Group Leaders, Mrs. D. C. Amos, Miss Daisy Young and Miss Norma Arkles were present to look after the guests. Mrs. C. R. Clapp and Miss Kay McPherson poured tea. Miss Charlotte Finkle was convener of the work table while Miss Phyllis Clapp convened the tea room. Other members assisting were Misses Isabel McCabe, Doreen Stiver, Molly Camp, Marion Ormond, Marion Nicholl, Mabel Russell, Mary Locke, Doris Lloyd, Jean McLaren, Eleanor Farley and Mrs. C. E. Ford.

One special feature of the sale was the new United Church Calendar for 1947, a fine assortment of Christmas cards, birthday cards and various sewn and knitted goods were sold.

ST. PAUL'S GUILD MEETS

Marmora.—The October meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held in the Parish Hall on Friday evening, the President, Mrs. W. D. Lavender, in the chair and a good number of members present. The meeting opened with prayer by the president. In the reading of correspondence, two letters were mentioned as being received from recipients of the Guild's consideration in times of illness and bereavement. The treasurer's report was given by Miss Miriam Savage, showing a favorable balance on hand. It was decided to give a donation to "Save the Children" Fund, as last year. Plans were initiated for the holding of the annual chicken supper. Each member was asked to bring a donation for the bazaar table which will be operated at this event, as well as a gift for the Girls' W.A. table. Plans were also made to cater for the dance, which the Laymen's Association is holding in the Town Hall. The meeting closed with prayer by the rector after which refreshments were served.

Tool Shortages Plague Industry

London, Oct. 7 (CP) — Shortages of skilled labor, iron castings, electric motors and various components is causing a reduction in output of the machine tools industry, vital to reconversion and modernization of industry.

Production in the second quarter of this year was at an annual rate of £16,300,000 compared with £18,250,000 in the first quarter and £21,600,000 last year.

Orders are coming in faster than deliveries are leaving the plants and some manufacturers do not promise delivery within a year.

New Leather Accessories

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ONE SMART accessory shop on Fifth avenue has from its inception done remarkably clever things with soft leathers and reptile skins. They have dyed the python and the cobra, the water snake and the alligator, into colors that would frighten these jungle denizens. These creatures should be grateful, for nature was never as kind to them as this designer.

Many models are dressy. . . pasted tinted hats loaded with flowers, handbags as pretty as huge jewelry. For this season just ahead, however this tailored three-some is appropriate. Folly's cap, gloves and miser's bag of capeskin trimmed with cobra, in red, green, tan or black.

Good Companions Tabernacle Ch. Hold Meeting

The Good Companions of Tabernacle United Church met Friday evening in the church, Friors with the President, Mr. Albert Mulvey, presiding.

New members were welcomed, plans for the coming year were discussed. Rev. J. Houston invited the group to attend the cavalcade to be held in Bridge Street United Church in the near future.

The devotional period was taken by Mr. George Wright, who told the story of "There are Two Seas", by Bruce Barton. The Sea of Galilee receives the waters of the Jordan river but does not keep it, while the Dead Sea receive the water of the Jordan River but keeps everything. There are people similar to the two seas. Our influence goes out for good or evil.

The recreation period was conducted b yMiss Thelma Schleducted by Miss Thelma Schle-Ferguson. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Hall and her group.

Presentation Made At Fireside Hour

At the close of the Sunday evening service in Tabernacle United Church a delightful "Fireside Hour" was the occasion for the congregation to express appreciation in a tangible form for the many years of loyal service to the life of the church contributed by Mr. and Mrs. George Sprackett of Forin Street. This esteemed couple recently celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding at which time the congregation was as a whole unable to join in the festivities. Hence their many Tabernacle friends seized the opportunity offered by the first Fireside Hour of the Autumn to formally express their good wishes for continued marital happiness.

Following community singing Rev. J. W. Houston acted as chairman for a short but enjoyable program. A vocal solo by Miss Joan Wynne and two violin selections by "Bob" Houston, accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Houston, were much appreciated. Mrs. W. P. Youdale told a beautiful story of peasant life in old Greece in her usual pleasing manner.

Speaking of a long association with Mr. Sparckett as an officer of the church Mr. G. F. Lent suggested that Mr. Sprackett be made an honorary member of the Church Session. This was unanimously approved. On behalf of the auxiliary of the W.M.S. Mrs. A. H. Fisher presented a Life Membership Certificate to Mrs. Sprackett; Mrs. George Stanton presented the Life Membership pin and Miss Marylin Bell a bouquet of bronze "mums" on behalf of the congregation. Mr. A. D. Archibald read an illuminated address, while Mr. George Barlow presented Mr. Sprackett with a purse. Although totally unprepared for such an occasion both Mr. and Mrs. Spracket made suitable replies, unselfishly disclaiming their worthiness to receive the honors conferred upon them.

The Fireside Hour continued with the serving of delicious refreshments by the ladies of the W.A. executive.

Health Certificate Must Accompany Marriage Licence

Winnipeg, Oct. 7 (CP)—Most of the young—and some not so young—hopefuls who murmur "I do" before a clergyman in Manitoba from now on will have to present more than a marriage licence. A certificate of pre-marital serological test for syphilis is also required.

The certificate, signed by a legally-qualified medical practitioner under the Medical Act of Manitoba, will not disclose the result of the test even if it is negative. Nor does the law require a test for any type of venereal disease.

The certificate merely says that a sample of blood has been taken from the applicant within the preceding 30 days, that the sample was sent to a health department laboratory for a serological test for syphilis and that the physician reported the result in writing, with any necessary explanation, to the applicant.

But on the reverse side of the form on which the physician writes his confidential report to the applicant appear extracts from the criminal code and the province's Public Health Act stating it is an offense to communicate, knowingly or by negligence, a venereal disease to another.

A clergyman marrying a couple, either or both of whom lack the certificate, is subject on conviction to a fine of $25-$100 and his registration may be revoked. A doctor providing a false certificate is liable to a fine of $100-$500 or one to 12 months' imprisonment for subsequent offences.

Effective Oct. 1st.

A marriage solemnized without a certificate, or with a false one, is not, however, automatically invalid.

The legislation, effective Oct. 1, resulted from the report of a venereal disease commission appointed last November by the provincial legislature. It was under the chairmanship of Health Minister Ivan Schultz and consisted of three other cabinet ministers and 11 members, some of whom were physicians.

Moved by an increase from 2.01 cases of venereal disease from each 1,000 population in 1939—the all-time low—to 4.05 in 1945, and by the public's interest in the matter, the legislature amended the Marriage Act in April, prohibiting the solemnization of a marriage in the province unless each of the parties had undergone a blood test for syphilis.

Can Waive Certificates

Some exceptions are permitted. Persons living in areas lacking a physician and who would be placed under a hardship if they were forced to present a certificate are exempted. The health minister also has authority to waive the certificate under certain conditions.

But for the great proportion of those marrying a certificate is a "must" along with the licence, cleryman and ring. And anyone coming into the province to marry had better be sure his physician—if he gets the certificate from him—is qualified to practice in Manitoba. In other words, the doctor's name must be on the register of the Manitoba College of Physicians.

In the week of the law's existence health department officials say there have been a lot of questions but no complaints. To them it is "one method of finding or attempting ot find cases of venereal disease previously unknown. It places a person suffering from the disease in contact with a physician who can advise and treat him.

"Even more important if possible, it increased the likelihood of healthy children."

Press Efforts To End Week-Long Maritime Tieup

Washington, Oct. 7. (AP) — Government conciliators spurred by one Union leader's prediction that a settlement may be near, pressed their efforts today to end the week-long United States maritime tieup.

Capt. Harry Martin, president of the A.F.L. Masters, mates and pilots, told newspapermen in New York last night that "things look more favorable than at any time since negotiations sarted."

He said an agreement might be reached by nightfall, but cautioned that if the stalemate runs through tomorrow negotiating committees of both his Union and the C.I.O. Marine Engineers Beneficial Association may leave the capital.

This lent a new note of urgency to today's renewal of the conversations after a two-day recess prompted by a flareup of tempers on all sides.

Chief Conciliator Edgar L. Warren put off the sessions until 2 p.m., (E.S.T.) today in the hope that a weekend "cooling off" period might help crack the deadlock over wages and Union security for A.F.L. deck officers and C.I.O. engineers.

Dealing with the Unions are the East and Gulf Coast operators, on the one hand, and the West Coast Carriers, represented by the Pacific American Ship Owners Association, on the other.

In the middle is the Maritime Commission, which holds the balance of power in the Merchant Marine because so many vessels are under its contract.

Labor Department conciliators said today the parties are not too far apart on wages but that the issue of hiring only Union Masters and Engineers still is a formidable barrier.

Stirling

Agricultural Committee Meeting.

Stirling — The possibility of a Calfhood Vaccination Campaign during the coming Winter months was the main topic of discussion at a meeting of the Hastings County Agricultural Committee held in the Agricultural Office, Stirling, on Tuesday evening last. Col. R. Vanderwater occupied the chair.

It was announced that a number of Polish war veterans would arrive in the county within the next two weeks and would be placed with farmers through the Selective Service at Belleville, and the local Agricultural Representative. These veterans, who served with the British Eighth Army in Italy, are all single and in their late twenties or early thirties. Farmers interested in getting a man on a yearly contract are asked to contact H. L. Fair, Agriculture Representative, Stirling, or Selective Service at Belleville. The basic wage has been set at $45.00 per month.

W. I. Meeting

The Stirling Women's Institute held their monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William West with the president, Mrs. L. Rodgers in the chair. The meeting opened with the "Institute Ode", the singing of the Maple Leaf Forever, and the Lord's Prayer. A short business discussion followed and it was decided to hold a dance in the Community Hall on Hallowe'en. Mrs. L. Rodgers was elected as the delegate to represent the Institute at the convention to be held in Belleville on October 17th. and 18th.

Mrs. David Duffin (nee Evelyn West), bride of this month, was given a place of honor and an address was read by Mrs. Henry Cook. Mrs. L. Rodgers presented Evelyn with a silver relish dish for which she graciously thanked the members and invited all to visit her in her new home.

The program for the day was arranged by Mrs. H. Cook. Readings were given by Mrs. H. Rodgers; Mrs. Munroe and Mrs. E. Cook conducted a contest. Refreshments were served by Mrs. West and her assistants bringing a profitable meeting to a close.

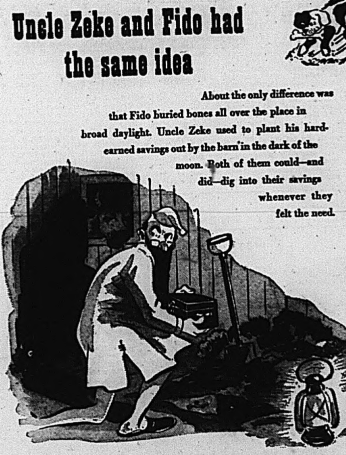
Uncle Zeke and Fido had the same idea

About the only difference was that Fido buried bones all over the place in broad daylight. Uncle Zeke used to plant his hard-earned savings out by the barn in the dark of the moon. Both of them could—and did—dig into their savings whenever they felt the need.



Your modern "buried treasure" may be in a much safer place. Ordinary methods of saving are fine, as far as they go, but they are subject to what too often happens to the best of human intentions.

Batawa Shoemen Headed For Provincial Title; Win Third Game From Niagara Falls 4-2

"Smoky" Smith Whiffs 15 While Mates Hit and Field Flawlessly Behind Him; Will Battle Western Ontario Semi-Finalists for Intermediate "A" Championship

By G.H.C.

While Bill Easton and his smart Batawa baseball squad did not go over Niagara Falls in a barrel, they hurdled the smart intermediate team from Honeymoonville in Port Hope on Saturday in the third game of their Intermediate "A" semi-finals by a 4-2 score, and have set their sights on the provincial championship which lies directly ahead.

The two squads clashed in a double-header in Batawa a week ago Saturday and emerged all-even on the twin bill with the Falls copping the first game 1-0 and the Shoemen winning the second by a 2-0 count. It was baseball at its best, and presaged a thrilling third battle. And that is what Saturday's game proved to be.

At present it looks as though the Shoemen have a long safari ahead of them no matter what club proves to be the opposition. Chatham eliminated St. Thomas Legion the other day, and that means no "Smoky" Smith - "Lefty" Garton duel this year. Windsor and Leamington are still in, so in any event it will be a long trek to Western Ontario for the Shoemen in their quest for the crown.

Falls Stage Rally in 9th

In a game that was a thriller all through, the Shoemen proved again that they are a smart money team. The chips were down and elimination stared both squads in the face. It was do or die and each team went out there and gave their best. It was good baseball throughout although the Batawans enjoyed a four-run lead up to the ninth.

Then the fighting qualities of the Fallsers proved themselves. Down four runs they fought to the last out and staged a rally in the last innings that had the large crowd of Batawa rooters who accompanied the team, biting their nails and sitting on the edge of their seats. The Falls rapped out two of the the eight clouts they got off "Smoky" Smith and sent two runs, their only scores of the game, crashing across the plate. But it was "too little and too late" and the Shoemen settled away to retire the side and win the game and the series, the third the Batawans have copped in the race for the 1946 Intermediate "A" title.

Smith, the Batawa starry southpaw was the hero of the piece, handcuffing the Fallsmen for eight innings, allowing them but six clouts over that period of play. They got the other two in the ninth. He pitched hitless ball for four innings and over the 9 inning route fanned fifteen of the foe without issuing a single walk. And by way of diversion he aided his own cause by rapping out two of his team's nine base knocks.

And behind him, his mates played stellar ball. They drove out nine safeties all told including two three-baggers and a double. They fielded flawlessly in the infield and the outer pastures, the only miscue coming when Austin, first baseman, bobbled a throw in the ninth chukker. They hit in the clutches and that is what scores runs — and runs win ball games.

Johnson, starting hurler for the Falls proved no puzzle to the Bata batters. They got to him for seven hits and three runs in four and two third innings and in the fifth with the Shoemen three runs up and threatening to add at any moment, Bullock was rushed into the breach. He retired the side with no further damage and held the Batawans to one run and two clouts over the remainder of the pastime.

Two in Fifth

The Shoemen scored their first run in the third when Spencer, who had tripled, raced home on Austin's timely two-bagger. In the fifth hits by Normandin and Cook, a Falls' error and some neat base-stealing accounted for two more runs and Johnson's departure. They got their last tally in the sixth when Rankin strolled, was shunted to second on Normandin's sacrifice and galloped home on Spencer's second clout of the day.

The desperate Falls flashed to sudden life in their half of the ninth. Mulligan rapped out a single and went to third on Austin's error. Smith stopped one of his namesake's fast shoots with his body and drew a free to first, but went out on a force when Petrullo hit sharply to the shortstop, Mulligan scoring. Meagher struck out and Petrullo who stole second galloped home with the Falls second run on Gregus' sharp hit to centre. He got over anxious however, and Aquino's neat peg to second caught him easily and the game was over.

Cook with a triple and two singles paced the Shoemen attack with Spencer getting a triple and a single. "Smoky" Smith helped himself to two clouts and Austin and Normandin accounted for the other two.

Mulligan and Bullock got two each for the Falls.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Cobourg's white-sweatered red-silk panted Galloping Ghosts after being rocked on their heels by what later proved to be an amazing first-quarter surge of plunge power by Trenton RCAF Flyers, swallowed the surprise lumps in their collective throats and went on to win in easy fashion by a 26-0 score, on Saturday.

• • •

The game, the first intermediate ORFU tilt of the current season played on the Flyers' gridiron was productive of some good first-season football. Flyers flashed in the first-quarter pan but after the first few minutes the Ghosts had things pretty well their own way. They showed more than ordinary evidence of being a well coached squad. They have plenty of tricky plays and they clicked like a grandfather's clock.

• • •

True the Cobourg line looked like a meal-ticket at the end of its course in that first five minutes as the Flyer plungers drove through it for five successive first downs with the ball not off the ground five feet at any time. The air crew drove from their own fifteen to the Ghosts's twenty, and a placement kick went wide of the posts and over the dead line which, according to a ground rule went for no score. By the same token the Ghosts were deprived later of a touchdown when a receiver caught a 35 yard pass over the line.

• • •

Flyers showed lack of practice and co-ordination. True they have been together only a short while and they have plenty of power. But they could not compete with the smooth work of the Cobourg backfield and after the Ghosts settled down their plungers ripped through for downs time and again.

• • •

The red-panted Hamlets were never forced at any time to resort to an aerial offensive, but they showed in periodical passes that they know what the ozone attack is all about. Their flingers fired the ball with unerring accuracy to their receivers and two of their five major scores came via the overhead route. They scored a touch in first quarter, another, plus a placement in the second, a major in the third and two in the fourth.

• • •

And they have plenty of reserve power. Practically a whole new team trotted out at intervals and the second squad, to this observer, didn't weaken the first to an appreciable extent. Cobourg should go places in this ORFU race if their early season form as evidenced on Saturday can be judged a criterion.

• • •

Mention the World's Series to any Batawa fan be it man, woman, child or a pair of shoes, and they'll raise quizzical eyebroks, "What's that?" they will probably ask. "Oh yeah, that's those ball games in which some team called the Boston Red Sox is playing the St. Louis Cardinals or is it the Dodgers?" But mention Niagara Falls and they'll do a cross between a Highland Fling, a Zulu war dance, the Can-Can, and a jungle-juiced Wilkenny cat at the Donegal Fair.

• • •

For on Saturday did their "Smoky" Smith, and his baseballers, in a superlative display defeat the lads from Honeymoonville 4-2 in that wild and "croocial" playdown game at Port Hope to win the right to enter the OBA Intermediate "A" finals. The two squads split a doubleheader at Batawa a week ago Saturday and the series stood even-stephen prior to Saturday's pay-off tilt.

• • •

The Shoemen with their backs to the wall played superbly behind the faultless chucking of "Smoky" Smith. The starry southpaw fashioned a neat eight-hitter and was never in trouble until the ninth when his mates helped him halt a threatening Falls rally. Smith's fast ball and sharp-breaking curve were working perfectly, as fifteen strikeouts will testify. The team got nine clouts for him, some of them coming in the clutches, while outside of Austin's miscue they performed flawlessly afield.

• • •

The finals will see the Shoemen make a long safari to Western Ontario where Chatham, Windsor and Leamington are in the running. Chatham recently eliminated the St. Thomas Legion and "Lefty" Garton, and will likely meet Windsor in the semi-finals. The western Ontario laddies know their baseball as the Belleville juniors discovered in 1945, so the intermediate "A" finals should be one of the season's diamond classics especially in these yere parts.

• • •

A stout-hearted southpaw youngster stood on the mound in Sportsman's Park, St. Louis yesterday, within one pitch of his first World Series victory. With his side and back taped he had muffled the vaunted big batting guns of the Boston Red Sox for almost nine innings. He was Pollet, slender St. Louis Cardinals' left-hander, and with an upset victory just within his grasp with the frenzied crowd ready to hail him the man of the hour, with two out, but runners on first and third, he grooved a fast ball to Red Soxer McBride who promptly poled the ball to centre for a hit — and the tying run.

• • •

Cardinal fans were stunned. But the worst was to come. The only member of the Red Sox artillery who came through with any kind of evidence of its highly-publicized bludgeon ability was Rudy York. The big ex-Tiger first sacker hit the ball for a home-run that won the game. It was a heartbreaker for the slim Cardinal flinger to lose, but he had the inward satisfaction of stymying, hog-tying and anaesthetizing the fence-busting trio of Williams, Doerr and York, until the tenth innings at least.

• • •

The game was a distinct surprise — to Red Sox fans. The "four-straighters" nearly had conniption fits in the ninth when that one pitch stood between the Cardinals and victory. In fact, long before that phase of the game, some of them were highly indignant over the gallant stand the lowly Redbirds had put up against Theodore Williams and Company. The Cardinal upstarts couldn't do that to that illustrious array of fence-busters. But they did.

• • •

The game was a substantiation of the opinion of Stanley Frank, baseball expert, who, in a Catevepost article states and produces statistics to prove it, that pitching and not hitting has won the majority of World Series since their inception. Maybe history will repeat itself. But it will be interesting to see what Mr. Williams and his bludgeoning Boston buckaroos will do against right-hand flinging. Today, right now, meybe, it's happening.

And while the Cards and Sox are battling down in St. Loo, the Batawa team and Latta are settling the first of a Belleville Baseball League two-of-three semi-finals series up at Alemite Field. The first game started at 3:30 this afternoon with the second scheduled for Wednesday at the same time. Latta has been idle for some time while the Shoemen are hotter than the southern end of a firefly, or is it that end.

Those roaring hellions of the dirt tracks, the motorbike speedsters will be here with all their color thrills on Wednesday at the Fair Grounds where the Optimist Club of Belleville is sponsoring a motorcycle speed classic as part of Optimist Week program. Approximately twenty daredevil riders risking life and limb will be here from all parts of Canada to vie for racing honors and the show should attract a large crowd of enthusiasts of this sport.

The Optimist Club, a group of young enthusiastic live-wire men of the city, is a new organization but its social service work is one that is deserving of the support of every resident of the city. The club's slogan is "A Friend of the Boy"—and it means just that. And as everyone known, there was a time in the history of the world, when the boys of the Dominion needed steady, guiding hands more, than at the present. This young club has pledged itself to help the boys of the city. It has already made an auspicious start by assuming the sponsorship of the Belleville Sea Cadet Corps. It has undertaken a fine work, one that deserves the full support, morally and financially of everyone. Lets help 'em. Go to the motorbike races on Wednesday afternoon.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 7 (CP) — Now we know why Danny Webb had no objections to a 12-round go with Dave Castilloux for their Canadian lightweight title do next Thursday. Danny has been going several rounds daily with Dave (by proxy.)

It all came out when visitors to the scrappy little Montreal Negro's training camp found he had rigged up a punching bag with a rough likeness of Casty and was belting away merrily at it every day.

Fight Notes:

This week's fight means quite a bit to both men. If Webb wins he will get a match with Willie Pep as a reward, while Casty will try for a return go with Johnny Greco—who took his welter crown from him—if he edges Webb .. Researchers come up with the information that the last Canadian title bout of 12 rounds was several years back when Castilloux took the lightweight crown from Westerner Al Lust.

Happy Birthday

Clay Hopper got one of the nicest birthday presents we've heard of in a long while last Thursday. It was that southern gentleman's 45th. birthday, so President Hector Racine of the Montreal Royals presented him his 1947 contract to manage Royals again. The next night his boys gave him another present when they dumped Louisville Colonels for the fourth time and wrapped up the Little World Series for him.

This and That

Incidentally, give a kudo to Louisville for that true old southern hospitality. The last time Canada won the junior classic was back in 1926 when Toronto Maple Leafs took five games in a row in the best-of-nine series then played. Louisville was the American Association representative that year too .. Looks as though baseball is in Three Rivers, Que., to stay. Royals of that city captured the Canadian-American title this year, and made a tidy profit of $35,000 in the progress.

THREE TEAMS STILL UNBEATEN IN PRO LEAGUE

New York, Oct. 7 — (AP) — New York, Philadelphia and Chicago Bears continued on their all-victorious way in the National Football League yesterday while Los Angeles and Washington entered the win column for the first time as the loop's 10 teams played before a total attendance of 167,666.

Yesterday's triumphs were the second of the young season for the Giants, Eagles and Bears — only teams in the circuit still unbeaten and untied.

Four of the five contests turnout out to be thrillers. At Milwaukee, the defending champion Los Angeles Lams sent Mike Helovak over for a touchdown in the last six seconds to beat the Green Bay Packers 21-17.

Chicago Bears came from behind with three touchdowns in the final period to whip the Cardinals 34-17, at Chicago.

Ken Strong's second period field goal gave the New York Giants a 17-14 win over the Steelers at Pittsburgh, where a last-half Steeler rally fell short.

At Washington, the Redskins nosed out Detroit Lions 17-16, as a nine-point rally in the final quarter by the Lions barely missed gaining a tie.

Only at Philadelphia, where the Eagles walloped the Boston Yanks 49-25, was the issue one-sided.

Results:

National Football League

Los Angeles Rams 21, Green Bay Packers 17
New York 17, Pittsburgh 14
Chicago Bears 34, Chicago Cardinals 17.
Detroit 16, Washington 17
Boston 25, Philadelphia 49.

American Professional Football League

Wilmington 7, Newark 7 (tie)
Paterson, N. J., 7, Scanton, Pa. 27

All American Pro Football Conference

Brooklyn 7, Cleveland 26
Los Angeles 21, Chicago 9 (played Saturday night).

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

The re-hashing of played hands is a favorite pastime of better players. Their post-mortems are really a practical form of research. They hunt for overlooked defence or a hidden trick.

Somewhere in the middle of a play, they may find a variation of some return lead. This starts them looking for a different result in case that or this was avoided or done.

Players of lesser ability consider such reviews in the light of criticism. Not so with skillful partners. These discussions and investigations are what help to make them so adept.

The most innocent looking deal may contain a valuable lesson in play or leading or discard. And these jam sessions impress upon a bridge hepcat what to look for when he is in a tight spot.

With this in mind, take these remains of a deal:

NORTH
♠6 5 4
♥J 8
♦None
♣3

WEST
♠None
♥10 9
♦9
♣10 6 5

EAST
♠J 10 9
♥4
♦7 6
♣None

SOUTH
♠None
♥3
♦8 3
♣J 7 2

Clubs are trumps. Declarer in the south is now in the lead. If he takes only four of the last tricks, it would start a lung swap. It is found that five of these six tricks can be taken.

The heart is led from south and won in dummy with the jack. A return heart is ruffed by south. The smallest diamond is trumped in dummy. The spade return from there is covered by east.

Here is where south shows his stuff. He must not trump this trick. If he does, west will get two trump-tricks. Instead, south should sluff his high diamond on the east spade trick.

With nothing left but trumps, west can not bury them. He is compelled to ruff his partner's spade trick, and return a trump. Thus will declarer take the last two trump tricks. They fall in his lap.

You would have done that, too, no doubt. If not, get into a bull session. Or a hen party.

KIWANIS JUNIORS ENJOY OUTING TO PERTH COUNTY

Play Exhibition Game With Lanark and Win Contest 3-1

Belleville Kiwanis Juniors baseball team wound up their 1946 baseball season on Saturday when they journeyed to Lanark, Perth county, to play an exhibition game for sweet charity with proceeds to go for a proposed new memorial hall at that centre.

With the team's entire travelling expenses paid by William Warren, local Front Street barber, one of the local boys' highest admirers during the past season, the club members reported a whale of a time. They were treated royally by the residents, down at Lanark and came home on the long end of a 3-1 score after beating the Lanark All-Stars.

Mr. Warren is a native of Lanark.

With neither Bunton nor Kelleher making the trip to the eastern village, Fitzpatrick and Wright shared the pitching chores for the locals and came through with a win despite the fact they trailed 1-0 until the seventh.

The locals were held scoreless by Boyd, Lanark's starting hurler and the story might have been different had he not the misfortune to break his arm as he was about to throw the ball. Boyd was relieved by Paul who fared well until the seventh when the locals bunched their hits to count three tallies. Barr finished the game for Lanark.

But the ball game was merely incidental to members of the local junior club who voiced their appreciation to Mr. Warren for a splendid outing. Following the game the executive of the Lanark memorial hall committee and members of the local team were given dinner by the Lanark ladies and the boys voted that Mother's cooking was never like the fare served up in the eastern village.

COLORFUL SHEIK TO MEET DAVIS HERE FRI. NIGHT

Something new . . . and colorful, has been added to the Canadian wrestling picture. The long-robed burnoosed figure of one Sheik Emir Badul of Iraq carries real wrestling ability and the strange-looking Arabian has come all the way from the East to challenge for none other than Whipper Billy Watson's British Empire Championship. The Sheik made his challenge (through an interpreter) in Toronto last week before the 15,000 assembled mat fans who saw Whipper throw Wild Bill Longson unconscious to the Maple Leaf Gardens floor.

Last Friday night the Arab chief made known the same challenge to Belleville fans after he had crippled popular Pat Flanagan and forced the Toronto Irishman to give in with his deadly leg-and-back-breaker.

After the main bout, won by Karl Davis over Lee Henning was over, Manager Walter Gerow was in consultation by long-distance with Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. The result was that the Sheik has been asked to meet the Krippler here before any consideration will be given to his challenge to Whipper. Without so much as a demand for a higher purse than that offered, the Arab signified his willingness and the Badul-Davis match is on for Friday here.

With a very different style and much Eastern lore in his grappling the Sheik is not one of the big men of the mat game. Weighing a mere two hundred and eighteen pounds he packs a hard lean frame and apparently is loaded with smart mat tricks and dodges. He does not hesitate to take refuge in the ropes if the going is hard, but on the other hand he breaks no rules and seems anxious to fight fair and follow all our rules which are still very new to him. He and Davis should make an interesting and exciting night of it for the fans.

Bunny Dunlop who was sidetracked from mat competition for four weeks with a broken hand is back in shape and rarin' to go. Dunlop comes back seriously to the mat wars this Friday against big Mike Sharpe one of the two handsomest brothers in the game. In the third bout Mike's brother the statuesque and aristocratic Ben Sharpe meets rugged Jan Gotch.

AT THE CAPITOL — Dana Andrews, Alice Faye and Charles Bickford are currently seen in "Fallen Angel," the gripping 20th. Century-Fox drama of desire and murder which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre. Said to out-thrill "Laura" for sheer shock and suspense, "Fallen Angel" presents Miss Faye in her first all-dramatic role, that of June Mills whose love for a man is clouded by the terrible fascination another woman (Linda Darnell) has for him. Andrews appears as the fast-talking drifter with a flair for philandering, while Bickford is the ex-policeman whose secret past catches up with him. On the same program (adult entertainment) "The Lost Weekend", the Academy Award winning picture, starring the Academy Award winner actor, Ray Milland.

Hollywood Column

(By BOB THOMAS)

Hollywood, Oct. 7 (AP)—Have you been neglecting your voice box? Probably so, if you are an average person, says a movie vocal expert. The result: Average voices are too nasal and flat.

Florence Cunningham, who makes a living of evoking the correct vowels and consonants from people, is currently wheedling the cast of "Little Women" into talking in the manner of 1861 New England. This is no small task when you consider the accents of her charges include the Oklahomaan of Jennifer Jones, the Brooklynite of Bambi Linn, the Los Angeles Polyglot of Diana Lynn. Also Lionel Barrymore whose voice could only be described as Barrymorish.

Miss Cunningham's contention is that North Americans are too busy to speak correctly.

"No voice is bad at the begining," she said, "but Americans are so assertive by nature that it shows in their speech. They are always so in a hurry to get to the next word and the next thought that they don't give a second thought to how they sound."

Her advice for better speech: relax; don't hit the consonants so hard; make a conscious effort to say words as you would like to hear them; and don't be in such a hurry.

Carmen Cavallaro tells us that the bandleader on his night off is just like the hiking mailman and the rowboating sailor. Now dispensing his smooth rhythms at Ciro's, the piano-playing maestro reports that many of his regular listeners are those who spend their working hours making music.

The band fraternity is more congenial than most professions, Carmen declared, and has few feuds, except, perhaps for the fighting Dorseys. The fabulous brothers often drop in and request their favorite numbers—"Stardust" for Tommy Dorsey, and "Blue Skies" for Jimmy.

When Les Brown is present, he orders "Summertime", which is the tune he was playing when he first laid eyes on his present wife. Frank Sinatra asks for "Night and Day".

And what does Carmen do on his night off? He goes down to the Casino Gardens to hear Tommy Dorsey. His favorite: "Dancing in the Dark".

AT THE BELLE — Claudette Colbert, John Wayne and Don DeFore co-starred in "Without Reservations," fast-paced romantic comedy, now attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre.

MALARIA'S MASTER

Paludrine, a drug stemming from bituminous coal, now is reported to render malaria no more harmful than the common cold.

CHAPTER 22

"This is pleasant," said Dennis equably. What brings you in to town?"

"I was going to ask you that. I thought you were kept pretty steadily at work."

"I came in with an eastern man who's been her, to talk with a Los Angeles man, yesterday. Now they're both on their respective trains, and I'm going back home. Is it chef's special with crab meat, as usual?"

"No crabs in season now. Shrimp. And for you the braised spareribs of beef?"

The smile flickered back into his eyes.

"I suppose so, if they have it."

"Oh, they may not have it. I forgot that beef is out, now."

"They'll have something." He looked at the menu; there was an exuberant interval when the waiter recognized Dennis, and wanted to hear briefly of Dennis's experiences overseas, and dilate upon the experiences of his own only son.

"I think of him as just a little fellow," said Dennis, in his pleasant way.

"No—is big fellow now. Hayteen."

"Is he eighteen? How fast they grow up!" Dennis mused.

"Not that you remember the child at all," Isabel said, when Mario had gone.

"He had him here one day." Dennis looked up; looked at her keenly. "What's new with you?" he asked. "You send the children things, but not many letters."

"Nothing very new. Avery is still enraptured with his job. And wartime for women, I've discovered, is very dull."

"I suppose so. There isn't a life in this whole world that hasn't been touched by this cataclysm," Dennis said. "And most of it is dull. Dull for the men overseas, God knows, and dull for the women at home."

"I haven't enough to do," Isabel said cheerfully.

"Pussy tells me you go to work for the cross red ladies."

"Oh yes. But that ought to be a side issue. I was a very busy person for the first twenty-years of my life, and I miss sweeping porches, and going into fish markets and watching the scales, and saying, 'Put in that other slice. Now, how much is that?"

"None of that now?"

"No." Her manner changed, grew brisker. "Tell me about my tar babies," she said.

"Your tar babies are sweet, good little girls. My mother wrote you while you were in the East."

"Yes, but I didn't go East after all."

"Oh, I didn't know that."

"I got the letter while I was in Tahoe. Your mother said they were well, and happy, and good."

"They're dear little girls. Wasn't your plan to go to New York?"

She was getting less frightened. Her hands were hardly shaking now, and the dreadful cold feeling was lessening down her spine.

"Yes. Avery, my husband, was to get his commission. Well, he did get it, but a week sooner than we thought, and he flew at once on some eastern mission with Colonel Chapelle."

"It sounds interesting."

"Avery did have a week's leave in New York, as it happened. But there was no time for me to get there."

"Nor much fun travelling just now."

"Yes, it's going to be easier when we get gas again."

A pause. She looked in the direction from which the waiter might presumably come with their lunch.

"Easier for everyone."

"Can you get it, Dennis? I mean gas—to go to and from Marinship?"

"Oh yes. Plenty of that. And we don't use much else. I've been doing carpentry work and plumbing—Tony Eastman works at Marinship, and he comes up with me. Remember him?"

"Yes, and his father—wasn't his father Dr. Eastman?"

"Old Dr. Eastman, yes. He's retired now, and they live at San Rafael."

"Didn't they always?"

"Yes, but he used to come to the city every day."

It was hard to follow this line. The conversation died. Isabel sighed.

"Shopping is terrible these days," she said, smiling ruefully.

"I suppose so."

"New clerks and nothing to sell. And that everlasting 'There's a war on, madam."

"I hear of my mother's struggles in the market. But as a matter of fact, it seems to me that we've never lived so well, perhaps because she does most of the cooking," Dennis said. Isabel knew he was not giving his words full attention; he was nervous, too. Her heart was lead. There was no common interest between them now, except their children. She asked again for the children.

The lunch arrived and there was an interval while it was being served. Then Dennis remembered her last question and answered seriously.

"The girls are lovely. We have no trouble with them at all. My mother has Hing's nephew to help in the kitchen now—was that while you were there?"

"No, she had nobody that day. But that's seven weeks ago."

"Well, he must have come immediately afterward. The girls get back from school in time to help. They feed the chickens and take care of the pup, and now and then she gets them to weed the vegetables."

"I see my Catherine weeding!" Isabel laughed as she spoke. But her eyes were bright with tears.

"Oh, she toils about in a little brown apron Madge gave her, with a little watering pot. Great baby!" he said in satisfaction.

"I remember that one summer—I think it was the one before Pussy was born—that you and I really had great plans for that garden."

"That was the year we got dogwoods."

"Yes, but they didn't seem to flourish."

"One did. It had lots of blossoms this year."

"Remember the picnic stone on the ridge, Dennis?"

"Oh yes. It's still there. We had a picnic there last Sunday, as a matter of fact."

"Your mother go?"

"She climbed the hill like a girl. We had to help Catherine and Esme, but Mary went all the way without any complaining at all."

"Did the whole school go?"

"Oh no, just the six of us."

She must blot out the picture of them settled there by the old flat stone, with the wind-bent small oaks over them and the whole world spread out below. Catherine getting sleepy and in his arms after lunch, the blackened old coffeepot tipped in the ashes, the pleasant voices of his mother and Madge Somers-Cox sounding in the summer afternoon peace. Something to say—anything——

"July is running away. Pretty soon I'll be begging them back."

"No question of begging," he said pleasantly.

"The first of August?"

He always carried a little calendar in his pocketbook. He took the pocketbook out now and consulted the calendar. Presently he showed it to her, marking the place with his firm brown thumb.

"That Tuesday?"

"Yes, I'd love to have them then."

"I'll tell Mother. And now what about the winter? It was a very tentative arrangement. Were they to be with us in the winter?"

"But—but that was if I had them in the summer, Dennis."

"I know. So, since we've had them, we'll have to alter that arrangement."

"I've registered Pussy at a fine school. Catherine's would be only a baby school, of course."

"And they'll have no nurse? I'm glad of that."

"They'll have to have some sort of nurse. But not Yelta."

"They don't seem fond of Yelta."

"No. She's gone. She's got another position, as a matter of fact."

"She'll not come back?"

"Oh, positively not. I'll get some young girl who likes them."

"I'm glad it's not to be Yelta," said Dennis. "And yet, they are well-trained and obedient little girls, and polite, too, and I suppose we must thank Yelta for some of it."

"She was really a good nurse, Dennis. Not unkind. But I don't think we need anyone like that, now."

"And how long will you keep them, Isabel? I ask because I think it's rather important not to upset them by too sudden changes of plan. If we can keep them feeling that the rhythm is right—now with Gran and now with Mummie—it'll seem more natural to them."

He was quoting Madge now, Isabel knew. "Too sudden changes of plan" and "rhythm"—what did Dennis know about such things!

"Well, I—I hoped they'd stay with me, Dennis."

"Indefinitely? Then do we reverse it so that we have them for Thanksgiving and Christmas?"

He was talking in a perfectly businesslike way, no emotionalism or appeal. Christmas without the children, said Isabel's frightened heart. But she could not make terms now.

"Suppose we try that?" she asked. Tears were suddenly thick in her throat and heavy against her eyes. She steadied her voice.

"And then, at New Year's, see what is the best arrangement?"

"I'd like them," she said, with a daring smile, "all the time".

"Ah, so would I," Dennis agreed quickly. "We need a Solomon here."

"Too late for Solomon," Isabel said, "I've already divided them. Dennis, I've wanted to say this to you for so long," she went on hurriedly.

"Don't say it," he said smiling.

Mario came up with the cheque on a small tray and seized the opportunity to take out of his wallet a small snapshot of Joe grinning in a group of other marines, with Bataan as a background. Dennis looked at the picture attentively; Isabel let her gaze roam about the room.

• • • •

A man's restaurant, Solari's in the alley. In the old days a great place for steaks and mixed grills, and it would be again. It was dark and had no embellishment of dainty vases, murals, flowers. Its white tablecloths were plain; the china was of the simplest. But the food, Isabel agreed with all the other patrons who were paying their cheques now or finishing their coffee, was the best in the city.

Dennis finished with the snapshot, put money on the tray, was thanked by Mario and said, "That's all right." Then he looked at Isabel expectantly, with a little gesture of his shoulders. "Shall we go?" the gesture said.

"No, not yet," she said hurriedly. He didn't want to talk with her, but he must—this must get said.

"Dennis," she said, "I took things into my own hands while you were away and I'm sorry. I've wanted—certain things, all my life. I thought I would have them."

"I hope you have," he said slowly.

"Yes, but that's not the point. I didn't know—in those old days—what I'd have to pay for them."

"It's —too bad," he said hesitatingly, and her heart sank.

"If you had been here, Dennis—I've wanted to say this to you for so long——"

"Don't say it," Dennis said again, looking up with a smile.

"I've wanted to say it for so long, Dennis. That—if you had been here—that I never was unhappy, as your wife—that if we had been together——"

"Yes, I've always known that," he interrupted her, his quiet tone as definite as hers was wavering. "I knew you were lonely. I knew that the old house was quiet—dark. I understood."

"You can hardly have understood me if I didn't understand myself, Dennis."

"But of course, at the time you did understand yourself. Well. You have a devoted husband now, and I hope you are happy—and I know you are——"

"Yes, I am, it's not that," she said quickly.

"So that if it was a mistake, and if it hurt us, both of us, in some ways——"

"Not as it's hurting me now! Not to have the children—my own children— you can't know how it feels!"

He looked at her thoughtfully, and Isabel added hastily:

"Yes, you do. I know you do. But you see usually it's the mother that has them, little ones like ours. And I thought—I did not know—I didn't think that things could ever be like this."

"As far as these summer months go, can't you think of them as just being on a visit to their grandmother, as thousands of children are in the long vacation?"

The long vacation. That was Madge again! Nobody in California called it that. Here it was simply "vacation".

"Yes, I know. But thinking of the future—of all the years—I feel as if I couldn't bear it."

"We don't have to solve that now. You'll have them again in ten days, and after that we'll go on from there."

"You're very generous to me," she said.

"My mother will miss them. We all will," he said, after a moment.

"As far as Mrs. Somers-Cox's school goes, there aren't any special terms, are there?"

"No, it's a home school. They take their naps and have their lunches there, and come and go pretty much as they please."

"Do they like her, Dennis?"

"Madge? Yes, they do. Last night she was at our house, and Pussy, Esme, and Catherine all came tearing downstairs to kiss her a second time for good night."

"She would be very undemonstrative with them, I should think."

"Yes, that's what made it funny."

Isabel took the plunge.

"Dennis, do you like her?"

He raised his honest eyes, unsmiling now, and a little troubled.

"Yes, I like her. I admire her."

She had been confident of a denial, perhaps an indignant denial. There were many women in the world, few of them interested in Dennis. He had been at home only six months, he had been busy, had been recuperating from a long strain. Surely he wasn't going to——?

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

School for Deaf Students Take Holy Communion

A large congregation were present at the observance of Communion on the World's Communion Sunday Service at Bridge St. United Church, Sunday morning at which Rev. Don C. Amos officiated. An unusual feature of the service was the presence of nine girls and nine boys from the Ontario School for the Deaf, who partook of the Communion. Though deaf they had been taught and prepared for Church membership by a member of the staff at the school, and received into church membership in the United Church of Canada last Easter. The principal of the school, Mr. W. J. Morrison, is an Elder of Bridge Street Church, and assisted in the dispensing of the elements. The younger students of the school attended in a body in the church gallery. Each week the students attend the church of their choice. Those attending Sunday were only those of the United Church.

St. Thomas' Ch. Observes Annual Harvest Festival

The annual Harvest Festival was observed in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday and a large number of the parishioners joined in the services of Thanksgiving for the benefits of the harvest. The interior of the church was beautifully and artistically decorated with flowers, fruits and grains and reflected much credit upon those responsible for the arrangement. The rector, the Rev. Arthur Smith, conducted all the services and at the Choral Eucharist at 11 o'clock he was assisted by the Rev. J. M. Brownlie, Rector of Marmora, who also delivered the sermon.

The Communion Office was sung to a Gregorian setting composed by Mr. Ernest Wheatley, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.O., the organist and Choirmaster. During the Ablutions the choir sang Edmund Jones' setting of "Into the Heart of the Wildwood". The anthem, "O Lord How Manifold", by Sir Joseph Barnby was rendered in an excellent manner by the choir prior to the sermon. The recessional hymn was "Now Thank We All Our God".

Evensong was conducted by the Rector. The anthem, "O Lord How Manifold" was repeated at this service. The unaccompanied work of the choir, especially in the Nunc Dimittis was beautifully rendered.

SMUTS WARNS

Because the Economic Commission for the Balkans and Finland still has not yet completed its work, opening of today's plenary session was delayed until 3 p.m. (9 a.m. E.S.T.) First item on the agenda was the Italian treaty.

Rules of procedure recommended by the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council in an effort to speed action on the five treaties were swiftly adopted at a 45-minute plenary session yesterday, presided over by Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, who will preside again today.

Three days were allowed for consideration of the Italian treaty, with its many controversial angles, and one day each for the treaties with Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Each delegation will be limited to a 30-minute speech on each of the five treaties, plus two half-hour translation periods.

Several commissions worked throughout Sunday to place the final touches on the treaty drafts. Among these was the military commission, which finished the last of its five reports on the military clauses of the treaties.

Reparations Schedule

The Italian economic commission, which has consumed many hours marked often by bitter debate in shaping up a reparations program for Italy, held three sessions yesterday to complete its work.

Between them the Italian economic and Balkans' and Finland economic commissions set up a reparations schedule under which Russia would receive a total of $800,000,000, Czechoslovakia $60,000,000, Ethiopia $25,000,000, Yugoslavia $240,000,000 and Greece $100,000,000. Another $125,000,000 to be paid by Bulgaria would be divided between Yugoslavia and Greece by the Foreign Ministers Council, which must place its stamp of approval on the five treaties after they are adopted by the conference.

Italy would receive a reparations bill of $325,000,000, Romania $300,000,000, Bulgaria $125,000,000, Hungary $300,000,000 and Finland $300,000,000.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—The market opened weak and all four indices showed losses at noon, the industrials leading the decline with a drop of .83. The other declines were comparatively light. Volume was small at 532,000 shares for the first three hours.

Weakness ruled the paper, liquor and utility groups while the food and miscellaneous groups balanced losses with gains.

Louvicourt Goldfields had a burst of strength in the early hours, touching 3.25 for a gain of 30 cents but only part of the gain was held. Lower prices ruled for Pioneer, Chesterville, San Antonio, Astoria, Hallnor, MacDonald, El Sol, Duquesne and others.

Fractions were lost by the senior base metals, Nickel, Hudson Bay and Noranda and Sherritt was down 5 cents.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Hull $28, delivered and the market at Stratford was unsettled, it was reported early today.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 7 —(AP)— Buyers nibbled at steels and assorted stocks in today's market although many leaders were neglected.

Dealings slackened after a fairly fast opening. Plus signs were plentiful near the fourth hour and early declines of fractions to 2 or more points reduced.

Timid bidding was credited by brokers to the idea of some customers that recently dwindling volumes might mean that liquidation had run its course and the list was in shape to resume the upswing.

Canadian stocks were uneven at midday. Canadian Pacific eased ⅛ and Distillers Seagram ⅛. Both Dome Mines and McIntyre gained ¼.

We have been asked by the Bank of Canada to act as their subagents for the distribution of the new Canada Savings Bonds. As you are aware, it is of the greatest importance to Canada for this loan to be a success and, therefore, we are turning over our complete staff to further the sale of these bonds.

The bonds will bear 2¾% interest for ten years and will be redeemable at any time for the purchase price and accrued interest, anywhere in Canada. Denominations for the new bonds will be $50.00, $100.00, $500.00 and $1,000.00. The bonds are dated 1, November 1946 and will mature 1, November 1956. Maximum subscription for each individual is $2,000.00.

We believe this bond is the finest investment a Canadian can make as it is the only security which is guaranteed by the government against loss at all times. Because of the popularity of outstanding Dominion of Canada bonds, it is impossible to purchase any other Dominion Government securities on as attractive a basis as this issue of Canada Savings Bonds.

The success of the loan is your responsibility and ours. There will be no door-to-door canvass as in past Victory Loan campaigns. We would, therefore, appreciate the opportunity of handling your subscription for you, and will be contacting you directly when the loan is offered on October 15th.

Rudy York's Homer in Tenth Defeats Cards in First Game Of World Series by 3 to 2

Howie Pollet and Tex Hughson Engage in Hurling Duel

By JACK HAND

St. Louis, Oct. 7 — (AP)—One explosive home run blast off the bat of "the new" Rudy York has revived Boston talk of a four-straight sweep over the crafty St. Louis Cardinals in the 1946 World Series.

Not that Joe Cronin's Sox looked like a runaway fire engine in easing out a 3-2 edge over Howie Pollet in a tough 10-inning struggle yesterday. The opener was a ball game the Cardinals easily could have won.

Pollet, pitching one of his best games of the year and out-shining Tex Hughson despite an aching side, has come from behind and held a 2-1 lead, one strike away from that coveted first World Series victory.

McBride Hits Tying Run

Then it happened. Tom McBride who had been unable to knock the ball out of the infield bounced a single between third and short, scoring Don Gutteridge with the tying run. Gutteridge was running for Pinky Higgins whose easy grounder had squirted through Marty Marion's legs for a single.

Earl Johnson, a Battle of the Bulge veteran, set down the Redbirds in order in the ninth and Pollet got past Dom DiMaggio and the much-feared Ted Williams in the 10th.

Two were gone and nobody on when York, enjoying a remarkable comeback, ruined a courageous pitching job by the Cards' 21-game winning ace with a 375-foot home run smash into the last row of the left field bleacher seats.

That was the ball game, for Johnson survived an error by Johnny Pesky to put down the Cards with the tying run on 3rd base in the last of the tenth.

Brecheen to Pitch

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen is manager Eddie Dyer's choice to face Boston today. Brecheen a lefthander who won many of the club's "big" games down the stretch and saved the final playoff game in Brooklyn with a brilliant relief job, has won 15 and lost 15 for the National League champs.

Joe Cronin is also taking advantage of his one southpaw starter to spike the Cards' left-handed power in Sportsman's Park with its short right field wall, Mickey Harris, who won 17 and lost nine for the Sox in the regular season, gets the call.

The capacity-plus crowd of 36,218 fans who set a Sportsman's Park record for the opener under perfect weather conditions had many choice tidbits for hot stove league discussion.

No Valid Argument

Probably the most talked about instance was Whitey Kurowski's base line traffic snarl with Pinky Higgins. Whitey was on first base with the score tied and two out in the eighth when Joe Garagiola drove a long fly to deep centre that Dom DiMaggio misjudged, and let fall off his glove for a double.

Kurowski rounded second and steamed into third only to find the baseline blocked by Higgins. Both third base umpire Charley Berry and plate umpire Lee Ballanfant ruled "obstruction" and waved Whitey home. The Card third baseman took his time going home and Garagiola tore into third trying for a triple. He was thrown out about the same time as Kurowski actually crossed the plate and Cronin's Sox stormed Ballanfant, insisting the run did not score before the third out was made. When it was finally clear that "obstruction" had been ruled, there was no valid argument.

LACROSSE AWARD RECALLS TIMES OF GREAT COACH

Jimmy Murphy Trophy Named for Famous Sportsman in Days of 12-Man Lacrosse

By W. M. GLADISH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP) — When anybody talks of field lacrosse, there comes a recollection of a famous sportsman, Jimmy Murphy, who lived the sport, in season and out, until his death a decade or more ago.

The name of the jovial Irishman cropped up in the sport news recently with the formal announcement by the Ontario Lacrosse Association of the award of the Jimmy Murphy Memorial Trophy. The token, presented annually to the game's outstanding player, went to Gordon Gair of the Barrie-Lakeshore team.

When the presentation was made at Maple Leaf Gardens here one could almost see the jovial Irishman, with twinkling eye, right there with the principals. But there was no Maple Leaf Gardens in his day. It was the old Mutual Street Arena where, between lacrosse seasons, Jim used to coach the colorful St. Michael's senior hockey team.

Born in Cornwall, Ont., noted home of the summer sport, Murphy soon caught lacrosse fever under the tutelage of P. J. Lally, dean of the game for generations, and moved to Toronto eventually where he took over the Toronto Lacrosse Club of the National Lacrosse Union. The Torontos played on the Rosedale ground where, for games, Murphy established himself in a pigeon-hole window in the third floor of the clubhouse, long since disappeared. He shouted his instructions to the Blue Shirts through a megaphone. Murphy's vigorous coaching added both color and enthusiasm.

Exciting Times.

There was excitement when the Murphy voice boomed from the clubhouse eaves. "Look at that! It's murder. Ah, look at that!" he'd shout when some rough-and-ready Shamrock from Montreal happened to hit Billy Fitzgerald or Eddie Kalls. "Did you see that?" the voice screamed at the referee. Naturally, the partisans took up the cry—which was what Jim wanted.

Murphy virtually made the 13th. man on the field. As one looks back, Murphy was, in his day, perhaps the fore-runner of that hockey broadcaster, Foster Hewitt, with his "He shoots! He scores!" Only Murphy had just a mere megaphone.

Except for the three hours of a weekend match, Murphy was the most congenial of spirits. He ranked with the best as a raconteur, whose stories were spiced with Irish wit which he, himself, enjoyed as much as his audience. Like other sport veterans of the past generation, he did not take kindly to boxla.

As for hockey, Jim Murphy assembled as great a crew of Irish Greats as ever stepped on ice in the original Toronto St. Michaels of senior brand. They swept through to championships regularly, thanks partly to his astute selection of promising players and also to his manner of coaching in seven-man hockey. There, too, the basis of his method was "Get the odd man up there when we've got the puck."

Murphy smoked little, drank less and remained a celibate throughout his long and vigorous life. They used to say, however, that Jim was married to sport.

World Series Notes

By JOE REICHLER

St. Louis, Oct. 7 — (AP)—Eddie Dyer, freshman pilot of St. Louis Cardinals, was not as pessimistic as one might expect following the Redbirds' 3-2 defeat by Boston Red Sox in the opener of the World Series Sunday. "Don't forget," Dyer said, "the Cards have dropped the opening game in seven out of eight previous World Series and yet won five of them. We still have a good chance."

The Red Sox, who easily led the American League during the regular campaign in winning one-run games, once again proved they are just as tough in tight games in World Series competition. In their last five World Series triumphs, the Red Sox have won 21 games of which 11 were by one-run margins. Sunday's made it an even dozen.

Dom DiMaggio blamed the haze for losing the ball which put the Cards ahead in the eighth inning. He said he didn't see the ball until it was about to soar past his head. "That's true," chimed in Williams, "I couldn't see the ball either. Boy, imagine if that happened to me? They would have said 'that good-for-nothing Williams. All he can do is hit. It's a wonder he didn't get hit in that swelled head of his.' "

Williams neither denied nor confirmed the tale that he had made two separate wagers of $100 that he would not be with the Red Sox next year.

Umpire Cal Hubbard, the first base umpire, was careful to explain that the Cards' eighth inning run scored by Whitey Kurowski, was allowed because of "obstruction" and not "interference."

"On an interference play, the ball automatically becomes dead and play is halted at the point," Hubbard said. On an obstruction ruling, the ball remains in play." If the ruling had been "interference" Joe Garagiola, who eventually was tagged out trying to stretch his double into a triple, would have been ordered back to second.

Bill Terry, former New York Giant manager now a retired business man in Memphis, Tenn., came for the series and revealed he had offered $1,296,000 for Pittsburgh Pirates two months ago, but bowed out when he was told that Frank McKinney, the eventual purchaser, had first choice.

A total of 15 Cardinals participated in previous World Series as compared with only three Red Sox performers. The Boston trio is Rudy York, Pinky Higgins and Don Gutteridge, and naturally none was a member of the Red Sox who won their last flag in 1918.

And who should come all the way from Mexico to see the series opener but Gerardo Pasquel, one of the five brothers who this year caused such a furore by taking from the Cards such outstanding players as pitchers Max Lanier and Fred Martin. Pasquel was a guest of Breadon. Breadon was worried about which game his team would lose in Boston. Now it looks like he'll have to worry about which ones they'll win.

Steel Workers Continue to Tramp Back to Plants

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP)—Over-all-clad, lunchpail-carrying steelworkers today continued to troop back to steel plants in Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to restore production halted by the 81-day wages-hours strike by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO).

By last night, about 500 of the 5,000 production men employed by Steel Company of Canada in its Hamilton plants were back at their jobs, with others returning as fast as the massive works went back into operation. More than 2,500 Stelco workers defied the strike call and stayed in the plant 24 hours a day to maintain production on a reduced scale throughout the strike.

The company stated last week that extensive repairs to one of its fabricating plants in Hamilton would hold full production for some time. In its basic steel works, repair work and plant improvements temporarily might keep operations below capacity.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., iron workers and bricklayers went into the Algoma Steel Corporation plant to prepare to restart the big furnaces. The Algoma plant remained idle all through the strike.

At Sydney, N.S., Dominion Steel and Coal Company reiterated its stand that it could not afford to pay the 13-cents-an-hour wage increase agreed to by the other firms and made no move to re-open its mills.

URGES GOVT. TO ACT

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—A resolution urging the Federal government to launch a government-financed low-cost housing scheme, with an immediate and temporary ban on use of lumber for new hotels, theatres and "de luxe residences," was passed at a week-end meeting of the Canadian Council of the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

What's Doing in Sport

(By JACK SULLIVAN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 7. (CP)—It was a big night when Britain's Bruce Woodstock scored an eighth-round knockout over Gus Lesnevich at Harringay Arena. Sports writers, who made him the underdog in the pre-fight betting, tossed several verbal bouquets his way.

But the choice tid-bit of the evening was provided by the master of ceremonies who boomed out from the centre of the ring: "Milords, sirs, ladies and gentlemen. . ." The boys in the gallery, who paid £1 ($4) to see the battle, temporarily forgot the boxers and craned their necks for a closer look occupants in the 10guinea ($44) seats.

The M.C.'s introduction marked the first return of titled people to a top-line sports event since before the war. "This was the usual introduction at boxing shows and other sports events in the peace years when the front-row seats were taken principally by "titles and actors," an official of the arena said later.

The Londoner's Diary in the Evening Standard commented on the occasion: "This is a nice distinction which removed knights and baronets from the classification of "gentlemen", but keeps them separated from the peers. Perhaps he should have distinguished between the baronets and knights by saying 'hereditary' and ordinary sirs'."

Four cyclists were fined 25 shillings ($5) each when they appeared in court at Stafford on a charge of ignoring an automatic traffic signal at a road junction. They were entrants in the international cycling marathon organized by the British League of Racing Cyclists.

K. H. Chapman, son of the late Herbert Chapman, former manager of Arsenal football league club, has been appointed secretary of Harlequins rugby club. He captained last season's team.

Arthur Turner, who led Charlton Athletic's attack in last season's Football Association cup final against Derby County, has signed amateur forms for Colchester United in the Southern League. He was the first amateur to appear in a cup final in nearly 50 years.

Col. David Cecil Lindsay, past president of the Irish Cricket Union, died recently at his home at Lisburn, County Antrim. He was one-time member of Marylebone Cricket Club.

E. J. Holt, recently-appointed secretary of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, will resign as secretary of the Amateur Athletic Association October. He has been a member of the A.A.A. since 1912.

I HAVE WILLED THEM SECURITY
...WITHOUT "IFs"

Too often have I seen families in distress a few years after the head of the family dies. And I mean cases where the estate left would have been nicely sufficient but for that word "IF."

"IF" someone had not been taken ill... "IF" certain investments had been changed in time... "IF" someone had not been a carefree spendthrift... "IF" property insurance had not been allowed to lapse... "IF" succession duties and income taxes had been better understood.

There are many heartaches in "IFs."

My estate is comparatively small. Which makes it all the more important that every last penny be accounted for and stretched safely over the years.

In appointing National Trust the Executors of my will, I have assured my family security from the IFs of inexperience.

Holes in Sweater, Torn and Stained Recalled at Trial

Witness Points Them Out In Dick Murder Case

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Two holes in the front of John Dick's blue pullover, torn and blood-stained, were recalled and then pointed to today by Edmund Alex Field, Crown witness in the trial of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick charged with slaying her husband John.

The sweater previously had been identified as that of the slain street car operator whose mutilated body was found on Hamilton Mountain last March.

Field said he was on hand — "March 6 or 7" when garageman William Landeg removed the sweater from his car which had been loaned to the 25-year-old accused and returned in dirty, blood-stained condition.

Field said he noted the holes in the sweater as Mr. Landeg held it up. The holes were on the right side of the sweater as it faced him.

For defence counsel John Sullivan he identified the sweater and pointed out the holes while the pretty, dark-haired prisoner, dressed in fawn coat, listened and took notes during this second day of her courtroom fight for life.

During the first day of the trial, which opened yesterday, evidence followed the lines of testimony at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Dick, her father, and William Bohozuk last spring.

How much of the crown's case has already been brought out remained a matter of conjecture but a hint of Crown strategy was seen in the move, concurred in by the trial judge Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, for a separate trial for Mrs. Dick.

Others Face Identical Charges

At its conclusion her father, 68-year-old Donald MacLean and her one-time friend, Bohozuk, face identical charges in the death of the former Hamilton Street Railway tram operator, slain last March 6 and his body, minus head and limbs, dumped on Hamilton Mountain.

All three accused appeared in court yesterday. All pleaded not guilty. But only the attractive young widow remained when it was decided to give her separate trial. The others were bundled back to jail.

Mrs. Dick, clad in black, handled herself with the same calm shown throughout the case and took an active hand, with her counsel, John J. Sullivan, in challenging 19 jurors. Then she sat back to watch, a dark, good-looking woman some 10 to 15 pounds heavier than at the preliminary hearing.

Her mother, Mrs. Alexandra MacLean, also was in the courtroom. When she approached, a court attendant challenged her credentials of admittance.

The mother drew herself up, looked at the court attendant and said:

"I, I am Mrs. MacLean."

Expectations were Mrs. Dick's trial would possibly last until a week from today. The Special Crown Prosecutor, T. J. Rigney of Kingston, told His Lordship he hoped to have his case completed by the weekend, indicating perhaps a stand of one day or less by the defence.

Evidence so far dealt mainly with the geographical features of King's Forest on Hamilton mountain where Dick's torso was found by boys out hiking last March 16 and with bloodstained clothes allegedly belonging to Dick.

Main witness of the day was garageman William Landeg who told how Mrs. Dick borrowed his car last March 6, returned it late in dirty and blood-stained condition and explained this by a note which said she had had to take her small daughter to hospital with a cut face.

Another witness, Joseph Visheau, proprietor of a dining room, told of seeing the slain man on the afternoon of March 6 when Dick ate at his place. He was flustered and in a rush, Visheau said.

Earlier, Mrs. Anne Kammerer, Dick's landlady and a relative by marriage, told of going downtown with the slain man. She described his clothes and identified Crown exhibits as being part of Dick's wardrobe.

SEARCHING WILDS OF WESTERN CHINA FOR 32 AIRMEN

Believed Held by Lolos Since Their Plane Crashed on September 20th

Chungking, Oct. 8 — (AP)—A friendly Lolo tribesman and a Chinese general's aide — the only two permitted by hostile natives to pass — searched the wilds of Western China today for an American pilot and 31 other persons reported held by Lolos since their Chinese airliner crashed Sept. 20.

Rifle fire drove off one search plane carrying a professional parachutist. He had hoped to locate the wreckage and jump in an effort to aid the crash victims — said to have kept Lolos at bay for a time, with available side-arms.

The airliner crashed 60 miles south of Sichang, in the same general area in which the United States Army graves registration service is making its own quiet search for five United States Air Forces crew members believed captives of the Lolos for more than two years.

The airliner pilot, Capt. Andrew Lungbotham, Pasadena, Calif., was the only American reported aboard the Chinese National Aviation Corporation plane.

First reports of the crash location were received Sept. 28. Gen. Ho Kow-Kwang, Chinese army commandant at Sichang, sent a qualman relief expedition into the rugged area near the north.

north Burma border, but the Lolos would allow only a Lolo guide and the general's aide to pass. Gen. Ho telegraphed Chungking Sunday that the downed plane still had not been found.

Take Charge of Passengers

A Lolo family near a village called Ahbulluluboo had taken charge of the passengers, all of whom were reported to have survived the crash without serious injury, the general reported. The family, he added, had "tried their best to protect them."

Gen. Ho appealed to Chungking for salt, cloth and medicines, presumably so rescuers might be able to barter their way into the mountain and perhaps ransom captives.

Capt. Robert W. Pottschmidt, Wenatchee, Wash. who has made several fruitless search flights over the area, said his plane had been hit by rifle fire from the ground.

The last available report on the crash victims, Capt. Pottschmidt said, was contained in a letter from a Chinese magistrate whose village was four days' hike from the scene.

"According to reported news, the Lolos dare not approach the wrecked plane," the letter said. "Inside the plane, guns were opening fire.

HURRICANE DIES DOWN CROSSING STATE OF FLORIDA

'Freak Storm' May Regenerate When It Reaches Atlantic Says Forecaster

Miami, Fla., Oct. 8 — (AP) — A weakened hurricane which moved across the Florida Peninsula this morning was expected to remain inland with continued movement over southeastern Georgia and South Carolina today and tonight although strong winds were indicated as far north as Atlantic City.

The federal storm warning service in a 7:15 a.m. (E.S.T.) advisory placed the storm a short distance west of Jacksonville and moving 30 to 35 miles an hour with greatly "decreased intensity."

Jacksonville had felt winds up to 45 miles an hour in gusts with lowest pressure 29.20, the advisory stated.

The hurricane with early winds reported as high as 125 miles an hour at the centre entered the mouth of Tampa Bay about midnight with great loss of intensity and moved across the state's rich citrus belt.

The 7:15 a.m. advisory stated the inland movement of the storm "will cause further loss of intensity, and gale winds near the storm centre will gradually moderate today and tonight.

"The storm warnings will be lowered all over Florida as the winds subside today.

Precautions Maintained in Georgia

"However, precautions against high tides and squally shifting winds should be continued on the Georgia coast and northward to Charleston and strong winds occasionally reaching gale force will be felt as far north as Atlantic City today," the advisory concluded.

Earlier advisories had indicated the storm would enter the Atlantic in the Jacksonville area and pick up in intensity over the water with a possible threat to the thickly-populated east coast.

Hurricane warnings remained displayed north of the Florida Keys to Cedar Keys on the Florida west coast and from Melbourne to Fernandina on the east, while storm warnings were up from Apalachicola to south of Atlantic City.

Apparently the howling storm began to die rapidly as it approached Florida's west coast yesterday. As late as 4 p.m. winds of 95 miles an hour were reported at the centre. Fort Myers, which the storm missed by some 90 miles, had winds up to 56 miles an hour and gusts up to 80.

No Damage Reported

Tampa, St. Petersburg, and other centres in the Tampa Bay area reported no damage and very little wind, as the storm veered inland near the entrance to Tampa Bay, where Egmont Key reported winds up to 55 miles an hour.

Strongest winds, the warning service said, were in the area between Sebring and Orlando, a stretch of fine citrus groves. Orlando reported gusts of wind up to 70 miles an hour.

R. H. Simpson, forecaster of the federal storm warning service, called the storm a "freak condition" and said it may not regenerate until it reached the Atlantic.

Goering Weeps as He Packs Family Pictures to Be Sent After Execution

Nuernberg, Oct. 8—(AP)—Hermann Goering wept quietly—the only break in his otherwise rigidly correct deportment — as he packed away his pictures of his wife and daughter to be sent to them after his execution, a Nuernberg jail official said today.

With a week of life remaining to them, Nazi leaders condemned by the international military tribunal to be hanged generally are maintaining their dignity and discipline, Maj. Frederick Teich, a security officer, told a press conference.

With the exception of the single breakdown when he regarded the photographs of his wife and daughter, Goering's deportment has been impeccable, Maj. Teich said. But both he and the former foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, need sedatives nightly.

Former Nazi labor boss, Fritz Sauckel, has burst into tears several times. He was calm throughout the hour's visit allotted his wife, mother of his 10 children, but when he returned to his cell, he paced up and down swiftly.

Goering saw his wife, Emmy, for an hour yesterday, and hulking Ernst Kaltenbrunner saw his mistress, the mother of his twins, for the first time since he was jailed.

The visits were arranged in a special room with screen and glass separating visitor and prisoner. Kaltenbrunner attempted to kiss his mistress through the screen as their hour expired.

Foundation of Peace Must Be Unity Bevin Tells Peace Conference

By ROBERT EUNSON

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain told the peace conference today "unity was the foundation of our victory and must be the foundation of our peace."

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia presided at the plenary session.

Mr. Bevin's address followed a declaration by Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian Foreign Minister and President of the United Nations General Assembly, that the peace treaty drafted for Italy was too harsh in its present form.

"Renunciation of her colonies, $225,000,000 in reparations, refusal to allow Italy to ask reparations of Germany and retribution by 75 per cent of the losses suffered by Allied nations in Italy", the Belgian declared, is "asking too much."

He said the suffering which Italy caused in Ethiopia and Greece must be remembered in writing the Italian peace treaty, but that Italian resistance to the German occupation should not be declared 'null and void." He lectured the delegates for adopting the last minute speedup under which much of the work of the conference was done in the closing sessions.

There was, he said, "too little to do at the start and now too much to do at the finish."

Foreign Minister Wicenty Rzymowski of Poland called upon the peace makers to insert a clause in the Italian treaty which would guard against any future Fascist organizations getting started.

Unable to Claim Respect

Mr. Rzymowski predicted the statute of Trieste, as it stands in the Italian treaty, will incite "interminable discussion" in the United Nations meetings of the future because the Governor "is to be a foreigner" who will be unable to claim "the respect of the citizens of Trieste."

Constantin Tsaldaris, Prime Minister of Greece, called upon the delegates to reject articles 21 and 22 of the Italian treaty stipulating that Italy recognize and respect the sovereignty of Albania and granting the Island of Saseno to Albania.

Mr. Tsaldaris, last speaker scheduled for the morning session, tossed a bomb into the conference that was bound to cause repercussion from the Slav bloc when he declared Epirus and Saseno were "Greek because they have been flooded with the blood of soldiers of the Hellenese."

He demanded both for his country, although the treaty makers had not agreed with him.

Previously a motion by Greece that plenary session discuss Greek claims for Epirus had been withdrawn.

INDUSTRY PLANS EXPENDITURE OF $1,170,000,000

Reconstruction Dept. Says Money Will be Used for Machinery, Repairs, Maintenance

Ottawa, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Canadian businessmen plan to spend $1,170,000,000 this year on new construction, machinery and on repairs and maintenance, the Reconstruction Department disclosed today in a review of the investment intentions of Canadian industry.

The report, based on results of a survey which obtained estimates from 13,430 business establishments of the expenditures they expected to make during 1946 on capital goods, repairs and maintenance, supplements a previous review issued last June.

It listed the following amounts, by industries, which business enterprise plans to spend on new physical durable assets and on repairs and maintenance: manufacturing, $543,000,000; mining, $42,000,000; woods operations, $13,000,000; banking, $5,000,000; public utilities (including central electric stations, telephones, air, water, rail and motor transportation), $567,000,000.

Of the $1,170,000,000 total, 25 per cent was to be spent on new construction, 33 per cent on purchase of new machinery and equipment, 16 per cent on repair of buildings and other structures and 26 per cent on repair of machinery and equipment.

53.3 P. C. for Ontario

Of the total planned expenditure of $543,000,000 in manufacturing, more than one-half or 53.5 per cent of the outlay was to be made in Ontario, 29 per cent in Quebec, 8.5 per cent in British Columbia, 5 per cent in the prairie provinces and 4 per cent in the Maritimes.

Examination of these expenditures according to major industrial cities showed Toronto leading the list with an outlay of $83,000,000, followed by Montreal with $75,000,000, Hamilton $42,000,000, Vancouver $18,000,000, Winnipeg, $8,000,000 and Windsor $6,000,000.

However, with respect to investment plans indicated by the survey, the department expects that as a result of shortages resulting from reconversion difficulties and from strikes, the actual realization will fall considerably short of original intentions.

CONFER WITH OFFICIALS

Ottawa, Oct 8 (CP)—Government officials today conferred with representations of Chrysler Corp., Windsor, Ont., and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) in an effort to end the strike of automobile workers at the company's Windson and Chatham, plants.

AIRLINER CRASHES NEAR CHEYENNE 2 PERSONS KILLED

Forty Passengers and Four Crewmen Aboard — Reason for Crash Unknown

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 8 — (AP) — Two persons were killed and at least three injured, possibly seriously, when a United Airlines plane crashed 1½ miles northwest of here at 4:35 a.m. (M.S.T.) today.

The plane, eastbound trip No. 28, bound from San Francisco to New York, was carrying 43 passengers. Company officials said that all passengers had been taken to Memorial Hospital for a physical checkup before being released.

The names were not immediately available.

The plane was coming in to make a regularly scheduled landing and the cause of the crash was not known.

The ship landed on the Fort Francis E. Warren military reservation not far from the post ammunition dump.

Sheriff Robert E. Tuck said the plane broke in two in the crash.

Three small infants were among the passengers according to Sheriff Tuck, but they appeared to have escaped injury.

Company officials said the pilot of the plane had not yet been questioned on the accident.

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP)—United Airlines reported one of its four-engined DC-4 passenger planes with 40 passengers and four crew members aboard crashed about one mile from the Cheyenne airport at 4:31 a.m. M.S.T. (6:31 A.M. E.S.T.) today, with two passengers killed.

The big ship left San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. (PST) last night for New York. Cheyenne was its first stop en route east.

An airlines spokesman said the nose and two engines were torn off. Ceiling was 400 feet at the time, and visibility was fair.

No reason for the crash was known here.

Thirty-eight persons crawled from the wreckage and four others were helped out.

All cargo and all mail was saved.

SUBSIDIES TO BE PAID

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—The Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. has been advised that increased costs resulting from higher wages at its Sydney, N.S., steel plant will be compensated for by high subsidies, Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said today.

Dosco had delayed re-opening of its Sydney plant following ending of the steel strike last week on the ground that it was not in a position to meet the wage increase of 13 cents an hour which was the basis of the strike settlement.

SEEKS INJUNCTION AGAINST RISE IN MILK PRICE

Candidate in Election To Make Application At Osgoode Hall For Needed Legislation

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP) — In a move designed to nullify a recent decision of the Ontario Milk Board, increasing price of milk to consumers by three cents a quart, Mrs. Elizabeth Morton, Labor-Progressive candidate in the forthcoming Toronto Parkdale by-election, is expected today to make application at Osgoode Hall for an injunction restraining the Board from its decision.

Mrs. Morton said last night she would make the application today through her solicitor and at the same time the Board would be given notice.

This was the most recent development in the milk situation in Ontario, subject of considerable controversy since decision of the Board went into effect Oct. 1. Following protests that the Board had exceeded its powers under the Milk Control Act of the Ontario Legislature, the government appointed Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court, a commissioner to investigate production costs and other phases of the milk industry.

Sources at Queen's Park were optimistic of Mrs. Morton's chance of success and the Labor-Progressive candidate said the power of the Board to make the order which it purported to make, has already been questioned by Premier Drew.

Mr. Justice Wells conferred yesterday with Attorney-General Blackwell but no intimation was given as to when the milk investigation would start.

Trying to Pass Buck Claim

At Russell, Ont., John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader in the House of Commons, said the increase in the retail price of milk had created justification for increases in price of other dairy products and Dominion government action in "shifting control of milk prices to the provincial boards had thrown the prices of other dairy products out of balance."

Addressing the annual banquet of the Osgoode and Russell County Plowing Association, he charged the Dominion government was seeking to "get out from under" in its price control policy and in returning milk price-fixing to provincial milk boards, was "obviously trying to pass on a hot potato."

A delegation of Montreal housewives yesterday called on Mayor Camillien Houde to protest against a similar increase in price of milk in Quebec but were told it was not a civic matter and were directed to pursue the matter, if they wished, with the Dominion or provincial governments.

Mrs. Gertrude Partridge, who led the delegation, said she thought the "whole question of milk distribution should be investigated, as is being done in Ontario."

Dan McGrew Would Never Recognize North With Radios, Washing Machines

By JACK GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)— Shades of Dan McGrew; Robert W. Service's legendary sourdough would never recognize his beloved Arctic these days. A far cry from the rough tough days of the trail of '98, it now has chesterfields, radios, electric lights and washing machines, far beyond the Arctic Circle.

That's the word that two meteorological technicians brought back yesterday from Arctic Bay, on the tip of Baffin Land, 1,000 miles from the Pole.

Employed by the Dominion Meteorological Service on the radio station and weather reporting post 2,1000 miles north of Toronto, the two, Harold Serson, 20, of Ottawa and Hugh R. Longfield, 34, of Tillsonburg, Ont., reported to headquarters here after arriving at Montreal on the Arctic supply ship Nascopie last week.

Though the temperature dropped to 60 below zero in the long Arctic night, life in the building was comfortable. Built of plywood brought in by the Nascopie, they were heated by stoves and coal.

The chesterfields and the washer also came on the supply ship.

"One Hundson Bay Company post at Pond Inlet," recalled Longfield, with a chuckle, "had three chesterfields for the factor, his wife and daughter."

Electricity was supplied by a generator run by a gasoline engine, the gasoline, of course, coming from the annual voyage of the Dominion government's Nascopie.

"The buildings just looked like summer cottages down here," said blond, bespectacled Longfield. "We were kept pretty busy all the time, even during the three months of night in the winter."

As for radio reception, they heard the BBC the best but used to get stations from all over the world.

The most memorable incident of their stay was in November, 1944, when a building containing hydrogen cylinders, used for inflating weather balloons, exploded and the resulting fire for a time endangered the buildings housing their supplies."

Ready to Share In Any International Plan Says Attlee

Govt. Plans to Spend Huge Sum on Experimental Work

London, Oct. 8 —(CP)— Prime Minister Attlee said today Britain hoped to obtain an international ban on military use of atomic energy.

Mr. Attlee also told the reopened parliament that he was not in a position to announce the government's decision whether a royal commission should be appointed to inquire into the British press.

He assured the House that freedom of the press would not be restricted.

Addressing the first session of the House of Commons since the summer recess, Mr. Attlee urged passage of a government-sponsored bill which would give the government full control of all British development of atomic energy and provide for establishing a research station.

The Prime Minister said Britain proposed "to play its full part in any international scheme" of control.

Describing the bill as an earnest that Britain would be ready to play its full part in any international scheme, Mr. Attlee stated that expenditure on a huge scale might be necessary if Britain was to play her proper part. The program of work already planned at the government's experimental station would cost something like £30,000,000 ($120,000,000,) he said.

Assured of Passage

The bill was assured of virtually unanimous passage after Richard Law, Conservative spokesman, told the House that the opposition would support it.

"An international agreement establishing an international authority for the control of this new weapon is the ultimate defence against the atom bomb," said Mr. Law, adding that no international control could be set up "until national control has first been established."

Mr. Law told the House that "if there is any prospect more alarming than the prospects of an armaments race, it is an armaments race in which we come in last."

Mr. Attlee said provisions for censorship and suppression of information will be amended to allow payment to any inventor whose device the government believes should be taken or suppressed.

The prime minister told the House the labor government had not yet decided whether to order an investigation of the British press, including ownership and trends toward monopoly.

"I am not yet in a position to announce the government's intentions," he said.

The National Union of Journalists had requested a press investigation and 100 Labor members of parliament supported the move.

War Not Immediate Danger

Foreign Secretary Bevin's comment on Prime Minister Stalin's statement that he saw no immediate danger of war has been regarded as inconclusive by left wing members of parliament and some Conservatives, who have called for a "major" address in response to the Russian leader. Debates on India and Palestine also seemed likely within a few weeks.

A bill to nationalize the Cable and Wireless Company, whose communications network links the Empire, is on this month's agenda. The Labor Government in little more than a year has pushed through laws nationalizing the Bank of England, the coal industry and civil aviation.

Measures to nationalize transport and the gas and electric industry await the opening of a new session next month.

Prime Minister Attlee may disclose whether the government plans to accede to a demand of the National Union of Journalism for an investigation of the press—including ownership and monopolistic trends.

Special Court To Hear Appeals For Clemency

Berlin, Oct. 8 — (AP) — The Allied Control Council for Germany will meet in extraordinary session at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. E.S.T.) tomorrow to consider clemency appeals filed for Nazi war criminals sentenced by the international military tribunal a week ago.

The special meeting was called by the council's chairman for the month, French Gen. Pierre Koenig. The council's regular meeting date is Thursday.

Appeals have been filed by all but three of the 19 Nazis sentenced. Those who disdained appeals were Ernst Kaltenbrunner, the Gestapo chief, sentenced to die; munitions minister Albert Speer and youth leader Baldur Von Schirach, sentenced to serve 20 years each.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, sentenced to life imprisonment, has requested that he be shot instead.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Synopsis: The high pressure area of warm air which brought summertime weather to the lower lakes region during the last few days gave way on Monday to the advance of an extensive high pressure area of cold air now centred over James Bay. Maximum temperatures Tuesday in the lower lakes region are expected to be about 15 degrees below those of yesterday. Wintry weather is occurring throughout a large part of the midwest. Skies are overcast and rain and snow is occurring in the Dakotas, Montana and the southern parts of the prairie provinces. Gale force winds and overcast skies with rain associated with the tropical hurricane now moving across Florida are reported as far north as the Carolinas and Tennessee in the southeastern United States.

Head of Building Firm Charged With Fraud

Charged with fraud involving the failure to complete contracts he had entered into with several city and rural residents, Nelson Miller, age 43, proprietor of the Maple Leaf Construction Co., Kingston Rd., Belleville, was arrested by city police today and is remanded pending further investigation.

Police claim that Mr. Miller's firm is also known under the name of Maple Leaf Industries of Flinton, Ont., the firm purportedly being open for general contracting, building repairs, roofing and asphalt paving.

A former American who came to Canada within the past two or three years, Mr. Miller is stated by police to have entered into contracts in Belleville and district and after accepting a down payment, either disappeared from the scene or failed to do any work toward the completion of the contract. Police claim the accused's fraudulent activities date back to June of this year.

Miller was arrested by city police following complaints from city residents, but provincial police are investigating throughout the rural district where it is believed Miller had entered into other contracts which he has failed to fulfill.

Steel Moves Out From Stelco At Hamilton

Hamilton, Oct. 8 (CP)— Steel-starved Canadian manufacturers and construction industries today were receiving a powerful transfusion as thousands of tons of steel moved out of the Hamilton Works of the Steel Company of Canada by boat, rail and truck.

More than 100,000 tons of the vital material were turned out under siege conditions by an estimated 2,500 non-striking workers during the 11-week-long strike called by the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) against basic steel plants here, in Sault Ste. Marie, and Sydney, N.S.

R. A. Gillies, Works manager at the Hamilton Works plant, declined to give an estimate of the number of tons of steel already shipped, but said it was being moved "very rapidly."

Meantime, workers out of the plant during the long dispute were passing through the employment office preparatory to returning to work at a brisk pace. Up last night, more than 1,00 had their records checked and were told when they are to return, Aubrey Lott, personnel manager, disclosed today.

DELIBERATE ATTEMPT MADE

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)— What railway officials termed an attempt to deliberately derail a Lake Erie and Northern Railway car failed last night when the car struck and cut in two a wooden tie that had been placed on the rails near Freeman's Crossing, between Colborne and Windham.

A short distance north the car again struck a similar object but it was pushed off the track before coming in contact with the wheels. In the first collision a tie rod on the car was broken and the passengers and crew jolted but none was injured. Operation of the car, on its way from Simcoe, Ont., was not seriously impaired and it continued to Brantford.

Shrine Club Will Again Conduct Sale of Seals

A cheerful lamplighter, symbolizing the emergence of fresh hope after the darkness of the past years, is featured on the 1946 Christmas Seal, which has been received at headquarters of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, according to Mr. D. L. Storey, chairman.

The 20th annual Christmas Seal Sale, to raise funds for the control of tuberculosis, will be conducted throughout the nation from November 25 through Christmas. Of the money raised in our community, 90 per cent will be spent for our local campaign against tuberculosis. The remaining 10 per cent will be forwarded to the Canadian Tuberculosis Association to pay for supplies and services.

Christmas Seals were first sold in this country in 1927, the idea having originated in Denmark and spread to all parts of the world. Before the war, as many as fifty countries conducted Christmas Seal sales to support the work of tuberculosis control.

Miss N. Armstrong, Secretary, said that the quota for the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association this year has been set at $7,500.00, which will be used for such projects as mass X-ray surveys and X-ray camera equipment for local hospital.

Kinsmen Club Members Discuss Urgent Matter

It was open night for Kinsmen at the regular weekly dinner meeting Monday evening when in lieu of the customary after dinner speaker, members discussed club matters while two impromptu speakers urged Kinsmen assistance on as many forthcoming projects.

Tommy Mason, recently appointed zone commander of the Kingston and district branch of the Canadian Legion, indicated that assistance of Kinsmen Club members would be asked by his association in making club rooms in Belleville possible.

President Newt Wilbur announced the decision of club directors at a recent meeting when they voted that the club not hold their regular "Shell Out" program this Hallowe'en. In lieu of the "Shell Out" program annually offered by Kinsmen for the enjoyment of local kiddies, the club will donate merchandize valued at $100 to assist the Y.M.C.A. in staging their annual Hallowe'en party. Club members were also asked to give their assistance to this project.

President Newt Wilbur acted as chairman for the meeting with Gardiner Duff giving forth as song leader while Phil Huddleston presided at the piano. "Stub" Barrett acted as fine collector.

Adding to the musical portion of the program Tommy Mason favored with a duo of catchy songs, playing his own accompaniment on the piano.

Trapper Collects $450 in Bounties

That wolf trapping is a lucrative business, especially when the trapper has the "know how" is indicated by the experience of Ibert Saulay, professional trapper of Turriff, in North Hastings.

Reversing the old adage which advises the young man to "go north, young man, go north," Mr. Saulay came to the southern part of the county, to Hungerford and Huntingdon Townships and in exactly one month had trapped eight wolves for which he received a total of $450 in bounties. This included the provincial, county and township bounties.

Mr. Saulay started his trapping operations in the southern part of the county on August 31st and three weeks later had trapped seven wolves. Collecting his bounty at the office of Ross Bailey, county treasurer, the trapper stated there was one more wolf in the vicinity. He got the wolf on September 30th.

Builders of Incomplete Homes For Veterans Asked to Give Information Immediately on Material Needs

Secretary-Manager Jack Badgley of the Chamber of Commerce has been advised by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation of Ottawa that it will be possible to obtain priorities for materials to complete any houses in the city which have been completed 50 per cent (roof) and which are being built for veterans.

Due to the fact that a strong delegation of representatives of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will be in Belleville on Thursday to confer with Mayor Follwell and city officials on the housing situation here, it is imperative that all information regarding uncompleted houses be in the hands of city officials prior to the meeting.

Mr. Badgley today urged all builders of houses which are incomplete and are being erected for veterans, to forward all information as to their material needs to the offices of the Chamber of Commerce here immediately so that the needs of the city may be placed before the meeting on Thursday.

"Pops" Cooper Sends $50 to Rotary For Use in Crippled Children's Work

Jackie "Pops" Cooper, Kansas City, Mo., seventy-five-year-old veteran of the speedboat waterways whose 225 Class hydroplane "Tops II" was sunk off Massassaga Point last August during the Rotary Club Regatta, has other interests besides racing his speedy craft over regatta courses.

For the other day Chairman Lloyd Hicks of the Rotary Club Regatta Committee received a letter from the venerable "Pops" in which was enclosed a cheque for fifty dollars which he wished to be placed at the disposal of the Crippled Children's Committee of the service club.

In the accompanying letter, "Pops" wrote, "I shall never forget the fine hospitality and treatment shown us while in Belleville and during the fine regatta sponsored by your club. It was the best we received in the grand country of yours and we are looking forward to visiting you again next year."

The Cooper boat whirled high into the air and sank while attempting to make a sharp turn for a buoy during the first heat of the 225 cubic inch class, feature race of the regatta here last summer.

Later Regatta Committeemen under Lloyd Hicks, aided by divers and equipment from Kingston raised the "Tops II" which was only slightly damaged. It was recovered from thirty feet of water off Massassaga Point.

The weekly luncheon held on Monday featured an address on Club Service by past president Rotarian O. H. Scott. He spoke on classifications and how they affected club life.

President Bert Howard was in the chair. A Rotary quiz was conducted by Rotarian Mack Macklem.

Salvation Army Fund Officials Express Thanks

Major G. Earle, officer commanding the Salvation Army Citadel, and Campaign Chairman Mark J. Vanner, president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and his committee associates expressed their grateful thanks to the general public today for its generous response to the Home Front appeal for funds for the Army which officially closed a few days days ago.

The objective of the campaign $5,000, was not only attained but was generously oversubscribed.

Chairman Vanner stated today that Army officials and his committee were especially appreciative of the fine efforts of the various city organizations whose members as well as private individuals in canvassing capacities contributed so much to the ultimate success of the campaign.

Officials also expressed their appreciation for the co-operation shown by the press, the local radio station and all others who helped in any way to put over the campaign.

Chairman Vanner drew attention to the fact that although the campaign is officially closed, some people who are desirous of making a donation, can do so by sending contributions to 43 Henry Street or telephone 603 and a representative of the committee will call at the donor's convenience.

Body of de Havilland Is Washed Ashore

Whitestable, Kent, England, Oct. 8 (CP)—The body of a man washed ashore here Monday was identified as Geoffrey de Havilland, 37, ace British test pilot, missing since his experimental jet plane fell into the Thames Estuary Sept. 27.

Examination disclosed head injuries, a broken arm and a broken leg.

Witnesses had seen de Havilland's plane apparently explode in the air while on a practice flight.

Obituary

MRS. AGNES STEWART
(Trenton)

Trenton, Oct. 8 (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. Agnes Stewart, who died here on Saturday last after an illness of three weeks' duration, in her 79th year, was held from the Cobley and Van Luven Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. The service there and at Mount Evergreen Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rector of St. George's Anglican Church.

The bearers were H. Kenney, Gerald Nichols, Jack Baker, A. Stewart, M. Stewart and W. Davidson.

The late Mrs. Stewart was married twice, her first husband was William Meath and her second husband was Elijah Stewart; both are deceased. She lived in the State of Michigan from 1922 to 1938.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. Sarah Meath Vardy of Trenton; two granddaughters, Mrs. Jean Meath Westaway and Mrs. Gladney Meath Fleming.

GEORGE JORDAN
(Trenton)

Trenton, Oct. 8 (Special)—The funeral of George Jordan took place on Monday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home. The service there and at Mount Evergreen Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. D. Martin of King Street United Church. The funeral was under the auspices of Trent Lodge No. 38 A.F. & A.M.

The bearers were Orloff May, Harold Patrick, Orville Patrick, Ben Joyce, James Pow and Gerald Weaver.

The following flower bearers were all Past Presidents of the Canadian Legion: Paul Anderson, R. F. McInnes, Lorne Foster, E. E. Wiggins, N. Sprague and George LaBrash.

The late Mr. Jordan who was one of Trenton's best known residents, was seized with a heart attack while motoring to Picton accompanied by his wife on Friday afternoon last and died at his home here the same evening. He was born 52 years ago at Harriston, Ont. and was a son of William Jordan and the late Mrs. Jordan. For thirty five years he resided here and for the past fifteen years he operated a garage and taxi business. In the life of the community he took a prominent part and was a member of the Rotary Club; Trent Lodge No. 38 A. F. & A.M.; St. Mark's Chapter No. 26; Order of the Eastern Star No. 118; I.O.O.F. No. 113; Rebekah Lodge No. 135; Past President and member of Garage Operators Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, and for three years from 1942 to 1945 he was connected with the War Time Prices and Trade Board.

At one time Mr. Jordan was an employee of the C.N.R. and served as baggageman for twenty five years. He was a veteran of the First Great War and was a member of the Canadian Legion Trenton Branch No. 110 of which he was a Past President. He attended King Street United Church. Surviving him are his wife, one Daughter Isabella, at home; his father, Mr. W. J. Jordan of Hespeler, Ontario; two sisters, Mrs. Walford of Hespeler, and Mrs. Shnaringer of Preston, Ontario. His brother John Jordan died in Toronto in March of this year.

JAMES EDWARD RYAN
(Tweed)

Tweed, (Special.)—The funeral of James Edward Ryan, who died at his home here after a brief illness on Friday, October 4, was held from his late residence on Monday morning to St. Carthagh's Church, where Solemn High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by the Very Rev. Dean D. A. Cullinane, with the Rev. J. V. Masterson as Deacon, and the Rev. F. M. Grant, as Sub-Deacon. The Rev. S. J. Brennon was Master of Ceremonies.

Interment took place at St. Peter's Cemetery, Peterborough.

The honorary bearers were Mitchell Le Sage, Dr. Doyle, T. E. Moffat, W. S. Gordon, Dr. Paul, Arthur Beach, Thomas Beatty and Richard McCracken.

The active bearers were Wilfred Le Sage, Alec Rupert, Albert Maynes, Arthur McCarey, Louis Rashotte and T. Quinn.

The late Mr. Ryan was born 81 years ago at Westwood, Ont., and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ryan. For the past 35 years he lived in Tweed and prior to that time he resided at Westwood, Peterborough and Marmora. He was one of the pioneer cheesemakers in Peterborough and Victoria counties up to 1911, when he changed his activities to lumbering. He was identified with his brother-in-law, the late Edward Lynch, operating under the trade name of Lynch & Ryan Lumber Company. He later owned and operated the Tweed Creamery which he sold to the Citizens' Dairy in 1928. In 1928 he retired from active business. He continued, however, to maintain a keen interest in municipal affairs and was active in all worthy projects in the community up to the time of his death. He was a former member of the Tweed High School Board and served for 25 years; he was also on the Parks Commission and the Tweed Amusement Board.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Lena Lynch; two sons, Rev. Brother Camillus of the Christian Brothers, Toronto, and John James Ryan, Lakefield; three daughters, Rev. Sister Anicetus, Sisters of Charity, Kingston; Mrs. Helen Geraldi, Lakefield, and Miss Meta Margaret Ryan, Tweed; two sisters, Rev. Sister St. James, of Mount St. Joseph, and Rev. Sister Margaret Mary, Peterborough three grandchildren, Helena, Jean and Billie Geraldi, all of Lakefield.

Little Prospect For More Bacon

Ottawa, Oct. 7 —(CP)— Agriculture Department sources said today there was little prospect, for some months at least, of improvement in the quantity and quality of bacon being sold for home consumption.

They pointed out that Canada because of her declining hog production, was having trouble meeting her contract to supply Britain with 350,000,000 pounds of bacon this year and likely would experience similar difficulty in 1947.

NO POLICE STRIKE

London, Oct. 8 — (CP Cable) — Scotland Yard's press office announced last night that the police federation and home office officials are conferring in an effort to improve the lot of the London "bobby." "Increased pay and better working conditions are probably being discussed," the press office said. One official said a police strike would be "out of the question."

"LIFE'S BIGGER MOMENTS"

"... with all my worldly goods"

At the moment you slip that slender band of gold on Her finger, your mind is filled with such things as orange blossoms, wedding bells and train reservations. Later, when the hubbub and excitement more or less die down, you may pull up with a mental start and ask yourself: "WHAT worldly goods?"

That's a good time to reach for the telephone and get some friendly advice from the North American Life representative. He'll take a load off your mind by showing you how to create a substantial and immediate estate ... an assured income for your First Lady for life. After two months of intensive training, the new Canadian-built Tribal class destroyer, H.M.C.S. "Nootka" has joined the fleet. Since her commissioning on August 7, "Nootka" has carried out exercises off the coast of Nova Scotia with a view to making the ship's company completely familiar with the new ship and her armament.

The above picture was taken as "Nootka" carried out full speed trials after her commissioning while dockyard workers were still on board checking machinery and equipment. The photograph shows the torrent of foam thrown up astern of the warship as her engines drive her at a speed of around 35 knots. The white ensign flutters crisply in the breeze created by the speeding ship. —(R.C.N. Photo.)

H.M.C.S. Nootka, Second Canadian Post-War Tribal Class Destroyer, Joins Fleet

Ottawa, Oct. 8—Her two-month program of preliminary training completed, Canada's most recently commissioned warship, the Tribal class destroyer, H. M. C. S. "Nootka" joined the Fleet today, it was announced this morning at Naval Service Headquarters.

"Nootka" is the second Canadian-built destroyer to have been made ready for sea since the war ended. A sister ship H. M. C. S. "Micmac", was commissioned on September 12, 1945 and has been operating off the East Coast of Canada. Two other Tribal class destroyers, "Athabaskan" and "Cayuga" are under construction at Halifax.

Commissioned at Halifax on August the 7, 1946, "Nootka" is commanded by Commander H. S. Rayner, D. S. C. and Bar, R. C. N. Like other warships of her class, she displaces about 2,000 tons, has a rated speed of 35 knots (about 40 land miles an hour) and has as her main armament six 4.7-inch guns two four-inch guns and torpedoes.

Fresh Coat of Paint

A fresh coat of paint from stem to stern and from the top of her mast to the waterline was the last step in preparing "Nootka" for service with the Fleet.

"Nootka's" training or "working up" program, which she has been carrying out for the past two months, was designed to familiarize completely the ship's company with the new ship and its armament.

The training day was a long one, starting at 6 o'clock in the morning and often continuing until late at night when night gunnery and torpedo exercises were being carried out. There was no short leave for members of the crew except for Saturday and Sunday nights when the ship was in port.

Training Intensive

While, during the "working up" period, the hours are long and the training is intensive, every effort is made to carry out the work in a "team" spirit and to encourage pride in the ship and the ship's company. Each officer and man is expected not only to make himself thoroughly familiar with the part of the ship to which he is assigned but also to learn how to deal with emergencies.

The ship's company learns how to fight fires, how to shore up damaged bulkheads to keep the ship afloat, how to tow disabled vessels and how to prepare for being towed if their own ship is damaged.

During the "dog watches" (4 p. m. to 8 p. m., civilian time), time is usually found for boat pulling and sailing or competitive sports. If the weather is not suitable for these activities, instructional films may be shown.

On joining the Fleet, "Nootka," at present under the Commanding Officer Atlantic Coast, will for operational purposes come under the direction of the Senior Officer Afloat, Captain F. L. Houghton, C. B. E., R. C. N., commanding officer of "Warrior." She will from October 8 on carry out the normal duties of a warship of her class, such as carrying out manouevres with other ships of the Fleet, carrying out goodwill cruises, joining in rescue operations or performing any of the functions of which a modern warship is capable and which may be required for her in the coming months and years.

commanding officer of "Nootka," who previously commanded destroyers in the Battle of the Atlantic and in invasion operations. He was born at Clinton, Ontario, and his family now resides at Bedford, Nova Scotia.

FRANKFORD

Strong Showing By Castleton

Frankford — Competing with pupils from Castleton, Wooler and Warkworth at Castleton on Thursday the pupils of Frankford Continuation School won the largest number of points. They now become the holder of the cup. A summary of points won by the four schools follows:

	Frank.	Wark.	C.	W.
Boys	25	22	43	24
Girls	46½	39½	16	12
Total	71½	61½	59	36

The big surprise of the meet was the strong showing made by the Castleton boys. Two of these, Morley Johnson and George Covert, were boys' champions. Two Frankford boys finished one and two points behind Johnson in the senior boys' totals. These were Dusan Miklas and Walter Zaplental.

In the girls' senior events Margaret King of Warkworth was champion with Shirley Terry of Frankford runner-up. Ruth Rogers of Frankford won the junior girls championship with Marion Stillman of Warkworth runner-up.

Mohawk Reserve

WAR BRIDE HONORED

Mohawk Reserve.—A reception and shower in honor of Mrs. Roy Maracle, the Reserve's only war bride, was held in the Council House, Tuesday evening. The event was sponsored by the Kanyen-geh League. An address of welcome was given by the rector, and the many useful and beautiful gifts were presented by Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Edward S. Maracle.

An interesting and largely attended meeting of the Laymen's Association was held at the Rectory Sunday evening. Mr. Clayton John was re-elected president and Mr. Leslie Claus re-elected secretary-treasurer. The guest speaker was Mr. W. E. Edwards, Napanee, Zone Forester for Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Mr .Edwards gave a much appreciated address on forest conservation, illustrated by colored lantern slides.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Brant and children, Mayfield, N.Y., spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Benson Brant and Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Moses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Claus and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Claus, Deseronto, spent Sunday , with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill.

Mrs. Gilbert Hobrough, and son, Teddy, of Lucknow, Ont., are guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Brant.

Mrs. Walter Brant and sons have returned from a visit with relatives in Rochester, N.Y.

PICTON

Group Purchases Property For Vacation Spot

Picton, Oct. 8 — A group of friends have joined in a co-operative venture to develop a community vacation spot. Purchasing 13 acres of land on Smith's Bay, Black River Bridge, the group plans to subdivide the land and erect cottages as soon as materials are available.

Initiating the plan are Rev. Melville Buttars of Bloomfield, Prof. Gregory Vlastos of Queen's University, Rev. Wesley Hutton of Iroquois, Wesley Neelands, Toronto, Farm Forum secretary for Ontario. Later, it is hoped to include four other families.

In addition to the cottages, a central building for community services, kitchen, laundry and other uses is planned.

Those interested are keen promoters of the co-operative movement and are thus putting their ideas into effect.

Remove Clothespin

An operation to remove a wooden clothespin from the palate of four-year-old Roger Whattam proved successful at Prince Edward County Hospital. The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Whattam, had the pin in his mouth, when he fell while coming downstairs. The pin was embedded in the soft palate. Dr. G. C. Caughey performed the operation.

A second accident occurred at a Bloomfield factory when Walter Goodmurphy, 76, received severe head lacerations. He was standing on a plank which broke, causing him to fall into a machine used to husk corn. He was rushed to hospital and his condition is reported to be favorable.

Two Tablets Unveiled

Two bronze memorial tablets were unveiled at the church of St. Mary Magdalene on Sunday. These were in memory of W. A. Bog and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bog, given by Miss Georgina Bog of Toronto. Memorial flowers decorated the church and Rev. W. G. H. Swayne officiated. James deC. Hepburn, M.P.P., unveiled the tablets.

Mr. E. A. Bog a native Pictonian, became chief inspector of the Standard Bank of Canada. His brother, W. A. Bog, who died two years ago, was vice president of the Bank of Montreal. They were sons of Lt.-Col. J. P. Bog, first C. O. of the 16th. Prince Edward Regiment, forerunner of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Suffers Broken Leg

During a rugby game played here between St. Michael's of Belleville and Picton Collegiate, Earl Holt, local student, suffered a broken leg when he tackled an opposing player. The bone was broken between the ankle and knee.

The heavier Belleville team outclassed the inexperienced Picton boys, and won 15-0.

It was not until the third quarter that the visitors scored. Their second touchdown came early in the fourth quarter and the third in the game.

Picton is playing exhibition games only in this COSSA league.

BEDS TAKEN OUT

Timmins, Oct. 8 (CP)— Firemen, usually associated with events in which other people have to get out of their beds, had the tables turned on them in Timmins. When the ratepayers objected to beds in the fire-hall, the beds were taken out and stored.

TRENTON

Drunk Driving Charge is Laid After Accident

Trenton—Bruce Rose of Frankford reported to police that he was driving his car south on Front Street near Van Alstine's Garage, when, he claimed, the rear wheel broke throwing his car off the road into a hydro pole on the west side of the street. The pole was broken off at the base and the globe smashed. The right side of the car was badly damaged, right rear wheel broken off and windshield smashed. The driver was taken into custody by police on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

S. Wood, 85 West Street, Trenton, driver for Armstrong's Bus Lines, reported that a truck travelling north on King Street struck his bus as he was taking on passengers opposite Bardy's Restaurant and failed to stop. There was slight damage to the rear left side of the bus.

Raymond Bonisteel, 23 Delaware Ave., Toronto, was driving his car out of the laneway at Cobley's Furniture Store when he collided with a car owned by Charles A. Lance, R. R. No. 5, Brighton, damaging the left rear fender slightly.

On Sunday firemen received a call to the rear of the Canadian Doughnut Company on Dufferin Avenue where a bush had caught fire, but was quickly extinguished.

The Alex McClumpha Tournament for head Greenkeepers and first assistants throughout Ontario was held at Westmount Golf and Country Club, Kitchener, on Thursday, Oct. 3rd.

Over 60 members of the Association took part and other interested members walked around and saw a beautiful 18 hole course in tip-top condition. The event was won by Bill McIntosh of Trenton Country Club who came out as the winner of a beautiful cup and $50.00 prize money.

NOT NECESSARY TO CRANK

Dundalk, Oct. 8 (CP)—One of the last links with the rural Ontario of other days was broken here when Dundalk's telephone system was changed over this week from magneto to battery operation. It is no longer necessary to crank a handle to ring the operator.

CHARGE TRAILER FEES

London, Oct. 8 (CP)— It's a costly business to live in a trailer in London township. Council last night decided to charge trailer occupants an annual fee of $300, an amount deemed sufficiently high to discourage the development of any large-scale "camps."

"SALADA" TEA

Quality Guaranteed

THEIR ROAD TO Enjoyment

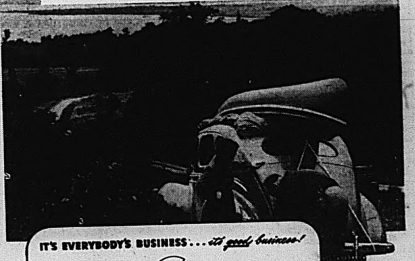
Two million or more motorists from the States visit us each year ... thousands for the sheer beauty of our countryside. Let's see to it that our hospitality matches the perfection of our lakes and hills.

WHAT CAN I DO?

The answer is — plenty! Here are some of the things anybody can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman.

1. Find out all about what your own neighbourhood offers and become a booster.
2. Write your friends in the States about Ontario, show them when they come that you're really proud of your province.
3. Try to make all our visitors glad they came, and be really enthusiastic about it.
4. If they ask for information or directions, take time to answer them fully and graciously.
5. In any business dealings you may have with them, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, just follow the "Golden Rule!"



On Sidney Bay Hill, Bruce Peninsula, Ontario.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS ... it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! Actually, the Province of Ontario, in pre-war years, profited to almost the same extent from tourist business as it did from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that this business goes on growing.

This diagram, based on figures supplied by the Hotel Association, shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every tourist dollar is shared this way ... 1. Hotels; 2. Retail stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them ... we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday, so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend in Canada.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

Ex-Service Students

His Excellency Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, at McGill University had the happy occasion of presenting decorations and distinctions to members of that university who have returned from the war. Speaking to all who had served he offered his sincere congratulations and best wishes. "You have done a grand job, of which you may well be proud —now you are back home tackling another job, that of preparing yourselves for service to Canada in peacetime. What you achieved in the fighting days was no easy task, but I must warn you that the peacetime tasks which lie ahead of you will be difficult too: in other words, 'no push-over.' But what you achieved in war by guts and determination, you will achieve in peace and that is success."

The presence of service students in the colleges and universities of Canada at this time is one of unusual interest. They learned how to prepare themselves for the great task of service for victory. They were apt students in the service as their records in the forces show. With such a fine background they cannot but make a showing which will do honor to themselves and to their institution as they again go to school. They have already a fine record in their studies. With them it is an earnest quest for the means to serve their country in peacetime as His Excellency has pointed out.

Many thousands of former service men and women are at the work of preparation. As members of the various armed services they were apt at absorbing and applying knowledge. Every sign points to their college and university records becoming of the same high merit.

They have taken up the work with an impelling force which cannot but carry them to the successful conclusion of their educational preparation for the job they hope to fill in which they will do their share guided by the high motive of service to their country.

The Governor-General noted in his McGill address that many of these students are older than they would have been normally in peace days. "But this you will find is little handicap compared with the tremendous experience of life you have gained by your service in the armed forces of the Crown." Lord Alexander remarked that he had heard nothing but the highest praise for the former service people now seeking a way to help Canada through their peacetime career.

The gratitude of these ex-service folk for the opportunity of education put at their service will bring its ample reward in this great body of these young people.

They have come to their training with a serious outlook on life and education. Never before have institutions of learning had such a promising situation and the future will be assured of these young men who have faced tremendous odds and dangers and won. So the inspiration of service under the Crown will be the inspiration that will guide them and Canada in the peaceful future.

Canada is grateful for all these ex-service men who have taken the opportunity to carry on their education.

The parting word of the Governor-General was of the greatness of Canada lying in a great people. Referring to the future of these students and of Canada His Excellency's words bear repetition, "The future lies with you, provided everyone makes their fullest contribution in the years which lie ahead. This, I feel sure, you will do and it is my earnest wish that every success may attend your effort."

That is the prayer and confident hope of all Canadians too.

The ex-service students will exert another influence — that of their war service and their studies upon those who were not privileged through tenderness of years to serve in the forces. It is a great inspiration to see the steadiness and reliance of the former service people, who are models for younger Canada.

Benign Weather

One week ago the sky looked dour and threatening and then came the earliest snowfall on record for many years. Inhabitants might have been depressed at the prospect of the months ahead since snow fell on October 1st. But nature has made it up to the people of this part of the continent, already she has given many gentle days which make it easy to forget the record of early snowfall last week.

The mildness of the weather conditions the forepart of this week seems to impress everyone with the sense of an adequate compensation for the snowfall. The benign quality of the air seems to forecast that mellow season somewhat later in the season known as Indian Summer, a period, which is not like the sun with a fixed course in the calendar but rather like the moon with its variation of time. The fact that such fine weather is now being enjoyed and that Indian Summer is still to come is proof of the glory of the Canadian autumn.

Good days are yet in store for the season is not yet mellow with the touch of yellows and reds in the profusion and bounty, which nature later in the year lavishes on all sides. Time and frost have yet to color the foliage of the trees in the tints with which nature dresses the aging season.

Train Time

Most people are optimists in the sense that they think they have plenty of time to catch their train. For years railway companies have tried to correct this amiable weakness by keeping the clock outside the station a minute or two fast, says The London Times.

Only when the too casual traveller has reached the platform, or in more technical language the concourse, has he discovered with a mixture of relief and irritation that there was no such desperate hurry after all. He need not have been so cross with the old lady in front of him at the ticket office who took an intolerably long time in counting her change.

Two great railway companies have decided to abandon this time-honored practice, and in future, so it is announced, all the clocks of the L.M.S. and L.N.E.R. will show the right time. What has prompted this iconoclastic proceeding we are not told. It may be that old pretence is by now outworn and no longer deceives anybody, or that the real and incurable mischief is done much earlier, when the traveller declines to leave his house at the proper time.

Again, research may show that this tiresome traveller if given an inch persists in taking an ell; that because the clock is in fact three minutes fast he assumes it to be five minutes fast and dallies more than ever, so that the remedy is worse than the disease.

It would be rash to contradict a railway company which has an almost unique opportunity of studying human nature in the mass. And yet surely the sight of the clock showing so painfully few minutes left does give complacency a valuable jolt.

Of Birds and Animals

Many nature lovers know of the work of Ludwig Koch, who has spent a lifetime recording bird songs and the voices of animals. He regards his work as far from complete, but he has a unique collection which he hopes may be preserved for posterity, for the sake of nature lovers all over the world, says a BBC London Letter.

His work began more than half a century ago when, with an Edison phonograph he recorded the song of an Indian throstle-like bird, the Shama.

This wax cylinder document is still in his possession and he claims that it was definitely the first attempt ever made to record bird-song. Years later, in 1910, the gramophone industry recorded the song of a caged nightingale.

ROUNDED LIFE

If riches were the goal of life—
The only stamp of merit here,
Then man could give himself to strife,
However cruel, conscience clear.

If but the rich were truly great,
Then it were folly to be kind;
And all should work for an estate
Which, dying, must be left behind.

But souls have something else to win,
And hearts have something more to gain,
And all the money gathered in
May, at the end of life, be vain.

Men must be more than shrewd and strong.
They should be gracious and refined;
Should be aware of right and wrong,
And unto others should be kind.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th., 1926

The members of the 21st. Battalion will hold a reunion here on Oct. 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cross have left here to reside in Oshawa.

Mrs. Joseph Huff and Miss Lillian Craig have returned home after an extended visit with friends in Joliet, Ill.

Mrs. E. T. Thompson of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Greenleaf.

Over 4000 people attended the Madoc Fair. It was a great success.

Miss E. Carroll has returned to the city from Gananoque and will reside here.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th., 1916

The fair held at the YMCA under the auspices of St. Julian Chapter I.O.D.E. was a great success in every way. The proceeds amounted to $150.

Lieut. Col. D. Barragar, commandant of the School of Infantry, has received letters from several of the local boys at the front, who had their original training in the Queen Mary School Cadets here. When Cadet Corps were organized some eight years ago, Col. Barragar immediately applied for permission to organize one at his school. The number eight, which was given the corps, shows that the application was one of the first received. There were forty boys in the original Queen Mary School Corps and they were very enthusiastic. Today, with one or two exceptions, all these boys are in uniform in units connected with the first contingent.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th., 1906

At the regular monthly meeting the Belleville Ministerial Association which was held in the school room at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. A. M. Hubly; Vice President, Rev. A. H. Drumm; Secretary-treasurer, Rev. Charles H. Emerson. The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, read a paper on the subject of "Criticism". The theme was discussed with interest and the paper was declared to be one of merit.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bensley have left for Akron, Ohio, where they will spend several months.

Ald. Panter is surely right when he says something must be done soon with the roadway on Front Street. Enough money has been thrown away on the poor limestone macadam. Import some good material next year and make a proper job of it.

The Rev. J. J. Rae of Picton, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, was a visitor in town today.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th., 1896

The temperature fell to the freezing point last night.

Marks Bros. Musical and Dramatic Company will be the attraction at the opera house for the two weeks commencing Nov. 16th.

Mr. R. C. Clute, barrister, Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is in the city on business.

The Rev. Arthur H. Baldwin of Toronto is stopping at Hotel Quinte.

Mr. Arthur Coe of Madoc was a visitor in town today.

Mr. E. D. O'Flynn of Madoc was in town today.

Mr. Angus McKeown has left for his home in Victoria, B.C., after visiting friends here.

Messrs. George N. Leavens, Charles Kyle and H. H. Leavens, have left to spend some time in the northern part of the county.

Lieut. Charles Clapp is spending much time getting the Albert College Company in connection with the 15th. Battalion, ready for inspection and the boys will be ready when the time comes.

Old Country Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Giving British coal miners an enlarged meat ration—a government decision expected to be announced soon—has been likened to the principle of dangling a carrot before a donkey's nose.

Coal mining is regarded as the key to a successful British economy just now and the miner is a man to be cultivated. The theory is that if he gets more meat he will be both eager and capable of doing more work.

The trouble is that other "donkeys"—heavy manual laborers such as steel workers—want their carrots too.

The Food Ministry has until recently consistently opposed differential rationing. Miners for some time have been getting a little more cheese than others but the first sign of weakening by the government was when bread rationing was introduced. Heavy workers were given an extra, over-basic allowance.

At present the basic meat ration for adults allows them each to spend one shilling, two pence (about 22 cents) weekly on meat. It is thought the miners will get about double that although there has been no announcement as yet.

However, the trade union congress has been advised that underground workers' demands for more meat are being met.

The Congress, Britain's over-all labor organization, is in an awkward position. It co-operated through the war and afterwards in turning a deaf ear to workers' claims for more food. Then it found the government had reversed its policy where miners were concerned. Other unions have been vociferous in their complaints and the matter probably will be hotly debated at the congress convention at Brighton Oct. 21.

In defence, the government can say it is releasing thousands of tons of additional meat supplies to industrial canteens, factory cafeterias where workers can get hot meals at extremely low prices. However, workers of all classes would rather see extra meat on their own tables in the form of bigger roasts which can be enjoyed by the whole family.

"Where's the meat coming from?" wail civil servants whose task it is to carry out the government decision. However, it is thought that a new meat agreement with Argentina will prevent that.

DEATH TOLL NOW 14

Apeldoorn, Holland, Oct. 8 — (AP) — The death toll from the crash yesterday of a military plane into a school gymnasium here has risen to 14, it was learned last night. Twelve schoolboys, the plane's pilot and his mother are dead and 13 boys and their gymnasium instructor are seriously injured.

ACTORS TO WED

Hollywood, Oct. 8 (AP)—Allan Hersholt, 31, son of actor Jean Hersholt, and Miss Janet Russell, 21, radio actress, announced today they will be married some time this month. Young Hersholt was divorced in 1943 from actress Oso Massen after five years of marriage. It will be Miss Russell's first marriage.

Says Hitler Had Son Born By Frau Goebbels

Munich, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP) —Mrs. Otto Meissner, wife of Hitler's former Secretary of State, said Monday that Hitler had a son by the wife of Propaganda Minister Goebbels.

The son was born in March 1935, and died in the suicide of the Goebbels family in the last days before Berlin's fall in the spring of 1945, Mrs. Meissner said in an interview.

"Goebbels knew Hitler was the child's father, and 'took advantage of this knowledge,'" she said, but otherwise the fact was kept so secret "I am the only survivor who knows it."

Hitler's son was named Helmuth and was the result of a romance between the Nazi Fuehrer and Goebbels' attractive, ash-blond wife, Magda, while both were vacationing on the Baltic Sea in the summer of 1934, Mrs. Meissner said.

"At that time Mrs. Goebbels was on bad terms with her husband," she said, "and Goebbels spent only his weekends at Heiligendamm while Hitler lived there constantly for two or three weeks.

"He lived in the same hotel as Mrs. Goebbels and visited her so regularly in her apartment that their relations were obvious. When out in society together they seemed lost in each other's company, especially when love songs were played."

"Later," Mrs. Meissner continued, "their relations became less intimate, but Hitler remained inclined toward her.

"This explains her repeated visits to Obersalzberg, where Hitler had his 'Eagle's Nest.'

"Mrs. Goebbels loved Hitler's child especially. Hitler, too, maintained an active interest in his son, remembered his birthdays, gave him presents, and invited him to parties. Even when his interest turned to other women he did not lose interest in the child."

Mrs. Meissner, who claims to have seen the child often, said "his similarity to Hitler in appearance was obvious. Helmuth's head and eyes were the same as his father's."

Mrs. Meissner, once the social leader of Berlin before Mrs. Emmy Goering took over, talked freely about the love afafirs of Hitler and his Nazi followers.

Hitler was not faithful to women, she said.

"Even during his long affairs with Eva Braun, he had relations with other women," Mrs. Meissner said.

Bread to Remain At Ten Cents

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—There is no immediate possibility of an increase in the price of bread to the consumer, Chairman Donald Gordon of the Prices Board told reporters Monday after a closed meeting with officials of the national council of the baking industry, holding a two-day conference here.

Mr. Gordon indicated the price line would be held at the present consumer rate of 10 cents a loaf for the average loaf of standard quality.

He added that there also would be no relaxation of wartime controls or price increase of bakery products as a result of his conference with the baking officials, which was in the nature of a general discussion on the problems of the industry.

Attention was being given, he said, to the possibility of the return of sliced bread for consumer delivery, one of a number of peacetime innovations which were eliminated during the war.

Kenneth Taylor, another board official, also attended the conference sessions.

Negotiations Aimed At Settling Strikes

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Negotiations aimed at settlement of two long-standing Ontario labor disputes were scheduled today.

Company and union officials were invited to Queen's Park by Labor Minister Daley to discuss the 93-day-old strike at the Electro-Metallurgical plant at Welland where some 1,300 workers are idle in a dispute over demands for a 25-cent hourly wage increase reduction of the work week from 44 hours to 40. The strike was called by the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.).

Previous meetings were held here and negotiations also were carried on last week at Welland in an effort to reach a solution.

Resumption of negotiations in the strike of about 1,000 members of the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.) at the Dominion Rubber Company plant at Kitchener also was expected today. The strike began June 24, along with strikes in other rubber plants in the province, over union demands for a [illegible]-cent hourly wage increase and a 40-hour week.

Meanwhile the electrical workers called an emergency meeting in Hamilton for tonight to mobilize their membership "to win a just settlement of strikes involving 7,000 U. E. W. members" in plants at Welland, Hamilton and Toronto.

HONEST WORK IS FINE FOR INSOMNIA

Now I realize I failed to emphasize sufficiently the value of physical exercise as an aid to sound sleep in the pink 'un—"How to Sleep Well"—copy available on written request (clipping will not suffice) if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. A remark by Theodora C. Stanwell-Fletcher in her book "Driftwood Valley" (Little Brown) brought it home to me. Describing the job of getting firewood enough to carry her husband and herself through 30 to 40 below zero weather of their first winter in the wilderness of British Columbia, this fine writer, who holds a mystery story addict away from his dope, says:

"It takes time and manoeuvring to get the log to balance perfectly and, once loaded, I think a long while before I painfully set the log down, end up in snow in order to rest. J. has to load me and then I must keep on until I reach the cabin, because I cannot reload myself. At first I thought this logging job would be the end of me. When I follow, sweating and panting, in J.'s tracks, balancing on my shoulder a log half the size and weight of his, my lungs almost burst and my ribs and shoulders feel as though they were being torn from their sockets! Sometimes I struggle along far behind J., tears streaming down my face from sheer physical pain . . . for the logs must be sawed into proper lengths to fit our tiny stove, and these in turn must be split before they can be carried in and burned.

But despite all the daily hardships which sometimes seem almost more than our bodies can endure, we are deeply content. I can't think of anyone in the world with whom I'd change places. This must be what is meant by perfect happiness. There is infinite satisfaction in hard physical work well done, and in the completely relaxed, quiet nerves that follow."

Read the last sentence again if you are "nervous," 'high strung," "jumpy," restless, tense and unable to get enough sleep. Not that any such strenuous work as Mrs. Stanwell-Fletcher describes is necessary, even for a man, but one or another kind of honest work is indispensable to give that sense of satisfaction and completely relaxed, quiet nerves."

A good many women who formerely sat on their false dignity and had paid help do all their work for them, have discovered in recent years that they are much healthier and happier when they do their own housework, every bit of it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

St. Vitus' Dance

Our doctor said my eight-year-old son has St. Vitus' Dance, but a specialist in the —— clinic said it is only chorea and that he will get well. (C. W. T.)

Answer—Chorea is the medical name for St. Vitus' dance, and by either name it runs its course and the child recovers—sometimes in a few months, sometimes in a few years. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Chorea. Far better for the child if you have the doctor take care of him and leave the clinic to give more gullible folk the run around.

Do As I Do

I notice you sometimes say what you would do if you had the trouble a correspondent asks about. Please say what you would do if you had polycythemia vera. (. P., Jr.)

Answer—I'd consult a good physician—and I do not mean to be funny—I know of no remedy of treatment I'd want to try without the advice of a good physician.

Cysts

Kindly send pamphlet or information on cysts. (C. R. J.)

Answer—A cyst is a pouch, sac or bladder-like formation containing fluid or semi-fluid material. For instance a wen on scalp. Merely puncturing or opening and expressing or removing the contents is only temporary, for the lining of the sac continues to secrete the fluid and the cyst inevitably fills up again. The entire sac must be removed. I have no pamphlet—and anyway, who would pay the freight? Readers who hope for a reply by mail should inclose stamped self addressed envelope. The Ol' Doc is pretty mean about this. He offers his information, instruction or advice freely, but darned if he will prepay the freight on it, too.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Which is correct, "bumblebee" or "humblebee?"

"Bumblebee" and "humblebee" are both applied to a family of large, hairy, social, wild bees and mean the same thing.

They were suggested by the buzzing, humming droning sound made by the rapid wing motions of these insects.

Neither is a mere variant of the other but each had a separate origin. The first element in the one is akin to "boom" and that in the other to "hum." Sounds made by bees, like those made by ventriloquists, contain no distinct consonants and are really a series of vowels. For that reason it is hard to trace the history of words of onomatopoetic or echoic origin, that is, words originally suggested by natural sounds. In some sections of England the bumblebee or humblebee is called "dumbledor," the last element of which is from Anglo-Saxon "dora," akin to "drone" and signifying the same. It survives in "dorbeetle," "dor-bug" and several other words.

According to the Oxford dictionary 'humblebee" occurred in English as early as 1450 and "bumblebee" as early as 1530.

Shakespeare uses "humblebee" several times but "bumblebee" not once.

The name of the genus to which these bees belong is "Bombus," Latin for "buzzing" or "humming."

"Humblebee" is akin to Dutch "hommel bee" and German "Hummel bee." In Middle English "humblen" signified "to hum" or "to make a humming noise."

M. Schele De Vere, in Americanisms; the English of the New World (1872) wrote:

"In Scotland the sound of the bee is called "bumming," and hence the insect was first called 'bum-bee,' and then 'bumble-bee,' the second 'b' having been produced by education.

There is a growing tendency in both the United States and England to use "bumblebee" to the exclusion of "humblebee," although the latter is far from obsolete in either country.

In Modern English Usage H. Fowler said "bumblebee" is preferable "because its imitative origin is more apparent."

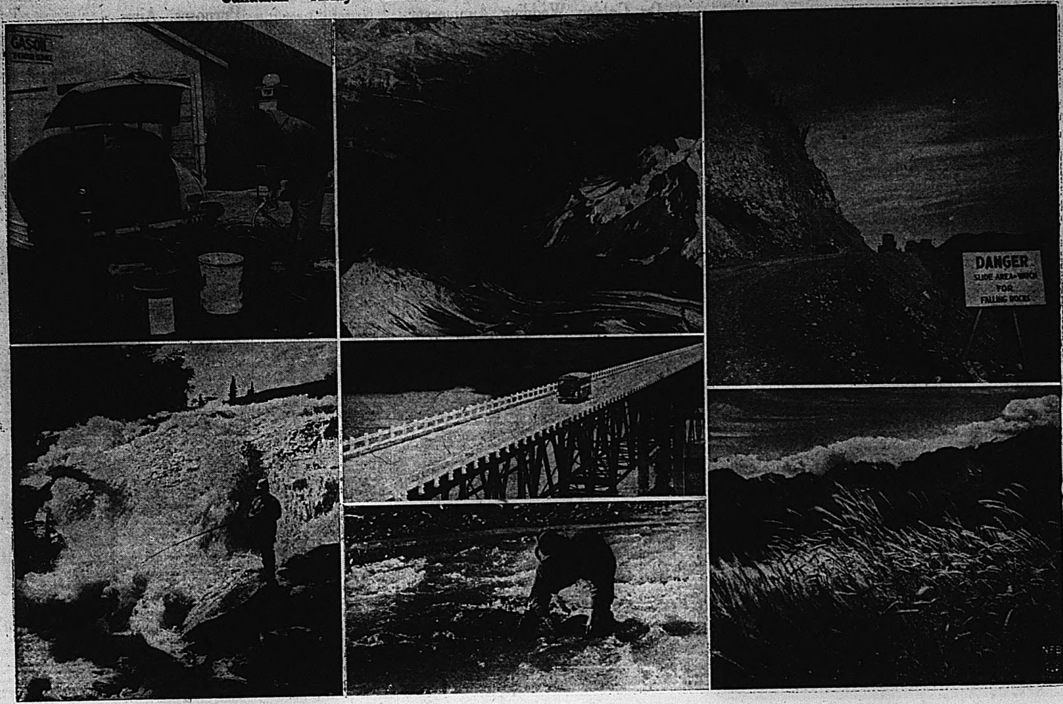
Canadian Army Readies Alaska Highway for Unrestricted Travel



The highway as seen from the air (top centre) twists and winds through mountains, swamps and perpetually frozen muskeg, 1,500 miles from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, Top Left shows two motorists stocking up with gas at Whitehorse. Travellers pay from 45c to 86c per gal, and must carry enough to take them two or three hundred miles from one filling station to the next. Hazards are increased by landslides as at White River (top right), but curves and grades are gentle. The road, 24 to 36 feet wide, kept open by Canadian Army Engineers maintenance crews established in 20 permanent camps, passes streams (lower left) where Arctic grayling, trout and whitefish await the fisherman's cast. Of 700 bridges, the one over the Teslin River (centre) at Johnson's Crossing, is the longest single structure. In nearby waters, Floyd Messer, Whitehorse prospector, pans for gold. One placer mine worked with bulldozers in the vicinity of the highway yields $2,800 every ten days. Chicagoan Gets Early Start For Fall Hunting

A jovial good-looking American sportsman walked into the Ed. Thomas tobacco store at an early hour today, and greeted the proprietor with a cheery "Good-morning, I'm back again."

He was T. P. Russell of Chicago who makes an annual trek to the hunting grounds near Loon Lake in the Cloyne vicinity.

Mr. Russell got himself a non-resident general hunting permit which covers practically everything that can fall to the gun of a hunter. In season, that is. And the licence set him back exactly $25.50 in coin of the realm, or maybe it was the greenbacks of the U.S.A.

In any event, the Chicagoan left today for his cabin in the hills of Hastings and during the next few weeks will satisfy that hunting urge that presages his vacation at this time of the year.

Hiring of Polish Vets Discussed By Farm Group

Hastings County Agricultural Committee will promote a publicity campaign during the coming winter to encourage as many farmers as possible to vaccinate their calves.

Considerable discussion on the matter took place at the October meeting of the above association which was held at the agricultural office at Stirling.

Members of the association also discussed the feasibility of hiring Polish veterans being brought to Canada, to help alleviate the current farm help shortage in the Belleville district.

It was pointed out at the meeting that these men are all veterans of the Italian campaign where they saw service with the British 8th Army. The men are all single, between 20 and 30 years of age and have spent sufficient time in the British Isles to learn to speak some English.

The men will be placed on farms on a yearly contract, the minimum wages being $45 per month, and will be placed by the Employment and Selective Service offices.

Farmers interested in securing the services of Polish veterans were urged to contact the Selective Service office at Belleville, or H. L. Fair, agricultural representative at Stirling.

Ontario Revival Of Handicraft Industry Sought

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP)—Oscar Beriau, 63-year-old resident of Quebec City, set out yesterday from Toronto on a Northern Ontario mission aimed at revival of the handicraft industry.

Adviser to the Ontario government in its effort to promote handicrafts, Mr. Berieau said he wants to see Ontario rival his native Quebec in a field which his home province has monopolized for years.

"I love my province but its people, because of lack of competition, are becoming somewhat lax in their work. If, in this province, we can build the industry to a point where it excels that in any other province, it will spur the French-Canadian to improve its art."

He looks on the economic gains as secondary, although the industry has brought millions of dollars to his home province. "Making money from handicrafts is not the most important aspect It is the cultural and social values derived from the work that really counts."

Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario minister of planning and development, said the advisory service will be available to other departments of the government, to municipalities, community centres, associations and individuals.

TWEED W.M.S.

Tweed — The regular meeting of St. John's United Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlor on Thursday with an attendance of twenty. The meeting opened with hymn and prayer. Minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Chas. Kerr. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Fred Foster for the members of the society who are ill and in hospital. The president, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, read a letter from Mrs. Haggarty, president of Bay of Quinte Conference Branch, who is to speak to the Women's Missionary Society. Her topic will be "Women Who Do Without."

Plans were laid for the W.M.S. Rally to be held here. Mrs. W. H. Sayers was welcomed back to the society after her long absence. Mrs. E. W. Jones reported on the allocation which was very satisfactory. During the program Mrs. Kerr took the part part of leader in the "Litany for Rural People" and responded to by the members present. Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Arnold Montgomery presented "Village Life in India," showing the bright and dark side of Indian life. Mrs. S. B. McGee will have charge of the November meeting.

Mr. George Stokes, M.P., was in town on Thursday.

Mr. Howard Smith is a patient in Kingston hospital. Mrs. Smith visited him on Wednesday.

Mrs. Claude Barnett has returned from Toronto where sho visited with her daughter, Mrs. Dobson, and Mr. Dobson. Mrs. Barnett was accompanied home by her grandson, Geoffrey Leeman, of Sault St. Marie.

Mrs. Margaret Finley who spent the past six weeks with her sister, Mrs. W. Dafoe, and Mr. Dafoe, of Regina, returned home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. 'Mac.' McGuire and Mrs. W. Beatty spent Thursday in Kingston.

Messrs. Charles Carleton and Leslie Rogers have accepted positions in the Canadian General Electric plant at Peterborough.

WEDDINGS

SMITH—DOWNING

Marmora. —At St. Clemen's Church, James Avenue, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, Sept. 28, when Elizabeth, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Downing, of Hallifax, N.S., became the bride of George Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Toronto, (formerly of Marmora). Rev. W. Barmet performed the ceremony.

The bride was wearing a floor-length gown of white silk crepe and her long net veil was fastened to a headdress of feathers. She carried a bouquet of red and white gladioli. Her bridesmaid was Miss Mary Smith, sister of the groom, gowned in blue silk crepe with shoulder-length veil and carrying a bouquet of tea roses and gladioli.

Mr. Kenneth Reid was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Donald Smith and Jack Hepburn.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, 46 Mallon Avenue, Toronto. The couple left for a short honeymoon and will later take up residence in Toronto.

BOTTING—BROWN

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Shannonville United Church parsonage, when Rev. Mr. Lougheed united in marriage, Betty Jean Brown, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brown, Front of Thurlow, and Howard Wesley Botting, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Botting, Newboro.

The youthful bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of pale blue silk jersey. A bandeau of French flowers held her shoulder-length veil and she wore a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Gordon Akey attended her sister, wearing a rose crepe dress and headdress similar to that of the bride's and corsage of roses.

Mr. Gordon Akey was groomsman.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, received wearing a two-piece dotted Alice blue dress with black accessories. The groom's mother was unable to be present.

For a trip to Kingston and points east, the bride donned a sand top coat over her wedding dress, with black accessories.

The couple will take up residence in Shannonville, where the groom is employed by the C.P.R.

SHANNON—ACKERMAN

Picton.—An interesting wedding was solemnized in St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church, Monday morning, when Rev. L. B. Garvin united in marriage Gwyneth Aldean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ackerman and Henry Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shannon, Picton. Chrysanthemums and roses decorated the altar. T. J. Bourke was soloist.

The bride wore a dressmaker suit of grey gabardine with a blouse of melon pink, a grey felt hat and corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clarke were the attendants. Mrs. Clarke wearing a tailored navy suit with matching hat and corsage of rose carnations.

Following a trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Rochester, they will reside in Picton.

McINROY—MAINES

Thomasburg. — On September 28, at 2 p.m., Thomasburg United Church parsonage, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding when Lois Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Maines, of Thomasburg, became the bride of Donald Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy, of Moira. Rev. B. Heywood performed the wedding ceremony in a setting of gladioli, snapdragons and Autumn flowers.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of ice blue crepe with black accessories with a corsage of red roses. Miss Evelyn Sills, cousin of the bride, was gowned in an afternoon dress of rose crepe with black accessories. She were a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. Hugh McMullen, Halloway, acted as groomsman.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the bride and groom left on a trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo. On their return they will reside at Moira.

Women's Activities

HARVEST TEA HELD

Trenton.—The Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a very delightful and successful Harvest Tea and Sale on Friday afternoon last in the Sunday School rooms of the church.

The decorations were in charge of Dorothy Ament, Kate Wemyss, Margaret Mason, Mrs. Rutnerford and Mrs. Potts. The Harvest theme was carried out with the generous use of beautifully colored leaves clusters of grapes and "cat-tails", turning the room into a typical Autumn scene. Cheery bowls of fruit added a gay touch to the various tables displaying the harvest of many hours' work.

Miss Margaret Cochrane, president of the Evening Auxiliary and Mrs. (Rev.) R. C. MacLean received the guests.

.The main tea table was lovely, spread with a white cutwork cloth, centred with a crystal bowl of bronze 'mums. The tea hostess was Miss Doris Powers. Pouring were: Mrs. R. Y. Wemyss, Mrs. S. Ament, Mrs. William Bain, and Mrs. W. B. Barker.

Serving at the small tables were: Mrs. J. K. Hamilton, Miss Dorothy Ament, Mrs. Cheesman, Mrs. Ward, Miss Audrey Barker, Mrs. Gunter and Mrs. Broatch. Replenishing were: Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Anderson. The Novelty table was in charge of Margaret Mason while Mrs. Williamson and Miss Dorothy Barker sold a lovely collection of aprons. Mary Crawford was at the knitted goods table which held beautiful items knitted by the ladies of the Auxiliary. She was assisted by Mrs. Potts.

The Homecooking was in charge of Kaye Wemyss, Norma Clarke and Mrs. J. E. Renton.

The music for the afternoon was in charge of Miss Eva Porter, ably assisted by Mrs Wilkins, Miss Isabel Jordan and Miss Ruth Kelson who also sang beautifully.

The tickets were in charge of Miss Evelyn Young, and Miss Doris Powers and the kitchen by Mrs Button and Mrs. Potts and Miss Walker.

Sidney Couple Honored by Community On Golden Wedding Anniversary

Aiken's United Church congregation and residents of the surrounding community paid tribute to two of their members on Monday evening, when approximately 75 persons gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hamilton, 2nd Concession of Sidney township, to honor them on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The happy couple, taken completely by surprise, were tendered compliments and congratulations by friends and neighbors and in tangible tribute to their fifty years married life with a handsome table lamp and mirror and friendship mottos to grace their living room.

Master of ceremonies for the occasion was Mr. Stanley Spafford, while Mrs. William Bush read the address to the bride and groom of one-half century. Presentation was made by Mrs. Murney Jeffery, Mrs. Kenneth Jones and Mrs. Kenneth Bush.

Having lived on their present farm in the 2nd Concession of Sidney for the past 34 years, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton nevertheless are native of the Belleville district, Mr. Hamilton being born in Thurlow township, 73 years ago. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton was formerly Miss May Harry, daughter of Mr .and Mrs. John Harry, of Sidney Township.

A true son of the soil Mr. Hamilton is happiest when amid familiar surroundings and would rather "be about his farm work" than away visiting or going to town on business. He has taken no active interest in municipal matters, nor does he claim membership in any fraternal organization. The couple are faithful members of the Aikens' United Church on the 3rd Concession, where Mrs. Hamilton is active in Red Cross and in missionary organization.

Four sons were born to the happy union, all of whom reside in Sidney Township. Frank, the eldest son, lives in part of the spacious Hamilton farm home, while Perry and Harleigh live on adjoining farms. The fourth son, Burrell, operates a farm on the 3rd Concession.

"All of my boys are at home, you might say," laughed Mrs. Hamilton. The Hamiltons have five grandchildren.

CHRIST CHURCH EVENING W. A.

On Monday evening in Christ Church, Parish Hall, the Evening Branch of the W.A., held its October meeting with 23 members present. Miss E. Bell, president, conducted the devotional service, with Mrs. R. Godden, reading the Scripture Lesson.

During the business period reports were presented by Miss F. Reid, secretary; Mrs. Ingram, treasurer, and Mrs. E. Smith for the Flower Fund. It was decided to hold a rummage sala in the near future.

Mrs. Sparling spoke of the work of the Girls' Auxiliary and Mesdames L. Watson and Ingram were chosen as leaders to promote this branch of the work in Christ Church. Miss Grace Gillard gave an interesting review of a chapter of the new study book, "India at the Threshold".

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Edwards and Mrs. A. Evans, bringing interesting meeting to a pleasant close.

Trousseau Tea In Honor Of Miss Drummond

Sunday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George Drummond, Corbyville, a very nicely arranged trousseau tea was held in honor of Miss Margaret Drummond, night supervisor for the Bell Telephone Co., in this city, whose marriage will be, an interesting event in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church this week.

The living room was made beautiful with baskets of garden flowers of various kinds and colors, while in the dining-room a color scheme of pink and blue was systematically carried out. The table was very effectively arranged with a beautiful lace cloth centred with pink and blue baby 'mums in a silver container, with tall pink tapers in silver holders on either side.

Guests were invited to the tea room by Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, sister of the bride-to-be, where tea was poured by Mesdames Wilfred Laporte, A. Williamson, Jas. Cathcart, aunt of the bride-to-be, and Miss Irene Harris. They were assisted in serving by Mrs. George Duesberry and Miss Violet Camken.

Miscellaneous Shower

On Friday evening last, Mrs. A. Williamson, Foster Ave., was hostess to a number of girl friends of Miss Margaret Drummond, bride-elect of the near future. Arrangements for a miscellaneous shower were carried out in the traditional color scheme of pink and white, the smaller gifts being placed in a shower umbrella, and the larger ones nicely arranged on a table just beneath the parasol.

During the evening entertainment was provided by playing several games of bingo, after which the gifts were presented by Miss Rena Williamson and opened by the guest of honor, assisted by her niece, Miss Peggy Plumpton.

Miss Drummond graciously thanked her friends for their many beautiful gifts of remembrance, and Mrs. Williamson, assisted by Miss Rena Williamson, served dainty refreshments.

Centenary

VETERANS HONORED

Centenary—On Thursday Oct. 3rd a social evening was held at the church with a good attendance. The purpose of the gathering, was to pay honor to several of the boys, who have recently been discharged from the services, Mr. D. Holton led in community singing. Rev. Mr. McCallum in a short adress, paid tribute to boys who had answered the call of their country,and had given their best. Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—You may find a little less milk in your milkshake in the near future. Some restaurant operators say that unless the ceiling price imposed in 1941 is raised, milkshakes will become smaller.

Association Hears Purposes, Aims Of Guidance

The members of the Collegiate H. and S. Association held their opening meeting in the Auditorium, Monday Oct. 7, with Mrs. G. G. Wright presiding. The school band was in attendance and under the capable direction of Mr. Cooper favored the members with three fine selections. Further pleasure was added to this program by the rendition of two delightful solos by Miss Barbara Joan Houston.

Mr. Musgrove, Vocational Guidance director for Belleville schools gave a comprehensive address on the aims and meaning of guidance. One of the purposes of Guidance is to bring a closer affiliation between home training and school training. Sex education should be completed before the child enters school. Failure on the part of parents to do this results in retarded development and adjustments.

Guidance is interested in progress. For children who experience difficulty when advancing from kindergarten to grade work in public school or for collegiate students who find it necessary to change some subjects, guidance can do much to smooth the way.

Aims at Character

Guidance aims at character development through the recognition of personality. The development of a feeling of citizenship is important as well as the acquiring of facts.

In continuing Mr. Musgrove suggested that children be allowed to assume responsibility in the home as an aid to self reliance. Guidance is interested in special abilities and interests and can assist a pupil to make wise vocational choices. A counselling program for every pupil consisting of a fifteen minute interview can do much to focus the students' attention on his potentialities and the best possible way of developing them.

To Contact Industry

Guidance will undertake a plan to contact local industries to ascertain the requirements of its employees, in order that our educational system may give its highest practical contribution to the prospective citizens of this city. A guidance program will stress the fact that there are ample opportunities in Belleville, Mr. Musgrove stated.

At the conclusion of this address Mr. Currie spoke briefly of the splendid progress achieved by the pupils during the past year. Provincial records list Belleville above the average in 10 out of 15 upper school subjects.

"Parents may be proud of their school and what it is attempting to do for the community".

The importance of attendance was stressed by the prnopal. "Absence from school classes a break in the continuity of learning and is a loss to the pupil and taxpayer. A home environment which affords regular hours for study and rest will do much toward developing self reliance and independence necessary for the pupils' progress.

A vote of appreciation was moved by Mr. Blatherwick. At the close of the meeting the members adjourned to the cafeteria for refreshments.

3rd Thurlow

3rd Thurlow—Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cole and children, 4th line, called on Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hamilton and family on Sunday evening.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If You Fight Before Marriage, You'll Fight After it, Too

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 21 years old and engaged to a fellow 22. We've been engaged a year and a half, and intend to be married in another year.

We love each other very much but can't seem to get along or act right together. He's very jealous, for one thing; I think because he's not sure whether I love him or not. We break up and make up so many times it's getting monotonous.

We're both very stubborn, but I must admit I'm a little more so than he, for it is he who gives in most of the time. I thought maybe the fault lay with me, and I tried to correct my faults, but it still doesn't work. We both think we'll make out all right after we're married, but then again I'm afraid it may be worse.

"Anonymous"

And how right you are to be afraid it may be worse after you are married, "Anonymous"! Why in the world either of you should think that a marriage ceremony is going to change your whole personality, I can't imagine. If you quarrel constantly now, when you're both free to go your own separate ways if you want to, your quarrels are going to be just twice as bitter when you find yourselves tied to each other and it's not so easy to get away.

And htis business, of your boy friend not being sure whether or not you love him is a very sour note, and one that makes the outlook for harmony in marriage very dubious indeed. Jealousy is a dangerous wedding gift for a man to give a wife, and likely to blow up in her face any time.

It just doesn't sound as though the two of you were "made for each other," by any means, and I'd certainly advise you to think things over very carefully before taking on a marriage which you would very likely regret.

You're Not in Love At All, Brother!

Dear Mis Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and have been out with a girl 19 just three times. I love her very much, but she speaks of loving no one, as she feels she is too young to think of such things as love.

Recently I met a girl who is 16, and who seems to like me. I intend to ask her out shortly.

Both these girls appeal to me. I feel as though I am too old for the second one, yet I know if she were 18 and I 22, I would not feel this way. Should I court this girl, as well as the first, or should I continue to try and capture the love of this first girl whom I have known for six years? I deeply love this first girl, but I am quite sure I could easily fall in love with the second.

"I Thank You"

If you're so sure you can easily fall in love with the 16-year-old girl, you're certainly not in love with the first one. When a man is in love with a girl, he can't see any other for dust. You're old enough to know that. So it's nonsense for you to talk about being "deeply in love" with one girl while all the time you're planning to take another out, and thinking how quickly you could be deeply in love with her!

My feeling is that you've got a long way to go before you're mature enough to be sincerely in love with any girl. So my advice —if you really feel you want it—is to go ahead and take a lot of girls out before deciding that you're serious about any one of them.

Come, Come, Crybaby!—Brace up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 19 and have been going steady for three months with a boy of 28. I've liked him ever since I was 14, but now I know I'm in love with him. I think he must like me, or he wouldn't ask me to go out with him, yet he never says anything about caring for me.

He does drink quite a bit, but still I guess I'll always love him. I'm not too much to look at, but I do get quite a lot of attention from other boys who would like very much to take me out. But of course I always refuse, because I care too much for this boy.

It's not a proposal I want. It's jus that I want to know if he does love me. Should I try to forget him and go out with boys of my own age?

"Crybaby"

Of course you want a proposal, "Crybaby". Every normal young girl wants one from the man she thinks she's in love with.

But to my way of thinking, you'll be a lot better off without a proposal from this particular young man. In the first place, he drinks. In the second place ,it's obvious that he's not seriously interested in you. If he were, he'd let you know. Most young men close to 30 are either already married or have definite plans toward that end. If this 28-year-old is just drifting along, as he appears to be, he probably likes his footloose life better than he'd like being married.

If you have other boy friends who are eager to take you out, then I'd certainly advise you to accept their invitations and stop indulging in wishful thinking about this man. Forgetting him will take care of itself if you're sensible enough to just stop nursing romantic feelings about him.

Brushing Up on Your Dancing Might Help, Pal!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a returned veteran and very much in love with a girl I've known all my life.

Whenever we are together we seem to get along fine and she is willing to go out with me. But there is a catch. I have an inferiority complex and do not like to mingle too much at dances.

I love this girl too much to take her out and have her be seen in my company. I would like to marry her, but for her own good I do not know what to do. If she wasn't so beautiful I would ask her without hesitating, but since she is, I do.

Could you please advise me as to whether I have the right to ask her to marry me and also if I should take her out?

M. S.

Why on earth should you ask her to marry you, M.S.? Just because she is, as you say, "so beautiful"? What in the world has that got to do with it? And the same applies to taking her out.

I can't quite see what's making you feel so shy about the whole thing, when the girl is willing to accept your invitations, as you say she is, and the two of you get long so well. She must like to be with you, and to be seen in your company, or she wouldn't go.

Somehow I think the real key to your trouble is hidden in your remark that you don't enjoy yourself at dances. Probably you're not a very good dancer and feel self-conscious about asking girls to dance with you. Maybe it's a little difficult, too for you to make social conversation. Both those things aren't hopeless, you know. You can make yourself a good dancer by taking a few lessons, and there is a lot you can do toward developing social poise. If you're anxious to do so, write me a letter and give me your name and address, and I'll be glad to make some suggestions.

A Gift For the Boy Friend's Birthday

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About six months ago, I wrote you about a boy I met in college who took me out several times and then stopped taking me out and didn't call me.

Not long after I wrote you, he started taking me out a good deal and has been very attentive to me ever since. After graduating from college, he left for his home down South, but he writes me twice a week, and I always answer him. We don't write love notes, but just nice newsy letters.

He sent me a book for my birthday and when his birthday comes I would like to send him something. Please let me know what would be proper. He doesn't smoke or drink, which is one of his good points.

E. M. L.

I am so glad your boy friend came back, E.M.L. And I think it's fine that you are both sensible enough to be just good friends for a while and write each other the kind of letters you do.

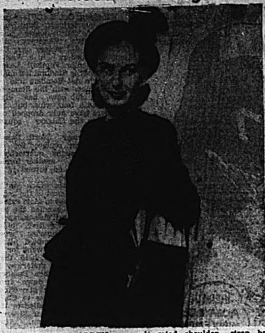
As for his birthday present—and I hope this won't be too late for it—how about a couple of records of his favorite music? That's always a good bet. Or you could send him a book, too, even though he did send you one. Naturally, you don't want your present to be too personal but if you wanted to send a necktie, I don't think that would be. If you know his hobbies, you might select something that would fit in with one of them.

Good luck to you!

Mrs. E. Elmy, 14 Dunbar St., Belleville, writes: "Every woman likes to get her wash finished as early as possible on washday and I find Super Suds cuts my washing time in half and makes the clothes so clean and white, I never have to boil or scrub them. Super Suds is certainly a swell washday soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Elmy, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Hood Handbag



BY ALICE ALDEN

BAGS TO GO fine extremes this season. For evening there are tiny little handbags that nestle comfortably in the palm of the hand, a nice change from the daytime whoppers that have been dreamed up for Autumn wear. The "Hood" bag is a new and interesting Josef design an elongated shoulder strap bag, nice for wear with suits. It gets its name from the plastic sliding hood in mock tortoise or jet black plastic that controls the bag's fastening. So that the hood should not have too much to do, a neat coin purse decorates the front of this distinctive bag.

Fashion Flashes

A DISTINCT TREND is the casual felt hat enhanced with embroidery and other glitter touches—nice with soft suits for afternoon wear. Worn back on the head is a low-crowned, wide-brimmed casual of white smoke felt, the crown band, top of the crown and the brim edge trimmed with gilt embroidery and gilt cord.

No matter what suit styles may appear, the man-tailored classic suit always finds its niche. White striped gray men's wear worsted is used for a handsome suit, with five-button closing on the elongated jacket that is detailed with very peaked revers and double pocket flaps.

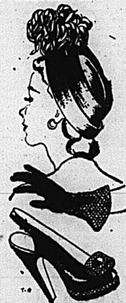
It seems that satin rather than velvet will be the dress fabric for winter. New is the frock of beige satin, coming up behind black and brown. The good satin dress is distinguished by the sleek bodice and softly draped skirt.

A tremendous season for hats, and no wonder, for never were hats more attractive. Beige felt is the medium for a smart hat made with the brim turned up softly in front and long in back, with high, tapering crown. It is trimmed with coppery satin ribbon and copper lovebirds in metalized plastic that cascade down the back.

On the way out is the sloppy dresser, so goes the campus report, and in her place is trim charm. A charming date dress is fashioned of black crepe, with softly draped harem skirt, deep V neckline, cap sleeves, and front fullness on the bodice. Wide black satin sash, horizontally tucked and finished with six tiny bows at the side, marks the nipped-in waistline.

A ney high in smartness is achieved by the fur-trimmed fabric coat, not because of the lavish use of fur, but because of fine styling and ingenuous detail. Silken black broadcloth is used for a handsome coat made with a cape collar that juts over the shoulder. Collar is trimmed with narrow band of black Persian lamb used also for the bell tops to the sleeves.

Colorful Accessories



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

GREEN AND BROWN are two colors that have good representation in Autumn clothes and accessories. Green felt makes this blithe young roller hat dressed up with a trim of iridescent coq feathers. Open-crowned, it is good for either a long bob or up-do-coiffure. A green snake gauntlet cuffs lends color interest to this dark brown suede glove, which is part of a shoe and glove set. The brown suede shoe uses the green reptile as platform trim and for a thick, square buckle.

No Fun Behind the Counter, either!

What with none of this and little of that, it's tough to be a customer.

But shortages are pretty hard on the man behind the counter too!

For instance your grocer. He doesn't like telling you he is just out of Chateau Cheese. He'd much rather sell you all the delicious Chateau you want every time you ask. But he just can't.

Here's the Reason

You see, the production of Canadian cheese (cheddar) has been dropping. And cheddar cheese is needed to make Chateau.

This drop is partly due to the scarcity of dairy cattle and partly because there are not enough workers on the farms. In addition, Canada is shipping millions of pounds of cheddar to relieve the critical shortage of food overseas.

On top of everything else, more people are asking for Chateau Cheese than ever before. That rich, tangy Chateau flavor keeps right on making new friends.

We Hope You Understand

All this may give you some idea how difficult things are. And perhaps it will help you understand why your grocer can't always make his Chateau Cheese go 'round.

Meanwhile, we're doing the very best we can. And no matter what happens we make you this promise:—the fine quality which keeps Chateau Cheese your special favorite, will always be the same.

Nursery Nook: Baby on the way . . . and no nursery in the house? Here's how to fix up "private quarters" for him right in your own bedroom. Hang crisp curtains and a ruffled valance across one end of the room. Put up framed shelves to hold baby belongings (they'll hold your own knick-knacks later on!) . . . Then, to give the whole room color excitement — use a Gold Seal Congoleum rug underfoot! It's pretty to look at—economical to buy—and the most sanitary floor imaginable. A swish of a damp cloth and it's sparkling clean—whether you've spilled the formula or dropped a wet didy! Long lasting, too. For Gold Seal Congoleum has a wear-layer of heat-toughened paint and baked enamel equal in thickness to 8 coats of the best floor paint applied by hand. But be sure to look for the Gold Seal. Then you know you're getting real Gold Seal Congoleum Rugs. You'll be surprised how much quality you can buy for so little money.

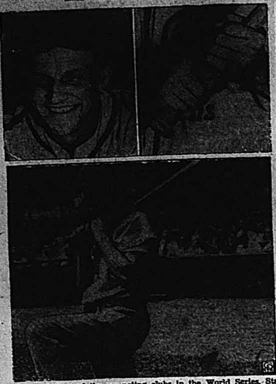
BAD BOYS WITH THE BATS



Top batters of the competing clubs in the World Series, Stan Musial (ABOVE), of the Cardinals and Ted Williams (BELOW), of the Red Sox carry the power of their respective teams into the October classic. Musial, hitting at a .370 clip, is the top batter in both leagues and Williams, considered by many to be "another Ruth," finished second.

Bata Shoemen Win Semi-Final Game From Latta in 10th Frame

Score is 1-0 With Spencer Doubling Home the Winning Marker

Spencer's sizzling double over second base in the last half of the tenth innings broke up one of the best ball games seen on the Alemite Field this season and gave the Batawa Shoemen a 1-0 victory over the Latta squad in the first game of the two-of-three semi-final series of the Belleville Senior Baseball League on Monday afternoon. The next game will be played on the same field at 3.30 on Wednesday. The winners will meet Trenton Flyers for the loop championship.

The game resolved itself into a sterling hurling duel between Muffitt, Batawa righthander and Joe Marsh, chunky but spunky hurler for Latta. For nearly ten innings the two flingers battled on the mound with their mates playing sparkling defensive ball behind them. Both squads had chances to score but failure to hit in the clutches until the tenth resulted in a neat row of duck eggs in the runs scoring column.

Struck Out 14.

Muffitt was in good form and although he walked five men he sent fourteen Latta batters down via the strikeout route. Besides he helped himself to a brace of hits, one of which paved the way for the game-winning tenth inning run. He held Latta to three scattered hits

Marsh whiffed six and did not issue a single pass. His mates like the opposition played flawless ball afield behind him with second baseman Timmy Williams' defensive work standing out. The winners tabbed Marsh for nine hits bunching them in the third and fifth innings but the stubby chucker settled down and retired the side on both occasions. "Smoky" Smith tripled in the fourth and was poised for the run with one out, but Marsh forced the next two batters to ground out to first.

Threatened in Eighth

Latta threatened in the eighth when with two out Vern Goyer drove out a single and Timmy Williams drew a walk. Both players advanced when Aquino let a fast Muffitt shoot get away from him, but the righthander struck out Weeks to end the potential rally.

The end came in the tenth-after Muffitt had set down Latta in order. The Batawa pitcher first man up lashed out a clean single through the plate and went to second on Stojan's sacrifice bunt. Spencer strode to the plate and blasted the second ball pitched for a line drive into centrefield that scored Muffitt and ended the game.

Muffitt, Austin and Spencer got two hits each for the winners with Carson, Goyer and Weeks getting the only safeties for their side.

Golf News

Bright clear and sunny weather greeted the field of 28 golfers from the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club at their closing 1946 match on Sunday. In the annual President's versus Vice President's match, the team, captained by the popular Club President, C. B. Morgan, defeated the Vice President's team, captained by Ted Hughes, 8 points to 6. The prize winners of the sweepstake held in conjunction with the match were:

Dr. George Faulkner with a 36 low gross; Mike Acquefreddo 39, 2nd low gross.

Jim Ward 1st low net with a 32; Murray McIntosh 2nd low net with a 33.

This competition officially closed the most successful playing season in the history of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club. The course has been in excellent shape all year due mostly to the painstaking and hard working efforts of the Club professional, Charlie Pidutti. Many new improvements are being planned for next year. The final presentation of prizes and club closing dance will be held on Wednesday evening next in the club lounge.

World Series Notes

By JOE REICHLER

En route to Boston, Oct. 8—(AP)— The biggest mystery among baseball men today was Ted William's stubborn refusal even to attempt a hit to left field, which has been more desolate than the Sahara whenever the Boston Red Sox slugger comes to bat in this current World Series.

"Williams considers that right side switch a personal challenge; He won't bunt nor try to poke a ball into left field—not the way he loves to hit home runs," remarked one observer.

However, Williams admitted he tried not once, but twice yesterday to hit one down the third base section left entirely uncovered by the Eddie Dyer strategy.

"I haven't quit because I believe I'll get my share of hits no matter what defence they cook up for me," said Ted, "But guy Brecheen (Harry Brecheen) had so much stuff out there today I thought I'd try checking my swing a bit. I tried to hit to left in my last turn at bat, but missed one swing completely, and fouled out near the third base line the next time."

Just how successful has been Dyer's "leftist movement" where everybody but the pitcher, catcher and umpires were sharply to the left of Williams, is best explained by the fact the Boston slugger has been held to one hit in seven official trips to the plate.

Incidently, the highly-touted Williams-Musial slugging duel has failed to materialize thus far. each has made only one hit, but Musial's was a double as compared with Williams' one baser. Stan, however, has driven in two of his team's five runs while Williams is still looking for his first R. B. I.

Boston's lefthanded power has been pretty well stopped by the southpaw servings of Mowie Pollet and Brecheen. Of the Red Sox' 13 hits, only two have been made by portside swingers, one by Williams and the other by pitcher Mickey Harris.

In pitching the seventh Cardinal world series shutout (Bill Hallahan pitched two), Brecheen only the third southpaw since 1931 to hold the opposition scoreless in a world series game. The others were Ernie White in 1942, also a Red Bird, and Earl Whitehall of the 1933 Washington Senators.

When the Red Sox won the opener, many of the 500 world series scribes were convinced the series would end in Boston, and yesterday's triumph by the Cards strangely enough did not cause many to change their minds. Many now think the series will end in Boston, all right, but that St. Louis may take all the remaining games.

When Dick Sisler, son of the immortal George, grounded out in the ninth inning in a pinch role, he had the satisfaction of having accomplished in his rookie year something his famous father never did in 17 years—play in a world series.

Instead of being sliced among the series players the $175,000 radio broadcasting fee will be held in escrow pending final decision on a pension-plan to benefit all Major League players. The Red Sox and Cardinals voted such actions in a meeting before yesterday's game. If the pension play becomes definite in the near future, the money will be deposited in the retirement fund. But if the plan fails to materialize, the cash will go to the series players as in the past.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 8 (AP) — Ted Rosiquist, an old Chicago Bear who is getting his first taste of college football coaching as a Brooklyn College assistant, is perturbed by the attitude of 1946 college playes . . . "It used to be that high school boys came up to college expecting to learn something from the coach," Ted complains. "Not we tell them something and as soon as our backs are turned they're talking it over among themselves. Every afternoon I have to chase five or six of them off soap boxes" . . . Rosequist figures they've heard too much about the salaries in pro football—and those reported unofficially in some colleges . . . Maybe somebody should have told him that in Brooklyn everybody argues about anything.

The Hard Way

After he was eliminated from the amateur golf championship rank Stranahan, who won the Fort Worth open tournament Sunday, was explaining why he considered match play golf harder than medal play . . . "I'm always trying to outdo the other fellow," Frank explained. "If he gets a good shot, I try to get a better one." . . . Someone asked why he didn't merely play the card and forget his oponent . . . "I tried that once with fair success," said Stranahan. "Then I talked to Bud Ward and he said he always studied his opponent. He's done pretty well that way."

Winnipeg Bombers Defeat Calgary 6-3

Winnipeg, Oct. 8 (CP)—A substitute quarterback, Don Hiney, booted two fourth-quarter placements to give Winnipeg Blue Bombers a 6-3 victory over Calgary Stampeders in a Western Canada Senior Football League tilt at Osborne Stadium last night.

The win put Bombers into a tie on points with the Stampeders. Each club now has eight points, with four wins, but the Bombers have only dropped one contest to the Calgary squad's three losses.

Hiney, former North Dakota University star, replaced the injured first string quarterback, Walter Dobler, another former Dakota great, and turned in a commendable job.

A heavy drizzle which continued throughout most of the game, marred the contest to some extent, but both teams handled the ball well under difficult circumstances.

Stampeders drew first blood late in the third quarter when Billy Wusyk's attempted placement was wide but went for a single. The Stamps held their lead until play got underway in the final stanza, when Bombers plunged for a first down from their own 35. The next play Hiney tossed a forward pass to Chick Chikowski, who lateralled to Jim Foubister for a gain of 30 yards and another first down. After making no gain in two line plays, Hiney kicked a placement from the Stampeders' 32 which split the centre of the uprights to give the Bombers a lead they never relinquished.

SPORT FALLACIES

By Margery Miller

The fact that an athlete succeeded himself may handicap him as a teacher of aspiring youngsters.

Baseball managers are notoriously poor at teaching recruits to play the position at which they themselves once starred. The managers recall how they played it, and they try to change the natural styles of young players into their own style, often with disastrous results. No two men play just the same, and they should not be forced to try to.

Many an old-timer boxer has handicapped a protege by insisting that he fight just as the old-timer did.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, invariably advises young ringmen to adopt the rushing, weaving style that made him famous.

Since it worked for him, he thinks it should help them. Often it does them irreparable harm. Athletes should be told to develop their own styles.

DIES SHORTLY AFTER

Singapore, Oct. 8 (Reuters) — Bertha D. John, an Indian nurse, was killed last Saturday night when a jeep in which she was riding with Capt. Mohan Rao of the Indian army turned over. On Sunday the Captain placed flowers on her grave. On Monday his body was found lying across the grave—shot through the heart and with a loaded service revolver beside it.

GENTLE AS LAMBS

New York, Oct. 8 (AP) — Crowded New York City made room today for three new residents—all five tons of them. They are Zangelima, Doruma and Bamangwa—African elephants — who arrived yesterday as a gift to the Bronx Zoo from the Belgian Congo government. The first elephants shipped here since 1939 were "as gentle as lambs" on the 40-day sea voyage, keeper Robert Montana said.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

It was a case of getting his licks in early or not at all for Johnny Quilty, the Ottawa-born centre whom Montreal Canadiens demoted to Buffalo Bisons. The two clubs will be leagues apart when their respective schedules open so Quilty strutted his stuff with a timely goal against Canadiens last night.

The tally, followed by another Bison goal by Jerry Brown, enabled the American League team to play a 2-2 draw with the proud Stanley Cup holders in an exhibition tilt at Buffalo last night. For Canadiens, Bobby Fillion and Billy Reay tallied.

From the way Quilty was travelling, the observers felt it may not be long before he's back in the big time at that. Good enough to win the outstanding rookie award in the N.H.L. Six years ago, Johnny found the Canadiens lineup a tough nut to crack after five years away from the game in the R.C.A.F.

It looks as if Detroit N. H. L. fans won't be called on to forget the name "Howe." The veteran Syd, a magical figure with Red Wings teams for years before given his outright release this season, is being succeeded by another Howe, Gordon. The 18-year-old right winger who turned pro with Omaha of the United States League last season seems likely to catch a regular berth.

Incidentally, if Gord makes the grade he'll be the third Red Wing to move into the bigtime while still in his teens. Ted Lindsay and Harry Lumley were the others.

Just because Detroit figured the older Howe was no further use to them, doesn't mean he's through in the N.H.L. With legs reconditioned by plenty of summer bicycling Syd is said by railbirds at the Winnipeg training camp to stand a 50-50 chance of catching on with New York Rangers as a defenceman.

Two Welsh Miners, Untrained in Music, Compose Waltz

Kenfig Hill, Wales, Oct. 7—(Reuters)—Two Welsh miners who have never had music lessons and who cannot play or read music have composed a waltz song which they have dedicated to an invalid girl.

They are Fred Jenkins, of Kenfig Hill, Glamorganshire, and David Beale, of Aberkenfig, Glamorganshire, workmates at Pentre Colliery, Kenfig Hill. Between them they composed words and melody of the song entitled "Swinging to Heaven" and whistled it to a musician friend who wrote it out for them.

The girl is 23-year-old Lorna Jenkins of Kenfig Hill, who claims relationship, on her mother's side, with John Ridd, a character in R. D. Blackmore's novel "Lorna Doon."

The unpublished song is a favorite of the girl's although she has only heard it whistled.

Lorna has been ill about two years and is confined to bed. Her mother, Mrs. Rachel M. Jenkins, has sent the song to the BBC. asking that the song be played for the sick girl.

THEFT LEADS TO SHOOTING

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)— Attempted theft of a six-pound ham, police said, led yesterday to the fatal shooting of a 25-year-old woman. Police said Julia Broxton, a Negro, was waiting for a trolley near a meat packing house when James Jones, 33, also a Negro, attempted to escape with the ham. Harry M. White, 53, the packing house owner, seeking Jones making off with the ham, fired two shots, police said. The first shot went wild and the second struck the woman.

Brecheen's Darting Screwball Handcuffs Boston Red Sox And Cards Win Second Game

"The Cat" Earns 3-0 Shutout and Evens the Series; Play in Boston Wednesday

By JACK HAND

En Route to Boston, Oct. 8 — (AP) — Harry (The Cat) Brecheen's darting screwball, the best any lefthander has shown since Carl Hubbell quit, has restored the 1946 World Series to an even proposition.

As the teams took the day off for travel to Boston's Fenway Park after splitting the first two in St. Louis, manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox still had an ace up his sleeve — Dave (Boo) Ferriss, who had reeled off 25 victories of the Sox' total of 104. But he now will be able to see only limited action.

By holding out Ferriss to work the third game tomorrow against Murray Dickson at Wenway Park, Cronin probably will be unable to get more than two games out of his ace winner.

More than one baseball observer sensed in the Cardinals' aggressive play during the first 2 games the hint of a tremendous upset of the pre-series dope — an upset comparable to the one the fleet 1942 Red Birds handed the mighty New York Yankees.

New Type of Leader

Billy Southworth was gone, but Eddie Dyer, a new type of inspiring leader, had come along with a blend of young players and such holdovers as Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter, Whitey Kurowski, Marty Marion and Stan Musial, then a rookie with the '42 world champs.

While losing the opener in 10 innings 3-2 and grabbing yesterday's second game 3-0, the Cardinal pitchers have turned back Johnny Pesky, a .335 hitter, without a hit in nine at-bats. They also have held the great Ted Williams with the "Dyer shift" to one hit in seven trips. Rudy York's game-winning homer in the first game was the only Boston extra base hit. The Birds have registered four doubles and a triple.

Dyer's lefthanded pitching by Pollet and Brecheen deserve credit for shackling the Sox power.

Also Hits Well

Brecheen's swerving screw ball came in for the most attention in the American League club house. The talented southpaw from Broken Bow, Okla., winner of 15 and loser of 15 in the regular season, counted five shutouts in his record before yesterday's brilliant job that stopped Boston 3-0.

The series now will continue at least through Friday at Boston, and is quite likely to be carried to a sixth game Sunday back at Sportsman's Park. A seventh, if necessary, will be played in St. Louis a week from today.

Brecheen came up in the third inning with catcher Del Rice perched on second base as a result of his double to the left field wall. "The Cat" dumped a single which drove in Rice with a run that proved enough to beat Mickey Harris, the rival southpaw.

Rice added a lead off single in the fifth which provoked a two-run uprising.

After Rice's single to left, Brecheen dropped a bunt down the third base line. Pinky Higgins rushed in for the ball, and threw wildly into short centrefield. Rice wound up on third, and the alert Brecheen on second. Terry Moore's single drove in Rice, and Brecheen came across with the last run of the day while the Bobby Doerr-Pesky-York combination was trying futilely for a double play on Stan Musial's rap to second base.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

E. P. Taylor's Canadian-bred Windfields returned to the United States turf yesterday, staring with four other horses in the $7,500 mile handicap for three-year-olds at New York's Belmont Park only to finish last. Although a 3-1 favorite in the betting, Windfields crossed the line eight lengths back of the winner, John D. Bradley's Buy and Sell.

The victor, which paid $20.50 for $2, stood off Kay Gibson in a long stretch drive to cover the distance in 1:38.

The town council of St. Andrews, Scotland, heard the news last night that the Walker Cup golf match between Britain and the United States would be revived next May. The last contest, which is for amateurs, was played there in 1938 with the British team winning the honors for the first and only time.

A British entry, A. J. Mottram and Jean Bostock, captured the Pacific Coast mixed doubles tennis championship at San Francisco yesterday with a three-set victory over Pierre Pelizza of France and Philis Hunter of California.

Although he was elected captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, St. Andrews, Scotland, back in 1939, Roger Wethered, former British amateur champion, has only now performed the traditional ceremony of acceptance by driving a ball off the first tee. The caddie who recovered the ball was awarded a gold sovereign ($8.05).

Walter Johnson, an immortal of organized baseball, was reported as showing slight improvement at a Washington D.C., hospital yesterday. The once-great pitcher has been ill with a brain tumor since April.

FIVE TEAMS IN

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP) — The five Ontario Hockey Association Senior A teams embark on the [illegible]-game 1946-47 schedule Nov. 1, the O.H.A. announced last night. Each team plays 24 games, 12 at home and 12 away.

Toronto Staffords play at Stratford and Hamilton Pats tackle Hamilton Tigers in the Nov. 1 games. The fifth entry, Owen Sound, sees its first action Nov. 4 against Staffords.

He is the colorful sheik of Araby, Sheik Emir Badui who is determined to take the British Empire Crown back to the land of Mohammed. He says, through an interpreter that he will use the unconquerable power that lies within the Mohammedan philosophy on Mr. Davis and make him turn up his toes and make him holler like a muezzin at sundown. So don't be surprised to see Mr. Davis talking turkey come Saturday morning and strolling up the main drag wearing a fez. On the same bill handsome Mike Sharpe tangles with perennial Bunny Dunlop and dashing brother Ben meets the villainous Jan Gotch.

Soccer Teams Play Scoreless Draw

Yesterday afternoon at Queen Victoria School grounds the home team and the visiting Prince of Wales team played to a regulation-time tie-game in the opening tilt of the season for the East side school.

The game was rather a loosely-played affair with both teams being equally guilty of sloppy play around their opponents' goal with the result that there were few good scoring chances for either side and none that the rival goalkeepers was unable to handle with ease. The result of all this was that the score sheet presented a perfect blank at the end of the game, reading Queen Victoria 0, Prince of Wales 0. The teams were very evenly matched and this along with the rather warm weather helped keep the scoring to an absolute minimum but still it was thoroughly enjoyed by players and spectators alike. The game was cleanly played with only five free-kicks being awarded for minor infractions of the rules and no penalty-kicks were awarded to either team, nor were there any players banished for rough play.

The line-ups:

Subs: H. Schamerhorn, L. Kline, E. Schamerhorn, Day, C. Brooks, Petrie, Dow.

Subs: McBrien, Bulpit, Corlies, Hill, Foster.

Referee: Mr. Bud Johnston. Timekeeper and scorer, Mr. J. W. Cousins

RAIN IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Rain fell in many parts of Manitoba last night after a weekend which saw roads blocked and power and communications lines broken by snowfalls which measured up to six inches. Melita, in the southwest corner, was in darkness Sunday night because of power lines which snapped under the weight of wet snow accompanied by a high wind. Winnipeg itself saw only a "trace" of snow.

Montreal, Oct. 8 (CP)—The memory of a former McGill football and hockey star, Lt.-Col. Fred Wigle, is honored in a new football trophy that has been presented to the university's graduates football club.

To be known as the Fred Wigle Memorial Trophy, the award will be presented annually to the McGill football player judged by his team-mates to have been the most valuable man during the season. Wigle's fraternity turned the trophy over to the university at a football rally last week.

Fred Wigle, whose home originally was in Hamilton, Ont., was captain of the McGill football team in 1935 and in addition to being an outstanding snapback was a defenceman on the college hockey team.

Commander of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of the 4th Canadian Division, he was killed in April, 1945.

A sniper's bullet struck him in the back as he was organizing the defences of his battalion headquarters against and attack by a group of 50 Germans.

Cinder Chatter

Two former mile champions got together at half time of the McGill-Queen's football game here Saturday when Dr. Phil Edwards was introduced to Viscount Alexander.

The great Negro Olympic runner, now attached to the Department of Veterans Affairs, and the Governor-General, former mile champion of Ireland, chatted for about 10 minutes.

The football game, incidentally, was the first the Governor-General and Lady Alexander have seen in Canada.

Speaking to McGill graduates at a banquet Saturday night, the Governor-General expressed the hope he would be present at many more McGill functions during his term of office, then added: "And another football game please."

TRANSPORT SUSPENDED

Athens, Greece, Oct. 8 (Reuters)—Athens was paralyzed for two hours this morning when all public services including public transport were suspended in protest against the "unsatisfactory response" to the Greek demands at the Paris Peace Conference. Tomorrow morning all shops in Athens will be closed, while a mass meeting of all political parties will be staged on Constitution Square to claim "justice for Greece." Similar meetings will be organized at Salonika.

"Thanks to you, Grandpa Kruschen . . .
I'm Now Relieved of Rheumatic Pain"

Too bad this man didn't begin the saline treatment for his rheumatic pains when they first started. It is fortunate for him that he got relief when the pain had become acute. Here's his story:—

"I now feel as fit as a fiddle and I cannot praise Kruschen too much. Before taking Kruschen my rheumatic pains were pretty bad. I began to worry about my job and the children. But I got a tip to try Kruschen. After taking the first bottle I felt better. Since then I have had two more bottles and I now enjoy my work: for I have no aches or pains . . . thanks to Kruschen."—Mr. A. H.

You will note that once Mr. A. H. started the Kruschen saline treatment he stayed with it. Follow his example if you too are bothered with rheumatic pains, lumbago or sciatic pains. Take Kruschen faithfully, as long as you feel it is needed. Give it a chance to help overcome conditions in your body which have probably taken months to develop. If you are like many other sufferers, you will notice a gradual improvement in your health and a lessening of pain as you continue the treatment. Just take a pinch of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing in the morning, as long as needed, and Mr. A. H. joins with us in wishing you a speedy return to your old, pain-free self!

Kruschen is 25c. and 75c. at all drug stores.

BOTTLE SHORTAGE SERIOUS

MAY CURTAIL BEVERAGE PRODUCTION SAY BOTTLERS

Immediate Return of Empties Urgently Needed

Right now there is a very serious shortage of bottles . . . particularly beverage bottles. Unless this bottle shortage is made up immediately, it may be necessary to cut down the production of the beverages you need and which come only in bottles. This is an urgent appeal to you to gather up your empty bottles and return them without delay.

Start a bottle round-up in your home today. Gather up the empty bottles in your kitchen—your pantry—your store room—your shed—your cellar. Please gather up and return ALL empty bottles today or tomorrow at the latest.

Why a Bottle Shortage?

Canadian glass factories normally produce MILLIONS of bottles every month. The vital ingredient in bottle making is soda ash. Since July 12th the only big Canadian soda ash factory has been strike-bound. Since then the stock of soda ash has been used up : : : bottle factories are closed down : : : bottles are not being made today. Beverage bottlers and all producers of bottled liquids must have your bottles back to keep going. Bottling plants will close down too : : : if your empties are not returned.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Conny Smythe Predicts Leafs Will Make Playoff Berth In Tough N.H.L. Schedule

Confidently Expects New Edition Will Consistently Improve During Season

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. Catharines, Oct. 8 (CP) — Bent on moulding a fighting, crowd-pleasing team for the 1946-47 National Hockey League campaign, managing director Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs ventures only cautious estimates as to how his rebuilt club will fare in the tough 60-game schedule it opens Oct. 16 against the Red Wings in Detroit.

Recalling that the Leafs finished in fifth place last season—out of the play-offs for the first time since 1929-30—Smythe said: "I will say that the team won't go down any more and it will do better than last year. I confidently expect it will improve greatly and that we shall make a play-off berth."

Twenty Players Carried

He pins his hopes for a better club on the 20 players Coach Clarence (Happy) Day has under his wing at the training camp here in St. Catharines. He looks to them to provide "a good candidate for the rookie of the year award, we'll have at least five" and to catch one of two places on the league's all-star team.

Five saw hockey service in the days before the more urgent demands of war cut deeply into hockey manpower. There is 32-year-old Turk Broda, back for his first full season of goaltending since the war; Pete Langelle, at 27 just out of the services to bring his dipsy doodle skating style back to the centre ice spot; forward Syl Apps, at 31 starting on his last N.H.L. season; tireless Nick Metz, the 32-year-old wheat farmer from Wilcox, Sask.; and Wally Stanowski, 27, whirling dervish puck carrier.

Although the Leafs have a second goaltender in camp, Bas Bastien, Broda seems destined to take over the job for this season.

Five Defencemen

Smythe plans to keep five of the six defencemen for the season. Besides Stanowski, candidates are Bob Goldham, 24-year-old husky from Georgetown, Ont., who was with the team last season; Harry Watson, obtained from Detroit in the deal which sent centre Billy Taylor to the Wings; 26-year-old Garth Boesch from Milestone, Sask.; Jim Thomson, at 19 one of hockey's most promising defencemen; and Nick Knott, the Oshawa boy recently called up from Tulsa Oilers.

It seems probable that Goldham and Watson will be retained as one defence pair and Stanowski and Boesch are looked on by training camp observers as another likely pair with the choice for fifth man resting between Thomson and Knott. But even that depends on workouts and exhibition games in the final 10 days of training.

One Line Set

Smythe has already made up his mind about one forward line —the flying forts, so named because its three members come from the Lakehead city of Fort William, Ont. Bud Poile, 22 is the centre, 23-year-old Gus Bodnar patrols right wing and 23-year-old Gaye Stewart, who led the league in goal-scoring last season with 37, at left wing.

Three other forward line combinations are working out now. Langelle and Apps team with right wing Bill Ezinicki, 22-year-old rugged checker. Ted Kennedy, a veteran at 20, centres rookie Howie Meeker from Stratford, and left wing Vic Lynn, up from Buffalo of the American Hockey League. Metz teams with Wally Wilson, high-scoring native of Oshawa who played last season with Pittsburgh, and big Joe Klukay from Sault Ste. Marie, who also is up from the Hornets. One or two of the 12 forwards are destined for the minors.

Defence Main Problem

Admittedly, a major league problem is to rebuild the defence. It was weak last season and since then veteran Babe Pratt was sold to Boston Bruins.

Smythe says that will be a slow job. "The fabrication of a new defence has started. It takes four good defencemen to make a good defence and in a pinch you can get along with two. We are on the way to building up the defence."

He likes the way Harry Watson, moved back from his old left wing position to the rearguard, is coming along.

"I think Watson has done exceptionally well at defence for a forward. We've moved forwards back before. Andy Blair was one. But Watson has more natural aptitude for a defence position than any forward I have seen since Hap Day himself moved back to defence. His instincts are defensive."

SHORT MASQUERADE

Ottawa, Oct. 8 — (CP) — Art Finnegan of suburban Hurdman's Bridge was lodged in city jail last night after a short masquerade as Ernest (Smoky) Smith, V.C., of New Westminster, B. C., and a hectic capture by police. Finnegan, an employee at the Veterans' Pavilion of Ottawa Civic Hospital, was charged with unlawfully wearing a uniform and Victoria Cross ribbon. His case will be investigated further today.

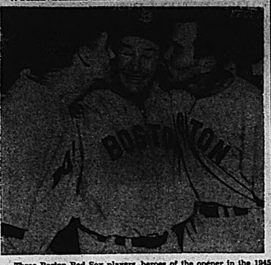
WORLD SERIES HEROES IN JUSTIFIABLE GLEE



Three Boston Red Sox players, heroes of the opener in the 1945 World Series — in joyous pose following game which was won by the American League champs, 3 to 2. Pitchers Earl Johnson (LEFT) who took the mound in the ninth frame, and Tex Houston (RIGHT), who hurled for the Sox until he was relieved in the 9th, plant lusty kisses on the cheeks of Rudy York, whose 10th-inning homer ended the game in favor of the Boston team.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Whipper Billy Watson, the Adonis of the wrestling ring and British Empire champion, may soon realize his boyhood ambition. For over his smooth locks hangs perilously close the crown of wrestling champion of the world.

• • •

Last week, it seems, Wild Bill Longson, NWA champion of the grapple universe undertook to demonstrate to wrestledom's "Body" that he was just a palooka; that his title of British Empire champ was something that came with popcorn, and that he (Longson) would proceed to show the dashing Whippah how it was done in God's country and whatnot.

• • •

Fifteen thousand howling fans saw the show in Maple Leaf Gardens, and not one of them was more surprised at the result than Wild William himself. For the match ended after the Whip had gone over the Wild one several times but not lightly and ended up by tossing him for a fifteen yard forward pass clean over the ring goalposts onto the cement outfield that borders the roped circle.

• • •

Now, such antics are not polite in the best pachydermic circles and Referee Ed Don George (remembah?) took one look at his Old Glory buddy lying supine on the hardrock, pain contorting his features, one hand clutching an injured shoulder, and realizing that he had won a rassle Purple Heart, awarded him a further decoration by promptly disqualifying the Whipper. The East York fans went wild in their disapproval of the decision, but referees like wives are always right—well, nearly always—and the arbiter's word stood.

• • •

In any event, Wild Bill was quite seriously injured and he was taken to the Miller-Filmore Hospital in Buffalo where his shoulder was found to be bruised and bones chipped and cracked. So Wild William will definitely be out of wrestling-circulation for some time.

• • •

But don't go yet. There is reason to believe that the Ontario Athletic Commission will toss out Referee Ed Don George's decision and name the Whippah the world's champ. On the other hand it may order the two to meet within a specified time—and of course—if the Wild One is missing from the ordered joust, then the Whip will automatically wear the world crown.

• • •

Watson has always been a popular favorite with wrestling fans in this bailiwick and his elevation to the highest seat of the wrestling mighty would meet with wholehearted approval here.

• • •

If you like spine-chilling thrills; if you have a yen to watch dare-devil riders cavort around sharp-turns at breakneck speed with fire snorting from smoking exhausts, then by all means don't miss the Optimist Club motor-bike classic at the Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon.

• • •

The meet held under the auspices of the Canadian Motorcycle Association has attracted riders from London, Kingston, Stratford, Paris, Ont., Hamilton, Toronto and Quebec. Merv. Burkholder, Belleville rider is the only local entrant in the races and will give the vaunted outsiders a close run for their money. It will be a good show all round and with the present weather continuing, the Optimists true to the name, are optimistic over the prospects of a large crowd attending.

• • •

Regiopolis College, Kingston defeated Albert College junior gridders on the college campus on Saturday by a score of 26-10. The Albert kids ranks were sadly depleted this year and Coach Pete Beach hasn't many gridiron aspirants of the beardless age to choose from. The game was a practice tilt and proved a good workout for both squads.

• • •

Tomorrow afternoon the St. Mike's squad tackle the Collegiate seniors on the Albert gridiron. St. Mike's hung a 15 - 0 defeat on the Picton team on Friday last with Jerry Forrester playing an outstanding game and scoring two of his team's touchdowns. The game is called for 4 o'clock. Over in Picton Coach Beach's Albert seniors take on the collegiate squad at that town and should come home with a win under their moleskins.

• • •

It was close — in fact closer than your next breath. And anything could have happened to swing victory either way. Yesterday afternoon at the Art. Young Stadium, corner Pine and McDonald, the Latta diamondeers threw a goshawful scare into "Smoky" Smith and his Ontario Intermediate "A" finalists from Batawa when they refused to say uncle until almost ten innings of flawless baseball had gone into history.

• • •

Crossing baseball rapiers in as neat a flinging duel as the few of the faithful present have seen in many a moon, were Muffitt, staunch Bata righthander and chunky, spunky Joe Marsh, who wears a paint cap, an infectious smile and a suit of underwear four sizes too big. But no bigger than his fighting heart.

• • •

It was nip and tuck until the last half of the tenth when the Shoemen finally clustered a couple of hits to score the winning run. And it could have happened just as easily the other way. Both teams fielded perfectly behind stellar hurling and it was clearly a case of a timely clout or two or one of those strange things called breaks that have a habit of breaking up ball games.

• • •

Tim Williams, second baseman for the Latta team stood out with a fielding performance that was par excellence. Tim covered an acre of ground, picked 'em out of the air or the dirt and threw his man out with accurate pegs. He threw from near right field once to drive back a Bata runner who had ideas of slipping in from third — and the peg was a honey.

• • •

The teams go back at it again tomorrow afternoon and the Latta team will be strengthened considerably. Rip Collins and Chapman, starry shortstop will be available for duty for Latta and that should help some. Game starts at 3:30.

KROL LEADING ALL SCORERS IN BIG FOUR

Has Total of 47 Points in Six Games But Only Scored Two Saturday

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Seven players hit double scoring figures in the Eastern Canada weekend football program but none got enough points to dislodge Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts from his spot at the head of the list.

A Canadian Press compilation shows that Krol, who got only two points Saturday, now has a total of 47 in six games to lead the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union as well as other eastern leagues. Second to him is another Big Four player, Virgil Wagner of Montreal Alouettes, who scored three touchdowns against Ottawa Rough Riders Sunday to bring his six-game total to 30. Moving from third to second place in the Big Four list. The biggest upward step in the Big Four was taken by Dave Greenberg of the Alouettes whose 21 points in two games gave him a total of 16 and moved him from an 11th place tie into fifth position.

Jack Toms of Hamilton Wildcats still heads the Ontario Rugby Football Union scorers keeping up his touchdown-a-game pace Saturday to bring his point total to 25 in five games. Alton Reid of Windsor Rockets took a long forward step by getting 12 points which lifted him from a 29th place tie into seventh place with 14 points in five games.

George Curtis of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs leads the Intercollegiate Union which opened its season Saturday.

Texas Longhorns At Head of Classes In U.S. Football

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—After two years Army has finally been rooted out of its spot at the head of the United States College Football parade.

The country's sport writers, voting in the Associated Press' first weekly poll of 1946 on the top 10 teams in the United States, today boosted Dana X. Bible's touchdown-happy Texas Longhorns up to the head of the class.

All told, 108 ballots were cast from coast to coast, and 69 of them voted the straight Texas ticket. Army got 21 first-place votes, and Notre Dame, finishing third, drew 15. One voted ballotted for a first -place tie among the Longhorns, the cadets and the Irish. University of California at Los Angeles and Pennsylvania each drew one of the other two first-place nominations.

Under the usual point system of scoring—10 for a first-place selection, 9 for a second, 8 for a third and so on—it was a photo finish among the top three, with Texas piling up 999 1-3 points, Army 928 1-3 and Notre Dame 913 1-3. Army's second-place nominations were 36 to 13 for Notre Dame.

It had been just under two years since Davis, Blanchard and Company, moved into their address No. 1 Football Street. That was two days after they caved the roof in on Notre Dame 59-0 in 1944. They've been there ever since.

But last Saturday, while the Cadets were shipping Cornell 46-21—in a game that saw a team score more points against Army than any other outfit had piled up in three years—Texas took on the Oklahoma Aggies in the outstanding game-of-the-day and just about ran the Cowboys out of the ball park, 54-6. The Longhorns climbed from 10th spot in the national rankings.

For Notre Dame, it was somewhat of a rocket rise, too, as the Irish, romping over Illinois and Pittsburgh in their two starts this season, climbed from ninth at the end of '45, to third so far in 1946.

Michigan, with a total of 632 points, moved up to fourth place in this week's voting, off victories over Indiana and Iowa.

San Francisco's Seals Win Governor's Cup

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP)—San Francisco's red-hot Seals today split up $10,000 in prize money and put the gold-engraved Pacific Coast League's Governor's Cup back among the family silverware as they closed out their most successful baseball season.

Lefty O'Doul's club, pennant winner in a stiff race with Oakland, won the post-season playoff from Casey Stengel's Oaks last night as Al Lien pitched four-hit ball to blank Oakland 6-0.

San Francisco, taking the series four games to two, thus retained the Governor's Cup for the fourth straight year—a league record—and collected $10,000 top money.

This cash, on 32 shares, results in $315 bonus to the players.

WORLD'S CHAMP?

The Ontario Athletic Commission may toss out the decision handed down last week by Referee Ed. Don George who disqualified Whipper Billy Watson after he had tossed the NWA world champion Wild Bill Longson out of the ring after giving him a decided drubbing inside it. Longson was badly hurt when he hit the cement from a twelve-foot ceiling and at present is in hospital. If the commish throws out the decision it may name the Whippah, world's champ or order a rematch, which is hardly possible at the present time.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The monthly magazine most popular with good bridge players is the Bridge World, edited by Ely Culbertson. Among interesting subjects in a recent issue is one by R. W. Wilson.

It tells a story about how Satan was suspected of being one of the players in the role of a substitute. Among the deals that came up in his presence was the clever one you see here:

NORTH
♠ 4 2
♥ None
♦ A K Q 9 8 7 2
♣ A K J 7

WEST
♠ None
♥ K Q J 9 7 6 5 3 2
♦ J 10 6 5
♣ None

EAST
♠ Q 7 6 5
♥ A 10 8 4
♦ 3
♣ Q 10 9 8

SOUTH
♠ A K J 10 9 8 3
♥ None
♦ 4
♣ 6 5 4 3 2

South opened with four spades and Old Nick bid five hearts with the west hand. The bidding finally ended when south was pushed into a grand slam of seven spades.

West led the heart king. From there, if you like a problem, lay out the cards on a table and see what you can do with it. If at first you don't succeed, there is another way.

The story tells how south defeated himself and how west told him later the way it could be made. You may have to be a devil to discover the method for taking 13 tricks here.

With the heart lead from west, declarer has a choice of several things he may do. As you can see, he can trump in dummy and sluff a south club or the diamond. Or sluff in dummy and trump in south.

Or he may trump in dummy and overtrump in south. Or he may trump in dummy with the four of spades and throw the south trey of trump on it. Or maybe you can think of another variation.

It seems that south sluffed a dummy club on the first lead and trumped with the south eight-spot. He entered dummy twice with top clubs and successfully finessed trumps twice.

But he later found the diamonds would not stand up. So, he had to give up a club trick in the end. Somewhere in all these plays, south made a mistake. Would you make it?

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 8 (AP) — Lauritz Melchior, who can be vocal on or off the stage and screen, says he is going to take his new duties seriously when he becomes a United States citizen Dec. 13.

In his baronial Hilltop home, the mountainous Melchior explained why he hadn't raised his voice about his adopted land before: "When you're a guest, you don't tell your host what to do."

When the tenor is no longer a guest, but one of the family, he intends to plug for one of his pet projects. "I would like to see a new cabinet position—a secretary of state for arts and sciences," he announced in his rapidly improving English.

The United States has led the world in many matters, he remarked, and now it must take the lead in artistic and scientific matters. "Our young students cannot study in France, Germany or Italy, and they should not have to," he said.

"Our young people must be able to go someplace to learn something besides crooning."

If you're trying to ape the hairdoos your favorite actresses wear on the screen, you might as well give it up. That's the edict of Eunice, hair dresser for Eagle-Lion Studios.

"What looks good on Heddy Lamarr, Greta Garbo, or Sylvia Sidney, might be attractive on other women," she said, "but it wouldn't be practical. Film hair styles require an hour or more to prepare and a hairdresser in constant attendance the whole day of work." Who wouldn't look good with attention like that? she asks.

When Mickey Rooney plays Chicago, it'll be his third name on a vaudeville date there. At 3, he was billed Joe Yule, Jr., at 12, Mickey McGuire...one of the most intriguing records in a long time is Bobby Sherwood's "Sherwood's Forest." Best of the new albums are the nostalgic songs by Jolson and Al Goodman's fine, workmanlike tribute to Jerome Kern...Cowhands on the "Pursued" set have a mad on at local high school girls. It seems the bobbysockers snap up all the blue jeans on the market and the western players can't find any.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking around to the market to get some stuff for ma and wishing I was walking in some other direction for some better reason, and Puds Simkins came out of his house, saying, Where you going, Benny?

Market, heck, I said. Where are you? I said, nd he said, That's just where I have to go, heck.

The result being we kept on going together, being company at least, me saying, Gosh shang errands, anyways.

That's a way I feel, Puds said. Hay, I got a idea. As long as we have to go anyways, why dont we ring peoples doorbells that we know, and ask them if they want anything fro mthe market. G, we can charge them a cent a pound for whatever they want us to bring them, according to the weight, he said, and I said, Sure, gosh, then we'll be making a buntch of money instead of just waisting our time going a errand against our wills. Hay, but suppose everybody just wants some dinky stuff like wax paper or powdered soop that dont hardly way a pound altogether? I said.

G, that's right, well maybe we better just leave it to their own judgement what they want to pay uns, Puds said, and I said, Well heck, then they might get the idea we're only trying to do them a polite favor and we'd be too proud to take any money so they wont want to insult us by offering us any.

Hay, gosh, here we are at the market already, Puds said.

Which we were, and I said, G, we got so interested we didn't realize.

Proving it dont matter what you do just so you keep interested the result being we kept just as interested all a ways back by walking with one foot on the cerb and one in the street.

Marmora

Marmora.—Mr. E. D. O'Connor has purchased the brick residence on McGill Street, known as the Bentley residence from Mrs. A. B. Caldwell, of Toronto. The house is at present occupied by Mr. Gregor Murray, manager of the Dominion Bank and his family.

The Royal Hotel is installing oil heating equipment in the furnace of the hotel. A thousand gallon tank has been placed in the ground at the north side of the hotel. There will also be a special water heating equipment.

Mrs. Sam Agnew, of Peterborough, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sopha.

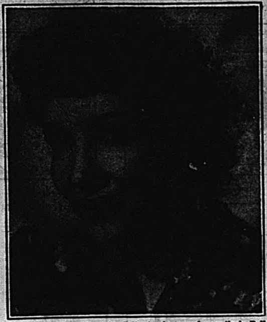
Mrs. Mary Ferguson, of Peterborough, spent a few days recently with Mrs Harry Vansickle and Mr. John Vansickle.

Mr. and Mrs. Milao Vanvolkenburg and Barbara, spent the weekend with friends in Oshawa.

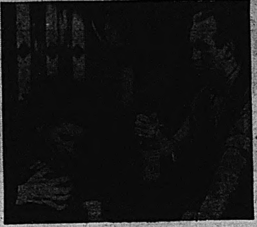
Born—In Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday, October 2nd., to Mr. and Mrs. W. Bishop, (nee Olive Airhart), a daughter, Sharon Lynn.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 8 — (AP) — The British Embassy said yesterday the landing of an R.A.F. Courier plane at Nis Friday was "no incident" but simply a misunderstanding arising from current negotiations for an air route agreement. The Embassy said the plane was not actually forced down, but was signalled to land. It was on a regular run between Bucharest and Bari, Southern Italy.



AT THE BELLE — Claudette Colbert, who scored recently in Belleville in "Tomorrow Is Forever," returns to comedy in her current vehicle, "Without Reservations." John Wayne and Don DeFore co-star with her in Mervyn LeRoy's merry production of romance and adventure. Closing at the Belle Theatre tonight.



AT THE CAPITOL — Ray Milland as Don Birnam, and Howard da Silva in Paramount's drama "The Lost Weekend," the Academy Award Picture and the Academy Award best actor Ray Milland now showing at the Capitol Theatre for adult entertainment only. On the same program "Fallen Angel," starring Alice Faye, Dana Andrews and Linda Darnell.

HAD TO POSTPONE TRIAL

Newark, N.J., Oct. 8 (AP) — A murder trial scheduled to start yesterday in Essex County Court was postponed until Oct. 28 because no hotel rooms will be available until then for the jury.

MARMORA

Minor Injuries In Car Collision

Marmora. (Special.)—An accident occurred at the intersection of No. 7 and No. 14 Highways in Marmora, Sunday afternoon, when a car driven by Hilton Eagleson, of Cobourg, driving east on No. 7 was in collision with a car driven by Edwin H. Foster of Tweed, who was driving west. The Eagleson car was making a left hand turn when the collision occurred. Mr. Foster sustained a cut over the left eye, which required a stitch to close. Mrs. Foster suffered lacerations to the right leg and knee, and also to the left knee, and some chest injuries. The occupants of the other car sustained only minor injuries. The injured were treated by Dr. H. Crawford and Dr. Pitcher at the office of Dr. Crawford. The damage to the Foster car was estimated at $300 and to the other car $150. Constable W. D. Lavender investigated. It is understood charges will be laid.

CHILD DROWNED

Ottawa, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Donald Trickett, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Trickett, lockmasters at Black Rapids on the Rideau Canal near here, was drowned yesterday. Police said the lad had been pulled from the water in a similar accident only three months ago.

CHAPTER 23

His half smile, narrowed eyes, absent look struck a chill to her very vitals.

"Dennis, are you engaged? You don't mind my asking? I liked her so much—I wondered——"

He wasn't shaking his head, he wasn't breaking into immediate denials; instead he just looked thoughtful, undecided. Isabel felt frightened.

"Something like that," he admitted, hesitating.

"Oh, Dennis, not really?"

"Yes, really," he said simply.

"Oh, I'm glad." Isabel tasted salt water in her mouth; the dark dining room seemed to be turning around in sickening circles "I—I suspected it," she said. She felt suddenly warm, and as if she were going to faint.

She did not faint. Sipping her glass of water she said:

"She is really a fine person. I'm glad. And when——But you have no plans?"

"None now," he said. "I think I may tell you this. We are not saying much about it, but naturally it's not a secret. We were married about a month ago."

"Dennis, no." Everything stopped short. Isabel breathed hard through parted lips.

"Yes, we drove to San Rafael one morning and were married. Mother knows, of course. No one else."

"Well—Dennis."

It sounded idiotic. There seemed to be nothing else to say. Everything was beginning to move in sickening circles.

"She was lonely'," he said. "I was lonely. We had become good friends."

"But—but to be married——"

"Isn't necessarily a part of friendship. No. So now we are more than good friends."

Isabel battled with a rising vertigo.

"I'm glad for you, Dennis. She is really fine. But she—she won't go on with her school. Or will she?"

"I don't see why not. For a while, anyway."

"Until a baby comes," Isabel thought, stabbed through and through, with jealousy. "A boy. She'll have a big British-looking boy. And my girls have a stepmother. No, I'll not stand it." Aloud she said, smiling disarmingly, "I'm surprised, Dennis."

"I'm surprised, too," Dennis echoed with his grave smile.

"But I hope you and she——" Isabel's throat closed. She began to brush crumbs about the tablecloth. "He's not too sharp about women," she thought, "but he'll see what's the matter with me. God, help me. Someone—Mother, help me. . . I hope you and she will be very happy, my dear," she said, her lips trembling on the last word, her eyes brimming.

Perhaps he didn't see her tears; the room was dimly lighted. He was talking quietly.

"Men come back more cracked up than you'd believe from the hell out there. I'd hoped——never mind that now. I felt bitter for a little while, and then came the injury to my fingers, and a good deal of thinking, in the hospital. And pain, too. I'll never think lightly of pain again, say to anyone 'It won't last, just a few more days.' That's what they said to me—over and over and over."

"Couldn't they give you something?"

"Not until they got me to a hospital. Not until they knew there wasn't injury inside somewhere. Well, I got home— to Laguna Street, and you were there—lovelier than ever," Dennis suddenly added, on a harsher note, putting one hand tightly over his eyes. Isabel's heart stood still; she dared not speak.

"When we moved to Sausalito, Madge was there," he said. "She had lost everyone—her father, her brother, John Somers-Cox, and her little boy. She'd been homeless, frightened, she'd heard Esme crying for milk—and there was no milk. She said that everywhere she looked there were shadows, and people crying and wandering aimlessly about, and ashes and cement. The hilltop, and the school, saved her."

"Terrible."

"I suppose that we here can't form any idea of what it meant to them, those midsummer months when they were bombed every few days. Madge said that when she finally got on the steamer with little Esme, it was a strange experience to undress and go to bed—her bare feet kept her awake. For months she had been ready to jump and run at the first alarm. It stunned her to find a hilltop and oaks, and apricots and growing corn, and a man delivering milk, and another bringing up chops and bread, and nobody thinking it a miracle. I came home about that time, and I needed her——someone to straighten me out, show me how much I had left—and she needed me. She needed someone to talk to, to plan with. We helped each other."

He said it very simply; there was no hint of reproach in his tone. But Isabel's heart was shaken and sick. He had needed someone— Dennis the powerful and independent had needed someone, and she had not been there!

"But somehow I never thought of you as marrying again, Dennis." It wasn't what she wanted to say; it seemed to come of itself.

"No, and I don't think I ever thought of myself that way, either." He smiled. "She's a fine, courageous woman," he said slowly. "I like everything I know of her. And she's had a bad time."

"She's a lucky woman," Isabel said. Dennis's eyes brightened.

"Thank you," he said, with a little conventional bow. "I think Madge sees—and I don't know anyone else who does, quite so clearly—" he presently began, musingly as if he were thinking aloud, "I think she sees the mess the world is going to be in, after this war. If there is any 'after this war,' if it isn't beginning a long string of other wars."

"Oh, Dennis, don't!"

"Well, she's been much nearer than we are to it, she's seen it in action. She feels that there may be an unending series of quarrels, after this. And she knows that it isn't a question of our old lives. Everyone, now, has got to catch on to some angle of the problem. Everone's got to help carry the load now."

"I suppose so." Isabel thought of Fong and Fong Wah cooking her dinner, and Yeats ceremoniously serving it, while Edna went noiselessly about the rooms upstairs, turning down beds, closing shutters.

"We've got an awful big job to handle, we who can help," Dennis said.

"And you think you might go to England, to help?"

"Not necessarily there. It might be that taking care of children on top of the hill might be our share."

"She's running him, pretty soon he won't have any will of his own," Isabel thought. "She married him, he didn't marry her." Aloud she said, "You'd never take the children to England?"

"Oh no, not as things are now. Not as they're apt to be for maybe."

"I said—" she burst out suddenly, unable to leave it unsaid any longer, "I said that you could have them as often as you pleased but of course—of course I didn't mean that. Not the way it has worked out!" Isabel said, looking into space, speaking as if to herself. "Holidays, Dennis, or a few weeks' vacation with your mother, but otherwise mine. They must be mine!"

"They're going to be yours in ten days," he reminded her, soberly. But when she moved her troubled eyes to his he was smiling at her; the remembered smile that had helped her so often!

"I know. But it makes me so frantic—so frantic to feel that they're being pulled this way and that."

"I don't think they need feel that. I know they didn't like Yelta, and I'm glad her day is over."

"Now they have a stepmother," Isabel said under her breathe I" don't think of Madge as that, somehow."

"But children do. They never feel the same to a stepmother."

"Or a stepfather," Dennis added innocently.

Isabel could bear no more: she was trembling. They had finished their luncheon now, and she rose to her feet.

"I must get started. I have a two-o'clock engagement, and we are driving down to Burlingame at four."

"Where is your engagement?" They were out in the foggy windy street together; Dennis had shrugged himself into a tweed overcoat that she remembered from their very early married days; he had pulled on a pair of worn gloves. The motions of his thin strong brown hands were as familiar to her as the motions of her own.

She told him she was going to the beauty parlor at the St. Francis, and they walked along past the big motor park together.

"If I can make arrangements about going to Pebble Beach next month, and find a good nurse, I thought I would like to keep the girls there for three or four weeks."

"Why not?" Dennis countered agreeably. "Except," he added, "that they are settled into a comfortable routine now—Madge's school keeps open the year around—and it seems a shame to upset them."

"But at school it's just a home routine, after all," she reminded him. "Play and naps and lunch. Wherever they are they have that."

"I thought you might be thinking of a hotel."

"No. Avery's mother has a place there right on the shore."

"H'm," Dennis said musingly, and for a moment neither spoke.

As a matter of fact she had been thinking of a hotel, for the old Avery place, which had not been open at all last summer, would be much to large a proposition for her to handle. It required the services of at least three or four maids, to say nothing of the ideal nurse who must somewhere be found. To attempt to get all this into working order for the space of a few weeks was out of the question.

Depression swept over Isabel like a dark cloud, and she said good-bye with a sick premonition that until she saw Dennis again nothing could happen, nothing would happen. When she walked away out of her sight a curtain seemed to fall. She kept her engagement at the beauty parlor; at four o'clock was driving herself slowly home. During the half-hour trip she looked out at the sunburned fields and the watered gardens, the high fences of the old race track that was now an army ccamp, with eyes that saw nothing. Now and then she spoke aloud.

She went up the winding road into Woodside Park and came to the old Latimer house. It looked peaceful and dignified and hospitable, with its gleaming plate-glass windows reflecting the summer greenery; its great entrance door, at the top of the shallow terraces, was wide open to the afternoon airs. A lovely home for any woman to call her own, Isabel thought, as she went in through the spacious hallways and mounted the great curved stairway. Stained-glass windows walled this stairway; on the landing palms dropped their delicate fingers across the shafts of colored light. Flowers sprayed in great vases everywhere; blue spears of delphinium; roses on stiff long stems; low bowls of pansies and stock.

All for her. Her husband was thousands of miles away; her children in their father's care. The big, smoothly running establishment was hers; the Chinese in the kitchen, the butler, the gardener who would presently come in for his dinner, young Edna and old Mamie, all were here just to take care of her. All were eating and sleeping, working and planning, with their interests second to her own.

Well, that wasn't so strange! Big handsome houses all about, in Burlingame and San Mateo and Hillsborough, and all over America for that matter, were being maintained in these days for the comfort of just one woman. It couldn't be helped, in wartimes. But it was lovely!

She lay down for a while before dinner, reading a new book that her woman friends had been discussing; presently she roused herself drowsily and changed her clothes. She was dining at home, but there was a chance that Millie might want her later for bridge.

"Will you have it in the library, madam?" That was Yeats.

"I suppose so."

Russ Ambassador Protests to U.S. State Department

Washington, Oct. 8 —(AP)— Russian Ambassador Nikolai Novikov has protested to the State Department against allegedly discourteous treatment by United States officials when he arrived in New York last week from the Paris peace conference.

The contents of his note were not disclosed immediately but it was understood he complained that he was detained for nearly an hour in the customs office at La Guardia Field while inspectors tried to persuade him to sign a statement that his baggage contained nothing illegal.

It was understood he contended this constituted an infringement of diplomatic privileges.

Unofficial reports said Novikov cited his diplomatic status to the inspectors and unsuccessfully sought permission to call both the Russian Consul in New York and the State Department.

He was allowed to proceed after an hour, still adamant in his refusal to sign the statement.

Sources close to the Soviet embassy said that the Russian Consul was kept outside the locked room while his ambassador was being questioned.

Later, a Russian embassy attache said the ambassador was allowed to proceed after the Russian Consul in New York had got in touch with the State Department.

He said the Soviet note of protest asked the State Department to furnish customs and immigration clerks with instructions on diplomatic privileges in order to avoid similar instances in the future.

Discovery Foils Effort to Burn School Say Police

Lakeview, Ont., Oct. 8.— (CP) —Vandals made what police described as a determined effort to burn down Lakeview Park Public School but were frustrated early today when a passer-by saw flames and spread the alarm.

The school had been ransacked but apparently nothing was stolen. Classes continued normally today.

Thomas Claytong discovered the fire and ran to a nearby military depot. Soldiers extinguished the fire which had made little

Police said two blazes —evidently designed to spread through the building—had been set, one in a wastebasket and one in the principal's office. The vandals had gained entrance by removing a steel basement window frame.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 8. (CP)— The market was stronger on the whole in the early stage and the Industrials, Golds and Western Oils had index gains at mid-day. Base Metals took a small loss. Trading continued on a small scale and the turnover for the first three hours was only 353,000 shares.

In the Industrial section better prices ruled for the Senior Oils, and miscellaneous issues and the Papers and Utilities were soft.

In the Golds Astoria was again sold in quantity and the price slipped back three cents to nineteen cents.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 8 — (AP) — Steels and assorted rails led a selective recovery sortie in today's stock market without generating any real stamina.

Dealings turned sluggish after a fairly active opening. Gains of fractions to three points were well distributed near the fourth hour although scattered losers persisted.

Canadian issues showed fractional gains at midday with liquors leading. Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram each gained ½ Canadian Pacific 1/8, Dome Mines 3/8 and McIntyre 3/4.

Justice Mackay Imposes Maximum Sentence on Holder

Brantford, Oct. 8 — (CP)—The prospect of life imprisonment lies ahead of 46-year-old William Holder, found guilty of wounding with intent to maim in the stabbing of John Carey, 32, his cousin and brother-in-law.

Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay imposed the life term — maximum penalty for the offence — after an Ontario Supreme Court jury late yesterday found Holder not guilty of attempted murder but guilty of the lesser charge.

"From your long record and your complete disregard of law, you are a man of violence, an enemy of society and a menace to the community," Mr. Justice Mackay told Holder. "I sentence you to Kingston penitentiary for the term of your natural life."

Earlier, Crown Attorney F. E. D. Wallace urged His Lordship to impose "a very, very long sentence in the interests of the community at large."

Carey said he was sleeping in Holder's home last July 21 when Holder awakened him, stabbed him, hit him with a hammer, bound him with wire and gagged him. Then, Carey said, Holder untied him, bathed his wound, helped him dress and told him to say he had been wounded in an accident. Instead, Carey went to the police.

Claims He Was Attacked First

Holder said Carey attacked him first with the knife and was accidentally stabbed in a struggle that followed. Carey denied Holder's story of the struggle and said he did not have the knife in his hand.

Dr. I. M. MacKay said that from the nature, position and direction of the wound he dressed on Carey's shoulder, the knife could not have been thrust in the manner described by Holder.

Holder married Carey's sister last March and she later left him, Carey told the court. Carey said he believed Holder attacked him because of an idea that Carey knew where the wife was staying.

Records read in court showed that since he was 19 years old, Holder had received sentences totalling 32 years. He was released from Kingston penitentiary last February after serving 10 years for shooting a taxi driver here.

He left Canada after the shooting and when police were bringing him back to stand trial he leaped off a boat in New York harbor and swam five miles to shore against an outgoing tide. Officials thought he had drowned and he was not heard from again until Alabama police arrested him on a car theft charge.

He got two years for the theft and escaped again, the record showed. Once more stealing a car landed him in court and he served a term of 2½ years. Upon his release police brought him to Brantford to stand trial for shooting the taximan. Five months after he completed his long penitentiary term, police arrested him for stabbing Carey.

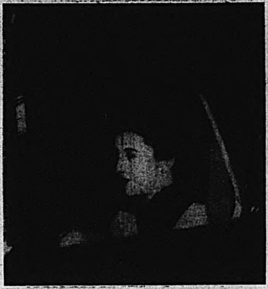
Large crowd stands around outside court house during selection of jury. The 100 prospective jurymen who were dismissed for a week when the petit jury was selected were told they could leave the court, but nearly all remained to hear the trial.

Evidence Conflicting In M. Boyce Trial

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Trial of Murray Boyce, a transport truck driver, on charges of manslaughter in the deaths of four persons in a collision last May 3 between his runaway truck and a street car at Bathurst and Bloor Streets in midtown Toronto continued today after conflicting testimony yesterday on traffic lights at the intersection.

John Day, Boyce's helper, testified that a green light faced the transport as it careened southbound down Bathurst Street after its brakes failed to work. Day stood on the running board of the cab, shouting warnings.

On the other hand, Harry Schepers, driver of the street car, testified that the light was green for his westbound tram.



Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, charged with torso murder of her husband, John Dick, is rushed from Hamilton court house back to jail yesterday afternoon after first day's trial.

Negotiate Future Million Germans Now Living Abroad

By EDWIN SHANKE

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Allied control authority is negotiating the future of almost 1,000,000 Germans now living abroad.

A senior official of the British Control Commission said the negotiations concern German refugees in Denmark and homeless prisoners of war as well as the policy to be followed on receiving back into Germany all Germans, and perhaps all persons of Germanic origin such as minorities of which countries over the world want to rid themselves.

Because so many countries have applied for permission to send their unwanted Germans back to Germany "as the most convenient ash bin," the spokesman said that the control council was reviewing the entire problem from a world-wide standpoint.

The world survey will continue until next spring. Meantime, the capacity of the four zones to absorb more Germans also will be studied.

The Allied Control Council, still is adhering to the principle already established that displaced persons abroad having residence in present-day Germany be allowed to return to them. The speed at which they will be returned depends on the zonal commanders.

In the case of Denmark, the spokesman explained that more than 166,000 German refugees interned there originally lived in areas of Germany now administered by Poland to which they cannot return.

Requests to return "all sorts of Germans", he continued, "have come from as far away as Java, Siam, China, India and Australia. The latter has 12,000 it wants to repatriate. In southeastern Europe there are several hundred thousands."

The official said Brazil has offered to receive 120,000 persons from Germany, not necessarily Germans.

Ontario Harvests, Finest in Years, Aided by Weather

Toronto, Oct. 8 —(CP)— Aided by the exceptionally fine weather, harvesting is progressing in all parts of Ontario and crops are the finest in years, the Ontario Department of Agriculture weekly crop report today stated.

The potato harvest is the heaviest in years and some areas report even greater yields than anticipated. Western Ontario sections have completed silo filling, potato and mangold lifting and report that the apple crop is excellent in quality and quantity. The dry, warm weather has resulted in one of the best bean crops and fall wheat is making good progress. some of the pastures, however, are in poor condition.

Southern Ontario reports good fall wheat, tobacco harvest almost completed and potatoes and apples very good. Lack of moisture is beginning to be felt in some places but the harvesting of all crops with the exception of some root vegetables is now completed. The grape harvest is showing excellent results.

In Central Ontario the apple crop is reported better than anticipated, but the milk flow is dropping and most dairy cattle are receiving supplemental feeding. Canning plants are busy with corn and tomatoes.

Considerable damage to apple crops resulting from the Oct. 1 snow and wind storm is reported from Eastern Ontario, but fall plowing is proceeding satisfactorily and canning factories are running to capacity.

In Northern Ontario weather conditions have been perfect all week for harvesting and threshing and work on farms is reported well caught up for this time of the year. Here too potatoes are record yields.

Claims Ownership Of $10,000 In Canadian Bills

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—A man has successfully claimed ownership of $10,000 in Canadian bills, found last night by Trans-Canada Airlines officials in an unclaimed suitcase, but his identity remains a mystery as far as the public is concerned.

T. C. A. officials said today they were convinced the man, whose identity they declined to reveal, was the owner of the suitcase which also contained a brief case and articles of men's clothing. The $10,000 was $100 bills.

The suitcase was one of five pieces of luggage marked as delayed baggage which reached here yesterday on a flight from Winnipeg. The other four had forwarding addresses and were sent on. But the $10,000 suitcase didn't and it was opened in an effort to find a clue as to the identity of its owner.

Th T.C.A. said the suitcase—and the money — had been shipped to the forwarding address they obtained from the owner when he presented his credentials.

TANKS USED TO BATTLE RIOTERS IN ROME

Dramatic Evidence Given by Mother Of Accused Widow

Says Mrs. Dick Told Her On March 8, Dick Was Dead

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hamilton, Oct. 9 (CP)— "Yes, John Dick is dead, keep your mouth shut."

These were the words Mrs. Alexandra MacLean today attributed to her daughter Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick last March 8, two days after the disappearance of John Dick for whose murder Mrs. Dick is on trial.

Mrs. MacLean, speaking firmly under examination by Harvey McCulloch, Crown Atoorney said she last spoke to John Dick, on March 5—"the day before he disappeared."

On March 8 she had occasion to note that John Dick was not driving his customary Hamilton street railway car.

She mentioned it that night to Evelyn from whom Dick was estranged.

"Evelyn said: 'It's not likely' he'll bother me again and they'll not see him on the car," the mother testified.

"I asked, 'there's nothing happened, he's not been killed?'" went on Mrs. MacLean.

She said her daughter replied: "Yes John Dick's dead and you keep your mouth shut."

Testimony of the grey-haired mother of the widow accused of the torso-slaying of her husband came as a surprise, dramatic development near the end of an action-packed morning of testimony about the torso found on Hamilton Mountain last March 16, later identified as that of John Dick.

Blood Stained Exhibits

Earlier the crown had produced various blood stained exhibits which were traced as links in the chain of bloody evidence linking the torso on the mountain to the current trial.

Mrs. MacLean said on Wednesday, March 13, she saw Evelyn taking ashes out of the house.

"I said I'd take a side of the can and she told me to get ahead with the wash and she'd take the ashes out," said Mrs. MacLean in testimony which followed police testimony that they had recovered what appeared to be human bones —bones from limbs such as were missing from the body of John Dick—in ashes taken from Mrs. Dick's 32 Carrick Ave. home.

Mrs. Dick kept her head cast down as her mother testified to details in a case which had already produced more grisly testimony than probably any previous Hamilton trial.

As one exhibit after another was produced, and "O" type blood identified on them, the accused, Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, whose husband was last seen alive on March 6, sat unmoved.

That was so even when Dr. W. J. Deadman, provincial pathologist, said on cross-examination by defence that the slain man's body could have been dismembered "in one half hour of continuous work."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 9—(CP)—Synopsis: A high pressure area of cool air which moved southward across Southern Ontario on Monday is now centred in Quebec. A region of low pressure centred over South Carolina is moving slowly northeastward. This low pressure area is associated with the tropical storm which moved northward through Florida and the Carolinas yesterday. The storm has weakened considerably in the past twelve hours insofar as high winds are concerned. However precipitation from the storm has been heavy with as much as five inches falling in parts of Georgia and South Carolina. The precipitation area now extends as far north as Ohio and Southern Pennsylvania and is expected to spread slowly northward into the regions bordering Lake Ontario tonight and early Thursday.

Lake Ontario region: Overcast today and tonight remaining cloudy most of Thursday. Intermittent rain Wednesday evening and during the night ending Thursday morning. Continuing cool tomorrow. Northeast winds, low Wednesday and high Thursday 46 and 58. Summary for Thursday: Cloudy, continuing cool.

Tin Regulation Agreement Will Not be Renewed

By SYDNEY CAMPBELL
(Reuters Financial Editor)

London, Oct. 9 (Reuters)—The International tin conference, which was opened here Tuesday by Supply Minister John Wilmot, will not renew the international tin regulation agreement which expires at the end of 1946.

Its likeliest outcome will be the establishment of "study groups" of representatives from both producer and consumer countries to review the world tin situation.

The tin regulation agreement, essentially a producers scheme, has been seriously criticized, particularly in the United States. The United States Department of Agriculture favors such intergovernmental cartels for wheat and cotton, but the United States State Department is lukewarm even for such commodities which the United States exports. The United States opposes them for tin and rubber, of which she is by far the largest importer.

The United States probably will insist that any "study group" set up by the current conference continuously to review the world tin situation should have no powers to restrict production or exports, as in the case of the rubber study group which already exists.

Mr. Wilmot, in his opening address, forecast a situation in which, once the tin producing areas in the east are rehabilitated, potential tin production will be in excess of demand. He urged the conference to consider the necessity for continuous inter-governmental study of that position.

$25,000 FIRE LOSS

Hamilton, Oct. 9 — (CP) — A spectacular fire late this morning swept through a paint shop owned by the Hamilton Cub Aircraft Corporation, and did damage that may exceed $25,000. Cause of the outbreak is at present unknown. It is the second disaster that the company has suffered within the last 6 months. Last April a similar point shop was destroyed by fire, with a loss of close to $50,000. Officials of the firm say that they are inclined to believe that spontaneous combustion was responsible for this morning's blaze.

TORNADO VICTIMS TO WINTER IN TRAILER

Owen Sound, Oct. 9 — (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Chaisson and five children, left homeless by the tornado which struck the Windsor district early in the summer, plan to spend the winter months here living in a 21 by 8 foot trailer. They have been unable to find other accommodation.

GLOBE-GIRDLING FLIGHT DEPENDS ON DIPLOMATIC 'IF'

U.S. Govt May Send 24 B-29 Superforts Around World For Experimentation

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Final government approval of a projected globe-girdling flight by as many as 24 B-29 Superfortresses hung today on a diplomatic "if."

Officials predicted that the State Department probably will approve the United States army air forces plans for the flight—if some way can be found to minimize the venture as a type of "big stick" diplomacy.

The problem confronting the State Department is that whatever may be the intentions behind the project, diplomats here and in foreign offices around the world appear certain to read into it various political implications.

Russia already has built a propaganda campaign around what critics call anti-Soviet American diplomacy. Furthermore former Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace here as well as various leaders abroad have raised a major public issue over what they variously term a "tough policy" toward Russia or the need for a new approach to Russian relations.

The round-the-world flight plan was announced to a press conference late yesterday by W. Stuart Symington Undersecretary of War.

He said the flight would go by way of Cairo, India and the Pacific, would include between eight and 24 of the army's heaviest regular service bombers and definitely would be made in the next few weeks "if the State Department approves."

At the State Department, officials promptly let it be known that they had only a vague fore knowledge of Mr. Symington's announcement. Some expected the whole matter might have to go before President Truman.

Mr. Symington made two statements to newspapermen implying possible diplomatic significance in the project.

He said "this flight will compare with round-the-world voyages made in earlier days by the American fleet."

He also declared that the "airforces must be considered of primary importance" in carrying out United States national policies.

Hull's Condition Continues Serious

PRELIMINARY WORK

Montreal, Oct. 9 (CP)— Arthur Cross, President of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, said here today that work preliminary to resumption of operations at the company's big Sydney, N.S., plant is expected to begin this afternoon.

French-Canadian Community Set On Prairies Maintains Identity

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Gravelbourg, Sask., Oct. 9 —(CP)— Here on the flat, flat land of the Western Prairies is a little bit of French-Canada set down nearly 1,500 miles from the rolling countryside of old Quebec but still much alive to the habits, traditions and language of the East.

You can walk down the main street of this progressive little centre some 80 miles southwest of Moose Jaw and hear the same rich, flowing tongue, read the same French shop window signs and see the same characteristic church and convent as in Sorrel, St. Georges de Beauce of Roberval.

But there are differences which stand out as strongly as the similarities. Virtually everyone speaks English against the small percentage in Quebec towns. There are the flat plains instead of the hilly land of the east and the town nestles against the big, squat grain elevators that are the landmark of every Prairie settlement but never are seen in Quebec.

The story of this paradoxical town which at one glance is typically Quebecois and at another is typically western is based on an adventuresome pioneering spirit that brought many of its inhabitants from their eastern homes just 40 years ago.

That spirit was fostered by a young missionary priest, Rev. Pierre Gravel, who visited the fertile and then sparsely-settled lands, saw their possibilities as a rich wheat-growing area and went back east to encourage young Quebecers to throw their lot in with him in a move to help open the west. That was in 1906, a year after Saskatchewan became a province.

Father Gravel, whose name was given to the town, remained in Gravelbourg working, improving and building until his death here in the small, white-walled rural hospital in 1927 at the age of 67.

Britain, Canada Sign New Contract Beef for Britain

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (CP)—Britain and Canada have signed a new beef contract providing for the purchase by Britain of a minimum of 120,000,000 pounds of Canadian beef in 1947 and a maximum of 120,000,000 pounds in 1948, Agriculture Department sources disclosed today.

For the 1947 purchases the prices paid will be the same as those in effect since Aug. 19 this year, when rates on top quality beef were raised approximately two cents a pound, while for 1948 they will be not less than those prices in effect before Aug 19.

Official announcement of the contract, the bare details of which were disclosed last night at Rossendale, Man., by Agriculture Minister Gardiner in a by-election address, is expected to be made later today.

BARUCH HOLDS FIRMLY TO U.S. PLAN FOR ATOM

Assailed by Wallace, Rejected by Russia He Says "Generous and Just"

By FRANCES CARPENTER

New York, Oct. 9. (AP)—The first public hint that Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, might take a hand in the slow-moving atomic energy discussions raised far-reaching questions today as Bernard M. Baruch held firmly to the American plan to harness th eatom for peace.

Mr. Lie dropped the hint during a short speech last night just before Mr. Baruch was awarded the Freedom House Plaque for his services as the United States member of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. However, Mr. Lie later told newspapermen that he had no intention of intervening immediately.

In accepting the honor, presented by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mr. Baruch maintained that the American plan, which Henry A. Wallace, former Commerce Secretary, has bitterly assailed and which has been rejected by Soviet Russia, is "generous and just".

Mr. Baruch bluntly declared that "no amount of deliberately created confusion shall prevail" against the American phan he outlined last June 14.

Mr. Lie departed from his prepared text to hint at Intervention.

As released, the Lie text on the Atomic Control debate said:

"It is not my duty to take sides in that debate."

Not Taking Sides

However, in delivering his speech, Mr. Lie changed the quotation to state:

"It is not my duty at least at the time being to take sides in that debate."

Mr. Lie said after the dinner that he merely was stating his right under Article 99 of the United Nations Charter.

The members of the Atomic Energy Commission from Canada, Britain, Australia, China, Braizl and Mexico were present but The Netherlands delegate was unable to attend. Freedom House officials said the Soviet delegate, Andrei A. Gromyko, notified them he could not attend because of a previous engagement.

The Atomic Energy Commission's Committee No. 2, the political group, agreed unanimously yesterday to start a detailed study of safeguards necessary to restrict the use of atomic energy to peaceful purposes.

MAYOR'S CAR RECOVERED

Brantford, Oct. 9 — (CP)—Reported stolen from Sarnia Monday, a car owned by Mayor W. C. Nelson of that city, was recovered by Provincial Police last night after it had been abandoned in a ditch near Burford, nine miles west of Brantford. It was undamaged.

Two young men, the alleged car thieves, had a good night's rest and breakfast at the farm home of Vernon Carter, after telling him they had been forced to abandon the car when it ran out of gas and their money had been exhausted.

Tuesday morning they continued on their way and are now being sought by police.

Woman Customer Blocks Attempt To Rob Store

Toronto, Oct. 9 — (CP) — A woman customer seeking entry to the Rosemount jewelry store on Bloor Street in West Toronto today foiled a holdup attempt by two men, one of them armed.

The holdup pair had taken a wallet containing $35 and personal property from the manager and were about to clean out the cash box when the woman appeared. She first tried the front door and then the back door. Both were locked. She came again to the front door and the pair fled out the back door.

The manager, Allan Rosenberg and a clerk, Mrs. R. A. Pratt, were fixing the showcases when the pair entered. One stayed at the door as a lookout and the other, carrying a gun, ordered the two employees to the back of the store.

Two rings were found on the floor, apparently dropped by the men in their hasty getaway.

SHORTAGES WORSE THAN IN BLEAKEST DAYS OF WAR

Meat, Soap, Sugar and Toilet Tissue Almost Unprocurable in U. S.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—A sharply etched picture of shortages of meat, soap, sugar, toilet tissue and other key living items —worse in many instances than during the bleakest war days—was disclosed today by a survey of 45 cities in the United States.

Major American communities reported that many normal essentials had either gone from the shelves entirely, disappeared under the counter to become so-called "stoop items" for favored customers, or were available only to the lucky or constant shopper.

The country-wide check by The Associated Press brought in these among other returns:

In 40 of the 45 cities meat was either not available at all, or more often was in supply ranging from a small fraction of normal to an "occasional" appearance.

In all 45 cities soap in one or all of its forms was becoming almost a collectors item.

In 24 cities sugar was scarce or even in acute shortage, while in 18 others it was either plentiful or in fair to middling supply.

Sixteen communities listed toilet tissue among the top scarcities.

Short in Varying Degrees

Cooking oils and fats, shortening, salad dressing, salad oils, oleomargarine, lard, syrup and other items containing sugar were short in varying degrees in most cities.

Reports of minor disturbances in the dash to capture scarce items were scattered across the United States.

In Columbus, Ohio, where some housewives were reported to be bribing the butcher with gifts of whisky, one wishful buyer lost a tooth and two more were scratched when 35 women rushed a clerk who was bringing out a carton of soap flakes.

In Miami, Fla., a new market advertised a stock of all scarce items. It was mobbed. The supply lasted one hour.

In Logan County, W. Va., four coal mines shut down when miners went on a protest strike against shortages of meat, lard, and soap.

No actual butter shortages were reported, but a Syracuse, N.Y., dealer said it must be scarce or it wouldn't be selling there for 90 cents a pound. Wichita, Kan., added that butter was plentiful—at $1 a pound.

ENGINEER LOST IN BUSH

New Liskeard, Oct. 9 — (CP) — Peter Nelson, assistant chief engineer of the Ontario Department of Highways, is lost in the heavy bush in the Martin River area south of Temagami. Though he has been missing since Sunday afternoon, the alarm was raised only this morning and search parties have been sent out from New Liskeard, Earlton and North Bay.

It is understood that Mr. Nelson, whose office is in the Parliament Buildings in Toronto walked out of his camp in search of game and has not been seen since.

The search parties were organized by the Department of Highways in New Liskeard and North Bay and by the McNamara Construction Company of Earlton. The missing man who has had a hunting camp in the north for several years is an experienced woodsman.

MOLOTOV ASSAILS PLAN FOR FUTURE STATE OF TRIESTE

Claims Draft Treaty Means of Keeping Adriatic Area Under British, U.S. Control

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Oct. 9 — (AP) — The peace conference entered its final phase of treaty-writing late today with the adoption of the preamble to the Italian settlement.

Yugoslavia abstained in the voting on the preamble, though the preamble text had been adopted unanimously in commission.

Articles 1 and 2 were passed quickly and unanimously.

Foreign Minister Molotov, who earlier assailed the Italian treaty draft plan for the projected free state of Trieste as an "undemocratic" means of keeping that strategic Adriatic area under British-American control, presided as chairman.

The conference witnessed its first real division on article 3 dealing with the Italo-Yugoslav frontiers. White Russia demanded a roll call on its amendment, which had failed in commission, to move the line westward in Yugoslavia's favor.

It was rejected, 14 to five, with two abstentions. Ethiopia joined White Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Ukraine in backing the amendment. Belgium and Yugoslavia abstained.

The same vote defeated a similar Yugoslav amendment. On the second roll call, Belgium and Ethiopia abstained, and Yugoslavia joined the other Slav states in supporting it. In both cases, Russia, faithful to her Big Four commitments, voted against the amendments, thus supporting the four-power agreements.

Speaking for the Soviet Union in a peace conference plenary session, Mr. Molotov declared that the statute adopted by the parley's Italian political and territorial commission for governing the free state lodged "absolute power" in a foreign governor and left the city's population "disenfranchised" under foreign troops.

"This means Trieste is not an international free territory; but a semi-enemy supervised territory under control of the Anglo-American forces," Molotov declared.

Denies Assertion

Making his first pronouncement since his return from Moscow, Mr. Molotov demanded that the conference transfer power in Trieste to a government elected by the popular assembly similar to the pre-war government in Danzig.

"It is not true to say there is no similarity between Trieste and Danzig," he said. "The experience of Danzig should be utilized in Trieste."

Addressing himself to "western bloc" powers, Mr. Molotov criticized what he termed attempts by the old democracies to isolate the young Slav democracies. Especially as these are trying to maintain their new national institutions and are not willing to do the bidding of some other powers."

Mr. Molotov told delegates that the question before them was whether to establish the free state on "democratic principles" or abandon these principles.

Would be Like Colony

"The Anglo-American proposals for Trieste mean in actual fact making the city something like a

Greatest Display Celestial Fireworks Since 1900 Will be Seen Tonight

Ottawa, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Tonight, weather permitting, the casual observer in the eastern half of North America will be able to see one of the greatest displays of celestial fireworks on exhibit since 1900.

The show scheduled to start about 10 P. M., E.S.T., is Giacobini-Zinner, a long-tailed comet which is expected to shower the sky with meteorites as its tail skims past the earth only 131,000 miles away. And astronomers here are getting set to photograph the phenomenon.

Observatory astronomers will be operating three spectrographs and four direct cameras, some at the Dominion observatory here and some at Rockland, Ont., and will have at least a dozen observers on hand to count and estimate the brightness of the meteorites visible.

Giacobini-Zinner whipped past the earth last Sept. 30, but it was then about 24,000,000 miles away and passed comparatively unnoticed. This time its meteorites are expected to shower as close as 40 to 50 miles from the Earth's surface. The spectacle is expected to last about three hours, perhaps longer, and may be visible in all parts of North America if its visit is prolonged.

By studying the flight of the small particles of cosmic matter, the scientists hope to obtain valuable information concerning the upper atmosphere, 40 to 100 miles above the Earth. Color displays as seen by the spectographs provide data on the composition of the meteors and the gases through which they pass.

Protest Over Work Stoppage Cause Of Angry Violence

79 Injured, One Killed In 3-Hour Demonstration

Rome, Oct. 9 — (AP) — Police and troops using tanks and armored cars fought for three hours today with demonstrators led by workmen protesting their dismissal from a public project. A government communique said one person died of injuries and 79 others were wounded.

Police announced earlier that three had been killed and leaders of the 20,000 to 30,000 demonstrators asserted that at least 8 were slain.

Scores of bullet marks pocked the Viminale Palace, seat of government, near where the dispute flared.

Government officials and the head of the Italian Communist party, Palmiro Togliatti, retreated from a palace balcony when pistol shots were fired in the air.

Pietro Nenni, Socialist leader and minister, suffered minor bruises when the crowd shoved him around as he walked among the demonstrators trying to pacify them.

War Veterans Join

The workers' ranks were swelled by homeless war veterans and refugees from a camp on the edge of the city.

A government communique said 50 of the demonstrators and 29 policemen were injured. It said posters announcing the termination of the works project for Saturday "had been erroneously" put up during the morning. Actually, the communique said, authorities were working on a plan for a new project which would absorb the unemployed.

The crowd was in an ugly mood when it arrived at the palace for the third straight day, and its temper grew steadily uglier. The workmen, from the public works department, were due to be discharged Saturday.

Several were heard to shout as the police moved upon them: "This is no better than fascism."

Before the police were reinforced, scores of demonstrators had pushed into the government building, where they broke furniture and shattered windows.

Some got as far as the office of Premier Alcide de Gasperi, who also is minister of the interior, before they were ejected. His office was not damaged. De Gasperi himself, who had been in Palermo, returned by plane this morning. As soon as police cleared entrances to the Viminale, he hurried to his office to confer with the cabinet, the sub-cabinet and heads of the police.

Swords, Firearms Used

The police and helmeted carabinieri used clubs, swords, firearms and two armored cars in a fruitless effort to clear the square and the streets before the Viminale.

Police announced three were dead. Leaders of the mob said at least eight had been slain.

Many injured, including policemen, were reported in a serious condition.

One of the armored cars circulating through the crowd opened fire and there were three loud explosions that sounded like hand grenades.

FELLOW-WORKER KILLED, SLAYER COMMITS SUICIDE

Hangs Self From Top of 176-Foot Incinerator Chimney

Winnipeg, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Jerome Allan Morrison, 33, bludgeoned Constant Borg, 66, a fellow-worker, to death Saturday and then climbed to the top of a 176-foot incinerator chimney where he placed a noose about his neck and leaped into the chimney, hanging himself, police reported today.

Borg's almost-decapitated body lay in a pile of blood-soaked cement sacks at the base of the incinerator where it was discovered late Tuesday. Police said the fatal blow was dealt with a 10-pound sledge-hammer.

Earlier in the day Morrison's corpse had been cut down from the chimney where it swung from a nine-foot rope. At first it had been thought the body was a dummy placed there by jokers. Blood was found on Morrison's shoes.

Police said a possible motive for the murder was that Borg had tried to halt a suicide attempt by Morrison. Morrison's widow, Barbara, told police he had been "threatening to commit suicide for some time." They had separated a week previously.

Mrs. Morrison said she believed her husband had come from Dundurn, Sask. Three sisters, Corrine, Betty and Patsy Morrison, live in Toronto.

Borg was described as a Maltese by some of his fellow workmen and his landlady. They said he had a wife and three sons in either Malta or Australia.

The body of Morrison, a veteran of the Second Great War, was first seen hanging from the gallows inside the stack by workmen early Monday. They reported their discovery to construction superintendent W. W. Fountain who glanced up the stack toward the dimly-visible peak.

"I thought somebody had tied a dummy up there as a joke or that the wind had blown something over the top of the chimney and I did nothing about it," he said.

Yesterday, the body was still visible and plant superintendent Walter Oliver notified police. The body was lowered after a professional steeple-jack had climbed the chimney by the same exterior iron stairs as Morrison apparently had used.

Dr. D. Penner, general hospital pathologist, revealed the two men had died at approximately the same time.

H. & P. E. REGT. UNIT TO TRAIN IN BRIDGE STREET ARMOURIES

The company of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be quartered in the Bridge Street Armouries during the coming winter training season, it was learned today. The company, at present housed in the Church Street Armouries, will vacate those premises when the city takes it over for the purpose of housing families. Seven families can be accommodated in the building which was newly renovated by army authorities last Spring.

District Milk Flow Continues to Drop

With pastures rapidly being depleted as the growing season nears its end, most dairy cattle in the Bay of Quinte district are now receiving supplementary feeding in an effort to maintain the milk flow, according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Despite barn feeding, however, the milk flow continues to drop off. There is an active demand for good springer cows.

Silo filling is now virtually completed and potato digging is well advanced with the yield being higher than was expected by farmers.

In Northumberland county excellent progress has been made in picking of apples and a good crop of McIntosh has been harvested.

Robert Mitchell Purchases Grocery Store at Rossmore

Announcement was made today of the disposal of the grocery, meats and gas business of Lionel "Gunner" Arnott at Rossmore to Robert "Bob" Mitchell a native of this city and a veteran of the Second Great War. "Bob" is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Mitchell, 149 Yeomans Street, and has lived his entire life in the city. He attended Queen Mary School and the Belleville Collegiate Institute and then entered the C.N.R. system; accepting a position in the main office as a clerk. He enlisted in January 1942 in the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve and served continuously until October 1945, when he was discharged. He had a great many months of sea duty in the North Atlantic and for some time was Leading Seaman on the higher sub detector work. After discharge he joined the C.N.R. as a switchman. The young veteran is married to the former Joan Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred "Wicky" Ross of Rossmore.

Extensive renovation of the property will be undertaken in the immediate future to make it one of the most up-to-date country stores in the district. He will have the benefit of the experience of his father, who has been in the meat and grocery business practically all his life.

Stenographers Satisfied After Seeing Mrs. Dick

Hamilton, Oct. 9 — (CP) — "We've seen her, now we can go back to work."

Those words from two pretty young women represent the attitude of the Hamilton stenographer during these days of the Dick murder trial.

When the accused, Mrs. MacLean Dick, arrived at the courthouse this morning for continuation of her trial on a charge of husband murder some 150-odd people crowded the courthouse approaches to see her.

She came in a taxi, was conducted to the court, smiling and clutching a box of face tissues, by a policeman.

The girls in the crowd gasped, "There she is, we've seen her."

Then Mrs. Dick was gone, on her way to trial.

Pet Gull Finds New Home At Pt. Traverse

Dick Ingram, Wellington fisherman and mechanic, and former chief of police of the lakeside village had a pet seagull.

Mr. Ingram, whose sea-going fishing activities often took him to the vicinity of Scotch Bonnet Lighthouse near Huycke's Point, found a baby gull, an orphan and promptly took it under his figurative wing.

It was raised by hand until it grew to a normal size, then it fended for itself. Then it answered the call of the wild and took off for parts unknown with other gulls.

The other day a footloose pet gull was discovered in the vicinity of Point Traverse where now it is the pet of the local fishermen.

The gull answers to the names of "Pete" or "Oscar" and still likes to be handfed. It has a particular gullish yen for hamburger or cheese, or both.

School Children Invited to Send Essays, Drawings

In conjuction with the observing of Fire Prevention Week now being held, school children in the upper grades of public school and separate school in the city have been invited to write essays and draw posters with worthwhile prizes being offered for the winners.

The contest opened on Monday of this week and will close Friday evening, following which the entries will be judged and the results announced early next week. Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance and one other will act as judges for the contest. Six prizes will be awarded in each of the four public schools and in the separate school.

Heading the list of prizes will be the $25 voted by city council, which will be divided among the five schools. Other prize donors are Stephen Licence, F. W. Woolworth, Kresge's, Zellers, Mayor Frank Follwell, Newton Wilbur, chairman of fire; Harold Seldon, board of education; Sills Book Store, James Texts, Weese and Onderdonk, Lipsons, ready to wear; Metropolitan Stores, Belle Theatre, McCarthy Theatre, Capitol Theatre, Canadian Department Stores, J. Diamond and Son and Art Booth and Sons.

Kinsmen Club Will Present Fine Variety Show

A rare treat in entertainment for residents of Belleville and district is scheduled for October 23rd on the stage at the Capitol Theatre when the Kinsmen Club of Belleville will stage a variety and quizz show featuring widely known vocal artists, cartoonist, and character comedian.

Formerly one of the leading sopranos with the Philadelphia Opera Company, Miss Rose Zocanno will be the featured vocalist and as her feature number will sing "The Waltz" from the opera "La Boheme." Miss Zocanno will also sing a Victor Herbert song as well as request numbers.

Lou Skuse and his cartoonograph, known throughout North America, has entertained hundreds of thousands in Canada, the United States and in Great Britain, and his cartoons have appeared in nationally syndicated newspapers. As his subjects Lou uses numerous patriotic pictures and portraits of well-known personalities.

Adding variety to the program will be the appearance of Jack McLean who in a clean, fast moving act will present comedy in character. Jack will bring songs, comedy and clever impersonations of such characters as Amos and Andy, Lionel Barrymore, Mortimer Snerd, Joe E. Brown and others. He will also act as master of ceremonies for the show.

Adding a local touch to the program will be the Rhythm Ranch Riders who are heard nightly over station CJBQ, while another feature in entertainment will be the quizz show during which contestants will be questioned regarding advertisements appearing in the local press. These special advertisements will be published at a later date.

All in all the show promises to be one well worth seeing and hearing. Proceeds will go to assist in the welfare work of the local Kinsmen Club.

Picton

Council Holds Heated Closed Session on Police Matters

Picton, Oct. 9—In an effort to settle a heated debate covering police matters, members of town council adjourned to meet in an adjacent room with the press and public excluded. Members refuse to state exactly what happened there, but one councillor returned to the chambers with face marks indicating that he had been struck by another councillor. Involved in the dispute, which was not made entirely clear to council, but which had been discussed at a meeting of the Police Committee, were Councillors Robert Cockburn and Deputy Reeve Ross Pearsoll.

Requests Investigation

Councillor Cockburn, chairman of police, introduced a motion to have a police commission appointed, to consist of the Mayor, a Judge and the Chairman of Police. Following this motion, Cockburn placed himself on record as desirous of having an investigation into the alleged action of Deputy Reeve Pearsoll in obstructing Police Constable George Pitt in the performance of his duties.

The discussion broke off for the purpose of the private session which lasted 20 minutes behind closed doors, and which became very heated and developed into a battle more realistic than words.

Councillor Cockburn, in council, said police had been criticized for not doing their duty "and now the police have complained because of interference with their duties by Deputy Reeve Pearsoll."

Had Trouble With Constable

Deputy Reeve Pearsoll said he had trouble with Constable Pitt and had asked for a special police meeting to discuss the situation. He said he wished to know why this was not done and said he had civil charges to lay against Constable Pitt.

Councillor Cockburn said he had no authority to call anyone but members of the police committee to the special meeting held and he expected the Deputy Reeve to be there and had asked the town clerk to notify him.

Clerk F. L. Ward, K.C., agreed that Cockburn had no authority to invite others than committee members to the meeting but "he might have done it if he had wished."

Councillor Cockburn said council could accept his resignation as chairman of the Police Committee and added, "If I had been Constable Pitt, I know what I would have done."

Several Complaints Registered

Reeve A. E. Grindrod asked that both sides of the question be aired "because there have been several complaints against the policeman concerned."

Councillor Cockburn said he would like to have Constable Pitt at such a discussion but said that he was confined to his bed under a doctor's care.

Following the recess, Councillor Cockburn moved that the report of the Police Committee, regarding condemnation of Deputy Reeve Pearsoll for his action, be adopted. Reeve Grindrod moved an amendment that the report be laid over. The amendment carried, Cockburn dissenting. Councillor Cockburn then stated he would resign as chairman of the committee as soon as the controversy is settled.

Motion Laid Over

The original motion that a police commission be set up, was laid over. A special meeting of the Police Committee, open to the public, is to be held shortly when the matter will be further aired.

The matter covering alleged interference by Deputy Reeve Pearsoll was an arrest Constable Pitt was about to make. Details have not been revealed by the Police Committee and are being withheld until the special meeting.

Truck Loaded With Gas Drums Overturns in Ditch

Picton, Oct. 9 — Though a truck with two large drums of gasoline on it, overturned in the village of Cherry Valley yesterday, there was no explosion or fire. The truck, owned by Clarence Howe, Picton, had proceeded up a hill when an empty drum fell off and rolled down the grade. He parked the truck at the top of the hill and while he was absent the vehicle started to back down the hill. It ran into a steep bank and the impact caused the truck with its load to overturn on its side. Gasoline from one tank was spilled on the road. A dog in the cab was rescued unharmed. A wrecking outfit was required to right the truck. It was fortunate there was no fire or explosion as there were three buildings close by.

STIRLING

Red Cross Branch Holds Meeting

Stirling—On Friday afternoon in Community Hall the Stirling Branch of the Red Cross held its opening meeting for the Autumn activities. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Gordon Bailey, the meeting was in charge of the second Vice President, Mrs. Whitehead.

A letter from Red Cross headquarters was read by the Secretary, Mrs. Johnston, requesting that sewing and knitting be continued, owing to the still great need for garments in Europe for both women and children. It was decided to accept suitable material for sewing and wool for knitted garments. Mrs. Belshaw reported knitting from the Spring quota finished and ready for shipment and a receipt for a knitting quota for the Fall. Mrs. Foster reported several quilts ready to be shipped. The Treasurer, Mrs. E. G. Bailey, reported a bank balance of $625 with no bills outstanding and moved the adoption of this report.

The shipping committee was empowered to take charge of the completed quota.

It was decided that members would be more interested if the meetings were more frequently, and Mrs. Armstrong made a motion that the unit meet every Friday. This was unanimously agreed. After some discussion it was determined to dispense with refreshments at all future meetings.

The meeting adjourned.

Debenture By-law For $450,000 Passed by Council

Picton, Oct. 9 — Considerable business was transacted by town council at its October meeting. The debenture by-law to raise $450,000 for the installation of a sewerage system was given third reading.

A by-law was passed in preparation for nomination and election days.

A resolution was passed authorizing that any necessary action be taken to prevent Walter Boyer, a war veteran, building an addition to his lunch room on West Main Street, as a permit had been denied. This permit was earlier the centre of a controversy when residents of the district concerned opposed an extension and installation of a jutebox.

Bills of $18.50, $18 and $1.00 were received from local barbers who had shaved three men, patients at the county hospital. Clerk and Solicitor F. L. Ward, K.C., said there was no law in existence which allowed the accounts to be paid and council refused payment.

A by-law was introduced under which council meetings, held the first Monday of the month, would be changed to the first Tuesday. This followed a request by the Kinsmen Club.

Building permits granted included a paint shop, business building, two houses.

Salary of Clerk-Solicitor Ward was increased to $1500 per year.

CROWN PRODUCES

Blood in Basket

Dr. Deadman said he also found blood on a pair of rubber boots. So he did also on a bushel basket given him for examination by police.

"It proved to be type O," repeated the doctor.

Then Mr. Rigney produced a tiny object, handed it to the pathologist and waited his reply.

"It is a human tooth, with blood type B," said the doctor. He had tested it previously.

Then there were street car tickets, found by police, examined by Dr. Deadman and found to have "O" type blood marks. Next an envelope containing buttons from a street railwayman's uniform. They had bloodstains but Dr. Deadman could not say what type.

Defence counsel John J. Sullivan cross-examined the pathologist, brought out that the first four vertebrae, and part of the fifth, "had disappeared with the head" from the torso found on the mountain.

The defence counsel, quoted medical authority to show that proportion of a man's height would be represented in his torso. He held it would be in the ratio of one to 3.3, on the frontal measurements.

Drained Out After Death

Dr. Deadman had estimated the torso was that of a man five feet 10 inches in height.

"I would think it drained out fairly recently after death," said Dr. Deadman of the blood which had left the torso when he examined it March 18.

"Was the body rigid?" asked Mr. Sullivan.

"It wasn't."

Dr. Deadman, at request of Mr. Sullivan explained rigor mortis, how it becomes complete in a body in 24 hours, lasts another 12 and then disappears.

"Severance of the limbs and head wouldn't make any difference," said the pathologist to a query as to whether a body, "dismembered as this was, would degenerate" faster than a whole body.

Through this recital Mrs. Dick sat twisted toward the witness, her head propped on her hand as she leaned back.

Would Take Half Hour

"How long do you think it would have taken to dismember this body?" asked defence counsel Sullivan with reference to the headless, limbless body found on Hamilton Mountain last March 16 and identified by a brother-in-law of John Dick.

Dr. Deadman pondered a moment, said it depended on the muscular development of the victim, on the tools used, on the determination of the cutter.

"Given a sharp saw, I would think those legs, and those arms and the head could be sawn off in half an hour of concentrated work," said Dr. Deadman.

The defence counsel went back to the sawing off of the right arm of the torso and brought out from the doctor the fact it had been sawn only seven-eighths through. Then it had been bent over something and broken, splintered.

"Could that indicate hurry?" asked Sullivan as the jurymen strained forward, waiting on every word of the witness.

"Possibly," replied Dr. Deadman.

His cross examination followed his identification of "O" type blood stains on a sweater and tie, both of which had belonged to the slain tram driver and also on such things as a conductor's punch, and conductor's uniform buttons.

Dr. Deadman said on March 23 he found "human blood of type "O", on a car he examined at police headquarters.

Packard Car Used

The pathologist, witness No. 20 in this trial of the comely young widow on charges of slaying her husband, John Dick last March, said the car was a Packard sedan owned by William Landeg.

Mr. Landeg, an earlier witness had testified that on March 6, the day Dick disappeared and 10 days before his body was found on Hamilton mountain, the accused had borrowed his car.

Late yesterday, during his first testimony the doctor said the torso, which he examined March 18, had "O" type blood.

In the car, the pathologist said, he found a necktie. It too was stained with "O" type blood, as was a sweater taken from the car, both articles having been previously identified by John Dick's landlady, Mrs. Anne Kammerer, a crown witness, as belonging to the slain husband of the accused.

At later dates, the doctor said, he was asked to examine shoes, a conductor's punch, a small chain. All bore bloodstains.

These were all entered as crown exhibits by special crown prosecutor T. J. Rigney, assigned by the Attorney-General's Department to this case which grew from the slaying of the Hamilton street railway tram operator and dismemberment of his body.

Bones Cut With Saw

Under cross examination by Mr. Sullivan, the pathologist said he saw no evidence of a knife having been used on the torso. Apparently the flesh, like the bones had been cut with a saw.

"This would be an easier method than severing the joints," said Dr. Deadman.

Mr. Sullivan referred to a case in which five hours were needed to dismember two bodies.

"Yes," said Dr. Deadman, but he recalled the principal in the case was a surgeon. "He would do it in a precise, professional manner."

Dr. Deadman told how in ashes taken from 32 Carrick Ave. "we picked out everything that looked like human bones—we got quite a number of pieces."

9 Pieces Looked Like Teeth

"We got nine pieces of what looked like teeth," said Dr. Deadman. "I recognized parts of arm bones, parts of leg bones, thigh bones, upper arm bones and pieces of what seemed to be skull bones."

"The result of your find were only bones of those parts missing from the torso?" asked Mr. Rigney.

"Yes," said Dr. Deadman.

Mr. Rigney produced the marriage certificate of the accused and the slain man. It listed the prisoner as "Evelyn MacLean White," a widow. John Dick was listed as a Mennonite.

Mrs. Alexandra MacLean, mother of the accused was witness No. 21. Harvey McCulloch, Crown Attorney of Hamilton conducted her examination.

Annoyed About Marriage

Mrs. MacLean told the court she first knew John Dick only two weeks before he married her daughter a year ago.

She was annoyed about the marriage. "We had a great row about it," said Mrs. MacLean with reference to Oct. 3, 1945, a day before Evelyn was married.

"They didn't get along at all," Mrs. MacLean said of her daughter and her son-in-law.

John Dick occasionally stayed out two nights running.

On Feb. 2, Sunday morning John Dick left and did not come back. He and Evelyn had an argument.

For the first time in the trial the name of William Bohozuk came into the trial. Mrs. MacLean said she had heard of the young ex-oarsman who is accused also, and along with Mrs. Dick's father, Donald MacLean of the Dick murder.

The mother told the court the arguments between Evelyn and John Dick concerned "women and money."

Mrs. MacLean said she last spoke to John Dick on March 5, "the day before he disappeared."

On March 6, the mother said, Evelyn said she was going uptown and left about 1 p.m. Next Mrs. MacLean said, her daughter appeared in the back yard trying to drive a big black car into the garage.

Mrs. MacLean said she did not want Evelyn to have anybody's car and told her so.

"Evelyn said 'this is a friend's car,'" said the mother. "She told me to mind my own business."

Mrs. MacLean said she was afraid the child Heather would slam the back door and lock the family out so she told her boarder, Robert Corbett, to take the child inside. Mrs. Dick drove away, "and I did not see her until between eight and nine o'clock."

Evelyn was annoyed when she returned—"could tell by the twist of her mouth."

Night Sanatoria For T.B. Workers

By REMBERT JAMES

Moscow, Oct. 9 (AP)—Late every day thousands of factory workers in cities scattered throughout the Soviet Union leave their work benches to become overnight patients in tuberculosis sanatoria.

They are patients in the unique Soviet medical institution called a night sanatorium.

They are found in the periodic health check-ups at Soviet factories. Those suffering from tuberculosis are given papers ordering them to undergo two months' treatment at the plant's sanatorium.

For these two months they work only six hours daily.

After two months the doctors decide if the worker needs further care.

Since the first of the year, plants in Moscow, Leningrad and in various industrial regions of Siberia and the Urals have operated night sanatoria handling some 50,000 patients annually. This number will be doubled shortly.

Few Turkeys For Thanksgiving

(By The Canadian Press)

Those who want turkey for Thanksgiving Day had better start thinking about chicken. Warm weather has killed most Canadian hopes of obtaining the traditional bird for the festive table, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Although turkey farmers are notable for last-minute rushes to market, dealers and producers across the country agreed that all fowl except chicken will be in short supply for next Monday's feast.

Warm weather seems to top all the reasons for the gobbler scarcity. Producers explain that turkeys are great roamers. This makes them difficult to round up and the exercise also keeps them too lean for market. It takes frost and snow to make them settle on perches where they can be fattened. Because of this most farmers look forward to the Christmas trade when a great demand is coupled with best killing conditions.

Ceiling Prices Prevail

What turkeys are available will be sold at the ceiling retail price of 48 cents a pound for Grade "A" birds, 46 for Grade "B" and 43 for Grade "C". Ducks and geese will be available here and there, but they are not as profitable to raise as chickens and turkeys.

Chickens, however, are plentiful. The Dominion Department of Agriculture estimated that hatchings this year were 30.4 per cent higher than 1945. Although many went for export, principally to Great Britain, the situation looks much brighter than last year.

You'll be able to obtain chickens for 45 cents a pound for special grade milk-fed birds; 44 cents for Grade "A" milk-fed, and 42 for Grade "B."

Ontario cities generally had no turkey supplies on hand, although there were plenty on farms. Centres which anticipated meeting local demand included North Bay and London. Toronto and Ottawa, like smaller communities, reported dealers' shelves bare of turkeys but with heavy supplies of chickens on hand. Sudbury, not far from the great turkey-raising area of Manitoulin Island, also will be short of all fowl except chickens.

Packinghouse Workers Vote to Accept Terms

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP)—Members of Local 208 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America voted unanimously last night to accept terms of an agreement reached recently at Winnipeg between the union's national leaders and the Swift Canadian Company. The agreement calls for 10-cent hourly wage increases.
